I am a school teacher, and this year, my first year of teaching in this school, I am planning to send a Christmas card to each one of my students. Please tell me the correct way for me to sign these cards. C.S.M.

First, do not sign a title before your name . . . for example, don't be tempted to sign Miss Jean Smith Marsh underneath the message on the card.

If your students are very young, you might sign the message on the cards like this:

Christmas Greetings

From your teacher

Miss Smith Marsh

Or, if you have a large class of young students, perhaps both girls and boys, and wish your signature to be somewhat more impersonal than your first name would be, you might sign your two initials before your last name . . . C.S. Marsh.

PLACE CARDS FOR LARGE FAMILY-REUNION DINNERS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband retired the first part of this year, and then we were able to come to live here, "back home." Now since we have room for entertaining we would like to give two large reunion dinners, one on Thanksgiving Day and one on Christmas Day, to gather together again the members of our families and their families, and our closest friends. Guests will be of various ages, and they will be seated at two large tables in the dining room and two smaller tables in the adjacent glass-enclosed breakfast room. I've planned everything—except the question of place cards. Would you approve of using place cards at such informal dinners? They certainly would be convenient. Call, if you do approve, should I write on them the "Mrs." and "Mr." and "Miss" form of name associated with place cards? — Janet M.

For so many guests and such varying ages, even if the dinners are to be of such informality, by all means do use place cards—proper, practical, convenient. To point up the informality of the occasion, you might use seasonal greeting-cards as place cards, on small, simple cards stamped with traditional symbols. Or on plain white cards (gilt-edged, perhaps) write the name and the occasion

. . . Thanksgiving Day, or Christmas Day . . . and the year. On any of these informal cards write the informal name (not "Mrs." or "Mr." or "Miss"); for example, "Aunt Lillian", "Uncle Arthur", "Grandmother" or "Nanna" or "Grandmother Fuller." If more than one grandmother is to be present; "Sue" or "Sue Wilson"; "Sally" or "Tommy", and so on.

BRIDE-TO-BE MUST DECIDE COLOR-SCHEME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am 17 years old, and I have been invited by a dear friend of mine to be a bridesmaid in her wedding in February. There are to be four bridesmaids, all close friends, and the bride-to-be has told us that we may each choose our own color dress. Please give us your suggestions — Nancy W.

What a mixed-up color scheme would result if each one of you girls should choose her own color dress! You and the other attendants should persuade the bride-to-be that she is the one who must decide on the color-scheme for her wedding, and then choose the color for the dresses of her attendants. The bridesmaids' dresses today are usually all of the same color. If, for some reason you have not mentioned or perhaps don't know, the bride-to-be isn't going to follow this important custom, you and the other attendants should get together and choose the color . . . and the style also . . . that seems best under the circumstances. Each attendant pays for her own dress, but the bride or her family pays for the attendants' flowers, as this must also be discussed and decided on with the bride-to-be.

AN ANIMAL cracker parade makes a delightful decoration for your child's party table, and it's easy to do. Dip the animals' feet in stiffly beaten egg white, and stand each one on a flat cookie or cracker. Line them up, and there's a parade good enough to eat.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IF HE WANTS TO GO, LET HIM

When a man wants a divorce and his wife, for whatever reason, doesn't want to give it to him, does she gain anything by her refusal? That depends, I think, on her particular circumstances.

For example, I doubt very much if the woman who writes me the following letter is going to gain anything by not installing that her husband stay married to her.

Here is her story:

"My husband and I have been married ten years, and have four children, 1 did, and still do, love my husband very truly; yet sometime I think I hate him, too.

She then goes on to say that her husband is the type of man who is swayed by practically any pretty face or figure: that she suspects him of having had a number of affairs, which he refuses to admit. On the contrary, when she has confronted him with what she believes to be evidence of his philandering, he becomes abusive, and has even gone so far as to strike her. Right now, she believes him to be in the affair with a woman in their immediate social circle.

"He hasn't really admitted he is having an affair with her," she says, "but he doesn't deny it, either. Instead, he enjoys taunting me about it, and says if I don't like what he does to get a divorce.

She then explained that, because of the children, I will not get a divorce, and begged him to consider them. He seems, however, to really want the divorce, although he has been smart enough to convince our friends that he doesn't, if I will stop my greeting-cards a place card, no small, simple cards stamped with traditional symbols. Or on plain white cards (gilt-edged, perhaps) write the name and the occasion

. . . Thanksgiving Day, or Christmas Day . . . and the year. On any of these informal cards write the informal name (not "Mrs." or "Mr." or "Miss"); for example, "Aunt Lillian", "Uncle Arthur", "Grandmother" or "Nanna" or "Grandmother Fuller." If more than one grandmother is to be present; "Sue" or "Sue Wilson"; "Sally" or "Tommy", and so on.

SLEEK BROADCLOTH

By VERA WINSTON

Sleek, drapable black wool broadcloth is used for a handsome long jacket suit, worn with a low-necked black satin blouse. It is a perfect choice for smart afternoon or informal theatre wear. The draped neckline is caught into a three-button tab and the very low-placed pockets serve to accentuate the long slim look, of which the slim skirt is a part.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

MODERN MAKE-UP

Good looks are a passport. There's no doubt about it. Though a woman may have a fine mind and a charming personality, she just doesn't belong in the modern pageant if she is careless about her appearance. Good grooming is taken for granted. And an important part of grooming is the careful, fastidious application of those toiletries that are applied to enhance the beauty of the complexion.

The tendency toward more natural looking loveliness is apparent. Weird zig-zagging eyebrows have gone into the limbo of forgotten beauty whimsies. Rouge, once a round apple of application on the cheeks now assumes the modesty of a wild rose, faint and delicate.

A famous Hollywood make-up artist says, "The mouth is the most mobile feature, the eye the most active, the brow most expressive."

Lipstick accents the mouth and that is why the corners of the lips should be lifted to give an expression of good humor and friendliness. Use your lipstick carefully; see that it goes on smoothly.

While much can be done to make the eyes glamorous by darkening the lashes, their real sparkle comes from true animation. Eyebrows contribute to the charm of the eyes. To arch them becomingly, see that they follow the shape of the eyes. A dark brown crayon is the right selection. A black one forms lines which are inclined to look heavy.

Treat Your Roast Beef With Respect

By Mary Moore

It is in January that I receive so many letters from you asking for "reducing menus please Mary" or "kindly mail me your calorie chart."

Right now I am working up to writing a column on this reducing topic which has universal and perennial appeal. When I say working I mean just that, for I gained four pounds and am trying a new diet angle to get them off—painlessly.

Until I lose four or maybe more pounds I will not tell you the method but you will hear much shouting and harraking if and when I am successful.

But I can tell you one thing now—last night at the Press Club monthly dinner meeting my stomach said a fervent "thank you" out loud when I saw that huge serving of rare roasted beef being placed smack in front of me.

Warning: Give a thought to your waistline come January, then give thought to every idle bite you take now. Don't eat it If it adds more calories than you need to maintain your ideal weight, then you won't have to go through that harder discipline of eating fewer calories than you need to come down to your ideal weight.

It's a wonder you don't flee me one day if you give you tantalizing dessert recipes tempting you to try them. The next day I say I'll not desecrate you will grow fat!

Today I'm on safe ground.

You should eat lean meat even if you are overweight for it is an essential protein. There are very few foods that beat roast beef for flavor.

My plea today is this: eat roast beef but roast it with respect. Don't do it to death. All those beautiful juices that are nature's to it should be still in it when it reaches your plate. Don't drive those succulent juices out of it into the roasting pan.

Heed these rules for roasting beef.

ROASTING TIMES AND TEMPERATURES

Rolled Rib Roast: If the ribs were in this a 2 or 3-rib piece would serve generously 5 to 7 people. Wipe meat with damp cloth and place in shallow pan on rack or trivet without any water and without a lid. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and paprika. Roast at 325 deg. Fahr. throughout. For rare-done roast 27 to 30 minutes to the pound. (This is the timing I recommend to retain all of the juices—also when rare-roasted beef is leftover it is so much more satisfactory and tasty to slice cold or for transforming into "made" dishes. That's a lecture, in case you did not recognize it right off.) For medium-done roast 30 to 35 minutes per pound. For well-done roast 35 to 40 minutes to the pound.

There are some folk with epicurean tastes who claim the best accompaniment to roast beef is

CREAM HORSERADISH SAUCE

Whip 1-2 cup heavy cream until stiff. Carefully fold in 2 tablespoons well-drained horseradish, 1 teaspoon French mustard and 1 tablespoon white vinegar. This should be made at the last minute and served piled in a low bowl, and generously sprinkled with paprika.

Make sure the carving knife is rapier sharp.

Newfoundland Is Trying To Boost Farm Production

By STEWART MacLEOD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Newfoundland's better known for its fishing than its farming, is trying to increase its production to that at present provides only 45 per cent of the vegetables consumed in the province.

The government is spending $241,200 this year to help the province's 3,700 farmers step up their output. A royal commission, headed by Dean Shaw, an agricultural expert from Ontario, has studied the farm problem and its report and recommendations are expected soon.

Agriculture has not kept pace with industrial development in Newfoundland since the war. Lack of good transportation to markets, stiff competition from the mainland and the island's rocky soil are among the deterrents.

MORE THAN 1,000 DEPENDENT

A development program that began under the commission government before Confederation in 1949 is being pursued, however, and the more than $500,000 spent this year is $150,000 more than in 1953 and $270,000 more than in 1952.

Ben Blueberries still are the province's only agricultural export.

Much hope is placed in the report of the royal commission. Provincial Resources Minister Rowe says; "I feel certain there are certain types of agriculture which can be pursued enabling us to compete successfully with outside competition."

Many predict there will be recommendations for increased mink farming. Pot-head wholes sell for two cents a pound as fodder, making Newfoundland perhaps the cheapest place in Canada to raise mink, of which there are 5,000 in the province.

BOARD ESTABLISHED

The farmers, apparently anxious to develop their land, have borrowed more than $30,000 since last November when a provincial land board was established to assist them in this development.

A federal experimental farm at Mount Pearl, five miles from here, co-operates with 18 field men of the provincial agriculture department. One of the farm's most important duties is blueberry testing. The 3,000,000 pounds of blueberries shipped to the United States each year mean about $500,000 to farmers.

The experimental farm, a $60,000-a-year operation, is studying use of caplin as chicken feed. The caplin is a tiny fish which dies by the thousand on Newfoundland's beaches.

Agriculture never has been a strong industry in Newfoundland. Steep coastal hills are studded with stone. The soil needs conditioning and lime must be imported. Slow transportation is a further reason why transportation, as big business, has not paid off.

The average farm has a cleared area of only 10 acres, with another 15 acres covered with timber.

About 1,000 acres have been cleared annually by government owned tractors since 1946.

Total value of the farms, including buildings, livestock and machinery, is $22,000,000. This includes some 200 tractors.

Hay, by far the main crop, is produced on 30 per cent of the cleared land and another 25 per cent is used for pasture. Oats, usually a big Maritime crop, take up only two per cent of the land.

The 14,000 cattle, mostly Holstein, produce 35,000,000 pounds of milk a year but only half of this reaches the market and during the last six years imports of evaporated milk rose to 600,000 cases from 200,000 cases a year. Farms produce 200,000 pounds of butter annually; local margarine production is 10,000,000 pounds.

The province's 75,000 sheep represent a 10 per cent increase in four years and poultry have increased 25 per cent to 400,000 in the same period. The 13,000 horses most of them used in lumbering operations, represent little change in the last 20 years; swine and goat populations have declined 10 per cent a year since the Second World War to 3,000 and 6,000 respectively.

Vegetable production, all for home consumption, is valued at $875,000 and comes from 1,000 acres of potatoes, 825 acres of turnips, 610 acres of cabbages, 140 acres of carrots and 74 acres of beets.

Meteoric Crater, 30 Miles Across, Found in North

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven mines department scientists have begun studies of what was found in a summer-long investigation of what may be the world's largest meteoric crater, 30 miles across.

Dr. M. J. S. Innes, who headed a team which looked through a 260 - square - mile depression in northern Quebec 130 miles north west of Fort Chimo, said cautiously that it "would not be unreasonable to suppose that we struck suspect it is a crater."

He said it will take three months of laboratory studies to determine for sure whether the depression was made by a meteor striking the earth ages ago, or merely a geological freak.

The hole is 200 times the size of the Chubb crater in Ungava found several years ago.

BODY OF

Washington officials said Vishinsky's death will not mean any change in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union. They cited the general conviction that Soviet policy is determined in the Kremlin and not by its mouthpiece at the UN.

Long a sufferer from heart trouble, Vishinsky collapsed Monday morning and was treated by his Russian personal physician, identified only as a Dr. Koseff. The fact that Koseff had no New York state medical license and could not sign a legal death certificate caused a delay in embalming the body.

The difficulty was ended when Russian officials invited Dr. Milton Helpern, a New York deputy medical examiner, to view the body. He released it for embalming, stating Vishinsky's death was "due to natural causes."

PAY RESPECTS

High international figures, including the visiting French premier, Pierre Mendes - France, visited the Soviet delegation headquarters briefly Monday to pay their respects. Floral wreaths began to arrive and a crowd stood in front of the building during most of last evening.

New York police assigned a detail to all-night guard duty in front of the headquarters.

Photographers admitted to the second-floor parlor of the Soviet headquarters to take pictures of the body found the huge copper casket on a four-foot platform with a bank of floral pieces at the head.

An honor guard of four Soviet officials stood at the four corners of the casket. The chandelier in the parlor, a room about 30 by 30 feet, was draped in black, as were all her lighting fixtures in the building.

COPPER CASKET

A representative of a nearby funeral chapel said "two embassy officials dropped in" Monday afternoon and selected a "very good casket, made of seamless copper." It was said to have cost more than $6,000.

The body was to remain on view until 3 p.m., then to be taken to Idlewild airport and placed on a 6 p.m. plane bound for Paris, flying with the body will be Vishinsky's widow and their daughter, Zena.

FIRE HITS STORE

LOCK HAVEN, Pa. (AP)—Fire starting in a department store stockroom filled with Christmas goods caused $1,000,000 damage during a seven-hour rampage in downtown Lock aven Sunday night. Flames being brought under control the blaze destroyed the J. C. Penney department store and spread to three adjoining stores.

Canadian-U.S. Trade Problems Are Outlined

NEW YORK (CP)—J. A. Calder, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Monday that solution of current Canadian-American trade problems could lay a foundation for almost unlimited extension of exchange of goods between the two countries.

Such a solution might also develop principles and ideas capable of much wider application in international trade.

Mr. Calder, Montreal industrialist, spoke to a joint gathering of the International Advertising Association and the American Marketing Association and the Committee for a National Trade Policy.

His address was released to the press in advance of delivery.

PURCHASES OUTLINED

Canada, said Mr. Calder, buys about $3,000,000,000 worth of goods a year from the United States, or about one-quarter of American exports.

The United States, on its side, buys about $2,350,000,000 worth of goods from Canada, or about 60 per cent of Canada's exports.

Thus, American exports to Canada exceeded Canadian exports to the United States by between $600,000,000 and $700,000,000 a year.

To wipe out this adverse balance every Canadian would have to reduce his purchases of American goods by more than $40. However, the same end could be achieved, and in a manner more in accord with the best interests of international trade, if every American increased his purchases of Canadian goods by only $4.

HIT MATERIALISM

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic bishops of the United States Sunday defined the country's real enemy as atheistic materialism and said the nation "must recover and renew its Christian faith" if it is to survive. They said in a statement that "materialism is the real enemy, at home as well as abroad."

Little Benny's Notebook

I saw pop getting off the bus and I walked home with him for company, and I said, Hay pop, are injects intelligent?

They surely are, they are almost intelligent enough to rule the earth by spraying us with human powder, pop said, and I said, Well how about flies?

Oh, I dont include flies, pop said. In all the animal, vegetable and mineral kingdoms, there is nothing more stupid than a fly. Big experts may accuse me of prejudice, and they may be right but that's my sincere feeling about flies, he said, and I said, Dont you think a fly could be trained to do little tricks, like standing on his hine legs?

Absilutely not, pop said. Any insect with no more sense than to fly back to the same spot on your face immeedilty after you've taken a swat at it, is practically devoid of intelligents. But why this sudden thirst in flies? he said, and I said, Glasses Magee has got one in a pill box, and he claims it's so smart he's going to make a trained fly out of it. He claims he's already taught it to crawl across his finger and then roll over, I said.

Has anybody else seen the performance? pop said, and I said, No sir, whenever we ask him to show us, Glasses says the fly is too sleepy. I- was wondering whether to swap him my rubber band ball for his fly, I said.

I advise you to keep the ball till you get a chance to swap it for a really smart insect, like a trained flea that will bring you honey every morning at breakfast, pop said.

Meening he still didn't admire flies.

Discreet Word Used by Parliamentary Observers to Describe House Clerk

By BERNARD DUFRESNE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Discreet is the word used by parliamentary observers to describe the activities of the clerk of the House of Commons.

In the sometimes stormy atmosphere of Commons debates and proceedings, he must remain aloof, yet aware of what is happening, ready to counsel Mr. Speaker.

Outside the chamber, the clerk, who is in effect the Speaker's deputy minister, knows many things but says nothing.

SILENT ON POLITICS

"The secrets and confidences I hold are not mine to give," is the way the 53-year-old parliamentary expert explains his reticence to talk politics.

But he never dismisses a query about a puzzling point of parliamentary procedure or history.

From his chair at the head of the Commons table, Mr. Raymond supervises the collection and safeguarding of Commons records.

At times, however, he personally reflects on his four years as a member of Parliament before appointment as clerk of the Commons Aug. 5, 1949. Then, he was a law-maker. Now, he has no parliamentary powers.

"But I have a great deal of respect for the rule not because it is mine but because it has inherent importance," he said in an interview.

SWIFT TRANSITION

Mr. Raymond had been re-elected Liberal member for Gatineau, when he was appointed to succeed Arthur Beauchesne, then 73 and past the normal retirement age.

Soon after the general election of July, 1949, he received a telephone call from Prime Minister St. Laurent with an offer of the Commons post.

"You just don't say 'no' to a prime minister," Mr. Raymond said. He accepted the job within five hours.

CLERK OF COMMONS

Leon Raymond, 53-year-old parliamentary expert, was appointed clerk of the Commons August 5, 1949. From his chair at the head of the Commons table, Mr. Raymond supervises the collection and safe-guarding of Commons records. He had been Liberal member of Parliament for Gatineau for four years before his appointment as clerk. (CP Photo).

That was six weeks before the start of a session Sept. 15, 1949. It meant overtime work studying rules of parliamentary procedure, but it wasn't as tough as studying by oil lamp in lumber camps.

SELF-TAUGHT STUDENT

Mr. Raymond had four years of high school in northern Quebec woods, where he was a stores clerk by day and self-taught student for the bar solicitor's exam by night. In the off-seasons, he worked as a clerk in a notary's office in L'Annonciation, Que., where he met his French-born wife. They have two sons.

An orphan at the age of 12, he paid his way through college at Joliette, Que., where he earned a bachelor of arts' degree.

He helped harvest western grain crops, was a police reporter for Montreal La Presse, a Quebec Superior Court bailiff, a school teacher and a Montreal streetcar conductor, badges number 2426.

"I'll remember that number as long as I live," Mr. Raymond said.

Andrei Vishinsky Once Obscure Russian Lawyer

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP) Andrei Yanuarievich Vishinsky, the once obscure Russian lawyer who became a foremost mouthpiece for the Soviet Union, died Monday. The Soviet deputy foreign minister, Moscow chief delegate to the United Nations, would have been 71 years old Dec. 10.

Word of the death of Vishinsky —as famed today for his blistering bravery as he was in the 1930s as Stalin's blood purge prosecutor—spread quickly throughout the United Nations.

WILL PAY TRIBUTE

While regular sessions of the UN were adjourned out of respect, the General Assembly arranged to meet this afternoon in tribute to his Soviet delegate.

Once a member of the right wing "Menshevik"—minority — faction of Russia's revolutionaries, a position hated by the Bolsheviks, Vishinsky fitted himself to the Bolshevik — majority — line and never deviated from the day he was accepted into the Communist party more than three decades ago.

Vishinsky rose to fame as state prosecutor with a slashing, violent prosecution of old Bolshevik leaders in the Stalin blood purge of the middle 1930s. He went on to higher things, winding up as foreign minister.

DEMOTED IN 1953

He surrendered the top post of the foreign ministry to V. M. Molotov in March, 1953, in the Soviet government realignment which followed the death of Stalin, and he was appointed first deputy foreign minister. Last December, on his 70th birthday, Vishinsky's service as Soviet state wyrs recognized when he was awarded the Order of Lenin, his nation's highest award.

Vishinsky, better known to the world outside the Iron Curtain than almost any other Soviet figure, began a rather declined health in 1949.

Vishinsky's colorful and often violent oratory dominated many post-war international conferences, but he was as renowned for his wit as for his invective. An agile debater, he was never at a loss for words, and his barbed quips at his diplomatic foes in the world peace parleys brought a rather devoted round the world.

A smallish, stocky man with white hair, flushed face and dancing eyes behind horn-rimmed spectacles, Vishinsky's appearance belied his reputation for acid debate.

BORN IN ODESSA

Vishinsky was born in Odessa in the Caucasus. In 1920, 1921, His father was a tsarist petty official who sent him to school in the Azerbaijan city of Baku and in the Ukraine capital of Kiev to study law.

His record in the law, including service as a professor of law in Moscow University, led to Vishinsky's appointment as commissar of justice, then deputy U. S. S. R. state prosecutor and finally the all-union prosecutor.

There he became famous, a central figure in a proceeding which shocked the world. He ripped into the one-time revolutionary heroes who abjectly confessed to every sin against Stalin and the Soviet state. Thousands went to death, thousands of others into exile.

Vishinsky was first deputy to Foreign Commissar Molotov in 1940. Nine years later, when Molotov detached himself from the ministry post, Vishinsky became foreign minister. When Molotov again assumed the title of foreign minister after Stalin's death, Vishinsky once again became his first deputy. He remained on the central committee of the Communist party.

JUST WHAT?

Just what do you have to do to win a playoff football game? That is the question that was asked over the week-end by thousands of Queen's students, supporters and alumni.

Lady Luck, the mythical fates that rule football or any other gimmick outside of actual play, won't, it seems, have anything to do with the gallant Gaels.

What was left of their fighting hearts after that spirit-shattering episode against Varsity last Saturday, was smashed to smithereens this week-end with something that shouldn't happen to a pigskin pooch.

The stout Gaels, led by their wonder-back, Ron Stewart, had led the Western Mustangs in the shadow of the wire. The score was 18-15. Nearly 12,000 fans sat tense in their seats. The Mustangs had the ball. A field-goal would tie the score and that is what the Mustangs quarter called for. Frazer, Mustang star deluxe, booted a low, bouncing ball just over the Queen's goal-line.

Stewart, who had put the Gaels in front with two last-quarter touchdowns, caught the ball. He fumbled it. It slipped out of his hands and Don Killoran, alert Western end, looped on it for the winning touchdown as the run reared games-end. Queen's spectators and Western's too, sat for a second in stunned silence after the "impossible" had happened.

The Gael's hopes of an intercollegiate championship crashed when that slippery ball rolled out of Stewart's hands. It was a heartbreak of the crushing kind that sent proud ambitions crumbling to the dust. Queen's had happened to a team that floundered across the intercollegiate football horizon this season in a blaze of guts and glory. But it did.

On successive Saturday afternoons Gaels have been the unfortunate victims of referees' decisions that have turned almost certain victory into heart-wrenching defeat. It is unlikely that the annals of Canadian intercollegiate football record such strikingly similar disasters happening to the same team on successive week-ends, with a share of the league title at stake in each game.

Penalties have probably never been more damaging to a football team than the twin "interference" pullays that wrecked Queen's title hopes this season. It is doubtful if Varsity or Western have ever had a single penalty called against them that could be accounted as leading directly to the loss of a game.

All season long, against Western and Varsity, the Gaels' touchdown drives have gone awry because of penalties. Western drove more than 75 yards on the ground against Queen's last Saturday without a rules infraction and in Kingston mounted one touchdown drive for 109 yards without a single penalty going against them.

Probably the two most exciting football contests put on in the east to date this season have been the Queen's-Varsity and the Queen's-Western games of the last two weeks. Thrilling finishes are great for the box office. But thrilling finishes, shelled by the referees are something else.

The conviction grown that this week's intercollegiate final between Varsity and Western at London's Little Stadium, will be a championship game between the league's second and third best teams.

BROCKVILLE TONIGHT

Hot after their dunking of the powerful Cornwall Colts in the down-east city on Sunday, the Memos sank further pointing tonight when they entertain the Brockville Maple-domas in Memorial Arena. The teams have met twice during the season thus far, splitting the verdicts by identical 6-4 scores. The Maples are at the moment holding down sixth spot in the league standing but are a strong force to be reckoned with nevertheless.

A Memos' victory will give them possession of second spot in the standing, one point ahead of the Kingston Goodyears, who do not see action until Saturday next when they play host to the Whitby team. In fact the Memos, who visit Peterborough Wednesday night, could stretch their points to 12, and the league lead with a victory up in Perseverville. The Clinton Comets, the Memos' co-partners in third place at the moment, run into tough opposition on Wednesday night when they visit Whitby. It will be the first meeting of the teams this season.

Willie Hoppe's long reign as world's 18.2 balkline billiards champion was ended 24 years ago today when Jacob Schaefer, Jr., of Chicago beat him 500-346. Hoppe had held the crown from 1910 to 1930, but he came back to hold the title again in 1952 and 1954. The first world title play in this-cloth was in 1854 when Walter Cochrane was the winner.

RACE TOLL ?

CHIHUAHUA, Mexico (AP)—The death toll in the Pan American road race series reached seven Monday when a Mexican,co-driver was killed in the run from Parral to Chihuahua.

Race officials said Leopoldo Olvera, riding with Victorio Maglioli of Argentina, was killed in an accident as the survivors of a starting field of more than 100 neared the end of the five-day, 1,908-mile race.

Tough Terry Has 5 Shutouts; 'Boom-Boom', Rocket, Jean Help Habs Hold High Haven

MONTREAL (CP) — Long John Henderson appears to be just what the Boston Bruins needed from the hockey doctor. Boston's rookie goaltender put on a show last week that overshadowed the jockeying about of the elite scorers and the upper-bracket clubs in the National Hockey League.

Long John allowed only three goals in four games, and in the process he dunked none other than Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs in the whitewash bucket.

The fired-up Bruins, who had been playing footloose and free more than a month with the equally dismal Chicago Black Hawks, collected four points as it is in four starts and bounced so high out of the cellar they almost caught the fourth-place New York Rangers.

FROM HERSHEY

Henderson came to the Bruins' rescue from their Hershey farm club in the American League. His new mates gave him an average of only 2.5 goals a game, scarcely more than they had given the disjected Harry Lumley, but it was enough for the rookie and Manager Lynn Patrick hurriedly counted-his beskings as he found them.

Montreal Canadiens broke even in four games but held their position at the top of the standing. Toronto Maple Leafs slipped from their sizzling pace and posted only one win and a tie in four outings.

The Leafs were left four cints behind Montreal, with one more than last week—and at 23 points were tied with Detroit Red Wings. The Wings were officially ranked second because they have played fewer games.

The Detroiters had only two games scheduled last week, both against the lowly Black Hawks, and scored two shutouts. The shutouts ran goalie Terry Sawchuk's string to five for the season. Rookie Henderson and Toronto's Harry Lumley are next with two each.

PUT HIM AHEAD

Sawchuk's perfect work put him ahead of Lumley as top man among the netminders. Sawchuk's goals-against average is 1.8 games is 1.67; Lumley's in 19 games is 1.79. Henderson's contribution pulled Jim Morrison's average down to 2.70, in fourth place behind Montreal's Jacques Plante, who is charged-with the goals allowed by his relief men while he is recovering from an injury. Before he was hurt, his average was 1.77. Now it is 2.35.

The Montreal scoring brigade, however, held on to the top, with the three at the top of the individual records.

Bernie Geoffrion leads the pack with 24 points, picking up one goal and three assists last week. Nearest to his 16 goals are the 12 scored by Danny Lewicki of New York Rangers.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard kept pace with Geoffrion, collecting two goals and two assists to run his total to 21. Big Jean Beliveau's five-point production for the week was the best of any player. His three goals and two assists boosted his mark to 20 points, moving him ahead of Ken Mosdell who has 17 points.

Calgary Stamps Drop Coach

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders, who have made the Western Interprovincial Football Union playoffs only once in the last five years, have dropped their third head coach in as many years.

Club president Ed O'Connor announced Monday that Larry Siemering, 45-year-old former Washington Redskin line coach, will not be retained for the 1955 season.

O'Connor offered little explanation beyond saying Stampeders have bought out the final half of Solmering's two - year contract. There was no indication of Siemering's coaching plans next season.

Siemering had replaced Bob Snyder, former Los Angeles Rams' member, who was retained about a year ago after Stampeders finished the 1953 campaign at the bottom of the four-team loop. Siemering led Calgary to eight victories in 18 league games this season but missed the three-team playoffs.

REJECT MEET PLAN

ROME (AP)—Plans for a track and field meet between the United States and an all-star European team in 1955 have been rejected by the European committee of the International Amateur Athletic Federation. A spokesman said Monday several national teams had other engagements and thus could not have sent representatives.

'Ole Fox' Rickey Puts One Over' Brooklyn Brass

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball men were still talking today about the way Branch Rickey "put one over" on his former partner, Walter O'Malley, by grabbing one of Brooklyn's prize farmhands for only $4,000 at the annual major league draft meeting.

The player, Roberto Clemente, a 20-year-old speedy outfielder, is, according to those who are supposed to know, a sure-fire-star of the future. Rickey was picked by Rickey's Pittsburgh Pirates as the No. 1 draft choice among the 13 minor league players selected by eight big league clubs.

The Puerto Rican, a born player who reported recently at $25,000 to sign, batted only .257 at Montreal last season but 28 league managers were attracted or his brilliant playing with the Sanhurce club this winter, where he is currently hitting .380.

FIRST CHOICE

"He was the No. 1 draft choice on at least four or five clubs," said the jubilant Branch Rickey, Jr., Pittsburgh vice-president. "He can run and throw. I think he will hit, too."

Ordinarily, any player drafted from a triple A club such as Montreal must cost $10,000 but a bonus player brings only $4,000.

"I think the Brooklyn club outsmarted itself in the kid," said Frank Lane, general manager of the White Sox. "It never should have let him play winter ball. That's where he attracted all the attention. I think a club would have taken him based on his .257 batting average at Montreal."

President Horace Stoneham of the Giants admitted he became attracted to Clemente only because of the kid's spectacular playing at Santurce.

Altogether the majors shelled out $122,500 for the minor league hopefuls that included 20 leaguers. Mickey Grasso, Bennett Flowers and Cloyd Boyer.

BACK TO GIANTS

Grasso, veteran catcher dropped by Cleveland after the world-series, comes back to the Giants, his first big league club in 1946. Flowers, a former Boston Red Sox relief pitcher, was plucked by Detroit from Louisville where he had an 11-12 record. Purchased by the St. Louis Cardinals last year because of a sore arm, Boyer obtained by Kansas City from Rochester.

The new Kansas City club, drafting as a major league team for the first time, ironically picked lefthanded pitcher Art Ceccarelli from the Kansas City roster in the American Association.

'Boardwalk Billy' KO's McBride

NEW YORK (AP)—Boardwalk Billy Smith, a ninth-round technical knockout victor over Archie McBride, wants to fight heavyweights Nino Valdez or Don Cockell while he waits for Archie Moore to defend his light heavyweight title.

Smith, No. 2 contender in the 175-pound class, dropped McBride three times for nine-count Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena before referee Mark Conn stopped it. McBride was down twice in the seventh and once in the ninth. He was swinging against the ropes at the end.

McBride, who outweighed Smith 184 to 173½, rated Smith "better than Valdes" who beat him Feb. 20 at Havana, his last previous start.

Senators Offer To Take Salary Cut

MONTREAL (CP)—Players for the Ottawa Senators have volunteered to take a pay cut to allow the team to continue in the Quebec Hockey League, owner Tommy Gorman announced Monday night.

Gorman informed a meeting of QHL executive of the players' decision but declined to say how large the slash in salaries will be.

Earlier, the Senators had hinted that they might have to withdraw from the six-team league as a result of a 40-per-cent drop in attendance from last year.

Gorman blamed television of the Toronto Maple Leafs' Saturday games for the drop in attendance, particularly during the past two seasons. Last year the Senators had a contending team throughout the season but still attendance dropped. This year Ottawa is in fifth place. They have won seven of 17 games.

Earlier this season Ottawa scheduled most of its home games for Friday night to avoid television competition but this failed to boost the crowds. The remainder of the Friday night games recently were rescheduled for Saturdays.

Gorman said he could not predict what would happen to the Ottawa entry next year.

"We'll just have to wait and see," he said.

Clutch Spirit Will Win Cup Says Confident Esky Coach

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton Eskimos proved to be a clutch team when they won the Western Interprovincial Football Union title. They fight hard when the chips are down on Saturday's Grey Cup final suits the liking of the green and gold machine.

Coach Frank Ivy figures his team will come through. Looking back over his first season with the Esks, he said:

"Eskimos have won every game this year they have absolutely had to win. The Grey Cup is such a game."

The Edmonton club fielded in the early season one of the best football teams ever seen in a hospital ward. It wasn't until the injury problem eased that the Eskimos found their winning ways.

HAD TO WIN

Then came the first squeeze. They had to win their last four scheduled games to finish in first place. That was accomplished.

But the team's best test of clutch play was in the third game of the WIFU playoffs with Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The series was tied 1-1.

Edmonton went into high gear, from the feared passing of Indian Jack Jacobs, and won 35-0.

The clutch spirit was most pronounced in Normie Kwong, ex-Calgary Stampeder, who had been much during the season. He carried the ball 19 times for 125 of Edmonton's 242 yards gained rushing.

GOOD PASS DEFENCE

The Eskimo pass defence, the best in the West, grounded Winnipeg's aerial hopes. It took Edmonton 15 ground plays on a downfield march for the only major of the game, determination not seen all season.

The western champions will be up against the arm of Sam Etcheverry, quarterback passing ace of Montreal Alouettes, but the clutch spirit won't be missing from the Edmonton plays.

Esks probably will be at full strength for the crucial contest.

Steve Mcdrjyk was the only one who missed Monday night's practice. He suffered a broken nose in last-Saturday's game with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Alouettes Will Win Grey Cup By Two Touchdowns, Says Krol

By MILTON MacPHAIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Joe (King) Krol, Canada's Mr. Football, believes the game was never better. But he figures it could be stepped up with still more Yankee know-how and a few high-speed touchdowns.

In the same breath, Joe nominates Montreal Alouettes as "absolutely the best" Canadian team he has seen, and predicts they'll win the Grey Cup.

"Boy, what a team," Krol said in an interview. "They have everything including a great quarterback in Sam Etcheverry. I'll say Montreal will win the Grey Cup by two touchdowns."

Canadian football today, Joe said with undisguised enthusiasm, is "terrific." "The days of two bucks and a kick are over."

Krol's plumping for more Americanization might be considered offbeat by fans who remember him as one of the greatest Canadian-born players in the last 20 years. But the man under whom Canadian football flourished for more than a decade inspired "isn't going the whole hog American."

"I just think our game would be more wide open and better for the fans if we added a few more American rules."

"If I were doing it," Joe said, "I'd bring in the six-point touchdown for one thing. The way it is now a converted touchdown is wiped out by two field goals. The six-point touchdown and extra point on convert gives a team that extra edge."

Joe said the offensive team would have more power if all back fielders were allowed to block 10 yards beyond the line of scrimmage the instant the ball is put in play. Now only one backfielder is allowed to block with the line-backer. It is the man who crosses the scrimmage line outside the position occupied by the end who usually is assigned to play starts.

Krol also favors downfield blocking on pass interceptions. He doesn't want to see all-out blocking as in the American game.

Toronto Argonauts' former triple threat termed unlimited another rule which prohibits a defensive team from running out a pass intercepted behind the own goal line. Now, play is moved out to the 10-yard line.

"It seems silly to me that an interceptor isn't permitted to run as far as he can with the ball."

Something else Krol believes should remain in Canadian football is the rouge which "can win a lot of ball games." Nobody knows better than Krol whose strong toe won many games in his 18 years of senior football with the University of Western Ontario, the old Hamilton Wildcats and Argonauts.

There was a time—Joe's "biggest thrill"—when he kicked a single on the last play of the game to give Toronto a one-point Grey Cup victory over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the 1947 Grey Cup final.

Krol remembers too the sensational performance of Winnipeg quarterback Bob Sandberg during that game.

"I never saw such a one-man show as Sandberg that day," Joe recalled.

According to Krol, importation of U.S. players and coaches is good for Canadian football because "they have a lot to teach us."

Joe sees 'the day, however, when Canadians will have learned the American game well enough to eliminate the need for imports.

It was a year ago last Nov. 13 that Krol—bothered by a recurring knee injury—walked off the field at Toronto's Varsity Stadium after a game against Montreal, to wind up his playing career.

Now 35 and a successful insurance salesman, he would like to get back into the game. He said he could have played this season "except that Chit" (Toronto coach Frank Clair) seems to have the idea that anybody over 30 is washed up.

"I think that's nonsense," Krol said. "They have are plenty of athletes over 30 still going great guns."

'Who's Getting the Good Seats? We're Not' Moan Lark Fans

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal fans are confident their Alouettes even whip Edmonton Eskimos for the Grey Cup and they want to have good seats to watch them while they do it.

Local cash-customers today quoted the Big Four champs as 13-point favorites to down the western title-holders. But the fans were more concerned about the seating arrangement at Toronto's Varsity Stadium for the big game.

General manager Lew Hayman of the Alouettes touched off the hassle when he announced that more than 50 per cent of the stadium's allotted fans are behind the goal lines. A delegation of fans kept the protest alive with a request to the Canadian Rugby Union for an explanation.

ALS HAVE BEST

Meanwhile, the 'Als players, who aren't worried about seats, made Monday their day off to nurse the bumps or bruises they suffered in defeating Hamilton Tiger-Cats 34-19 to win the Big Four total-points series 30-26. They go back to work today in preparation for the Edmonton tilt.

Silent Sam Walker, coach of the Montreal team, said his boys played a good game against Hamilton Saturday, but that was all. He made no predictions about the Edmonton game.

In his office, Hayman studied a telegram and a telephone call from a pandemonium of ringing phones.

"Our allotment of tickets is a little under 15,000," he explained. "But more than 50 per cent of those tickets are for the $3.50 and $5 seats; the reminder are for the top-price $6 seats."

The $6 seats are along the sidelines between the goal lines. The $5 seats are behind the goal lines and the $3.50 seats are in temporary bleachers in front of the end sections.

"I'm not complaining about the number of tickets but this allotment of location seems odd and I'd like to find out about it," Hayman said. "After all, we are a contending team in the Grey Cup game."

Shortly after Hayman's announcement, a delegation of season subscribers banded together and sent a protest to Dr. W. A. Campbell of Kingston, president of the CRU. The protest called for an explanation "regarding the allocation and particularly the location of Grey Cup tickets to Montreal ... exclusively following an announcement by Mr. Hayman of the Montreal club."

"The number of tickets is the poorest location in the stadium to

Ottawa Fans Get Tickets Early

OTTAWA (CP) — Football fans astried lining up 30 hours ahead of time for Ottawa's share of the tickets for the Grey Cup game at Toronto Saturday.

With 534 tickets available for its season ticket-holders, the Ottawa Rough Riders football club had scheduled the sale for 7:30 a.m. Monday. But enough early birds showed up by 1 p.m. Sunday to consume the entire supply and the club allotted the tickets rather than have the fans shiver overnight in a lineup.

Grey Cup Mardi Gras Said Best Yet Toronto Invests $200,000 in Show

By MILT MacPHAIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — This city's Grey Cup weekend, a football-flavored Mardi Gras, shapes up as the biggest and best of the annual handshakes between East and West.

"We've pulling out all stops to make the show the best yet," said confident official after Alan Hindl of Junior Board of Trade which promotes the celebration to foster East-West goodwill.

"We've had six committees working since last Christmas on this and things are just about complete."

The celebration before and after the East-West football game has been a success since 1948 when supporters of Calgary Stampeders stormed into the city and staged a parade that startled staid Toronto. They cooked flapjacks on the streets, dragged on chuck-filled wagons and even put Toronto's mayor on a horse.

They capped it by upsetting the Ottawa Rough Riders 13-7 in the game.

Officials believe this year's show will top the Calgary invasion and anything since.

Just about everybody is getting into the act with souvenir and other supplied by the major football announcement.

Predict Major Leagues 10-Club Loops In Three Years; Toronto Included

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP)—Both major leagues will become 10-club leagues in two or three years with the Toronto baseball franchise in San Francisco and Los Angeles and the American taking in Toronto and Minneapolis-St. Paul, a prominent baseball executive predicted today.

Although the executive refused to give permission for use of his name, he has a long association with the sport in several different capacities. He was in on the ground floor of the original talk of 10-team leagues several years ago.

The source explained that the National League already had the jump over the American in the Pacific coast because Phil Wrigley owns the Los Angeles franchise and ball park, and Horace Stoneham owns the Los Angeles franchise and ball park, and Horace Stoneham club owner, has been working for Wrigley for over a year, investigating the possibility of big league baseball on the coast. Veeck, in fact, has an option to buy Wrigley Field in Los Angeles, if and when.

OTHER POINTERS

Another factor pointing toward the National was the recent announcement that Wrigley's baseball would join the Cub organization, resigned as president of the Pacific Coast League.

San Francisco already has authorized the Seals to build a new ball park as soon as a franchise loyalty is secured.

The Los Angeles park district also has earmarked $10,000,000 for a new park, giving the American League a possible entree and lease for Wrigley Field, the big ball park's old ball park.

"I think the National League will win the battle for those two coast cities," said the executive. "Of course, both must go to the same league for scheduling and travel reasons.

"The majors should have taken this action years ago. How could baseball be called a national game ignoring the rapidly growing west coast and other booming cities?"

EXPECTED BENDAS

"You can expect this to be denied on all sides. Naturally, they will be ready to break the news yet. They can't afford to ruin any baseball league cities, taking about major league ball, until they actually are ready to make the move.

Toronto is a power in the International League with its consistently packed ball park on the lake front. The park would have to be completely renovated or rebuilt to take care of the crowds needed to support big league ball. Minneapolis and St. Paul are also readying a stadium for the time when they go big league, like Milwaukee. The blueprints and the plans are ready.

Alex Webster Larks' MVP

MONTREAL (CP) — Alex Webster, winner of the Big Four scoring championship, has been voted the most valuable player of the Montreal Alouettes by fans attending home games.

Webster, a 25-year-old native of Kearney, N.J., who came to Montreal last season from North Carolina State, received 5,527 votes, 84 more than quarterback Sam Etcheverry, who won the award (Calvert Trophy) last year. Centre Tom Huge finished third with 5,252 votes.

Kocman Incident To Be Probed By Grid Brass

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union will deal Dec. 19 with the Al Kocman punching incident at last Saturday's college football semi-final.

Union officials said it has not been decided where the meeting will be held but they expect Dr. Duncan McLaren of London, CIAU president, will call it for Toronto.

Kocman, a Queen's University halfback, punched umpire Fred Sgambatti of Toronto after Western Ontario Mustangs fell on a fumbled ball in the Queen's end zone in the dying seconds of the game here, to beat Gaels 20-18.

Kocman leaped from the Queen's bench and hit Sgambatti, apparently because the official had called an interference by Kocman against a Queen's player. The penalty gave Mustangs the ball on the Gaels' 20-yard line and set the stage for the last-play fumble which turned into a Western touchdown.

Kocman said in Kingston Monday night that he regretted the affair. He commented:

"I regret very much the incident with Mr. Sgambatti. I was all tense and upset. It should not have happened. There are more important things in life than losing an intercollegiate football championship. The officials must be respected at all times."

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

It would be reasonably safe to predict that no matter what drama, what thrills, are forthcoming when east and west meet in the Grey Cup football final, there will be nothing to excel the tension of the closing seconds of the 1947 game when Win-peg Blue Bombers were within inches and seconds of snatching victory from defeat by the East's champion Hamilton Tigers.

Here was a gallant loser racing against the clock that inexorably ticked off the final seconds. Actually, this magnificent drive started on the Winnipeg five-yard line, with the score 13-6 in favor of Hamilton. Fifty yards away from the Tiger line, time running out, Bombers followed a trail blazed by Jacobs, as he darted through for pass after pass, until play had been moved to within the very shadow of the last Hamilton line of defence, only three yards from the goal line. And here came a finish of such high, throat-catching drama, we doubt it will ever be equalled.

Fer, in that last few gripping seconds, a tie, perhaps victory for the west, hung in the balance. In one end of the field, the hands of the big electric clock were rolling off the final seconds of the 60 minutes, while in the other end of the field—

Tom Casey, all day a sure-handed catcher, slipped around the end, as Jacobs drifted back. Then he threw his last pitch of the 60 he had winged that afternoon.

It rose high, and there, in the crisp sunny air of a perfect November day, hung both the ball and the Dominion football title. Casey, right on the Hamilton line, launched his tall lean form into the air. His fingers just touched the floating sphere and as they did, Lou Kusserow hit Casey heavily in the back. His feet left the ground. The clock had just hit the final second. The game was over.

Not even Hollywood could possibly surpass the dramatic effect, no matter how earnestly those masters of the screen might tell to produce a hair-raising climax. It just couldn't be closer. There just couldn't be a more gripping finish to Canada's gridiron classic.

Jimmy Slade 'Not Guilty'; Purse Returned

NEW YORK (AP)—Jimmy Slade of New York Monday was absolved of any wrongdoing in connection with his eight-round defeat at the hands of Floyd Patterson in Madison Square Garden last Friday night.

Robert Christenberry, chairman of the state athletic commission, said he had found "nothing dishonest" in the fight and ordered that Slade be paid.

The losing lightes's purse, estimated at some $3,800, including $4,000 for television, had been held up pending the investigation.

Christenberry said the commission was ready to accept Slade's story that he was fighting from a sheer instinct after being felled by a barrage of punches to the head in the first round.

Slade was floored five times in the eight-round bout by the 19-year-old Brooklyn puncher.

SUDBURY (CP)—Carl Palangio, president of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, says the annual meeting of group referees will start a "get tough" policy immediately.

He made the statement Monday night after a lecture to league officials by Pat Patterson, chief referee of the Ontario Hockey Association.

"Our referees have been instructed to call them close—and strictly according to the book," Palangio said. "From now on they will not tolerate verbal abuse from players—even if it means handing out misconduct penalties wholesale."

An opening bidder need not go into a trance to find out what his future bid should be. Masters predict it for him in a set of rules. All the opener need do is interpret what the masters say.

Culbertson divides the hand of an opener into these four zones: Minimum, Intermediate, game, slam. Goren divides it into these four ranges: Minimum, good, very good, stock crusher. They mean the same.

A Culbertson minimum zone opening hand is one that would not be an opening with the removal of an honor trick or trump card. If it could open with such removal it would be in the intermediate zone.

Goren's minimum range opening hand is one that contains no more than 15 points (sometimes 16.) If it has any count more than this minimum range it is in the good hand range.

If the response from partner is a single raise suit, what is the second bid by expert Culbertson says what it is if opener is in the intermediate zone. So for his fifth trump and two points for each honger, West will go to game, raise to the three level; show another suit; bid two no-trump. With 20 points or more, make a private call of game.

Accordin' to Gordon, opener follows the order in takeout, assist, no-trump to show additional values, never raising the number without an additional trick. That covers the whole situation.

Open one heart with the hand shown here.

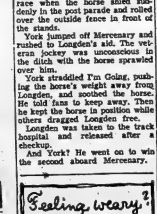
Jock Saves Pal In Daring Rescue; Then Wins Race

ALBANY, Calif. (AP)—Torditto won Monday's featured Red Leaf Purse at Golden Gate Fields' race track, but what had the fans talking was jockey Ray York's daring rescue of Johnny Longden from a fallen horse.



Longden, famed as one of turf dom's millionaire riders, was aboard I'm Going in the second race when the horse stumbled suddenly in the post parade and rolled over the outside fence in front of the stands.

York jumped off Mercenary and rushed to Longden's aid. The veteran jockey was unconscious in the ditch with the horse sprawled over him.

York straddled I'm Going, pushing the horse's weight away from Longden, and soothed the horse. He told fans to keep away. Then he kept the horse in position while others dragged Longden free.

Longden was taken to the track hospital and released after a checkup.

And York? He went on to win the second aboard Mercenary.

Senior, Junior Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—Hank Ciesla, captain of St. Catharines TeePees of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League, scored three goals and four assists last week to increase his lead in the league's individual scoring standings.

Latest OHA figures show Ciesla has 11 goals and 16 assists for 27 points in 13 games. Bill Colvin of St. Michael's Majors is in second spot with nine goals and 13 assists for 22 points.

Lee Duff, another St. Michael's player, is right behind Colvin with 21 points, 11 goals and 10 assists. Dick Duff, Lee's brother also with Majors, is the league's leading goal scorer with 13 goals. Ciesla, Lee Duff, Billy McCreary of Guelph Biltmores and Ken Linseman of Majors have each scored 11 goals.

In the senior division Kenny Laufman of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Mickey Roth of Stratford Indians are tied for first place, each with 24 points. Laufman has scored seven goals and Roth eight.

George Scholes of Dutchmen has 12 goals, most in the league. Mike Meeh of Owen Sound Mercurys is second with 10 goals.

APPROVES NEW PIN

MILWAUKEE (CP)—The American Bowling Congress announced Monday it had approved the first plastic-coated tenpin in bowling history. An ABC spokesman said the formula would "easily double the life of a bowling pin."

SEES INCREASE

MONTREAL (CP)—Mr. Justice J. D. Kearney, chairman of the board of transport commissioners, said Monday an increase of commuter fares is inevitable on Montreal suburban runs. Mr. Justice Kearney, presiding at the hearing of a joint application by the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways for fare increases, said it is impossible for the present rate of a little more than a cent a mile to continue.

Rich Ferguson Finishes Eighth

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Allen Frame, a canny Kansan, let a group of eastern favorites set the pace, then unloaded with a kick in the last half mile to win the annual National Collegiate Athletic Association cross-country run Monday.

Rich Ferguson of Toronto, runner who shone for Canada in the British Empire Games at Vancouver last August, finished eighth. He ran for University of Iowa.

A well-drilled Oklahoma A and M team took the team championship.

Frame, Big Seven champion from Kansas University, covered the Michigan State College course in 19:54.2.

Steel Detailer For Construction Firm Is Woman

VANCOUVER (CP) — You just never know who you'll find clambering around those skyscraper scaffolds.

Mrs. Evelyn Maclachlan, for instance, holds a well-paid job as a steel detailer for a construction firm here. The dark-haired 26-year-old woman, mother of three little girls, gets along fine with the toughest of steel workers.

She drew up a job as a grocery clerk four years ago to come to Vancouver as a stenographer. About 18 months ago she turned in her notebook for a set of blueprints.

She admits she had some extra training to do at first, when construction workers would put down their hammers, note her high-heeled shoes and ask "looking for someone, girlie?"

CHIVALROUS CREWS

Nowadays, they take her for granted and even give her a hand up the ladder.

Evelyn finds the tough construction workers very chivalrous to a woman.

She remembers the stubble-faced carpenter whose thumb got between the nail and his hammer. There were tears in his eyes as he looked over toward the young steel detailer.

"Goodness," he said, "gracious."

HUSH REVISE

TORONTO (CP)—V. G. Stroud, general traffic manager of Dupplate Canada Limited said Monday the trucking industry must revise its rates if it is to keep from losing business to the railways. Mr. Stroud spoke at a public relations forum during the annual convention of the Ontario Automotive Association.

AT THE CAPITOL — "You didn't need to make me feel cheap. Just like the Sunday papers — husband supposed to be out of town." Thus Ida Lupino lashes out at Edmond O'Brien in "The Bigamist," which also stars Joan Fontaine and Richard Gwenin and showing today and Wednesday for its first city showing at the Capitol theatre. On the same program Academy Award winning best actor, William Holden in "Boots Malone."

Fonda Played 'Mr. Roberts' Three Years on N.Y. Stage

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Henry Fonda has come to the end of a long cruise with Lieut. Douglas Roberts, United States Navy reserve.

When the actor finished his role as the soft-spoken, high-principled navy officer in the film version of "Mister Roberts," it ended an association that began when Fonda opened in the stage play December 1946.

I watched as Fonda went through one of his last scenes in the picture, playing a card game aboard ship in the South Pacific. Roberts' ship—the one that travelled from spathy to the end of the back-wash of the Pacific war—was anchored at dead calm.

Roberts was seated on the afterdeck of the cargo ship when Doc, played by James Cagney, came out to join him. The young officer had just received a new task force sail by the night before. He showed Doc his latest wording of a letter he sent to Washington every week requesting for transfer to the shooting war.

"I'll get there, Doc," Roberts said. "I'll get there some day."

STIRRING PERFORMANCE

The scene lasted six and a half minutes, which is king-size in the patchwork business of making movies. Fonda gave the same underplayed but stirring performance I had seen him do twice on the stage.

After the scene was over, Fonda talked about his life with Roberts. He had read the Thomas Heggen book when it came out, and he saw movie possibilities in the property. But he never suspected it could be made into a play. He was still unconvinced when Josh Logan teamed with Heggen on the script and Leland Hayward planned to produce.

"They had more faith than I did," Fonda remarked. "I never could see enough plot in the book for a play. But when I went east Josh asked if he could read it to me.

"I was just like an audience. I laughed, I cried, and I applauded at the end. I called Leland and said: 'This is for me. Get me free.' I still had a couple of film commitments to get out of."

He wiggled out of the film deals and started one of the most monumental attractions in the history of the American theatre. He played "Mister Roberts" for three years in New York and then toured the United States.

WAITED FOR ROLE

"I almost didn't make the picture," he grinned. "I didn't think they were going to pick me for it.

"Every year I'd ask Josh when he was going to do the picture. He wanted to do it, but he was always too busy. I was afraid I was getting too blasfed old. Finally, Josh agreed to let Leland go ahead."

Major Loops Face Quarter-Million Legal Suit

NEW YORK (AP) — Fred C. Frick, commissioner of baseball, and all of the clubs of the American and National Leagues were named defendants Monday in an $850,000 suit of contract suit filed in federal court by the Portsmouth Baseball Corporation, a minor league team in Portsmouth, Va.

Portsmouth charged that the defendants violated a contract by broadcasting and telecasting baseball games played between major league teams into the territory covered by Portsmouth's franchise.

Gagnon Retains Bantam Title

QUEBEC (CP) — Fernande Gagnon of Quebec Monday night knocked out Clarence Doucette of New Glasgow, N.S., in the second round of a scheduled 10-round fight to retain his Canadian bantamweight championship.

The 21 - year - old maintiner proved no match for the champion and after showing well in the opening round went down three times in the second before the fight ended at the two-minute 16-second mark.

It was the seventh successful defence of his title by the 29-year-old champion. Both men weighed in at 118 ½pounds.

RELEASE BUBLER

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Redlegs announced Monday the outright release of Willie Powell, who pitched last year for Cordoba and Havana of the International League. He was released to Havana where he had a 1947 record with Toronto and Havana.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for WED., NOV. 24, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A genial disposition and patience should be stressed all day. Unusual, if practical methods and materials to advance progress are favored. Sound investments and business matters also honored.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — Present mild indications will become more benefic tomorrow. Pleasant, though not entirely stimulating rays. Fine for familiar matters, study, making plans for tomorrow.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Mercury's position urges forethought and sensible caution in signing papers, contracts, in all legal matters. But day on the whole favors good intentions carried through, hard work.

June 22 to July 22 (Gemini) — You will have to furnish the ambition and persistence needed today if you have important matters to handle, difficult situations to face. You can do it. Favorable rays generally.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — With friendly solar aspects and no discouraging influences, you can go about this day's duties in Leo's capable, pleasant manner. You can get ahead, gain new and important advantages.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Heed advice to Gemini. Humor, artistry in all undertakings will bring satisfactory returns. Your own clever management will also help to make the day profitable.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A little extra initiative from you today can bring bang-up returns in practically all lines—industry, selling, manufacturing; also in artistic professions.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Influences could irritate, create dissension where serenity should prevail. Hold self in sturdy control, be helpful where you should, and don't delly. Thus can you reap benefits.

November 24 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Your Jupiter in fine position. Personal advancement, perhaps unusual gains possible in business, work. Money interests sponsored. However, watch out for reckless or selfish tendencies.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Not all easy going today but any unusual effort to enter new fields for progress or betterment will meet with good results. Keep improving own skills.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Your Uranus is well aspected, which augurs well for your particular talents and for any intelligent efforts you make to improve your status, gather greater knowledge and know-how.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — With friendly rays from your natal Sun and Neptune you should profit by what you do and see — maybe win new laurels. Don't fear to expand; try the unusual if sound.

YOU BORN TODAY have a bright, energetic and pleasant nature; can achieve in any field for which you have training and talent: selling, promoting, banking or one of the sciences; could also make an excellent actor, manager; sound politician, economist; will also do well in less showy positions. Your type is needed in all kinds of endeavor where efficiency, mental prowess and dependability are "musts". Keep your likeable geniality always to the fore. Birthdate: Laurence Sterne, humorist; Benedict Spinoza, Dutch philosopher.

Woman Still Under Police Protection

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Mrs. Elva Howe, a witness beaten for testifying for the crown in a case here last Friday, is still under police protection today.

She testified against James Hutchinson, charged with theft from the mails. Hutchinson still faces trial on charges of robbing an Orono bank, Oct. 21.

Mrs. Howe was beaten unconscious after testifying despite threats they "would get her," if she did. The men who beat her are still at large.

Several more mysterious calls have come to her over the weekend which police say can't be written off as crank calls.

The 12 jurors who convicted Hutchinson on the charge spent a weekend behind locked doors on the order of crown attorney John A. Bradshaw. Police were ordered to patrol the areas in which they lived.

Police called off the patrol Monday suggesting that the danger period is past.

REINSTATE CHIEF

MOOSE JAW (CP)—Alex Bell was reelected Moose Jaw city police chief Monday night, four days after the commission's board of police commissioners. Bell was fired Nov. 18 after failing to reinstate a patrol sergeant he dismissed from the force Nov. 4.

REMIND VETERANS

OTTAWA (CP)—A total of 36,561 veterans' insurance policies with a face value of $123,511,000 have been issued since the Second World War, the veterans' affairs department said Monday. At the same time, the department issued a reminder that the deadline for purchase of veterans' insurance by servicemen discharged before Dec. 31, 1944, is the end of this year.

MacDonald Claims Govt. Spending Beyond Revenue

TORONTO (CP) — Donald C. MacDonald, Ontario CCF leader, said Monday that during five years Premier Frost of Ontario has been in office, provincial debt increased 600 per cent.

Mr. MacDonald spoke on radio station CBL in the CBC provincial affairs series. Text of his remarks was released to the press in advance.

He said that when Mr. Frost took office, the debt was $405,000,000. The figure now is $650,000,000, Mr. MacDonald said, "... and going up, as future budget figures will reveal." He said in spite of "incredible increase in revenues, the Frost government has been spending so far beyond its income that ... the net debt has jumped by over 40 per cent."

He admitted the low taxation level in Ontario, but claimed it provides the highest per capita provincial debt of any province. He said the CCF government in Saskatchewan has no provincial debt by one half.

Mr. MacDonald said Ontario has a poor record for developing a provincial social security program. He said hospitalization coverage is haphazard in the absence of a province-wide plan and municipals are struggling on a precarious financial basis.

He charged the provincial government failed to keep pace with increase in education costs in spite of a seven-fold increase in education grants. He predicted the provincial government would assume less than 30 per cent of education cost this year in spite of promising to take on 50 per cent.

NAME CHAIRMEN

TORONTO (CP)—The two national co-chairmen for 1955's Industrial Development Week were named Monday—C. L. Burton of Toronto and Maynard Morrow Bolivin of Granby, Que. Prime Minister St. Laurent is honorary chairman of the week, Feb. 20-27 next.

Accused's Diary Says He Suffered 'Violent Delirium'

CALGARY (CP)—A diary kept by Donald Winslow Henderson and letters he wrote to his family after the death of Norma Cameron were introduced by the crown Monday at Henderson's trial. Henderson, a 30-year-old native of Moose Jaw, is charged with the 1948 murder of the teenage, pin girl whose last four years of life he chronicled in detail in his diary.

His three letters, written from Winnipeg and Toronto after the beaten body of the former Edmonton waitress was found in a Calgary auto court, told of "weird faces and weird figures" that haunted him; praised the high moral character of the girl; and said if he killed her it was the result of a sickness, "violent delirium."

One letter said: "As near as I can tell I must have got into a violent delirium temporarily. I now find myself recovering from this awful nightmare of finding the one who helped me the most is gone."

WROTE REMINDERS

The diary traced part of Miss Levesque's background and detailed her movements—the weather on the evenings some dates were to have taken place, and the plot of shows she had seen with other men. Mrs. Henderson wrote reminders to himself to check the weather with the meteorological office and the movies while the theatre manager.

His mother, Mrs. Jane Henderson, 72, of Moose Jaw, identified the three letters. She said her son was "the best boy in the whole world."

Oscar Primeau, the dead girl's uncle, said he understood Miss Levesque and Henderson were planning to be married about the time she died.

He said in cross-examination by defence counsel that both Henderson and the girl were "very kind people" who appeared to be in love.

Trout Brought 500 Miles To Provide Thrills

OTTAWA (CP) — Anglers who catch Lake trout with one fin missing in Manitoba's Riding Mountain national park should be grateful. The fish were brought 500 miles to provide him with the thrill of catching.

Some 1,400 adult lake trout recently were taken from the park's railway baggage car from Clearwater lake, north of Brandon, Man., to Clear lake in the park, the Canadian wildlife service reported here.

All were marked by the removal of one pelvic fin. It was two over similar shipments in 1950 and 1952 from the hatchery at Jasper national park.

The wildlife service said it has found that lake trout will not reproduce in Clear lake. So to satisfy the demand of park visitors for sports fishing, the government expects rely on plantings.

The fish for transfer was directed by W. D. Taylor, a fishshipping expert who, as long ago as 1938, successfully transferred a shipment of black bass all the way from Marquis, Que., to Prince Albert national park in Saskatchewan.

Harbor Jammed, Ships Awaiting Berthing Space

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal harbor, its navigation season drawing rapidly to a close, was jammed with ships Monday night and several ocean-going vessels lay at anchor in midstream awaiting berthing space.

Harbor officials said 74 ships—inland and deepsea—were tied up Sunday along Montreal's 19 miles of docks. Six others were anchored off shore.

Shipping experts blamed the overcrowding mainly on increased shipments of grain with port-closing only weeks away. The harbor usually closes in mid-December, a week or two before the ice forms. Shortage of berthing space was also blamed on a rush of coastal vessels, loading here for lower St. Lawrence river ports cut off by land during the winter.

Extra Strike Pay

WINDSOR (CP)—Jack Lawler, financial secretary of Local 200, United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) said Monday pickets at the struck Ford of Canada plant will receive an extra $4 strike allowance this week.

He said the extra pay was made possible by increased dues levied by the UAW, and the "splendid co-operation" of unions in Canada and the United States.

The strike pay for the workers is about $24 a week, for married men with a family. The strike of 5,700 workers here is five weeks old.

Science Shrinks Piles
New Way Without Surgery
Finds Healing Substance That Does Both—Relieves Pain—Shrinks Hemorrhoids
Toronto, Ont. (Special)— For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the astonishing ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to stop bleeding without surgery.
In case of hemorrhoid case after another, "very striking improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' observations.
Pain was relieved promptly. And while gentle soothing pain, actual improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' observations were continued over a period of many months!

among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of 10 to 20 years' standing.
All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or astringents of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of world-famous research institution. Already, Bio-Dyne is in use in thousands of hospitals and clinics on all parts of the globe.

CAMPBELLFORD

'Scouting Greatest Force for Peace' Says Art Jackson

CAMPBELLFORD.—Art Jackson, district field commissioner for the Boy Scout movement in this area, was the guest speaker at the Rotary Club luncheon on Monday. Other guests included scout and cub leaders of the Campbellford troops.

Introduced by Rotarian Bill Hawken, Commissioner Jackson said that Canada leads the way in the Boy Scout empire. The present head of the International Bureau—the United Nations of Scouting—is a Canadian. He, together with 12 elected members govern scouting throughout the 56 countries and 49 parts of the Commonwealth. The world conference of "Jamboree" as it is called, will be held in Canada this year when 15,000 boys of all races and creeds will join in fellowship.

Basically, the youth of all nations is attracted by the ideals and aims of scouting. As these ideals are given world-wider root in the minds of the young, they form a firm foundation for the coming of a lasting peace among the nations. "Scouting," said the speaker, "is real, it is world-wide," and as an international movement, is one of the greatest forces for peace and brotherly love in the world. It has grown so because of its great appeal for boys.

Locally, Commissioner Jackson said that the leaders and scouts in the Trent Valley district are most fortunate in securing the highest and best type of leadership. He said that it is the policy of the Boy Scout organization to secure the best leadership in the community and to thoroughly train leaders for their jobs.

In Canada there are 170,000 scouts and 16,000 leaders. The latter receive no pay, but work for the benefit of the youth of the community in which they reside. They strive to make thinking citizens of those under their care.

Among other things, the scout is taught to be self reliant as he is expected to meet the challenge of the great out-of-doors.

As population centres become greater and more people are forced to live in the urban areas, this is a real training which the boy would otherwise miss. Since the war the population of Canada has increased by 14 per cent and the scout movement has in the same time increased by 30 per cent.

The speaker was thanked by Rotarian Cliff Gibson.

Maritime Winter Fair Making Fine Progress

By RAE CORELLI
Canadian Press Staff Writer

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—There's a lot more than meets the eye in a modern agricultural show running the gamut from parsnips to short-horn bulls.

You get an inkling of this in the 5½-acre arena where scores of fine cattle are tethered at the Maritime Winter Fair here. But it requires an expert to show the real extent of such a show as this, which has just finished its annual 10-day run.

Such an expert is F. George Macland of Black River, N.B., a cattleman and president of the 1954 fair. Others are some of North America's best livestock judges who come each year to see the beautiful cattle men who run $100,000 worth of Maritime provinces farming.

RED CHANGES

"We have come a long way since the days when a fat cow fair was a bunch of cattle in a tin," said Macland. "But it's amazing how many people just come in here looking for the best bull or what have you.

"We have 1,000 head of cattle alone. I suppose all the exhibits together are worth $800,000. This building alone, too small as it is already for it would cost us $1,000,000 to replace it, while it is going to be quite a business this way, especially in New Brunswick. We're going to have to have a bigger scale next year but space will be a problem."

He said farmers generally are becoming more aware that the fair is there to help them personally for its publicity value and because it sets certain high standards to which they want to conform.

"This is big stuff. A fellow may spend $20,000 for a pedigree Scottish bull and 15 or 20 cows so he can get a champion bull to enter at some winter fair two years ahead. Maybe he doesn't win for five years with that bull. But he's got to keep pushing that stock on the animal: special care, show blankets and feeds, all sorts of gear, transportation, halters and special grooming and training.

VALUED RIBBONS

"Those ribbons they hand out are often worth, indirectly, $15,000, maybe $15,000, apiece. That's money.

He said the same goes for those 75 sheep pens, those pedigree saddles, poodles, percherons, hogs, sheep and, to a different but no less important degree, even vegetables.

How about public relations?

"We're making progress. People are getting to know more about what we do, the way to go, though. For instance, what's a heifer? I mean specifically? See! You don't know.

"Heifer's a female that's never had a calf. After she has the calf, she's a cow."

Scheme Aimed at Transforming 740,000 Acres of Barren Land

By FREDERICK COLEMAN

ADELAIDE, Australia (Reuters) — "Operation Sniper" is the latest step in a scheme aimed at transforming 740,000 acres of barren semi-desert country in Australia into a rich pastoral area.

The operation will be carried out over three months by three aluminum planes dropping superphosphate and trace minerals at the rate of 10 tons an hour over 48,000 acres of wasteland in the southeastern part of South Australia state.

It is the biggest top-dressing operation ever attempted in Australia. Altogether 4,000 tons of superphosphate will be spread by the planes operating from five airstrips.

ACHIEVES RESULTS

Sponsored by the Australian Mutual Provident Society in co-operation with the Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization, the project already has achieved results.

Five years ago, land near Jamberwood, South Australia, carried one sheep to every 10 or 20 acres. Today, two sheep graze on every acre, and wool from 14,000 sheep on the district took the top prize at the Adelaide wool sales in September.

But this land, known to early settlers as the 90-mile desert and the big desert, a small group of 68 carefully-chosen men is working to fulfil the most ambitious land reclamation scheme in Australia's history.

They live in prefabricated houses and work at token wages as employees of the Australian Mutual Organization Society. After five years, they can hope to have their own property. But they will have earned them.

SHRINE DESERT

Their back-breaking pioneering work is slowly winning back acres after acre from the desert. The reward for these men will be a fenced, watered property, complete with house and a perpetual leasehold of the land.

The area has a rainfall of from 11 to 21 inches a year—sufficient for running sheep.

It was a desert, scientists discovered, because the soil lacked essential elements. Now, copper and zinc sulphate are being mown in small quantities, largely by air.

Seeding is carried out in early autumn after the heavy work of root removal, burning off and levelling is a been completed. Clover completes the transformation of this desert soil into first-class grazing land.

Kisses And Cheers Feature Greeting For Queen Mother

Thousands Shout 'Well Done' As Warm Welcome Given

Orchestras Best Diplomats Says Musician

By FERN RICH

LONDON (Reuters)—Bear hugs from Prince Charles and Princess Anne and kisses from the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh welcomed the Queen Mother home to London today after her month-long visit to the United States and Canada.

Princess Margaret, who planned to be with the family to greet her mother, had to stay at home with a feverish cold.

The Queen Mother greeted her family—with her eyes shining with tears—at London's Waterloo station. Then she shook hands with Prime Minister Churchill, Foreign Secretary Eden, Norman Robertson, the Canadian high commissioner, and Winthrop Aldrich, the American ambassador.

CROWDS CHEER

The Queen, wearing a fur-collared blue coat—the same color as her mother's, chatted animatedly with the Queen Mother as they were helped into a waiting Daimler carriage for the state procession to Clarence House in Buckingham Palace.

There were more warm-hearted cheers and shouts of "well done!" from thousands of Londoners packed into the streets of the procession route as the carriage jingled past, escorted by a clattering detachment of the dashing Household Cavalry with plumes flying in the sunshine.

Four-year-old Princess Anne, her hands tucked into a warm fur muff which matched the fur on her coat's collar and green bonnet, sat snugly between her grandmother and the Queen in the carriage.

Prince Charles, merrily waving to the happy crowds, sat with his father, the Duke of Edinburgh, who was in naval uniform.

All along the route the Queen Mother, smiling broadly and nodding her head, brought waves of cheers.

FOLLOWS MOTHER

During the few minutes the Queen and her family waited for the Queen Mother at Berkeley Street, Anne, who can never keep as still as her big brother on important occasions, trailed after her mother, shaking hands with the top-hatted dignitaries who were lined up to meet the Queen.

Several times, just as the Queen Mother was about to shake hands, the tot popped up in front of her and took the outstretched hand instead.

Then the royal party were lined the broad, tree-lined Mall, the ceremonial avenue which leads to Buckingham Palace, to catch a glimpse of the royal procession.

The Queen Mother, on its high-stepping dapple greys entered the forecourt. The Queen Mother's personal standard was broken from the flagstaff over the house, a sign to Londoners that she was home again.

Chinese Reds Will Release Canadian Dec. 5

Sqdn. Ldr. A. Mackenzie Home by Christmas

OTTAWA (CP) — The Chinese Communists have set Dec. 5 as the day they'll release Sqdn. Ldr. A. D. (Andy) MacKenzie, and about the first thing that occurred to the 34-year-old Canadian fighter ace's wife when told the news was: "He'll be home for Christmas."

From her home in Strathmore, Que., near Montreal, Mrs. MacKenzie said: "I think children are so happy and me—well, I expected it, but I didn't have any idea when it would happen." Now she can't wrote else but the Reds until it did.

MacKenzie was shot down Dec. 5, 1952—two days from his release date—not far from North Korea's Yalu river boundary with Manchuria while he and 20 other RCAF Sabre pilots were flying over the Korean war with the United States Air Force.

It was not known definitely that MacKenzie, who won a DFC while earning credit for destroying 8½ enemy planes during the Second World War, was alive until last June. At the Geneva conference on Korea and Indochina then, the Canadian delegation informally approached the Red delegation about the fate of MacKenzie and he was alive, well and would be released.

LETTERS RECEIVED

Mrs. MacKenzie says when, but MacKenzie's wife, Joyce, since had received some 35 letters from him. all she said, speaking highly of his treatment from the Chinese. MacKenzie joined the air force in June, 1940, spent two years as a flying instructor and went overseas in 1943. He flew with two RCAF Spitfire fighter squadrons and went with the RCAF wing to operate from France after the D-day landings.

It was during that war that he met and married his wife, now 33, in England, and now their daughter, she was also serving in the RCAF.

AIR SQUADRON

MacKenzie spent from 1948 to 1951 as staff officer at air defence command. At Centralia, Ont., then led 441 Fighter Squadron to North Luffenham, England, as its first commander in 1952. There he remained until posted to Korea.

His children are Bobby, 10, Pauline, 9, Ronnie, 7, and Jo Ann, 5. Mrs. Ford is Canadian but England as soon as they learned he was missing.

Churchill Says He Would Have Used Germans Against Russia

By JAMES F. KING

WOODFORD, England (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today disclosed that he had made plans to rearm the surrendering Germans in the closing days of the Second World War "if the Soviet advance into Western Europe continued."

The prime minister's remarks came almost casually Tuesday night at a birthday party given for him by his supporters in this suburban town, which he has represented in Parliament for 30 years. Churchill will be 80 on Nov. 30.

Without elaboration, he said:

"Even before the war ended, and while the Germans were surrendering by hundreds of thousands, I telegraphed Lord Montgomery directing him to be careful in collecting German arms and to stack them so that they could easily be lined again to the German soldiers with whom we should have to work if the Soviet advance into western Europe continued."

(In New York, Montgomery confirmed the disclosures, saying "quite true." While refusing comment further, he said he had received such orders from Churchill and "as always I obey orders.")

Churchill spoke from notes but weighed his words carefully. He said he wanted to "tell the story plainly and frankly."

He was underscoring his long-time suspicions of the intentions of Premier Stalin, whom he denounced as being "carried away by the intoxicating wine of world acting as if he thought he could secure Russia from communism the domination of the world."

Referring to the recent pacts called for rearming West Germany, Churchill said:

"Certainly, if anyone when Germany surrendered unconditionally had predicted that we should be allies within a few years, few people would have believed them free nations."

This vast reversal of British, American and of European opinion was brought about only by the policy of Soviet Russia itself and above all by Stalin, the dictator."

Churchill led up to his remarks on using Germans in the closing stages of the war by saying:

"I believe I was the first well-known person publicly to state the fact that I have to be on the German side against Russian Communist aggression."

Churchill spoke with determination and vigor, and discussed the issues with the voters in his constituency. He covered the whole range of domestic and foreign policies.

In the foreign field, he stood firm that "our policy is peace through strength."

"We now are reaching a firm agreement through the free world to resist Communist aggression," he said. "Already a treaty that has been established and is being implemented against Russian Communist aggression will, I believe, preserve mankind from another disaster infinitely more fearful than any we have ever known or can even imagine in the wildest nightmares."

With Stalin's death, Churchill said, new men sharing the power together are at the head of Russia. He said Premier Malenkov has emphasized that his aim was for working "towards a peaceful settlement in Asia in order to make sure whether that great people had undergone an important change in mood and outlook under their new leadership."

"This is still my purpose," he said, but he explained: "Nothing to begin those closer contacts with Soviet Russia by a breakup of the unity among themselves of the free nations."

Ford Officials And Union Heads Hold Conference

Report Meet Arranged By Unnamed Third Party

TORONTO (CP)—First break in the wage strike which has paralyzed production facilities of the Ford Motor Company of Canada came Tuesday.

Officers of the company and leaders of the striking United Auto Workers union (CIO-CCL) met face to face for the first time since the start of the strike, now in its seventh week.

The meeting was exploratory and did not involve direct negotiations but there was hope it would lead to such talks, it was understood.

It has been arranged by an outside third party not connected with the provincial department of labor or the federal department of labor, Ted Widmer, civic administration. Further talks are planned.

Representatives of the Oakville and Etobicoke locals of the union where Ford workers are also on strike were not present at the meeting.

STARTED OCT. 19

The walkout started at the company's big production plant in Windsor Oct. 19 and later spread to an assembly pant in Oakville and a parts depot in suburban Etobicoke. It has affected 7,000.

Not all members of the regular negotiating teams of both sides attended Tuesday's talks. Those attending brought with them senior company and union officers.

There was no statement from either the company or the union at the conclusion of the meeting.

At the time of the walkout, the company employed on 10.8 cents an hour in benefits. They now make an average of $1.69 an hour.

The company offered benefits amounting to about three cents an hour and some concessions on other demands such as company-paid hospitalization and pension plans shortly before the strike.

Case Will Soon Go to Jury

CALGARY (CP)—Fate of Donald Maxime Henderson, 29-year-old Moose Jaw mechanical engineer charged with the murder of Gertrude Lemieux will likely be decided today.

The crown attorney and defence counsel completed their addresses to the six-man jury Tuesday. Mr. Justice Ford McBride was expected to start his charge at noon today.

The beaten body of 22-year-old Yvonne Lemieux, Calgary Edmonton waitress from Pincher Creek, Alta., was found Aug. 11, 1949, in the Calgary area. Her body and clothing were burned.

Mr. Lindsay Fenerty, defence counsel Harold W. Riley said in his address that crown arguments had failed to prove substantial evidence.

Mr. Lindsay said the crown has not brought into evidence any suggestion, much less any proof or motive, proof of intent, proof of premeditation; none of these is produced to have opposed to Mr. Henderson's part.

He also said the crown had failed to prove that he been any quarrel or how and where Miss Lemieux met her death.

Crown attorney L. A. Turnbull contended the crown had proved conclusively that the girl's body were caused by Henderson and that she died as their result.

Chiang Worried By Silence Of U.S. On Tachen Isles

Reds Would Not Invade If U.S. Defended Islands

NEW YORK (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China, interviewed at Taipeh, Formosa, has expressed concern over the attitude of the United States toward defence of Nationalist-held islands off the China coast.

Chiang was quoted today in dispatches from Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune and Henry R. Lieberman of The Times.

Lieberman quotes Chiang as saying the Chinese Communists would not try to invade the islands if the U. S. announced its participation in their joint defence.

Bigart's dispatch says Chiang warned that continued American silence regarding defence of islands held by the Nationalists would be accepted by the Chinese Communists as a clear indication that the U. S. is unwilling to fight for them.

RAID RED BASE

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Nationalist Chinese planes returned to Tuesday from a daring and hair-raised Communist gun position through a curtain of anti-aircraft fire.

No Red planes challenged the Nationalists—as they did Tuesday—and official reports said all returned safely after having achieving "excellent" results.

Fourteen red raiders were destroyed Tuesday's talks. Those attending brought with them senior company and union officers.

There was no statement from either the company or the union at the conclusion of the meeting.

At the time of the walkout, the company employed on 10.8 cents an hour in benefits. They now make an average of $1.69 an hour.

The company offered benefits amounting to about three cents an hour and some concessions on other demands such as company-paid hospitalization and pension plans shortly before the strike.

Three Hunters Make Way Back To Civilization

KENORA (CP) — Three hunters who became lost in north-western Ontario wilds were found Tuesday, one as he followed a power line back to civilization and the others as they sat by a lakeshore.

Two other hunters were still missing and there appeared to be little chance that one of them, Oscar Thorston of Sioux Lookout, would be found alive. Thorston disappeared a week ago.

Edward Bird of Kenora, who became lost Sunday, was located as he walked along a power line near the Manitoba border. Two other Kenora men, Steve Mayosky and Roy Hadie, were found at Wildcat Mac lake. They decided to wait there for rescue after losing their way Monday.

Search has been started for Thorston, who became separated from a son and a companion Monday.

Ship Hits Bridge

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Traffic on the Welland ship canal stopped for a while Tuesday after the freighter Judge Kenneth struck a canal lift bridge.

The bow of the ship plowed into the steel lift bridge, partly buckling the pedestrian walk. The ship was undamaged and no one was injured.

REPORT BIG PROGRAM

WASHINGTON (AP) — Eisenhower administration officials are reported today to have a big new foreign economic program which may lead to the investment of billions of dollars in underdeveloped countries of the world, notably in non-Communist Asia. The project is regarded in effect here as speeding up what is in the struggle with the Communist powers for lands threatened by subversion and political aggression.

Vishinsky's Body Being Flown Home For State Burial

MOSCOW (CP) — The body of Andrei Vishinsky was flown homeward today as the Soviet government announced that it would give a state funeral in Red square to the late foreign affairs minister and chief Soviet delegate to the United Nations.

Announcement of the state funeral means Vishinsky, who died in New York Monday of a heart attack, will be buried alongside other Communist notables in the Kremlin wall, behind Lenin's tomb Stalin tomb.

A chartered four-engine Stratocruiser left New York for Paris Tuesday night with the massive copper casket.

MALIK LEAVES

Meanwhile Jacob Malik, Russian ambassador to Britain, left London by plane Tuesday night for New York to replace Vishinsky temporarily as head of the Soviet UN delegation. There has been no announcement of Vishinsky's permanent successor.

Thousands of Russians will file past to pay their last respects to the body of the white-haired Soviet diplomat as it lies in a floral-backed dais in the marble-pillared hall of columns.

All Soviet newspapers today devoted half an inside page to a eulogy of Vishinsky—described flatteringly, and Tass, the official Soviet news agency, described him in the obituary as "a faithful son of the Communist party and an inexhaustible champion of the interests of the Soviet Union."

After the non-stop flight from New York, the body was ceremonially removed from the chartered plane at 3 a.m. Tuesday and transferred to a Russian plane sent from Berlin to pick it up.

Porter Forgot To Call Member

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentarian Mr. A. Hardie said today Canada than he wanted to Tuesday. He also got more sleep than he needed.

The Liberal member of Parliament for the Northwest Territories constituency of Mackenzie was en route from the West to Ottawa by train but the porter forgot to awaken him.

When he finally awoke he found he had to go to Coteau Jonction, Que.—80 miles beyond Ottawa—before he could get off the train.

He got back at noon aboard another train.

"How did the porter forget you?" he was asked.

Mendes-France Returns Home To Face Uneasy Situation

PARIS (Reuters)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France arrived home today by plane from New York to face an uneasy political situation that has worsened since he left. He improved during his successful 10-day visit to the United States and Canada.

The premier's opponents are expected to launch an attack against him. Many of his supporters are disgusted by his apparent surrender to political observers detect signs of growing discontent in the lobbies of the National Assembly.

Paris papers today conceded that the most significant impression prime minister had raised France's international prestige a high level. As a typical comment, the independent left-wing Combat said that Mendes-France "is too clear-headed not to know that the situation in France is not the same as he left it. His opponents have not disarmed. His supporters, on the other hand, are not numerous."

Mendes-France faces immediate challenges on at least two big issues—the North African question and the budget. In addition he has announced plans to curb foreign vested interests by his campaign to cut down drinking and decrease alcoholism.

On North Africa, some Gaullists are threatening to accuse the premier of being "too soft" on rebellion-hard Tunisia.

On the 1955 budget Mendes-France seems sure to come under fire from the Right because he have hitherto supported his policies of high taxes to finance social and wage increases for public employees.

The premier is expected to tackle the problems one by one, making appeal for frequent votes of confidence as each is dealt with.

Satisfied CNR Forced to Lay Off Men at Shops

In a statement following the meeting, the delegation reported it "said the delegation regretted "it had to agree that economic conditions brought the drop in the decline in railway traffic prohibited the re-employment of personnel at present.

The number of men laid off was not disclosed.

The mayor said Mr. Gordon explained the full economic picture, the effect on the community and promised all possible co-operation from the city.

"Mr. Gordon confirmed that the Stratford shops are due for a share of the steamships to be main, tained on the system," Mr. Feick said.

"However, it is understood that the diesilization program periods over the next few years employment in the shops at Stratford will gradually decline."

The delegation was also received by heads of various CNR departments.

MORE WHALE MEAT

OSLO (CP) — Norway expects to sell more than 2,000,000 pounds of whale meat on the world market to the United States this year, compared with 700,000 pounds last year. The product is used chiefly for feed on fur ranches.

Favors Disposal Of Portion Of Butter Supplies

OTTAWA (CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner indicated Tuesday he favors disposal of part of the government butter surplus in world markets.

But he was proper to export butter when we have too much as it is to import when we haven't enough," he said in an interview. Canada imported butter during World War II to meet a shortage.

Both currently the government holds a record stockpile of some 79,000,000 pounds and the question of disposal has aroused divergent views. The government stockpile represents an investment of about $48,000,000 of the taxpayers' money.

Canadian Association of Consumers recently suggested that the government export butter at the world price—about 20 cents a pound lower than that prevailing in Canada. Canadian consumers also should be able to get butter at as low a price.

The National Dairy Council, representing the dairy manufacturers and distributors, said it opposed exports at below cost. Mr. Gardiner said: "I am sympathetic to butter to persons in other countries if low priced. Canadian consumers should get the benefit of the cut.

The government purchased the surplus butter from producers at 64 cents a pound wholesale and offered it to the domestic trade at 61 cents, the difference covering handling and storage costs. There have been few acceptances because butter dealers are well stocked.

Malay Women Pray and Burn Pigs As Battle of Frogs Portends War

BAKAR ARANG, Malaya (Reuters)—Women knelt in prayer today and offered active pigs to the gods as sacrifices to ward off calamities that would befall them in a powerful portent enacted here—a war between rival tribes of frogs.

The two tribes, brown water frogs and black land frogs, were locked in mortal combat for four days last week. A great number of casualties sprawled helpless on the drying mud of a swamp.

Superstitious villagers recalled that the last frog war was followed by the start of the Korean war.

So as soon as the enraged croaking of thousands of warring frogs had ceased, the air was filled with the squealing of pigs and squawking of chickens as the sacrifices being sacrificed to avert more evil.

Reports from the battlefield described the precision of military tactics used by the frog armies, including an efficient "red cross" service for the wounded.

The battle apparently began when the king of the black frogs was molested by black frogs when he ventured into their pond.

Ford Officials And Union Heads Hold Conference

Report Meet Arranged By Unnamed Third Party

TORONTO (CP)—First break in the wage strike which has paralyzed production facilities of the Ford Motor Company of Canada came Tuesday.

Officers of the company and leaders of the striking United Auto Workers union (CIO-CCL) met face to face for the first time since the start of the strike, now in its seventh week.

The meeting was exploratory and did not involve direct negotiations but there was hope it would lead to such talks, it was understood.

It has been arranged by an outside third party not connected with the provincial department of labor or the federal department of labor, Ted Widmer, civic administration. Further talks are planned.

Representatives of the Oakville and Etobicoke locals of the union where Ford workers are also on strike were not present at the meeting.

STARTED OCT. 19

The walkout started at the company's big production plant in Windsor Oct. 19 and later spread to an assembly pant in Oakville and a parts depot in suburban Etobicoke. It has affected 7,000.

Not all members of the regular negotiating teams of both sides attended Tuesday's talks. Those attending brought with them senior company and union officers.

There was no statement from either the company or the union at the conclusion of the meeting.

At the time of the walkout, the company employed on 10.8 cents an hour in benefits. They now make an average of $1.69 an hour.

The company offered benefits amounting to about three cents an hour and some concessions on other demands such as company-paid hospitalization and pension plans shortly before the strike.

Case Will Soon Go to Jury

CALGARY (CP)—Fate of Donald Maxime Henderson, 29-year-old Moose Jaw mechanical engineer charged with the murder of Gertrude Lemieux will likely be decided today.

The crown attorney and defence counsel completed their addresses to the six-man jury Tuesday. Mr. Justice Ford McBride was expected to start his charge at noon today.

The beaten body of 22-year-old Yvonne Lemieux, Calgary Edmonton waitress from Pincher Creek, Alta., was found Aug. 11, 1949, in the Calgary area. Her body and clothing were burned.

Mr. Lindsay Fenerty, defence counsel Harold W. Riley said in his address that crown arguments had failed to prove substantial evidence.

Mr. Lindsay said the crown has not brought into evidence any suggestion, much less any proof or motive, proof of intent, proof of premeditation; none of these is produced to have opposed to Mr. Henderson's part.

He also said the crown had failed to prove that he been any quarrel or how and where Miss Lemieux met her death.

Crown attorney L. A. Turnbull contended the crown had proved conclusively that the girl's body were caused by Henderson and that she died as their result.

American Native Joins in Criticism Of U.S. 'Tin-Can Tourists' in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — An American hunter agreed Tuesday with lodge owners in Quebec that "tin-can tourists" from the United States are ruining hunting and fishing.

"As an American, I know just how Canadians would feel if Canadians went hunting down there without spending anything but the price of a license.

Quebec needed to conserve its game and fish and to discourage campers, with little experience in the Quebec bush, sometimes started forest fires by accident. Sometimes they "got hoggish" in hunting or fishing.

"Everyone's heard the slogan 'keep Canada green,' well, it applies to forest conservation, but I think it also means 'let's bring in those American greenbacks,'" he said.

Those American sportsmen come up here loaded with their own canned food, and canned food." May said. The expression "tin-can tourist" is derived from the fact that they bring in canned food.

Arthur May, 46, a native of Bethlehem, Pa., who has been living in Canada for 20 years, is hunting and fishing lodge near Manouane, Que., since 1947, is one of the lodge owners who make the Quebec Outfitters Association annual convention here.

The association, which represents owners of bush lodges, is holding its three today on a proposal to ask the provincial government to establish rules governing a guide when they hunt or fish on provincial property.

Chiang Worried By Silence Of U.S. On Tachen Isles

Reds Would Not Invade If U.S. Defended Islands

NEW YORK (AP) — President Chiang Kai-shek of Nationalist China, interviewed at Taipeh, Formosa, has expressed concern over the attitude of the United States toward defence of Nationalist-held islands off the China coast.

Chiang was quoted today in dispatches from Homer Bigart of the New York Herald Tribune and Henry R. Lieberman of The Times.

Lieberman quotes Chiang as saying the Chinese Communists would not try to invade the islands if the U. S. announced its participation in their joint defence.

Bigart's dispatch says Chiang warned that continued American silence regarding defence of islands held by the Nationalists would be accepted by the Chinese Communists as a clear indication that the U. S. is unwilling to fight for them.

RAID RED BASE

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Nationalist Chinese planes returned to Tuesday from a daring and hair-raised Communist gun position through a curtain of anti-aircraft fire.

No Red planes challenged the Nationalists—as they did Tuesday—and official reports said all returned safely after having achieving "excellent" results.

Fourteen red raiders were destroyed Tuesday's talks. Those attending brought with them senior company and union officers.

There was no statement from either the company or the union at the conclusion of the meeting.

At the time of the walkout, the company employed on 10.8 cents an hour in benefits. They now make an average of $1.69 an hour.

The company offered benefits amounting to about three cents an hour and some concessions on other demands such as company-paid hospitalization and pension plans shortly before the strike.

QUEBEC (CP) — A temporary agreement between Quebec and Ottawa governments on the sharing of the double-taxation effect of Quebec's new tax on corporations seems certain within the near future. But a permanent taxation agreement is still in sight.

Premier Duplessis cleared up the confusion Tuesday night in a 30-minute speech in the Legislative Assembly Tuesday, and replied to a question by Liberal leader Georges Lapalme deplored secrecy surrounding the negotiations started when Mr. Duplessis met Prime Minister St. Laurent in Montreal last week.

Mr. Duplessis did not rule out the possibility of a permanent agreement.

"The negotiations are designed to work out a modus vivendi, not a permanent agreement," Mr. Duplessis said. "There is still a substantial evidence.

Mr. Lindsay said the crown has not brought into evidence any suggestion, much less any proof or motive, proof of intent, proof of premeditation; none of these is produced to have opposed to Mr. Henderson's part.

He also said the crown had failed to prove that he been any quarrel or how and where Miss Lemieux met her death.

Wet Weather Has Damaged Fall Wheat

Continued wet weather has damaged many fields of fall wheat in the lower lying areas, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. On well drained land, however, wheat is developing a good root system and will go into winter in good condition.

In Northumberland county the moist weather has resulted in grass becoming green while fall plowing is well in hand and farm work has seldom been better advanced.

In Prince Edward county some plowing and other outside work still remains to be done as wet weather has delayed operations. New grain prices are expected to be selling readily at community auctions and at farm sales.

Court Completed In Record Time

Although 27 cases, including 18 divorce actions, were listed for trial, the non jury sittings of the Supreme Court, which opened Monday afternoon before Honorable Mr. Justice Barlow, were completed Tuesday afternoon.

Many of the cases, including the action of Defosse vs City of Belleville were held over until a later court. The action of this city vs Mr. Defosse, Trenton contractor, concerns sidewalks built by Mr. Defosse which were claimed by the city to be defective. The case is expected to proceed in January.

During his brief stay in the city Mr. Justice Barlow was a dinner guest, Monday evening, at the final meeting of the year of the Hastings Bar Association.

Good Yields of Grain Corn Seen Throughout County

Exceptionally good yields of grain corn ranging up to as high as 125 bushels to the acre are causing considerable interest this year on the part of Hastings county farmers.

Test plots of grain corn have been spotted throughout the county by agricultural officers for the past 10 years in an effort to interest farmers in the crop but it is only during the past two or three years the crop has been generally grown. Some farmers, however, have been growing grain corn on a fairly large scale for five or six years.

The cost of manual harvesting has been one factor preventing farmers from growing grain corn but there are now several mechanical corn pickers in the county with owners harvesting neighbors' crops on a custom basis. These machines husk the cobs from the stalks, strip off the husks and dump the cobs into a wagon or truck.

The cobs are then placed in corn cribs for drying following which the kernels are shelled from the cobs by mechanical shellers. The grain corn is then either fed with other grain in stock on the owner's farm or is sold to feed mills where it is processed and sold back to farmers in the form of mixed feeds.

Care must be used in feeding of grain corn but more feed value per acre can be secured from corn than from oats or other types of grain.

Eighty to ninety bushels of corn per acre is generally considered a good crop but dry weather during the summer favored the crop this year with better than average results being secured.

Due to the northern climate an especially early type of hybrid grain corn is required for the Bay of Quinte area.

Largest grower of grain corn in Hastings county this year included Lloyd Shepherd and Basil English of Foxboro; Alton Hadley and Harold Detlor of the Stirling area.

British Clerk Held for Spying For Russians

LONDON (Reuters) — A British clerk charged under the Official Secrets Act was stated in court here today to have been in touch with a foreign agent — an attache at the Russian embassy in London.

The clerk, John Clarence, 27, appointed at Bow street police court on two charges. The first was that for a purpose prejudicial to the safety or interests of the state," he obtained information and sketches of defence calculated to be useful to an enemy.

The second accused him of recording information about the anti-aircraft defences of the northeast coast of Britain some time between Aug. 3, 1953, and Sept. 25, 1954.

DEFENCE DOCUMENT

Prosecutor Ian Smith told the court he would introduce evidence to show Clarence "was in communication with a foreign agent. The foreign agent in this particular case is an attache at the consulate of the Soviet Embassy in the city.

Smith added the magistrate a photostatic copy of a document alleged to have been found in a briefcase owned by Clarence. Head of the defence document was: "Embassy of the Soviet Union."

Smith asked the magistrate to treat the document as a secret exhibit. He requested that it not be read in the court.

Smith said Clarence had been employed in 1953 from the beginning of August to October as a clerk in the quartermaster's office for a Northumberland unit of the Home Guard.

Colder Weather Bringing More Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP) — Unemployment is increasing with the arrival of cold weather, though the number of persons at work last month was about the same as a year earlier.

The bureau of statistics estimated today that 179,000 persons were without jobs at Oct. 23, compared with 167,000 a month earlier and 111,000 a year previous.

At the same time, the bureau estimated 4,819,000 persons were working full time on that date, a figure almost exactly the same as the 4,820,000 a month before and compared with 4,850,000 a year earlier.

However, persons on part - time work swelled the total by 334,000, compared with 344,000 in September and 286,000 in October, 1953.

During the year, the labor force increased to 5,461,000 from 5,351,000.

A rise in the number of job hunters between this year and last was shown in every province, with the increase sharpest in Ontario. There, 100,645 persons sought work in October compared with 62,711 a year earlier.

Figures for other regions with the 1953 comparison in brackets: Atlantic region 20,064 (24,814), Quebec 74,343 (57,708), Prairie 29,317 (29,342), Pacific 29,651 (28,171).

Police Raid Middle Road Club at Brampton

BRAMPTON (CP)—A provincial police cutting-a-rug squad smashed through a steel-reinforced door at the Middle Road Club at nearby Cooksville early today, searched the premises thoroughly, and held 34 persons. None were charged immediately.

The men were released after questioning revealed no evidence of gambling, police said. No charges were laid against them or against the club.

Cpl. John Anderson, one of the officers who conducted the 2 a. m. raid, said at an inquiry into the forenoon the police went with a search warrant to the building "because we suspected a dice game was being operated."

He said police found no dice.

A spokesman for the crown said the men were held under section 176 of the revised Criminal Code which provides persons found in suspected disorderly houses may be held until examined under oath by a magistrate.

The examination proceeded today in Brampton. The men were locked up in coroner's and magistrate's offices after the governor of the county jail refused to admit them. He said they were not formally charged and he had no sworn information against them.

Sol Gebirtig, one of two counsel for the men, said in court the police used high-handed methods and deprived the men of their rights.

An official of the club said it was raided 15 times during the last year. He said police have "a lot of malice" against the place and are determined to close it.

The official said the club, which holds a charter from Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association, was operating legally and entitled to some gambling. He said the police once had a man watch the poker game at the club during a period of 30 days.

Light in Garage Foils Strangler In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—A light which came on in a garage in a line off east-end McConnell avenue Tuesday night probably saved a 55-year-old New Canadian mother from the hands of Toronto's strangler, police said today.

On her way to a home and school club meeting at Frankland school at 7:30 p. m., she was grabbed around the throat by a man who pulled her into a lane, police said.

Police say they think from the method that the man may be the strangler blamed for killing two women in 25 days.

The victim, who got away when the light went on in a garage, said the man started to remove her stocking.

There were finger-marks on her throat when she went to the office of the principal in Frankland school.

Sergeant Bernard Simmonds and detective William McNeely, who are working on the strangulation slayings of Mrs. Marie Lipowecky Sept. 23 and Mrs. Olga Zacharko, 39, five weeks ago, interviewed the woman.

Prison Behavior Apparently Keeping War Prisoner in Jail

OTTAWA (CP) — Bad prison behavior apparently is keeping in jail the last German held for war crimes against Canadians.

With maximum time off for good behavior, German Marine Sgt. Johann Neitz could have been freed last Sunday from Werl prison in the British occupation zone of Germany after serving about 9½ years of an original life sentence.

Officials said Neitz has moved. Neitz is still being held. They added that it would be up to prison authorities at Werl to decide when he would be given his freedom.

German SS Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer, once sentenced to death for responsibility in the mass shooting of 18 Canadian prisoners released Sept. 7 from Werl after obtaining the maximum time off for good behavior.

Meyer's original death sentence was commuted to life imprisonment and Jan. 15 last former Defence Minister Ralph Campneal said in the Commons that the life sentences of both Meyer and Neitz had been reduced to 14 years.

Officials said at that time it was usual to give about one-third time off for good behavior.

Neitz was convicted of the stabbed murder of FO. Rudolph Anthony Roman of Regina, an RCAF pilot who bailed out of his crippled bomber.

Roman was captured on a beach at night. The next day, Oct. 16, 1944, Neitz was detailed to escort him to a secret German anti-aircraft regiment. Roman was shot as the two walked along the beach. He recovered and testified later at Neitz' trial.

Besides Meyer and Neitz, there were six other German war criminals cases involving Canadians. Four Germans were shot and one was hanged in 1946 for murdering Canadian airmen who had been taken prisoner. Wilhelm Oxenbach, sentenced to 15 years for a similar offence, was released in 1951 on the grounds he had followed orders when he shot down a Canadian airman in cold blood.

AN "E" FOR EFFORT

Most of us, if we are prepared to endure the agony of being honest with ourselves, will admit that we have no talents likely to win us world-acclaim by any field.

This is a confession seldom made. The nearest approach is an admission that we "don't amount to much," but that is a statement made with a wry laugh in the company of our friends, in the comfortable assurance that some of them will promptly contest the accuracy of the observation.

Most of us, in one way or another, do amount to quite a bit. We fill important places in the lives of our families, our friends, our place of employment or even in our community.

This, however, is a long way from establishing any claim to true leadership.

Even if we are the best in town, in any particular line of endeavor, there are still so many other towns, in so many other countries, that a moment of honesty will force us to admit we have no claim to, and little hope of, pre-eminence in any line of human endeavor.

Why, then, do we strive so?

Perhaps an answer was provided recently when teams from many nations, from Canada and Portugal and Pakistan among others, assembled at Stokes Mandeville, England. There they competed in a sports festival. They took part in contests in archery, basketball, javelin-throwing, snooker, swimming and table tennis.

No winners could be sure of one thing. They were not the best in the world. For all the competitors were victims of the deadly affliction known as "paralympics." They were trying to accomplish the most possible, in view of their handicaps.

That, perhaps, is the reason that we all keep striving. We are trying to do the best with the equipment we possess. Most of us know that this equipment is not adequate to win us supremacy. In most cases, tragically enough, its inadequacy is our own fault, the result of our laziness, our waste of the years, our self-indulgences and our procrastinations. . . Still, no matter how we may be handicapped or how we may have handicapped ourselves, there remains the fraternal challenge to do the best with what we still possess.

The acceptance of that challenge may not produce any world champions. But it gets the world's work done —and keeps life worth living.

PURSUE THE ENEMY — BUY SEALS

Pursue the enemy!

That warlike admonition is a sound slogan to guide us in one of the great battles of peace, the fight against tuberculosis.

Thanks to the miracles of modern medicine, words which "come up by the most rapid and accurate reporters in London" wrote a century ago are no longer true. That reporter was Charles Dickens. In Nicholas Nickleby he described consumption as "a disease which medicine never cured." There are thousands of people today who can testify that, happily, though the Encyclopedia Britannica was doubtless right in praising Dickens for his accuracy, what was true a hundred years ago is no longer a fact today.

Early discovery, prompt treatment, drugs and surgery have combined to greatly reduce the death toll from tuberculosis. Yet approximately 1,800 Canadians die every year from this disease and more than 11,000 patients enter sanatoria each year. Prevention is still a great need.

While treatment is mainly the concern of doctors, the general public must shoulder responsibility for prevention. The Hastings County Tuberculosis Association has assumed this task in this area.

Of course, the Association cannot carry on its work without funds. It is very much in the public interest, therefore, to be generous in the sale of Christmas seals. We are all familiar with these seals. We all use them on our Christmas parcels. But how many of us pay for them? How few—for there are always some who, in the rush of the Christmas season, forget to make their contribution. Forgetfulness, we are sure, is the greatest enemy of the Association's work.

There is an easy way to remedy this situation. Make your contribution now—when the receipt of the seals is fresh in your mind, when the necessity of choosing presents for Aunt Mary and Cousin Bill is not so pressing.

Tuberculosis is a tough, stubborn enemy. But it has suffered severe setbacks at the hands of medical science. . . . Instead of resting on past laurels, however, we should realize that we have a great opportunity and a pressing duty—pursue the enemy. Pay for those Christmas seals which you have received through the mails.

FRANCE WEARY OF TIMID MEN

The French people like what Mendes-France is doing. They are weary of the timid, the evasive, the cautious. He has done what other politicians feared doing, for fear of losing their political heads. He has been bold. Instead of losing it, Mendes-France's head is being garlanded with laurels. France is starting to look up, thanks to an intelligent man who is not afraid. JUST FOLKS

DUTY FIRST

When business interferes with pleasure,
Let pleasure go.
Duty returns a greater treasure,
As all must know.
Here is the rule, Son; don't ignore it
If
Play after work, but not before it.

Business requires complete attention;
Tasks must be done.
Pleasure replaces strain and tension
With restful fun.

Good for the mind are mirth and laughter,
But duty they should follow after.

And never spurn it.
Pleasure will spoil you if you let it
And fail to earn it.
First do your duty, night or day time,
And sweeter then will be your play time.

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

NOV. 24, 1934.

Mr. R. J. Mcmerry, superintendent of the stores section, with the Hydro Commission, is attending the Royal Winter Fair the poultry exhibits are of special interest to him.

Mrs. Dr. Sinclair and son, John Charles Street, will leave shortly to join Mr. Sinclair in Stratford to which city he was transferred from the position of manager of the Bank of Nova Scotian Company to a like position at the Stratford plant.

Miss Marion Dundas of Alliston, N.Y., is visiting relatives here.

St. Thomas' Parish House was the scene of a jolly social party on Saturday when a group of the Women's Auxiliary sponsored a "backward" party. The guests came in amusing costumes and an enjoyable evening was spent.

Mayor Geo. O'Dea announced today that he will seek re-election to the office of Mayor at the coming municipal elections.

A valuable Chine Chow dog, owned by Mr. Ed. Sharpe, Gordon Street, and valued at $200 was lost, out for a short time and shortly after it was killed when struck by a motor car at the intersection of West Moira and Coleman Streets. The accident was unavoidable. Constable Evans investigated the matter.

Mrs. Arthur Salisbury, Charles Street, is attending the Women's Institute Convention at the Royal York in Toronto.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 24, 1924.

An informal reception will be held in the officers' mess at the armouries this evening for the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, leader of the Conservative party in Canada. An invitation is extended to the public to be present.

It is reported that the local YMCA will enter a team in the Ontario Basketball Association. There is plenty of good material here for a fast team.

Morse Era Is Closed

(Montreal Star)

Not so many years ago few newspaper offices were not complete without a telegraph operator sitting in a corner of the room listening or typing to the clack of his telegraph instrument. The clatter of the teletypes has now replaced him, but it still exists with a slight shock to learn that the last—the very last—Morse operator employed in the Washington bureau of The New York Times has died.

He was only 59, but he had been in that office since 1922, and The Times thought so much of him that it ran a picture on his obituary page,—a picture and a lengthy biographical sketch. Nostalgia was working overtime in The Times office the night Ralph Cahill died.

Small wonder, for the Morse operators were, many of them, real characters. The Times recalls how Cahill used to put a coke he had heated on the stove and pass it along to some distant city where a friend was on the line. The story would move fast from town to town, bringing laughs wherever it went.

It was not only jokes that moved, of course. We recall the day when Boston banned Henry Mencken's American Mercury because it contained a story the city fathers thought was raw. That night Morse operators worked overtime for hours in a score of American and Canadian cities. Finally, the short story in question, was thousands of words long, and good operators can copy only about 50 words a minute. But they considered the time well spent.

It never occurred to any of them to walk out to the nearest newsstand, and pick up a copy of the American Mercury. It was on sale everywhere—except in Boston.

Army Sets Fine Example

(Christian Science Monitor)

"I am a soldier," wrote a Negro in uniform to this newspaper a few weeks ago, "and . . . when I am a man, one who knows what he is wanted, needed, and respected . . . ."

For years observers of years—military men have protested that the armed forces could not be expected to pioneer in social reform—that the services, at the most, could but reflect the current state of general civilization. To the everlasting credit and no doubt to the surprise of these military men, the armed forces have successfully pioneered in one of the most profound cases of all social changes: abolition of segregation.

The record attested by the office of the Assistant Secretary of Defence for Manpower and Personnel announces: "There are no longer any all-Negro units in the services."

And the report adds significantly that the program of integration has advanced more rapidly than had been considered possible in some instances, and there have been no untoward incidents."

This bears out the observations of a member of this newspaper's staff who over three years ago made an on-the-spot survey of the Army basic training.

Has the armed forces' success been due to its ability to enforce orders upon men "set under authority"? Or is it because of changing attitudes among Americans in general, especially the younger generation?

Our guess would be that it has been both, with the greatest emphasis on the latter. Discipline can compel artificial compliance with a certain lip service. It cannot compel compliance in the thousand and one relationships between man and man, in dwelling together, eating together, working and playing together.

Something has been happening in this America, something which has been lifting a people arising from a desegregated Army trailing far behind, critics complain and "we older Americans who have grown up in another and more prejudiced generation are not ready for it."

Tartan 'Bras' Enrage Scots

(Providence, R.I., Bulletin)

The heather's on fire in the Scottish highlands. From the Firth of Clyde to Inverness they're digging the Prince Charlie claymores out of the thatch, polishing the arse dhu, tooling pibrochs on the pipes and writing letters to London and The Times. Reason: The lads from the bonnie braes are mad at Scottish manufacturers for putting tartans in women's bonny bras.

The export of tartan brassieres is not quite an industry in Scotland and plays an important part in the Scottish economy. All over the world lassies who have no part in the Scottish heritage ultimately wearing tartans that once swirled in the forefront of the kilts of the proud and fighting clans.

The rebellion started when a beautiful Sassenach model in London, one Irene Irvine, was photographed in tartan bra and shepherd's brs. When the picture appeared in the private sheet of Chief Macpherson shrieked in his cave on Ben Alder and was heard halfway to Inverness. A couple of clans that don't like the Macphersons were shocked.

To a highland Scot his clan tartan is like the Britisher's old school tie. He doesn't feel right about having people wear it who aren't entitled to.

This Story Warms Heart

(Minneapolis Tribune)

We like this story because it warms the heart of a newspaper man. . . . A 10-year-old girl from Chetek, Wis., Donna Jean Christ, had her purse returned to her—and while in Minneapolis. These were duly found and returned to her by the city police department, which has just received a thank-you note. Dear Friends: it read, briefly.

"Thank you for sending back my purse. It belongings. I am 10 years old and earned my money picking beans this summer. So I was glad to get it back. Enclosed is a dollar, give it to your favorite charity for a treat for some boy or girl."

To this Police Chief Jones replied that he was returning the money, "because I could think of no one more entitled to the dollar than yourself for showing such considerate attitude." And then he added, "However, charity will not refuse the dollar being returned to you as you have my word that I will donate an extra dollar to the Community Chest in your name."

A little girl with an instinctive gift of gratitude for favors done. A fine police chief who writes a gallant and thoughtful letter to a child. A fine cause—the Community Chest—which benefits from such pleasant correspondence. The story doesn't point up any profound moral, or have any earth-shaking significance. But amid the clamor of far more momentous events, it plucks a chord which falls serenely on the ears.

Not at All Like Life

(London Free Press)

If education is preparation for life, as it is supposed to be, what kind of preparation is that it makes classes as easy as possible, neglects discipline and promotes the pupil simply because he has spent the required number of hours in the classroom.

Education which has deteriorated to the lowest common denominator is not education at all. It is not to be the easy way to empty the schools for next year's crop, but the product of such a system represent a colossal waste of time and money, a waste for which we shall pay a heavy price.

Freeze Shaft To Mine Potash

(Winnipeg Tribune)

A considerable number of wells drilled on the Prairies in the search for oil and gas during the past ten years have encountered salt strata.

The ever-increasing number of wells indicates the presence of a great salt basin extending from the United States border and sweeping across a large area of the three provinces. This salt stratum varies all the way from 600 feet to more than 1,200 feet thick in certain areas of Saskatchewan.

Back in 1943 one of the drilling teams discovered that the salt contained potash. Tests which they were drilling had a 57-foot section in which there was a high concentration of potash. Wells drilled since that time have proved that potash occurs over a vast area extending from the Manitoba to the Alberta border.

The first attempt to exploit the potash deposits will soon be made in the Saskatoon district. In this region the deposits are 1,200 feet below the surface and a shaft must be sunk to that depth to reach the potash layer. The mining company plans to employ an unusual method of shaft sinking. It will freeze the ground.

Drilling has shown that several layers of water-bearing sand must be penetrated. In addition to quicksand, all of the strata overlying the potash beds are of sedimentary origin and have little strength—some of the shales are even self-supporting. This means that the shaft will have to be lined with concrete to keep the working reasonably dry and to prevent caving.

In order to provide temporary support for the shaft while the concrete lining is being put in place, the engineers plan to freeze the entire shaft area to a depth of 1,200 feet. Below the Devonian limestone will be self-supporting.

This type of mining development will be quite different from the hard-rock mining that has characterized exploitation of the Canadian Shield. In the pre-Cambrian. The progress of the Saskatoon venture will be watched with interest as an imaginative engineering feat and as an addition to the economy of Western Canada.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

THREE-FOURTHS OF THE DOCTOR'S WORK

Dr. Brady

There removal of tonsils renders children less susceptible to the common respiratory infections — chill. On the other hand, Dr. Kaiser's statistics, still far the most authoritative and dependable we have, show what a mockery is the practice of advising that the child will probably outgrow having repeated "colds" until those bad tonsils are out.

Just what Dr. Kaiser or any one else may mean by "colds" if not respiratory infections carried in spray droplets, mucous or moisture droplets, either visible or palpable or invisibly and impalpably fine, given off by another child or adult who talks, laughs, coughs or sneezes while within spray range of the victim, I don't know and I doubt that any physician or health authority will undertake to tell.

But why should they explain? The poor souls are thoroughly indoctrinated with the silly notion that you can catch whatever fate has in store for you by going out too soon after washing behind your ears or by sitting in a draft or by getting your feet wet.

In fact, Intellectual Tim running out of petiseus (not patients —I ran out of them long ago) will tell you people one out of ten thousand readers reports that application of tonsil forceps has apparently reduced sickness and doctor bills in his or her family.

I have not found any reliable statistics or the results of tonsillectomy in such cases, statistics comparable with those of Dr. Albert D. Kaiser, (Children's Tonsils in or Out) in regard to the effect, say, of tonsillectomy on the frequency of "colds" in school children. Physicians advised tonsillectomy for 4,400 Rochester school children. In 7 years of age who were having three or more "colds" a year, by half of them were subjected to operation; the other half were not.

The 2,200 children whose tonsils were not removed were less subject to "colds" after ten years of age than the 2,200 children whose tonsils were removed. The difference, however, was not enough to warrant the inference that removal of tonsils renders children less susceptible to the common respiratory infections — chill. On the other hand, Dr. Kaiser's statistics, still far the most authoritative and dependable we have, show what a mockery is the practice of advising that the child will probably outgrow having repeated "colds" until those bad tonsils are out.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

UNFORGETTABLES

There are certain people with whom we came in contact in the past who never quite leave our minds. Being a member of the small Methodist town, I select three who made a great impression on me as a boy.

We lived in a County Seat, so that there was a courthouse which I used to spend many an hour listening to trials. There was a long drawn out case being tried by Prosecuting Attorney, called Micky Stewart, who chewed tobacco and who would walk from one side of the room to the other in front of the jury. At one time, side was a big brass cuspidor, at which he aimed as he paced from side to side. But each one with a bang. I never saw a man spit so far and never missed. It was this lawyer who almost made me decide to take up the legal profession!

There was a druggist in our town by the name of Bell, who had a fashioned 100 per cent drugstore, with the big colored bottles in the windows and no sign of the primitive of a druggiore in those days. This establishment was the one I would fill his woodbox each day and go to the country to get watercress for him, of which he was very fond. He was a steady drinker, though few knew it. He went home the day before New Year's and asked me to come over in the morning. "He's leading me into temptation," he said, jokingly.

Then there was a tall, lanky man with long black whiskers. He had a laugh that was worth the price of admission. He was a deacon in the Methodist church and I used to sing in the choir. It was a great loss, for he loved to sing and people loved to hear him. I always looked upon him as an admirable character, for he was a good man in every sense.

Few men who came to our home, when I was a little shaver, made such an impression upon me as did our family physician. He was a tall, rangy

OTTAWA (CP)—Have you lost track of your grandfather? The public archives may be able to help.

Students of history are not the only Canadians who wade through the vast stores of documents preserved in the archives.

"We often get requests for information about relatives long dead," said Dr. W. Kaye Lamb, Dominion archivist. "We can frequently turn them up in old census records."

There is usually some legal point regarding an estate involved in these requests.

"We've sometimes had two opposing lawyers camping here for weeks trying to tie up their cases."

The archives is the custodian of a great variety of documents and records bearing on Canada's history, from proclamations to shipping registries.

During the last few years it has been concentrating on political papers from the period after Confederation are of major interest to research workers, explained Dr. Lamb.

It now has the papers of all prime ministers except R. B. Bennett. His files are in the University of New Brunswick library.

The archives is also collecting the papers of governors-general and other public figures, and the records of government departments.

Departmental records will become a large part of the archives' work early next year, when it occupies extra storage space in a new government building and becomes, in effect, a public records office.

Another current project is the microfilming of documents relating to Canada in the public records office in London and the French national archives.

These are often a big help in getting the real "inside story" of Canadian history," said Dr. Lamb.

The archives is also preparing inventories of all documents in its possession, so that researchers can learn quickly what material is available on any subject.

Weddings

McAVOY—FARRELL

Bronze and yellow chrysanthemums adorned the altar of St. Charles Borromeo Church, Read, Ontario, for a pretty wedding when the Rev. R. L. Farrell, uncled in marriage, on Saturday, November 13, at 10:00 a.m., Mary Teresa Anne Farrell, of Corbyville, Ontario, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Farrell, to John Francis McAvoy, of Belleville, son of Mrs. Elizabeth McAvoy, of Belleville, and the late Francis McAvoy.

The wedding music was provided by Mr. Robert Burke, who rendered "Ave Maria," "Panis Angelicus" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," accompanied by Mr. William Hanley, church organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a graceful gown of white satin and Chantilly lace over taffeta, fashioned with matching jacket, and bouffant skirt having a stand-up collar and lace-edged overskirt of tulle. Her fingertip veil of tulle illusion was held by a tiny, tulle coronet studded with rhinestones. She carried a full cascade of white poms centred by an orchid and surrounded by feathered white carnations and lacelon ribbon.

Miss Mary Farrell, of Toronto, sister of the bride, as maid of honour was gowned in maple toned nylon net over taffeta; Mrs. Vernon Pascoe, of Melrose, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Bernadette Farrell, sister of the bride, as bridesmaids were attired alike in Kelly green nylon net over taffeta fashioned in cocktail length with matching jackets, and full circular skirts. All wore matching headdresses embroidered with sequins, and carried crescents of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums tied with lacelon ribbon.

Mr. William McAvoy of Belleville, was groomsman, while ushers were Messrs. Vernon Pascoe, Melrose, and John Farrell, Jr., of Corbyville, were ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at Golden Acre Inn, Kingston Road, where the bride's mother, wearing a gown of navy blue crepe trimmed in white, with white accessories, and corsage of red roses, received the guests, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, attired in navy blue gabardine with white and navy accessories and corsage of red roses.

Later, the happy couple left for Cobourg, the bride wearing a red knitted suit with black accessories, grey kidskin shoes, coat, and corsage of white carnations. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. McAvoy will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Rochester, N.Y.; Oshawa, Belleville, and Kingston.

LUNAN—STEVENSON

PICTON. — Picton United Church was the scene of an interesting wedding when the Rev. F. J. Whiteley united in marriage Ruth Edith, daughter of Mrs. Muriel Stevenson, R. 4, Picton, Ont., and Wilbert Garfield Allan, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Matthew Lunan of Roblin, Man.

The bride was smart in a light blue suit with matching accessories, pink hat with navy trim and corsage of deep pink roses.

Miss Velma Elsberry, her attendant, was in a navy blue suit with navy hat and accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

Larry Carrier of Picton Heights, native of St. Bowness, Man., was groomsman.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, on Tweed Road, November 23. Mrs. Stevenson chose a navy dress, and navy hat and accessories with corsage of red roses. Pink and white streamers and silver bells decorated the dining room. A three-storey cake centred the table flanked by red roses and pink candles.

Servers were Mrs. Evelyn Lightfoot, Mrs. Barbara Sedore and Mrs. Ellen Stevenson.

For travelling, the bride donned a brown dress with blue accessories and corsage of red roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Lunan will reside on Main Street East, Picton.

She married H. Wyman Porter, a newspaper man, and has one son, Mrs. Edward LeBlanc of St. Stephen, N.B.

Mrs. Porter still does her own housework and cooking. She is well-known for her cooking alone and for six years was instructor of home economics at the Kenville Technical School.

PLACE IN POLITICS

Just because she says a woman's place is at home, Mrs. Porter does not think that women should stay out of politics.

Men are becoming "educated" to the fact that women can handle the jobs, Mrs. Porter claims.

The mayor's office is non-paying job and Mrs. Porter thinks that is the way it should be.

Mayor Porter says the men still run things in the town. "I only get a chance to vote when an issue becomes deadlocked, and that's not too often."

Mrs. Gladys Porter Only Woman Mayor in Maritimes

By GERRY MARTIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KENTVILLE, N.S. (CP)—Mrs. Gladys Porter, mayor of this thriving town in the heart of the Annapolis valley apple belt, has time to work to a non-stop merry-go-round.

She does her housework in the mornings, looks after town business in the afternoons and evenings, and in between attends meetings of the 23 organizations in which she holds office.

This busy round of activities started when she was first elected Men are becoming "educated" to the fact that women can handle the jobs, Mrs. Porter claims. out of politics.

CHILDREN COME FIRST

Her expressed belief is that woman's place is in the home until her family grows up; after that it's up to her.

After four years as a councillor, Mrs. Porter became the Maritimes' only woman mayor in 1946. She was re-elected in 1948, lost out in a hectic battle in 1950 but swept back into office again in the Grand Prenational since its beginning.

She says she "just loves to meet people." She has been hostess at Now 60, Mrs. Porter is tall and gracious with silvery hair and has given no thought to retirement. She plans to stay in office as "long as the people want me."

RUNS IN FAMILY

Mrs. Porter is no stranger to political life. Her father, the late Wallace Richardson, was the first mayor of Sydney and was re-elected six times.

Her mother was a widely-known community worker and an uncle was a member of the Nova Scotia legislature.

Chic Miss Will Pick Leathers To Match Brightest Flecks

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Shoe manufacturers are out to break the endless British woman's preference for black.

The chic miss touring the fashion line this year will pick leathers to match the brightest fleck in her speckle tweeds. It will be easy to find shoes, gloves and handbags to match in the latest tints of peach leaf and angelica green, pomegranate orange or the alcoholic color tones of whisky, sherry and brandy.

This year's high heels are spikier, styles more fussy and trimmings more elaborate. Buckles, buttons, bows and tabs can be found in front, behind or at either side. There are pleated inserts at toe and heel and many other innovations.

LITTLE AS POSSIBLE

For evening wear the rule is as little shoe as possible. The most expensive lines consist of narrow bands of imitation jewels, holding a sole and heel.

Women with low-heel preferences have as much choice as their heeled sisters. Gone are the heavy Cuban heels and clouds-in styles; so long the only choice for those who can't wear stilts. Now, when shown at all, these heels come in country courts and other heavy styles.

One make favored by the instep-rower-footed Briton has black suede uppers from gaiter to tapered Cuban heel, with varied jewel decoration and buckles. The party-minded can buy a change of buckles for different dresses.

A wide variety of shoes by well-known makers give a round-the-clock choice of heels and colors, from less than £3 to around £9.

There are shelf-cut courts with French heels for that soft wool dress, spike styles with satin straps and jeweled tabs and frivolous numbers like a pink calf court with ostrich heel, a favorite bauble in black curving up from a tab front. Many simpler black courts have decorations such as zebra stripes of gold encircling a mid-heel number and adding slimness to the wearer's foot.

Pr. Ed.-Belleville Club Hears Talk On Poet's Life

The president, Mrs. L. Wamsamaker, presided for the November meeting of the Prince Edward and Belleville club held at the Y.M.C.A.

In the absence of Mrs. Parliament, Mrs. Skeggs acted as secretary, and after the usual opening, the president read seasonable poems and Miss C. Anderson led in "O Canada" and "O God Our Help in Ages Past." A period of entertainment was led by Mrs. Weese.

Miss Anderson's group with Mrs. Ray Fox as co-convener provided a unique program in which Mrs. Steers gave a word picture of the early life and struggles upwards to fame as one of the most popular and loved poets, Edna Jacques.

During her talk, Mrs. Steers called upon Mrs. Moxam, Mrs. Clegg and Mrs. Davidson, who each read selections from the writer's best productions, which now number in the thousands and are read the world over.

Mrs. L. Sharp contributed a poem "An Ode to the Old Quebec Heater."

Plans were made for the Christmas meeting.

The evening was spent with the group in charge serving refreshments.

The next sound you hear will be the rustle of these crisp dresses! The next picture you see will be a charming one of yourself wearing one of these glamorous styles! The skirts swirl about your legs . . . billow over your prettiest petticoats! And we've so many to choose from!

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

WHY CAN'T SHE STAY OUT LATER ON DATES?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a girl of 16 with a very serious problem which concerns my parents.

They are ideal in every way, except about time. I should come home from dates. My father insists that I must be home by 9:30 and that's ridiculous. I feel very funny telling a boy I have to be home so early, and I think it is not at all fair.

Please don't get me wrong. I don't expect to come home at all hours of the morning. But I think I should be allowed to stay out at least until 11 o'clock.

What can I do to make my parents change their minds and let me come home at the time I wish?

— M.L.

Dear M.L.:

Perhaps if you were to drop the resentful attitude you are taking toward your parents right now on the subject of when you should come from a date, and be reasonable enough to give some consideration to their point of view, you might gradually effect a compromise. Perhaps you might agree to let you stay out later on special occasions, if you carried out their wishes and were home by 9:30 on other nights. I don't think you can expect to have everything all your own way.

You don't say whether or not the 9:30 rule applies to both week nights and weekends. I think that on Friday and Saturday nights when there is no school the next day, it is fair enough for a teenager to be out until 11, or even 12, if there is something very special going on. But during the week, I think there should be very little going out at all. In the first place, school girls have homework to do, and if they're out in the evening, they either have to sit up to all hours after they get home, or else they have to skip it. Do you really think either of these is the right way? If your parents allow you to be out whenever you please on week nights, provided you get home by 9:30, they are more liberal than I think I would be myself.

You might approach the matter of trying to make the compromise suggested above by having the boy who wants to take you out on a big date, some Friday or Saturday night, ask your father if you may stay out until 11, promising to have you home promptly at that hour. Parents will often agree to such a request if made by a daughter's escort in a polite and respectful way. But I certainly don't advise you to try and put through any change for week nights. As I see it, you are already very well off indeed on that score.

DON'T ENCOURAGE A CHAP WHO DOESN'T KNOW HIS OWN MIND

Dear Miss Fairfax:

A couple of years ago I broke up with a lad I had been going with for nearly a year. Not long ago I read in the paper of his engagement to another girl. Consequently, I was very much surprised when he dropped in to see me recently. He spoke of his engagement, but said that he was still in love with me and that he wants me to be his wife.

It seemed funny to me that he would come and tell me this when he is already engaged to another girl. Don't you think so, or do you think I should believe him when he says he has never stopped loving me? — H.R.T.

Dear H.R.T.:

What I think is that this young man is probably a rather unstable type and not yet mature enough to know his own mind. I doubt if you can take his changes of feeling seriously.

If he is still in love with you, why didn't he come and tell you so before he became engaged? And is he delaying a decision on whether or not to break his engagement until he finds out whether or not you are willing to take him on again? Altogether, this seems to me a very dubious state of affairs and, in my opinion, you'd make no mistake to tell this chap so.

NEW TRENDS IN SWEATERS

BY VERA WINSTON

The long torso look is very much at home in sports and casual clothes because of Coco Chanel designs which have influenced the whole range of current fashion. It is very evident in this sweater of fine lamb's wool in orange with charcoal trim. The skirt is of charcoal gray tweed flecked in orange, a nicely handled and good color scheme. The slit sides of the sweater have a button closing. Good country twosome.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

WALKING TOWARD THE BEAUTY GOAL

Surveys show that thirty per cent of Uncle Sam's daughters are overweight. They are also the first to enquire of the good things of the table, don't get enough exercise to burn up the extra calories—and then fret about spreading hips, fatted calves and expanded waistlines.

Walking is an ideal exercise. It makes a woman feel keenly alive, benefits the complexion through speeding up the circulation, streams and helps the digestive motors to function as they should.

In walking, rhythmic movements of the arms, legs and trunk should be cultivated. A good way to get into a graceful step is to extend the spinal column, lift the chest, tuck in the tummy. Then march!

Taking in deep lungfuls of fresh air with every breath, while inhaling and exhaling to capacity, packs every red blood corpuscle with its load of oxygen, to be carried to the most remote parts of the body.

Through deep breathing and body movements the circulation is stimulated and in turn there is speeded up that natural process of tissue renewal that is going on all the time.

Many homemakers insist that their household duties give them a sufficient amount of walking but that isn't the same as getting out of doors, where they are more mindful of posture and appearance. They're keen enough about giving the kids outdoor exercise, but they need it too!

Business girls who sit at desks or pound typewriters would do well to find time for walking. If they don't, they will develop that physical culturists call "chair defects"—enlarged hips and waistlines.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. SEECKMAN

WHERE SHOULD THE GUESTS SIT?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister and her husband are coming to visit us. They are both older than we are, and (as we know from past experience) most of the time they want us to do what they want to do. There are two questions I want to be sure about.

(1) Are there any special places where they should be seated at the dining table? My husband and I have our own places at table; my husband sits at one end of the table, our daughter sits opposite him, and I sit between them, because in this place I am nearest the kitchen door and it is most convenient for me to serve. (I have made a sketch of the table-seating for you, Which I am enclosing.)

(2) When we go driving, should I sit beside my husband in the front seat, or let either my brother-in-law or my sister sit in the front seat?

(1) Have your husband keep his accustomed place at table. And in this place, mainly because of its special convenience for your cooking - and - serving procedure. Then I suggest that for the duration of the visit you ask your daughter to sit on the side of the table opposite you, and have your brother - in - law sit in your daughter's place. Have your sister sit on the side of the table opposite you, in the place next to your husband. This places your woman guest next to the host, and the man guest next to you, the hostess.

(2) Husbands often have a definite preference about this . . . and when such is the case, we should honor this preference. Or perhaps your husband may wish to have your sister sit in the front seat with him sometimes (courtesy to the guest) and sometimes let her husband. If all is well," it's usually very thoughtful for the host to sit in the rear seat with a guest.

THANKSGIVING TABLE SHOULD SAY "WE GIVE THANKS"

Thanksgiving Day is a very special day. It is the day established by our Canadian forbears to observe with gratitude the abundant crops and other benefits received during the year. And for this special day there should be a . . . and we should have it be a . . . something special about the centerpiece of the family table setting, something to express the idea "On this day in this house we give thanks for the harvest's Lord Who gives 'our daily bread.'"

Such a simple centerpiece as a small stacked spray of wheat will sing this song of gratitude . . . and this year you will find these small stacks of golden wheat gracing the day in many florists' stores and in many other kinds of stores. One stack of wheat (or two if you wish) makes a strikingly dramatic and appropriate-to-the-Harvest centerpiece . . . used alone, or with colorful fruits and/or vegetables artistically arranged at the base. Also charmingly symbolic of Thanksgiving is a basket of plenty, a cornucopia of white glass or pottery; or baskets, trays or you can easily make cornucopia of heavy gold or silver or white metallic paper on a wire frame. Group fruits at each side and, to give the effect of an overflowing horn of plenty.

Or have your table sing its song of thanks by designing your centerpiece of fruits against the background of bright-colored and glittering leaves:apples red and yellow, bunches of grapes of various colors, two or three pears, perhaps a flaming persimmon or part of a little rosy-cheeked Lady apples for a wonderful color-accent. Or, for this Harvest Festival, fashion a vegetable centerpiece: use a small pumpkin as the center, and surround it with bright-red radishes, red beets, one or two red peppers, one or two small, firm red tomatoes; use yellow for contrast, small yellow squash, one or two ears of golden corn, carrots, celery stalks; use the rich, wonderfully-warm purple of eggplant; use some bit sprigs of parsley; and for the niches, use clusters of cranberries or raisins or unshelled nuts. Or down the center of your table make festive festoons of flowers and leaves and, where the festoons meet, place a group of three or four bird-apples, or any other colorful fruits, or sprigs of glowing bittersweet.

You might use Thanksgiving greeting-cards as place cards (and as souvenirs of the day's festivities and reunion): all the cards alike, or each card lovingly chosen as particularly appropriate, in devotion and sentiment, to the one at whose place it is put. Or perhaps a "do it yourself" member of the household will paint or sketch place cards with a simple Thanksgiving-motif, and another might letter the greeting. Very personal . . . very festive!

If your Thanksgiving dinner is in the very-late afternoon or in the evening, let there be glowing candles to "give light" and . . .

Let these altars, wreathed with flowers

And piled with fruits, awake again

Thanks-Giving."

Mid-Week Dinner Menu

By Mary Moore

Looking at a yellow cubed vegetable on Mary J.'s table just before we sat down to dinner I thought it must be turnip, but it turned out to be diced squash, that she had bought packaged in cellophane. She said her husband would eat squash that way, but let her bake it and mash it and it became too "squashy" and was taboo. I do a comparable trick with turnips in our house.

This menu makes very good eating. The scrumptious pie is made in the morning as it will be thoroughly chilled and set. The Swiss steak and turnip casserole may be baked together at 350 deg. Fahr.

Tomato Juice with Lemon
Swiss Steak
Turnip Casserole
Cenerowa Tossed Salad
Pineapple Bavarian Pie Coffee

SWISS STEAK

We have suggested that you bake this but of course it may be simmered on top of the stove in covered pan, until meat is tender.

To serve 4 or 5 buy a 1-inch thick piece of steak weighing 4 1-2 lbs. This may be cut from the round, rump or shoulder. Mix together 1-3 cup flour, 3-4 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper and pound this into both sides of the steak. Melt 1 or 2 tablespoons fat in hot frying pan and brown meat on both sides. Add 1 thinly sliced onion to pan while meat is browning, but do not let it burn. Meat may be transferred to shallow casserole or left in frying pan if you have a snug cover for it. Pour over 2 cups boiling water or 1 cup each boiling water and tomato juice. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until meat is tender —shoulder steak requires 2 1-2 hours; rump or round about 2 hours.

TURNIP CASSEROLE

Dice 4 pared turnip into 1-4 or 1-2-inch dice until you have 3 cups and add 1 cup (or less) diced raw potatoes. Mix them together and put in small casserole with light cover. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Dot with 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 tablespoons boiling water and bake for about 1 hour at 350 deg. Fahr., stirring once during baking period.

To give our salads a little variety these days I have been adding about 10 or 12 wafer thin slices of raw cauliflower to them along with sprigs of curly endive, shreds of green pepper, tomato slightes and of course bite-size pieces of head lettuce. French dressing with a little garlic in it for this.

PINEAPPLE BAVARIAN PIE

Have ready and baked a 9-inch pie shell. Bring to a boil 1 1-4 cups crushed canned pineapple. Stir into it until dissolved 1 package Jemon jelly dessert and 1-2 cup sugar. Cool this until it is very slightly set. Have ready 1 cup thoroughly chilled evaporated milk and to it add 1 tablespoon lemon juice and beat them together until stiff. Fold into the partially congealed pineapple mixture. Pour into pie shell. Chill until set and very cold.

This is a prize-winning pie.

530,000 Tons of Newsprint Leave Newfoundland Yearly

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—Twelve thousand Newfoundlanders, working amid huge stands of soft-wood timber or at modern newsprint machines, are the labor force for the biggest industry in this province.

The checkered - shirt woodsman who presses high-powered electric saws through timber and the sweating papermaker who guides millions of reams of finished paper through newsprint machines share in the $32,000,000 in wages earned by men employed by Newfoundland's two big pulp and paper companies.

About 530,000 tons of neatly rolled newsprint leave this wooded province each year, produced from 800,000 cords of four-foot pulp wood logs.

VITAL TO PROVINCE

The two big companies, Bowater's (Nfld.) Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd., on the west coast and the Anglo-Newfoundland Development Company in the central area, contribute more than 15 per cent of the total wages earned in the province.

Bowater's has an annual newsprint production of 300,000 tons along with 45,000 tons of sulphite pulp shipped to England where other Bowater mills turn it into newsprint. The company also ships 100,000 cords of pulpwood to English mills every year.

The publicly-owned A. N. D. company contributes 230,000 tons of newsprint to the market. Its Newfoundland sulphite production is 71,000 tons but it also owns the Gaspesia Sulphite Company at Chandler, Que., which turns out 90,000 tons annually.

The biggest force in the giant operation is deep in the woods where the companies lease 18,500 square miles of timberland. Between 5,000 and 10,000 woodsmen cut thousands of trees for shipment to the mills.

WORLD MARKETS

The United States is by far the largest market for Newfoundland paper and Bowater's sells 90 per cent of its output to American newspapers. The rest goes to Commonwealth countries with England taking the biggest slice, 30,000 tons.

Some 153,000 tons of A. N. D. paper go to the United States with Mexico taking 32,000 tons and England 37,000 tons. Other small orders go to Australia and Ceylon.

Although Bowater's and the A. N. D. company are keen competitors, any new device or method discovered by either company is made available to the other. Officials of both companies say that "our doors are open to each other."

Expert wood technologists work over steaming cooking vats, grinders and crushers, guiding the cooked porridge-like pulp to the processing machines where it churns through dozens of rollers as it dries, thins and whitens until it goes on the final roller to stay.

EXPANSION PROGRAM

Bowater's mill, built on the slopes of Corner Brook, carries its finished product to ships on a series of conveyor belts. Its competitor, 22 miles from the shipping port of Botwood, hauls its paper over a company railway line.

With expansion and improvement programs costing about $15,000,000 just completed, the companies plan to increase production another 10 per cent within a few years by improving existing methods and machines.

Hydro power for Bowater's comes from a company generating plant at Deer lake, about 30 miles from the mill, where 150,000 horsepower generators shoot electricity through towering transmission lines. The A. N. D. company gets its power by the same method from its 80,000-horsepower plant at Botwood. An additional 50,000 horsepower potential is still undeveloped.

The A. N. D. company started operations in 1905 when a group of English publishers decided to print dailies on Newfoundland paper. The mill was built at an initial cost of $3,000,000 with concessions on 2,000 square miles of timberland.

Bowater's bought the Corner Brook mill from the International Paper Company in 1938.

The A. N. D. company, under its original agreement with the Newfoundland government, has rights to all mineral deposits on its concession area. This includes the Buchans lead, zinc and copper mine which gives A. N. D. half its net profit. From this source the parent paper company made $23,000,000 since the mine opened 25 years ago.

INVOLUNTARY BOMBING

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A six-pound, pear-shaped object fell Monday from an unidentified plane, crashed through the roof of a home and narrowly missed a baby-sitter and six children. After navy demolition crews recovered the object from below the floor, officers said it resumbled part of an aircraft's radio antenna.

DIGESTERS

These big digesting machines in the Bowater (Nfld.) Pulp and Paper Mills Ltd., plant of Corner Brook, Nfld., maul pulpwood sticks into a porridge-like substance which is cleaned and rolled into finished newsprint. Besides their own newsprint production, the two Newfoundland paper companies ship about 52,000 tons of this raw pulp to England each year for processing there. (CP Photo).

Truckers Accuse Nation's Railways Of 'Rate War'

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian railways were accused by a trucking industry spokesman Tuesday of pouring their financial resources into a "fanatical, needless and mutually-destructive rate war" with highway transport.

John Magee of Ottawa, executive secretary of Canadian Trucking Associations, said the move has wrecked any chance of favorable 1954 operating results for the railroads.

He addressed the annual convention of the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario, a CTA affiliate. CTA is the national organization of about 7,000 over-the-road truck operators.

The statements were included in a text of a speech issued to the press before delivery.

Of the rate slashes this year on the Montreal-Toronto run—heaviest traffic route in Canada—he said there had been rate-cutting provocation from truckers for initial railway reductions early in the year.

But there had been none for a second "drastic" railway drop in September averaging 35 per cent below existing truck rates.

"Instead," Mr. Magee said, "they were a naked attempt to use the mighty economic resources of the railways—in the case of the CNR, limited only to the extent of the credit of Canada—to force to the wall interprovincial trucking companies whose services are of vital importance to industry, agriculture and, not least of all, to national defence."

Bringing Up Baby

Hints Collected by Mrs. Ann Taylor (Mother of 5)

Am I real? Well after week mail comes to ask if I'm a "made-up" person or if I actually exist. If you could see our home at times when our two married children come visiting with their 3 bouncing babies ... and our three younger children fill the house with their friends—well, I don't think there'd be much doubt as to how real this member of five (and oh-so-lively family) is.

Solid five for the crib and bib set—there's Gerber's Cereals when baby is ready for his first solid food. For variety, Gerber's offer five Cereals—Rice, Barley, Oatmeal, Wheat, and Mixed Cereal. Most too take instantly to these mild-tasting, easy-to-digest cereals. All pre-cooked! Just add milk, formula or other liquids to get the smooth, easy-to-swallow texture babies like. Each one of Gerber's Cereals is enriched with blood-building iron, bone-building calcium and B-vitamins. For mealtime interest and variety, rotate all five cereals.

Back Talk! Here's a turnabout tip from a clever mother that's certainly worth a try: put baby's wrapper on backwards, like a hospital gown. Front flaps can be folded out of the way . . . won't get soaked when baby sleeps on his back.

Early Stages. In the beginning, baby's primary pastimes are sleeping—and eating—a special bill of fare, usually milk or formula. But as the days speed by, your baby will be ready for new additions in his diet. For example, your doctor may prescribe vitamin C shortly after birth . . . to keep gums and body tissues in good condition.

Gerber's Strained Orange Juice, processed just for wee ones, fills baby's new need. For it's made from tree-ripened oranges, specially selected for uniformly high vitamin C content and mild, natural flavor. Gerber's Baby Foods are carefully pasteurized and homogenized . . . a minimum of pot-ful assures easy digestibility. Gerber-Ogilvie Baby Foods Limited, Niagara Falls, Ont.

Labor and Industry Saved Millions by Smooth Work Of Silver-Haired Conciliator

TORONTO (CP) — Whenever management and labor negotiators in Ontario reach a point in their talks where a strike seems imminent, they usually put in a call for Louis Fine.

The 60-year-old chief conciliator for the Ontario department of labor has been walking the tight rope between management and labor for years.

This month, Fine celebrates his 20th year with the department, and government, industry and labor would be only too happy to have him stay around for another 20.

NOTABLE RECORD

Since joining the labor department, Louis Fine has been responsible for settling hundreds of strikes and averting as many more. He has saved industry and labor millions of dollars and, in terms of human accomplishment, prevented much suffering that often goes hand in glove with strikes.

He has retained the respect of both management and labor by maintaining strict neutrality. Today he holds an international reputation as conciliator, mediator and troubleshooter.

Early in 1955, months after joining the department, Louis Fine went to Guelph to settle a strike of garment workers. The following year he became Ontario's first conciliation officer.

In 1937, when efforts to bring General Motors and CIO-led auto workers together failed, Louis Fine stayed in Oshawa and despite hard feeling and misunderstanding between the parties settled the 16-day strike. That one he points to as proof that once labor and management understand each other they can get along fine.

WON PROMOTION

Shortly afterward he was appointed chief conciliation officer.

When a national housing emergency threatened in 1941 Mr. Fine stepped into Windsor to bring together striking journeymen plumbers and their employers.

He settled a dispute at the Ford Motor Co. plant in Windsor in July 1943 and in his report, said:

"I cannot leave this case without deploring the unnecessary loss of time and production involved and suggest to the company that in future . . . where changes in operations are contemplated such as this . . . they discuss it with the committee of the union to avoid misunderstanding."

His settlement of the 1950 street-railway dispute in Hamilton is typical of his methods.

BUSY CONCILIATOR

For more than four hours he sped back and forth between union and company officials in different rooms of the same hotel. Finally the union agreed to postpone its threatened walkout.

Hamilton next day toasted the "silver-haired peacemaker."

Louis Fine has been both employer and union representative in his time. In the late 30s he became vice-president of the United Hatters of America (AFL). Later he became a manufacturer himself, but he was a victim of the depression in the 1930s.

Basically a humanitarian, he has a calm, unhurried manner, which has a soothing effect on bristling tempers.

Louis Fine was born in Manchester, England, and came to Canada in 1906.

DISCUSS DAM

OTTAWA (CP) — The cabinet Tuesday considered the question of building the multi-million-dollar South Saskatchewan river irrigation and power project, but reached no firm decision. Prime Minister St. Laurent told reporters after a lengthy meeting that the "magnitude" of the project was discussed, but that ministers came to no conclusions. He said there will be further consideration later.

FOUNDRY HEAD DIES

TORONTO (CP)—Lawrence Lee Anthes, 78, Toronto industrialist and past president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, died Tuesday. Born in Toronto, he entered his father's business, the Anthes Foundry, in 1896 and, except for three years on the editorial staff of The Telegram, was with the company until his recent retirement.

6TH TYENDINAGA District President Addresses W.I.

6th TYENDINAGA—The regular monthly meeting of the Tyendinaga East Women's Institute was held on Friday evening last at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Stafford.

In the absence of the president, the meeting was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Grant Kimmerley.

It being the 25th anniversary of the organizing of the branch there was an exceptionally good attendance, including the following charter members: Mrs. C. Akey, the first president; Mrs. H. Tucker, Mrs. F. Weddingham, Mrs. R. MacMath, Mrs. M. Husband, Mrs. John Gibson, Mrs. Gordon Toppings, Mrs. James Haggerty, Mrs. Frank German. Other former members of the branch were also present.

The guest speaker for the evening was Mrs. Violet Elliott, of Plainfield, the district president, who gave an interesting talk and was thanked on behalf of the branch by Mrs. Akey.

The report of the Area Convention in Belleville was given by Mrs. H. Tucker, and a committee was appointed to arrange for the short course "Your Food and Your Figure," to be held in the near future at Empey Hill church.

It was decided to hold a progressive euchre party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Akey, the prizes to be donated by Mrs. D. Harvey.

PROGRAM

The program, which was in charge of Miss Geraldine Mourers, opened with community singing, after which the charter members and the officers were presented with a rosette of the W.I. colors. A reading was given by Mrs. Bruce Kimmerley, entitled "The Phone Call," followed by music by Miss Mary Stafford. "Two Sides of the Question" was presented by Miss G. Mowers and Mrs. W. Bell, and a skit "Suicide in the Office" by Mrs. H. Winter and Miss Irene Mowers. A sewing contest was won by Mrs. Salmon of Plainfield.

Mrs. James Haggerty thanked the branch on behalf of the charter members for the invitation to their meeting and the enjoyable evening.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, which included ice cream and a two-liter anniversary cake made by Mrs. L. Gaylord. A vote of thanks was given the hostess.

Doctors Are Busy Examining Biological Radiation Results

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—In the flood of reports on atomic and hydrogen weapons little is heard of the comparatively small group of Canadian medical scientists who are studying how radiation affects the body and searching for ways of shielding up human resistance to atomic radiation.

But at two research centres—the only two of their kind in Canada—doctors today are busy examining the biological results of radiation. One of these centres has been operating for some time at atomic laboratories at Chalk River, Ont.

The other extended its activities last year with the opening of the Best Institute at the University of Toronto. Under the terms of this the institute is a sub-basement, kept clean of stray radio-activity, where radiation research is conducted.

Mice, rabbits and guinea pigs, subjected to radiation by an X-ray machine or a cobalt bomb, are used in the experiments which are financed by the defence research board of Canada.

Dr. Edward A. Sellers of the university staff said in an interview "reading startling" as yet had resulted from the numerous tests.

But, they things are being studied to provide body protection from radiation:

Injection after radiation of bone marrow or splenic extracts; lack of oxygen, common at extreme high altitudes, after certain chemical poisons or even after severe alcoholic intoxication; and injection of cysteine, an acid, before radiation.

But the three, Dr. Sellers said, the first is at present most hopeful but "they are all a long, long way before a practical, certain treatment for radiation injuries."

After an atomic explosion the lives of many people who receive a moderate dose of radiation might be saved by treatment. It is the moderate dose that may bring death in two to 13 weeks with which doctors are concerned.

The big problem, Dr. Sellers said, is that under radiation every cell of the body is affected and therefore changed. In normal burns or injuries the area affected is limited and protective substances of the body help combat the wound.

Dr. Sellers said radiation sickness is mainly marked by vomiting, loss of appetite, bleeding of the intestines, diarrhoea, and severe hemorrhage caused by a lowering of blood clotting mechanism. The immediate damage produced by radiation is not directly the cause of death.

"Radiation sickness lowers body resistance to infection," Dr. Sellers said, "and it is the infection which is the cause of death."

Further research on ways of preventing hemorrhage after radiation is being carried on by Dr. Frank Monkhouse of Toronto. Dr. Hans Selye, Montreal Neurological Institute, Montreal, is studying the effects of associated injuries, especially burns.

North Dakota Senator Backs Jos. McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Milton Young Rep. N.D.) today announced he will vote to censure Senator Joseph McCarthy on the charges brought by the special committee which recommended an official rebuke.

Young, hitherto uncommitted publicly in the bitter censure fight, made known his views in a news letter he sends out periodically to North Dakota newspapers.

He said he was influenced chiefly by two considerations—listing them as a need for preserving the right of free speech and McCarthy's "effective work" in "exposing the Communist influence in the federal government and other institutions."

"GREAT CREDIT"

McCarthy is entitled to "great credit" for this work, Young declared.

The Wisconsin Republican senator also said he expects to get about 25 votes against censure out of a full membership of 96. He has not listed those he counts on his side.

Meanwhile, Senator Everett Dirksen (Rep. Ill.), as ally of McCarthy, said the fight against censure, said he expects debate on the issue by Democratic leaders to be scheduled. Debate was broken off last Thursday after McCarthy ordered a recess in the absence of an injured elbow.

"I'm willing to go ahead right where we left off," Dirksen said. He plans to offer a substitute for the censure resolution drafted by the special committee headed by Senator Watkins (Rep. Utah). Dirksen has not disclosed its terms.

PEACE AUTO ACCOUNT

Asked what will happen if McCarthy has not been discharged from the hospital by Monday, Dirksen said "I believe we would have to go ahead Tuesday, Wednesday, as we did before." He said he had received no indication when the Senate might be on hand next week.

Senator Walter George (Dem. Ga.) said he expects to know by Monday or Tuesday whether the censure issue will "reach a culmination" or drag along until Dec. 15, when Republican control ebbs.

Young wrote in his letter that McCarthy's criticism of the Watkins committee in a statement put the committee's report forward as "unwarranted and unreasonable."

He said that in this case "we could the committee be rightly termed 'handmaidens of the Communist Party'" as McCarthy has called its members.

Young went on to say McCarthy "broke no standing rule of the Senate" in his criticisms.

U.S. Government Will Lodge 'Strongest Possible Protest' As China Jails 13 Americans

By DONALD SANDERS

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today announced it will file "the strongest possible protest" against Chinese Communist prison sentences given to 13 Americans who dropped out of sight during the Korean War.

"Utterly false," the department said of spying charges which are being given as the basis for prison terms ranging from four years to life. "Trumped-up charges," said the state department, and it added:

"The U.S. government will use its time to make every effort to effect the release of these men who have been unjustly sentenced to long periods of imprisonment."

The prison sentences by a Red Chinese military court were announced by Peiping radio Tuesday, were described by the state department as "further proof of the Chinese Communists' disregard for accepted practices of international conduct."

"BAD FAITH"

In a separate statement issued simultaneously, the defense department said the action "illustrates again the bad faith, insincerity and duplicity which have characterized" Red China's conduct of its international relations.

It added that "the Chinese Communists . . . are holding Americans in custody until leading Japanese officers in violation of international law, the ruling of the Tokyo war crimes tribunal and the Japanese armistice agreement."

The U.S. does not recognize the Peiping Communist regime, but at a conference on the Far East held in Geneva last July, a truce was arranged at the Swiss city to exchange information between the two governments involving American citizens.

TO PRESENT CASE

The state department said the U.S. consul-general at Geneva, Theodore Achilles, will be instructed to emphatically protest . . . the continued wrongful detention of these American citizens."

Judged on the basis of past experience with Peiping, it seemed problematical what would come of the protest.

Earlier comments came from several members of the Senate when word of the prison terms reached Washington. Senator Mike Mansfield (Dem. Mont.) declared the Red action "outrageous" and urged an investigation by the United Nations. Senator Herman Welker (Rep. Idaho) proposed that the U.S. use "force."

Eleven of the men involved were U.S. Air Force officers. Col. Richard B. 29 shot down May 12, 1952, as a U.S. air force Washington announced Aug. 19 that 11 American airmen missing in the Korean War were known to be alive. It considered them to be being held by the Reds as political prisoners.

AMONG THE 13

The government said these 13 were among a total of 328 Americans reported missing in the Peiping accounting and their returns, dead or alive.

Even heavier sentences were announced for two men the Chinese said were captured Nov. 29, 1952, while dropping supplies to "American imperialist agents in northeast China." Washington said they were lost between Japan and Korea, and added that it does not know how they fell into Red hands.

The state department said the announcement of the prison terms for these two men, Thomas Downey, 27, and Richard George Fecteau, 24, was the first word we have had that they are being held by the Chinese Communists.

The department said Downey and Fecteau were civilian employees of the airways and air agency of the Chinese Reds of deliberately concealing information about their fate. There was no conference at which the fate of Americans held

Atlantic World in Signing German Partnership Contract May Have Stopped Cold War

By IAN FRASER

BONN (Reuters)—The Atlantic world in signing a partnership contract with the western half of Germany has completed what may be a decisive step in the cold war for Europe.

The Western governments' decision to support a sovereign, rearmed German state in essence amounts to an attempt to crystallise the balance of power in Europe by ensuring that the most important part of Germany brings its industrial and defence potential permanently into the Western camp.

The EDC plan which failed last August, attempted to do this by the "supranational" method—West Germany and the other continental powers submitted to a common direction and control. The new way is "West European" which will leave West Germany with her proposed 12 divisions and tactical air force in much of her present form.

REQUIRES LOYAL GERMANY

For this plan it is of supreme importance that West Germany is a stable and loyal ally to the West. Doubts which have been uttered by many sections of Western public opinion include:

1. Germany, geographically divide from the main area of East-West contact, is in a better position to cause trouble than any other country in the world.

2. The memory of three wars in the last 90 years moves her neighbors to proceed with caution.

3. Germany is still divided and the attraction of the Soviet zone and eastern territories may prove stronger than her new ties of friendship with the West.

4. The West Germany of today is largely the work of Federal Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. Many critics fear that when his time comes, now nearly 79, leaves the political scene, his new structure may prove to have been a house of cards.

GREAT STATESMAN

Adenauer unquestionably stands head and shoulders above any only else in West German politics. He, the anti-Bismarck liberal, called him the greatest German statesman since Bismarck. Like Bismarck, Adenauer encouraged younger men to grow great in his shadow.

But many Christian Democrats have followed closely in his footsteps and can be relied on at least to try to continue his work. Such men are Ludwig Erhard, his brilliant economics minister, Fritz Schaeffer, the finance minister and younger party man like Kurt Kelsinger, Eugen Gerstenmaier, Heinrich Von Brentano and Franz Josef Strauss.

Their strongest card in any future struggle is that "Adenauerism" is a proved success. It has given the West Germans a peace and prosperity they have not previously known in this century.

However, Adenauer has admittedly suffered setbacks in the last year. The failure of the EDC plan, the Social Democratic vote in Hamburg State election increased to 33 per cent from 26 per cent and lost the Christian Democrats a third of their 1953 general election poll. Adenauer supporters fear that the opposition, within and without the government, will use the October Saar agreement as a stick to beat the Christian Democrats with at the coming elections in Hesse and Bavaria.

These are probably only temporary setbacks. Once Adenauer can get over Saar hurdle—and there is little doubt in Bonn that he will—he should be able to make political headway by pointing to the concrete advantages which the Paris agreements will bring to western Germany and by granting his whole foreign policy to the immediate quest for German unity. Political tyranny, which the Bonn constitution-makers chose is a strong one. A majority party can stay in power for four years, provided it can hold together. The chancellor cannot be overthrown by a vote of no confidence unless the Bundesrat (Lower House) simultaneously elects another chancellor to replace him. In the last three years a small number of adverse votes on minor issues have simply been ignored by the chancellor Adenauer and the Christian Democrats are virtually assured power until 1957.

A weapon which they can wave over the heads of rebellious coalition partners, and which is often forgotten, is electoral reform.

Adenauer's present allies, the Free Democrats, German party and Refugee Block, owe their Bundestag seats purely to the element of proportional representation in the 1953 election law. It this were to be alerted to a simple majority constituency system these three parties would dwindle to small groups. The Christian Democrats with their majority of one can pass such a law any time they like.

A possible danger to future stability is seen by some in the political influence of the generals of the coming "armed forces." Germany has a disastrous tradition of political generals. Adenauer is known to be worried about it and has taken strict steps to prevent his future defence minister, the Catholic Theodor Blank, to make doubly sure of the primacy of parliament over the future army.

Adenauer's greatest asset, success as an ally of the west lies in the extreme scepticism of politics in the East. The Soviet Union can offer Germany reunification, but Adenauer can point to the recent territories beyond the Oder-Neisse line. For Russia it is the one ball with which it could conceivably detach West Germany from the Western alliance.

CLAIM UNFAIR

SARNIA (CP)—A member of the Sarnia board of education claimed Tuesday the federal government is discriminating against a public school in favor of a separate school in regard to grants for vocational training. Under this year's plan, grants will be given to separate schools for the cost of equipping up human resistance to atomic radiation. But at two research centres—the only two of their kind in Canada—doctors today are busy examining the biological results of radiation. One of these centres has been operating for some time at atomic laboratories at Chalk River, Ont. Says Campaign Accompanied By Many Gifts

QUEBEC (CP)—A Liberal member of the Quebec legislative assembly said Tuesday night the Union Nationale party campaign in the Compton by-election last summer was accompanied by gifts of nylon stockings, radios, boxes of chocolate and "unprecedented" boat building.

Jean-Jacques Latrance (L. Richmond) speaking in the throne speech debate, said Premier Duplessis during the campaign "appreciated majority for John Webster, Union Nationale candidate, who was elected in a by-election July 16 to fill a vacancy left by the death of his brother, Miles Minister C. D. French. "I'm sure that the electors I feel I should say something about the campaign waged in that riding."

Mr. Latrance said:

NAMES TWO

He named Maurice Bellemare (UN—Champlain) and Albert Bouchard, vice-president of the Quebec rural electrification commission, as top organizers of the campaign.

He said Mr. Bouchard, "a man paid from public funds," carried on political propaganda for two months in the riding.

"Anyone familiar with local conditions knows that Compton voters did not vote for the Quebec Conservative party because the government's labor legislation, for tolerance of drinking establishments" he said.

Mr. Latrance said the member for Champlain "organized an intimidation campaign among employees of St. Lawrence Paper Mills Co. there. The management of the firm would close if the Union Nationale candidate was not elected."

"HEAVY ARTILLERY"

"Also, members of the roads department swung into action and the streets of a half-dozen towns in the riding."

"Compton electors voted to get beautiful, free, new roads—including for woollen blankets distributed in the riding."

Mr. Duplessis said on a point of order that Mr. Latrance's words "Mr. Speaker, were very regrettable."

"Such remarks are directed against the men who used these tactics, not the voters," Mr. Duplessis said. "The electors cast their votes for nylon stockings, boxes of chocolates, and radio sets. . . . I must add they did not vote for the hundreds of cases of beer distributed."

Stormy Session Expected At Montreal Council Meeting

MONTREAL (CP) — Stormy doings, with councillor pitted against councillor, are expected today at the first meeting of city council since the municipal elections last month.

The new mayor, Jean Drapeau, as mayor and 65 of the 99 councillors. But the power executive committee that formulates policy for the council and transacts the city's business is picked by the councillors from among themselves. Most of the actual session today will be devoted to choosing the seven-man committee.

Mayor Drapeau, a young lawyer, is an ex-officio member of the executive committee.

Nine candidates for the executive committee chairman's job are J. O. Asselin, chairman of the committee since its formation in 1940, and Lucien Desmarais, city council leader from 1944 to 1950.

Mr. Desmarais is backed by the Civic Action League, which supported Mayor Drapeau and campaigned on promises to clean up vice in Montreal.

It is possible both will be elected to the committee. They are class A councillors—elected by property owners and their tenants—and may have two members sitting with the four class B councillors, elected by tenants, and class C councillors, appointed by institutions, to form the five-man number on the committee.

The C councillors have already named Paul Dozois and Hugh Ranson as their representatives. Their appointments are subject to ratification by the council.

Mr. Desmarais is expected to find support for the chairmanship among 28 Civic Action League progressives. Mr. Asselin has at least 35 class A and 33 class C councillors.

Mr. Asselin thus must muster almost all the over votes now already in his camp. Mr. Drapeau's post. Class C votes are considered an unknown quantity.

Backgrounding today's council meeting is a scuffling handed down by Mr. Justice Francois Caron, that 20 present and former police officials have been fired from the force in 1948.

Fingerprints, Stains and Footprints Just Provide Jury With New Puzzles

And as this expert testimony ended, the prosecution rested its case.

Provincial ministers and their deputies in charge of tourist traffic, along with federal officials and representatives of railways, airlines, steamship and bus companies will open the conference Nov. 29.

The agenda will cover tourist accommodation, roads, trailer parks, "package" tours of Canada, winter sports and joint publicity promotional programs.

Canada's tourist trade grossed a record $307,000,000 in 1953 compared with about $250,000,000 in 1945.

Seaway Valley Municipalities To Be Compensated

CORNWALL (CP)—Hydro chairman Saunders said Tuesday seaway valley municipalities will be compensated for assessment losses incurred through flooding of 30,000 acres of land during the St. Lawrence power development.

Mr. Saunders and commissioner Hon. George Challies and W. Ross Strike discussed rehabilitation compensation problems with Cornwall township council at a special meeting. Similar meetings were held Tuesday and Monday with Matilda, Williamsburg and Cornwall township council. Both Matilda and Williamsburg councils passed resolutions giving Hydro a vote of confidence in its dealings with 6,500 seaway valley residents who must be rehabilitated because of the power scheme.

At Tuesday's meeting here, Mr. Saunders said Hydro will pay the taxes on property taken over by the utility until loading Hydro place sometime in 1958. Once the land is flooded by the dam, Saunders suggested the municipalities concerned, wait for a year after which time Hydro would sit down with the councils and compensate them for any assessment. The compensation would be paid until the assessment levels off to the level prior to the start of the power development.

WILL PAY

Mr. Saunders said Hydro also will pay for any county or township roads damaged by road construction equipment. Extra expenses incurred by municipalities during the development would be paid for by Hydro on a basis similar to that at Niagara Falls. And Stamford township during the recent power project there.

Hydro head stressed that all property settlements must be completed before roads and new homes would not be given for old ones.

Mr. Saunders estimated peak employment would reach between 7,000 and 8,000 men on the Canadian power project. He believed the 2,200 Cardinal-Iroquois project would employ between 10,000 and 12,000 men.

May Split Dept.

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature's highway committee may be recommended splitting the provincial highways department into two branches it was reported Tuesday at Queen's Park.

One would handle new roads construction and maintenance. The other would handle licensing of motor vehicles, motorists' tax, highway traffic laws, highway safety and possibly traffic policing.

In China was discussed.

Downey, from New Britain, Conn., is cousin of singer Morton Downey. He drew a life sentence. Fecteau, a former Boston University football player, drew 20 years.

Spent $50,000 For Supplies During Hurricane

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society said Tuesday that, during the Hazel, Carol and Edna hurricane Hazel floods of Oct. 16, it spent more than $50,000 on relief supplies for flood victims.

A preliminary report on work done by the society's corps of women's work committee distributed 4,049 articles of bedding and clothing valued at $5,088. Some 160 members of the Toronto branch of the Red Cross worked on the relief and drove 20,000 miles.

About 80 lives were lost in the floods, mainly struck parts of Toronto's suburbs. The city itself and many of its suburbs were untouched.

His Charges Against J. G. Gardiner Focus Spotlight on Wilfrid Simmie

By WILF CHISLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

REGINA (CP) — Relatively unknown a year ago, Wilfrid Joseph Simmie of Saskatoon has suddenly become a major figure in provincial politics.

His charges, hurled from the public platform and the provincial legislature, have created national interest in a Saskatoon controversy involving Thursday's by-election.

Simmie, one of five men seeking the leadership in the last four weeks has been waging a one-man war against what he called "federal interference" in Saskatchewan Liberal politics, particularly in the province's Liberal leader.

His bid for campaigning, he has accused federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner of trying to run the province's Liberal party from Ottawa. He contended the cabinet minister, twice premier of Saskatchewan, set up a provincial "political machine" through two big branches of his department to promote election of his own candidate.

These federal agencies, Mr. Simmie says, are the prairie farm rehabilitation administration in charge of land settlement, irrigation and reclamation and the Prairie Farm Assistance Act of which Gardiner is chief. Both employ inspectors to investigate claims for crop failure payments.

Mr. Simmie says the Gardiner candidate is Mr. Thrasher who resigned as PFRA director a week ago to enter the leadership race. He says the agriculture minister is to ensure election of his man has put pressure on three other candidates to have them withdraw.

Mr. Gardiner has denied he has a candidate in the leadership contest.

Recommendation Of Chief Justice Not Considered

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Tuesday the government has not yet considered the recommendation of Chief Justice Sloan of British Columbia for a federal subsidy to compensate for the railways' low grain rates in western Canada.

The chief justice, appointed by the cabinet to arbitrate the contract dispute between the railways and prairie farmers' group, suggested the subsidy Monday as a means of offsetting what he considered losses of Next pass freight tolls on export grain moving in the West.

Coming out of a 3½-hour cabinet meeting, Mr. St. Laurent told reporters the cabinet did not consider the Sloan report, and he declined to discuss it on the issue.

"We appointed a man of outstanding ability and reputation to deal with the dispute," he said, "and left it to him. We feel that the report is his and that the Canadian public as the opinion of a man who enjoys the respect of the Canadian community."

There were many others who assisted with minor duties and the co-operation of all combined to make this event another successful venture for Laurel Lodge. The net receipts amounted to almost $200.

Assails Delays In Obtaining Canadian Patent

OTTAWA (CP)—A United States patent expert Tues. described Canada's patent laws as a compromise between those of Britain and the U. S., but one resulting in enormous delays.

Leonard J. Robbins, whose New York firm handles patents abroad for American companies, told the Ilsley commission the principal complaint by U. S. patent applicants "is the enormous time it takes to obtain a Canadian patent —four or five years or even more after the filing date."

He suggested that if Canada wants to improve its patent laws, it should adopt the simpler procedures of British patent laws.

The commission, headed by Chief Justice J. L. Ilsley of Nova Scotia, is studying whether changes are needed in Canadian patent, copyright, trade marks and industrial design law. W. W. Buchanan, a member of the tariff board, and Guy Favreau of the restrictive trade practices commission, are commission members.

JORDAN CENSURED

JERUSALEM (AP)—Jordan was censured Monday by the United Nations Israel-Jordan mixed armistice commission for an armistice violation last Saturday, truce supervision headquarters announced. The commission decided a crossing of the demarcation line into Israel's Land by Arab legionaires at Mul-Deic Abaye in the Jerusalem area, and the subsequent erection of a military fence in the region is in contravention of the agreement.

MARMORA — Rev. Robert Jones was elected president of the Marmora Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society at the fairly well attended annual meeting held on Thursday evening in the Town Hall.

Deputizing for Rev. H. Egerton Young, field secretary of the Society, was Rev. W. Harry Moore, field secretary of the Western Ontario area. Prior to his address, Mrs. Roy Barker, secretary treasurer, read the minutes of the last meeting of a year ago and presented the treasurer's report indicating that the large amount of $28 had been raised for the Society locally in 1953.

Rev. W. H. Moore gave an interesting and concise address on the history and labors of the society in condensed form making his remarks intelligible to the goodly number of juveniles in the gathering. He continued to show the sound film "Out of the Dust", depicting the impact of the Bible on the Cubans who live in a country faced with a one crop economy.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS

He next took the chair for the election of officers. W. J. Cottrell, who has unbrokenly held the presidency since he returned to it in 1948 after a lapse of some years, expressed the wish to be relieved of his office, and words of appreciation of his labors were expressed in turn by Reeve Ritchie Wells and Canon Brownlie. He expressed his heartfelt thanks for the valued assistance of the local ministers, fellow officers and canvassers, not only for the past year, but for the six years of his office as president.

Canon Brownlie closed the meeting with prayer and the benediction.

A meeting of the executive is being called for Monday evening at the parlor of St. Andrew's United Church when districts will be allotted to canvassers representing the various churches who engage yearly in the work of this society so helpful in missionary endeavor.

Trade Winds Blow Hawks Some Good; New Help Throws Scare Into Habs

ANOTHER ONE-GOALER

The Brockville Magedomas, tired of looking at the short end of the score, came up with their best game of the season last night (so said a press box rep.) and snatched a 7-6 win from the Meinco. The Bouchermen have played better hockey and but for the sudden striking prowess of the Dunc-can twins and Dewy Day might have seen different figures on the scoreboard.

At that it was a nip-and-tuck battle with the score being tied no less than five times before Marcel Legris, Magedoma star, fired home the winner with eight minutes to go in the third session.

The Brockville defence was tighter than a Gaelic purse when the occasion demanded and at one time three Magedomas staved off the thrusts of a full strength Meinco squad. Its best efforts came in the dying seconds of the game when star Memmo tried desperately, but unsuccessfully, to knot the count. Charron, in goal, was a standout at times.

Coach Boucher used Turk Barclay in the nets again last night, and although the ex-junior came up with some good saves at times, his work did not approach that of his effort in Cornwall.

The Duncans and Day flew all night with the twins' drop-pass play clicking beautifully on two occasions. The "Nobber" kept up his end, dunking two goals as his share of the five scored by the line.

The Memos got a bad game out of their system. The defence was rapped at times with the front lines wandering all over the ice at others. It was the most lackluster effort of the season, and they will have to do better tonight in Peterborough.

REMINDER!

Don't forget the OMHA Referees' Forum in the city hall tonight.

MONKEY BUSINESS!

A movement is under way down east that could have an effect on senior "B" hockey league in this part of Ontario.

Dormancy of the Ottawa District Hockey League senior activities and the near-collapse of the Quebec Hockey League may be the foundations of the formation of a senior league, the tentacles of which have already reached out and contacted two member clubs of the senior "B" group.

E. P. (Tommy) Gorman, Ottawa's stormy petrel of sport, is said to be behind the move to form a new Ottawa District Hockey League senior loop. As a matter of fact he has already contacted the Brockville Magedomas and probably the Cornwall Colts with this idea in mind.

According to a story in the Brockville Recorder and Times, Gorman has contacted Archie Miller, manager of the Brockville arena, via telephone. He said that his club, the Ottawa Senators and the Valleyfield Braves may drop out of the Quebec Hockey League but would be interested in forming a new OHA senior loop including the Magedomas.

Millar, the story said, informed Gorman that he was convinced the Magedomas are in the league they should be in (senior OHA) and he was certain manager Kitchen Stanford of the Magedomas would be of the same opinion.

Miller said later that the Cornwall Colts would also likely be invited to take up its senior-calibre hockey slack in the Ottawa-St. Lawrence district.

Substantiating this story is the fact that the Ottawa District Hockey Association held an organization meeting in Ottawa the other night "with the intention of rekindling interest in senior hockey and to supply for permission of the CAHA to enter a team in Allan Cup competition."

However ,the ODHA executive, which was selected at this meeting, seemed more interested in the formation of an Allan Cup contender than a senior loop, as Mr. Gorman would have it.

Cecil Duncan, secretary-registrar of the loop pointed out senior hockey's demise in the district. Entering a team in Allan Cup playdowns would be hoped, be the first step in what will lead to a revival of senior hockey in the ODHA domains.

Tieing in with Gorman's idea of forming a new senior league in the Ottawa district was the meeting's suggestion that a "district round-robin series be played to pick the entry." In another breath, it declared "no teams competing within the ODHA jurisdiction are eligible." This from an organization that is defunct, as far as senior hockey is concerned.

However, a special team which would play exhibition games this winter might be formed.

Regarding senior clubs competing outside the ODHA jurisdiction, the only teams we can think of are the Cornwall Colts, Brockville Magedomas and the Pembroke Lumber Kings of the Northern Hockey Association.

At a senior "B" group meeting held here before the season started, representatives of the Brockville and Cornwall teams stated the ODHA had demanded a percentage of gates and a set price before it would give permission for the clubs to play in this group. Whether the pound of hockey flesh was paid, and it being said we do not know. If it is, the ODHA is the only association in hockey that is paying its way this year.

Apropos of the above we talked with Kitchen Stanford, manager of the Magedomas, last night. He tells us that his club and the Cornwall club had refused to have anything to do with the ODHA and Gorman's proposition. He also added that the clubs had refused to pay the "pound of flesh" demanded by the defunct Ottawa association.

"This OHA league is the best we have entered so far—and we have no intention of quitting it," Mr. Stanford said.

Swap Gadsby, Pete Conacher For Blues' Stanley, Mickoski; Hold Leaders to 4-All Tie

By The Canadian Press

The trade wind that blew through the National Hockey League Tuesday could at long last be the breeze that will blow the Chicago Black Hawks some good.

Hawks, enlivened by the addition of Allan Stanley and Nick Mickoski obtained in the trading deal with New York Rangers, stepped out on St. Louis Ice Tuesday night for a game that left Montreal Canadiens thankful for a 4-4 tie.

In return for Stanley and Mickoski the Hawks sent defenceman Bill Gadsby and forward Pete Conacher to the Rangers. New York also promised to send Hawks another player before the end of the season.

What permanent effect the newcomers will have on Chicago fortunes remains to be seen. But for two periods Tuesday night the Montreal Canadiens found the effect startling.

MISSED FIRST PERIOD

Stanley and Mickoski, who flew from New York, missed the first period when Hawks don't arrive in schedule and Canadiens ran up a 3-1 lead. Ordinarily, this would be double trouble for the Hawk rearlers against any club in the circuit.

The former Rangers were buttied into uniform for the remainder of the game and the Hawks suddenly took off. They held Canadiens scoreless in the second and then exploded for three goals in the third and a 4-3 lead.

Then Bernie Geoffrion boomed home his 17th goal of the season for the tie. The contest was the first NHL game on St. Louis ice in 20 years and the first six that the Hawks will play there.

The one point moved Canadiens five points ahead of Detroit and Toronto who are tied for second place. The tie is the third of the year for the last-place Hawks to go along with three victories in 19 starts.

ALSO HELPED

Two players who recently figured in the Canadiens' Help-De-Hawks campaign took part in two of the Chicago goals.

Metro Prystai, obtained from Detroit, got on the Hawk bandwagon with the opening goal of the game in the first period. Then Canadiens took over for three straight markers.

Maurice Richard scored his 19th goal of the season over the counter, followed by Ken Mosdell and Jean Beliveau.

Dave Creighton, obtained from Toronto, started the Chicago surge in the third with an angle shoot that beat rookie Charlie Hodge in the Montreal nets.

Mickoski made his presence felt, setting up Bill Mosienko's counter to make it 5-3. Then Lou Jankowski socked in a 15-footer for the shorthived Chicago lead.

Tonight Boston meet Rangers in New York in the league's only game.

BIG SEVEN

By The Canadian Press

Five of hockey's seven leading point-getters figured in the scoring Tuesday when Chicago Black Hawks held the Montreal Canadiens to a 4-4 tie.

Montreal's Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion, league leading scorer, picked up a goal and an assist to run his points total to 36.

Jean Beliveau of the Canadiens moved into a second-place tie at 22 points with teammate Maurice Richard when he scored a goal and assisted on another. Richard counted his 10th goal of the season.

Kenny Mosdell, also of Montreal, scored one goal to stay in fourth place while Nick Mickoski, playing his first game in a Black Hawk uniform after being traded from the New York Rangers, took over fifth place with an assist.

Cataracts Win First Home Game Over Bulldogs

By The Canadian Press

The underdogs roared and overcame the Bulldogs in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league.

Niagara Falls Cataracts, last team on the league totem pole, won their first home hockey triumph of the season Tuesday night in a rough and speedy battle to defeat Windsor Bulldogs 4-3. The league-leading Kitchener-Dutchmen edged Stratford Indians 3-2 in the other game.

Cataracts trailed 3-0 after the first period but took advantage of the odd man to even things with goals by Danny Nixon, who scored on two long shots, Verne Pitts clicked on a goalmouth assault.

Jimmy Robertson tallied the winning marker for the Falliers early in the final frame.

MAN OFF

The Bulldogs capitalized on the odd-man off formula in the first session to cash goals by Reg Abbott and Bob Brown. Veterans Jim Peters added the third Windsor goal when both sides were at full strength.

Dutchmen staved off a spirited Stratford period and held their 3-2 edge over Stratford. Stratford netted Hillman at Kitchener goalie Dennis Brodeau in the final period without any luck.

Red Hamilton, Bill Hammond scored second period goals for Kitchener to offset a first-period Stratford goal by Tommy Walker. Charlie Brooker scored the other six-minute man in the third period. Lou Bendo managed Stratford's second counter 27 seconds later.

Teepees Within Striking Distance Of Leaders

By The Canadian Press

St. Catharines TeePees are within striking distance of the lead of St. Michael's College Majors hold in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A league.

The TeePees jumped back on the scoring pedal but pulled out in the second stanza to outscore Cubs 5-1 and create a 5-3 deadlock. It was a see-saw battle from then on.

Cubs jumped ahead again in the final session, only to have it knotted again at 6-all. Brian Kilrea broke the deadlock with a counter, but 18 seconds later it was deadlocked at 7-7 on Barry Cullen's goal.

WRAPPED IT UP

TeePees wrapped it up, getting the next two in succession.

Kilrea with a pair, topped Cubs, singles going to Jerry Sullivan, Rob Rochefort, Gerry Sharp, Ken Sieglund and Bill Binnie. Hank Ciesla added a pair and one assist to his scoring lead in the league. Ab Macdonald claimed a brace and add tallies to Cec Hoekstra, Mait Thompson, Ed Hoekstra and Mike Finn.

Guelph carried a 3-0 lead in the first period, adding two more in the second to open the final frame with a 5-0 lead. The Canucks finally got on the scoring list this session.

Whitey Youngberg from Glen Cressman produced the only K-W counter. The latter outshot their opponents 25-18. K-W took 12 of 21 penalties as referee-in-chief Douglas served four of those.

Bill Gerrie tallied twice for the Bilts, Ike Scott, Bill Sweeney, Paul Midghall and Roy Burmister once apiece.

Thursday Barrie nets Hamilton in Friday, Ivy Marlboros at Guelph, St. Michael's at Kitchener and Galt at Barrie.

LAITNER TO ENLIST

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Halfback Johnny Laitner of the National Football League's Pittsburgh Steelers said Tuesday he plans to enlist in the army in January. The former Notre Dame standout is a reserve officer. By enlisting, he would be left to the Steelers for only one season.

Battle of The 'T's' Will Mark Saturday's Grey Cup Classic

By W. R. Wheatley
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—Two styles of play will clash when Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos meet in Toronto Saturday in the National Cup football spectacle.

The Als work out of the orthodox T formation; the Eskies from the split-T. No essential variation, except possibly for specific plays within each type, is likely.

As split-T exponents, the Eskimos are predominantly a ground-travelling team. The Alouettes, with Lastuka like to take to the air, with quarterback Sam Etcheverry as pilot.

But the Als' play throughout the season has been diversified enough to let halfback Alex Webster cut loose for the greatest yardage over the turf of any man in the Big Four. In his 176 gallops he left 964 yards behind him, an average of 5.5 yards. In addition, Webster covered 373 yards on 23 pass receptions. Twelve of his 15 touchdowns—equalling the Big Four record—were the result of ground plays.

SIX EACH

The top Alouettes on touchdown passes winged by Etcheverry were Red O'Quinn and Jocy Pal, with six majors each.

Etcheverry has a flair for the unusual. With a powerful line in front of him, he lets loose from far argument over his willingness to go for the unexpected. His passing instinct accounted for 102 yards, with Webster collaborating, was no example. He was the star of the eastern championship series against Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

At the start of the season, game he drove his team entirely along the ground for touchdowns. Then he switched to the air. Under his direction, the Als nearly exploded against opponents without warning at any time of the game and on any part of the field. This sudden striking power became their stock in trade.

Throughout the regular Big Four schedule of 14 games, Etcheverry passed 272 times. He had 206 completions for an average of 5.5. Yardage gained on his passes was 3,251, and average gain on the basis of attempts, not completions, was 8.4 yards.

HUNSINGER CLOSE

The Alouette backfielder closest to Webster in total yardage by rushing is Gerry Hunsinger, a fast-breaking half. He wasn't used in all games before Hal Patterson was laid low with a broken ankle, but in 86 rushes accounted for 316 yards, fourth highest total in the league. Handy men are veteran Virgil Wagner, Larry Grigg, a newcomer, and two Canadians have been showing marked improvement—Jacques Belec and Bill Bewley. Both the Canadians have been used largely as safety men but have seen some offensive action. Bewley subbing occasionally for Hunsinger.

The two Alouettes who made both the offensive and defensive positions on the Canadian Press all-star Big Four team are powerhouses in the line. They are Tex Coulter, giant 265-pound tackle, and Tom Hugo, the Hawaiian centre. Other standouts are Jim Staton at tackle and guards Ray Cicia and Herb Trawick. There is also Ted Elsby, the Galt, Ont., husky who turned in a surprisingly top-notch job when Staton was injured.

Four players are still on the team that brought the Alouettes the Grey Cup in 1949 when they met Calgary Stampeders. The four are Wagner, Trawick—both among the original imports of 1946—and Juan Sheridan, husky Havana-born lineman who has been filling in at centre, and Bruce Coulter, second-string quarter used largely as safety man and on pass defence.

Brockville Magedomas Eke Out 7-6 Win Over Memos In See-Saw Battle

Hard-Checking Senior B Tilt Sees Score Tied Five Times; Duncan Twins, Day Fire Five

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Marcel Legris' hard drive from twenty feet out whistled into the corner of the net midway through the third period to give the Brockville Magedomas a hard-earned 7-6 victory over the Brockville Memos in a senior "B" battle here last night.

Legris broke up a nip-and-tuck struggle that saw the score tied five times with the decision in doubt until the final whistle. The Memos threw six forwards at the Magedomas' defence in the dying seconds but Charron and company held the fort to skate off with their fourth victory of the season.

The "Go" line of Erwin and Edwin Duncan and Doug Day was the heavy artillery for the Memos, scoring twelve points among them. Erwin Duncan scored three goals with two assists, brother Edwin had two helpers and Day had two goals and an assist. Vern Goyer scored the other Memo goal.

The win did not change the Memos third-place standing but it enabled the Magedomas to climb within a point of the fourth-place Whitby seniors.

M. Legris and Richer paced the Magedomas offensive with two goals each with Richer getting two assists. Godwin, Richardson and Davidson were the other Brockville marksmen.

The game was a rugged hard-checking affair with 13 penalties handed out by referees Bert Walsh and Ted Topping. Brockville drew eight, one a misconduct to Goyer for banging the boards with his stick. Magedomas coach Ab Renault was tossed out of the players box by referee Walsh for arguing too strenuously in the third period.

The defensive work of the Magedomas was one of the chief factors in their victory. They stuck to their checks like glue especially when outmanned at one time three of them held off the entire Memo squad in a 2-on-5 exhibition of penalty-killing.

Brockville led 3-2 at the end of the first period but the Memos tied the score and went into the lead after 12 minutes in the second heat. The Magedomas tied it before the period ended. The lead alternated twice in the third period before Legris wrote finis with seven minutes to go.

Doug Day with the Duncans assisting, sent the Memos into the lead after seven minutes of play in the opening period but M. Legris had tied one back before the cheering subsided. Bettiol and Rockburn went off for minor jobs with no damage done and at the 12 minute mark Legris' drive from the boards deflected off Godwin to give the Magedomas the lead. Richer made it 3-1 on a neat passing play with Thomson, and Ted DeGrey whistled one off Charron's pads from four feet out.

"Red" Doran got the gate—and the Memos' Duncans executed their drop pass neatly with Erwin beating Charron cleanly.

McKenny drew a sentence early in the second period and after nine minutes the Duncans-Day-pass play again clicked to tie the count with Edwin doing the honors.

Rockburn and Richardson went off within seconds of each other and H. Legris, Richer and Thomson came up with superb defence work to hold the rushing Memos off the scoresheet. One was back when Erwin Duncan put the Memos one up on a neat play with Vern Goyer and Doug Day.

Goyer got clipped for clipping and the Magedomas threw all their power at Barclay in the Memos nets. Richer drove home a loose puck to tie the count with the man advantage.

Doug Day aided by the Duncans, scored after 39 seconds of play in the third period to give the Memos a 5-4 lead but Richardson's screen shot again tied the count at 4:37. Goyer scored a pretty goal with Peter Jones but Davidson's angle shot beat Barclay for the tying goal at nine minutes. Three minutes later Marcel Legris teamed with Richer and Godwin on a fine passing play to score what proved to be the winner.

Thompson got the gate with five minutes to go. Coach Renault of the Magedomas argued too long and loud from the referee's box and was given the heave-ho by referee Walsh.

The desperate Memos drove in to the attack even with Doran serving a penalty and gave Charron some anxious moments. Coach Renault pulled Barclay out of the net with 30 seconds to go and the Memos swarmed all over the Memos swarmed all over Charron, but the Magedomas' defence held and that's the way it ended.

The teams:

Brockville: goal, Charron; defence, Thomson, H. Legris, Rockburn; forwards, Richer, M. Legris, McKenney, Richardson, Smith, Scott, Davidson.

Belleville: goal, Barclay; defence, Goyer, Macy, Wade, Wilson, Mockler; forwards, Doran, Delaney, Dugan, P. Jones, Doran, Bettiol, Edwin Duncan, Erwin Duncan, Day, Hull.

Weather Cloudy For Cup Game

TORONTO (CP)—The weatherman, taking a five-day forward look at prospects for Saturday's Grey Cup football game, came up Tuesday with a guess of northwesterly winds, cloudy, a trace of snow in the air and temperatures in the high 30s.

As to how much snow, Fred Turnbull, chief Ontario forecaster for the Dominion public weather office, put it this way:

"A sufficient threat to keep the tarpaulin in place at Varsity Stadium, but Igloo dwellers wouldn't consider it a solution to the housing problem."

Mr. Turnbull didn't hazard a guess as to the velocity of the wind.

Varsity Back Being Treated For Concussion

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Glen Fracas, star halfback with University of Western Ontario Mustangs, is being treated in hospital for a possible concussion suffered in Saturday's game with Queen's Golden Gaels.

Coach Johnny Metras says it's still too early to know whether the injury will keep the burly 200-pounder from seeing action next Saturday against University of Toronto Blues in the Intercollegiate senior football final here. Fracas was admitted to hospital Monday for observation.

Fracas, Windsor senior, is the league's top scorer with 58 points and Western's big defensive gun in the backfield. He topped the team both in pass-receiving and in kick-off returns. He suffered a less serious blow to Mustangs' bid for victory.

Dale Creighton, Western second string fullback is also on the sick list. The London freshman suffered a knee injury in the Kingston game.

'Love Those Esks' Will Be Slogan Of Gaudily-Garbed Edmonton Fans

EDMONTON (CP)—Roughly 500 Edmonton Eskimo supporters, gaudily sporting their partisan green and gold, will cruise through downtown Toronto Saturday to scatter $4,000 reminders that they "Love those Esks."

The first contingent of rooters arrive in Toronto Friday morning, the second early Saturday morning. Between then and Saturday night, they'll do their utmost—with nearly $20,000—to spur the excitement of their club's second entry into the Grey Cup in three years, this time against favored Montreal Alouettes.

The outlay on heralding the western presence is expected to be the most made by any Western Interprovincial Football Union crowd.

In addition to the basic cost of $20,000—footed by both the city of Edmonton and the football club—each Edmonton fan probably will spend better than $200, even with a special package transportation deal.

FLOOR SHOW

They'll start with a floor show Friday night in the downtown Royal York hotel where a big imitation Igloo will be set up in the lobby as an information centre.

Ten floats and several miniature trains will be used in the parade the following morning.

The Eskimo rooters — complete with green-and-gold scarves, hats, gloves, buttons and banners—will then scatter 6,000 cotton "snowballs," and distribute 25,000 gaily-wrapped ice-cream bars, 15,000 scorecards bearing greetings from the city of Edmonton, 10,000 cardboard cutouts of an Eskimo player, 30,000 pamphlets comically depicting how Eskimos made the grade, and hundreds of football-shaped balloons.

Inscribed on just about everything will be "Love those Esks."

Alston Back With Brooklyn

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Walter Alston received word Tuesday he has been reappointed manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The quiet Alston took in stride the fact that he again would be at the helm of the Dodgers next year even though the heavily-favored Brooks wound up in second place in the National League during the past season. He took some ribbing from the fans for failing to win the National League pennant.

He was given another one-year contract and Walter O'Malley, Brooklyn president, hinted Alston had been given a raise. The best guesses put Alston's 1955 salary at around $19,000.

Edmonton Store Outfits Team With Everything But Victory

EDMONTON (CP)—That potent pain-killer, novocaine, probably will be a major ingredient in Edmonton Eskimos' planned team effort against Montreal Alouettes in the Grey Cup contest Saturday.

Eskimos will arrive in Toronto Thursday nursing injuries to seven of their imports, one of their two Canadian-Americans and three of their 14 Western products.

All however, are expected to see action in the game. Of the 11 players injured, nine have sore legs and the other two have broken noses. In addition, there's one fractured thumb and a late recovery from a broken arm.

THEY'RE UNDERDOGS

This, plus the fact that Eskimos are considered light along the line compared with Als, has made them the underdogs by a 2½-to-1 margin. Western bookies are also ruling Montreal the 4-to-5 favorite on a nine-point spread. That is, $6 would get the Montreal bettor $11 if Als won by 10 points or more, or he would get back $5 if they had an even nine-point margin.

Chief among the Edmonton walking wounded are:

Halfback Jackie Parker, first-year Mississippi State import suffered a chipped foot bone that kept him out of the Grey Cup semi-final against Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen of the Ontario Rugby Football Union;

Import end Frank Anderson, who will be playing with an injured hand and will wear a protective cast over a fractured thumb;

LEG INJURIES

Import tackles Roger Nelson and Jim Weatherall with leg injuries that plagued them throughout the WIFU finals against the bruising Winnipeg Blue Bombers;

Quarterback Bill Paloney, who for most of the season was held to a minimum of passing by a sore shoulder and to inflicting solo ground gains by a gimpy leg;

Eddie Miles, fourth-year import who suffered a mild concussion when knocked unconscious against Dutchmen Saturday, but who is scheduled for near-complete recovery by game time Saturday;

Oscar Kruger and Steve Mondryk, Edmonton-born backs with broken noses;

Guard Frankie Morris, another Edmonton native, with a bad knee injury several times this season;

Import half Glen Lippman—another bad leg;

End Rollie Prather, former Kansas State star now classed Canadian-American, who has a twisted knee;

And back Rod Pantages, Vancouver-born punting specialist also with unstable underpinnings.

The Esks may be the most crippled and most lop-sided underdogs ever to represent the West in the Grey Cup but they may also be the best-dressed football team to make the trek to the East.

An Edmonton clothing store is outfitting all team members with camel hair polo coats, slacks, hats, shirts, ties and belts.

Russ Request For Puck Tour Comes Too Late

TORONTO (CP)—George Dudley, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association secretary, said Tuesday a Russian request for a Canadian team to make a playing tour of Russia in January has come too late for action.

Mr. Dudley was asked to comment on a report in the Russian press that Canada has turned down such a request.

"Officials of the Russian federation approached me when I was overseas last August but no definite arrangements were made then" Dudley said.

He said he gave them some idea of the cost involved and that they were to get in touch with him when he returned home.

"I got home in mid-September but I didn't hear from them until the latter part of October. By then the senior league schedules had been drawn up and couldn't be changed."

Dudley said he had thought he might be able to arrange a two-week layoff in the schedule for one of the senior teams.

Studio Gambling Audiences Will Pay to Hear Sermons

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A film studio is gambling $2,000,000 on the hope that audiences will buy tickets to hear sermons and to see the life of a remarkable preacher.

Twentieth Century-Fox is making "A Man Called Peter," the biography of the late Peter Marshall, famed Presbyterian minister. This is a far cry from the studio's other Cinemascope offering, which have specialized in sex and spectacle. Perhaps the studio feels, as many do, that it's time the big screen said something.

Producer Sam Engel spent more than a year working on the script, which was written by Eleanor Griffin, Academy Award winner for "Boy's Town." He insisted on keeping large parts of the minister's sermons in the film.

"You wouldn't film 'The Jolson Story' without songs," he reasoned. "Nor would you make the life of a great preacher without using his sermons."

TOP BUDGET APPROVED

He sent the finished script to boss Darryl Zanuck in Paris, hardly the surroundings for reading a spiritual. Zanuck okayed the script and approved a top budget. Filming began this fall in Atlanta, Ga., Washington, D.C., and Annapolis, Md. The picture is being completed here now.

The sermons are designed to occupy 20 minutes in the entire film, and one lasts a full eight minutes. Just in case the public won't go for such big doses, the scenes have been designed so the sermons can be cut. But the studio hopes that won't be necessary.

I visited the set and met Richard Todd, the English-born actor who is portraying Marshall. He had never known of the preacher before the film came up, but has since learned much of his life from friends and Marshall's widow, Catherine, who wrote the best-selling book.

"He was a truly remarkable man," Todd remarked. "Apparently he had none of the egotistical manifestations that many churchmen adopt. He was a vigorous man, to whom religion was a very real and living thing.

"To him Jesus was a very strong personality. He described him as a man whose gusto never lacked for wine, who could shoulder his way through a jaunting mob."

STORY OF A LIFE

I asked Todd how the plot of the picture fitted into necessity for screen entertainment.

"There is no plot as such," he replied. "It is a saga of a man's life. As for entertainment, I think that anything that interests, entertains. Certainly the book must have been considered entertaining by the many readers who made it a best-seller."

Marshall achieved fame for his powerful sermons at the New York Avenue church, which was President Abraham Lincoln's church in Washington. From 1947 until his death, he served as chaplain of the United States Senate, making a powerful impression on the lawmakers.

Andrews Meets Maxim Tonight

CHICAGO (AP)—Lanky, hard-punching Paul Andrews, 24-Buffalo, N.Y., tabbed a "sleeper" threat to heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano, gets measured for class tonight against former light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim.

Maxim ranged a 2-1 underdog in the wake of reports he appeared sluggish in training for the 10-round match to be televised nationally (at 10 p.m. EST).

Andrews, 24, who has flattened 19 opponents in winning 29 of 32 starts, ranks third behind the No. 2 Maxim among contenders for Archie Moore's light-heavy crown. Marciano and his manager, Al Weill, are reported interested enough in Andrews' potentialities as a heavyweight menace to view the proceedings from ringside.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars, for THURS., NOV. 25, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Be steady in procedure; avoid emotional outbursts, hasty action. Being impulsive often brings regrets. Today needs calm reasoning and intelligence.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Because familiar work may seem most fruitful and easiest to handle, do not neglect other worthwhile interests. You may do wonders with new materials, in new fields, with new contacts.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — A test day, both personally and in business. Check yourself as well as others. There are always possibilities for improvement, new methods to save time, material.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Today's influences lean toward mental rather than physical activities. Be alerted to all moods in professional, business or family matters for they can change without warning.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — You Sun and other planets, well-aspected, add impetus to the day's family and community obligations. Stop in church for a few minutes; give thanks.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Fine Mercury rays sponsor social alertness, stability, healthful relaxation and, of course, necessary duties. A fine day for social and community affairs, domestic and general activities.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — A perfect outlook. You can make this day tops. Without skipping duties, you can still enjoy entertainment, church and social gatherings.

October 24 to November 23 (Scorpio) — Interesting love associations, thinking of long-time and true friends, spending happy hours with family or lonely children could be a restful, healthy pastime.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A friendly period for many endeavors, necessary work, household tasks, as well as artistic performance, study, and brain work. But don't overdo; health. Take time for relaxation.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Glance at Sagittarius' and Leo's paragraphs today; you will find pertinent suggestions for your chart is similar. A benefic planetary day generally. No need to overwork. Enjoy some rest.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — This day may not be entirely favorable for all interests but it is an agreeable time for many personal matters, for making happy plans and attending to essential home and business details. A varied line-up.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Journeys by water, sending gifts to the armed forces and those in impoverished lands could bring new benefits home. A favorable day for all worthy undertakings but not reckless activity.

YOU BORN TODAY have characteristics from both Scorpio and Sagittarius. You are daring, enterprising; a bit domineering but on the capable side. You may be too frank at times but are innately honest. Control of enthusiasm and daring may be necessary to help you develop your good delightful traits to fullest advantage. You could be an excellent lawyer, able in foreign service, or any profession or trade you choose to work at steadily.

Birthdate: Andrew Carnegie, Amer. philanthropist, Industrialist; Lope de Vega, Spanish poet, dramatist.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was driving me downtown in the car, and she went through a stop signal and there was a whistle in back of me, and I said, Oh boy, pa, that's for you.

Oh dear, I do hope he'll be reasonable, ma sied.

Meaning the traffic officer, and she stopped the car and the traffic officer got off his motorcycal, and ma said, How do you do, officer, I suppose you'll have to give me a citation.

I suppose so, lady, the traffic officer said, and ma said, Oh well, you are only doing your duty, and if I were in your pace I'd do the same thing. I suppose you dont get any more pleasure out of it than I do, she said.

That's a fact, lady, I only wish I ran into more drivers with your spirit of cooperation, it's really refreshing, the traffic officer said, and ma said, Thank you, officer.

That's quite all right, lady, may I see your drivers license, please! the traffic officer said, and ma said, Oh, are you really going to give me a citation?

Well naturelly, I thought that was understood, the traffic officer said, and ma said, Of course, but I should think you would make an exception in exceptional cases. After all, you admitted yourself that I was unusually cooperative, and surely there is such a thing as give and take, and common odd-nerry appreciation of being appreciated, she said.

Lady, you win, keep going, the traffic officer said. Even if I change my mind again after this dizzy sensation leaves my head, it will be late, if you hurry up and step on the gas, he said.

Which she did.

Suggests Marler May Be Next Liberal Leader

QUEBEC (CP)—Liberal leader Georges Lapalme said today in the Legislative Assembly Tuesday night Mr. Lapalme said he could be wrong in his guess about Mr. Marler, "but believe it is reasonable to see in him the future successor of the man who now leads the destinies of the nation."

The opposition leader was paying tribute to his party's former financial critic when he made the statement. Mr. Marler, for 12 years a member of the assembly, resigned his Westmount-St. George seat, to become transport minister, U.S.

Council of Churches Hears Need for Christian Education

By STEWART ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KINGSTON (CP)—Rev. Canon F. J. Nicholson of Toronto, chairman of the Canadian Council of Churches' department of Christian education, said Tuesday Christian education is the only answer to the world's present "tremendous ism in morals."

Canon Nicholson, introducing his department's report at the second day of the council's 10th meeting, said there were sub-Christian and anti-Christian forces alive in the world and an increased divorce between education and religion.

He said Christian education was one sphere where Protestant denominations could work together.

"I am convinced we can show a united front in the fundamentals of Christianity."

The departmental report given by Rev. Dr. Ernest Long, of Toronto, a clergyman of the Church of Christ (Disciples) and secretary of the department, also urged co-operation among churches in the field of Christian education.

"Many of the things we now do separately could be so much more effectively done together," the report said. "Great new fields of co-operative endeavour are open before us if the churches wish to enter them."

Today's meetings were to be on social questions, the immigration of refugees and faith and order. Tonight, clergymen will wear traditional gowns at an ecumenical service in historic St. Paul's cathedral.

Guest preacher will be the Very Rev. John A. MacKay, president of Princeton theological seminary and chairman of the international missionary council. Rev. E. Ernest Sommerfeld, of the Evangelical United Brethren church, Waterloo, Ont., will conduct the service. He retires Friday from the council presidency.

Wm. Remington, Red Sympathizer, Killed in Prison

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP)—William W. Remington, former United States' government, side serving a three year term for perjury, died today at the federal penitentiary here from injuries suffered in an attack at the prison.

Remington's death was announced by acting warden Fred T. Wilkinson. The prisoner suffered head injuries Monday when he was hit with a stocking-covered brick in his dormitory squad room.

William Remington, brother of Remington's assailant "is fairly well established" and did not disclose whether it was another convict, nor give the reason for the attack.

Remington, 35, a former commerce department official, was sentenced to serve three years for perjury after swearing that he had never been associated with Red organizations.

Remington first was indicted in 1950 on a charge of falsely denying to a grand jury that he ever had been a member of the Communist party.

The New York Court of Appeals reversed the conviction. Remington was indicted again in Oct. 22, 1951, on a charge of lying at his first trial when he denied he had passed government secrets to Elizabeth Bentley, confessed courier for a wartime Soviet spy ring.

Before he went to trial on the new accusation, Remington carried a battle against the indictment all the way to the United States' Supreme Court, charging "oppression and deceit" by prosecutors in the grand jury room at the time of the first indictment.

The Supreme Court rejected Remington's appeal on that issue. He was convicted Jan. 27, 1953, and sentenced to serve three years. His conviction was upheld Nov. 24, 1953, seven months after he entered prison.

St. Laurent Says No Date Set To Meet Duplessis

OTTAWA (CP)—No time has been set for a second meeting between Prime Minister St. Laurent and Premier Duplessis on a proposed taxation arrangement between the federal and Quebec governments.

"There have been even no tentative arrangements made for a meeting date while the matter is being gone into further by the officials," Mr. St. Laurent said Tuesday.

He spoke to a reporter briefly as he entered a cabinet meeting. Mr. Duplessis is expected to meet Mr. Duplessis again before a general federal-provincial conference might be called to deal with fiscal questions.

The two met initially at Montreal Oct. 5 in a step aimed at smoothing their taxation differences.

British Papers Rap Churchill Over Statement

Said Poor Time to Reveal Arms Stacked for Germans

LONDON (AP) — A storm of press criticism burst over the head of Prime Minister Churchill today for disclosing he once thought it might become necessary to turn Hitler's beaten troops against the advancing Russian near the end of the Second World War.

Churchill dropped that bit of information Tuesday night at Woodford during a birthday party given by his parliamentary constituents. He will be 80 Nov. 30.

The prime minister said near the end of the war he ordered Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery to collect German arms and "stack them so that they could easily be issued again to the German soldiers with whom we should have to work if the Soviet advance into western Europe continued."

Says the pro-labor Daily Mirror in an editorial today:

"What a gift that is to Communists propaganda!"

The Liberal News Chronicle comments: "Not all this moment's prudent silence."

"It pretty well rules out any possibility of peaceful talks between him and Premier Malenkov" declares the Labor party's official newspaper, the Daily Herald.

Even the independent and influential London Times—usual for its restrained editorial policy, and normally a supporter of Churchill's Conservative government — feels impelled to ask:

"What on earth made him say it?"

The Communist Daily Worker, in a furious front-page editorial, says Churchill had "blurted out a secret which has shocked the British people everywhere and exposes the real criminal reasons for Germany's rearmament."

The Herald says the disclosure "could not have come at a worse moment, for it is bound to revive all of Russia's old paranoid suspicions of Sir Winston."

The Herald predicts Labor MPs will demand "full debate" on the matter at the new session of Parliament beginning next week. It says the Russian leaders must have been aware of Churchill's hostility and "the distrust of Churchill must have been at least one element in their cold post-war attitude toward the Western world."

The Mirror comments:

"What wisdom!—to stand before the Russian bear like a red-eyed bogeyman.

"What timing!—to make this public statement when there are some signs of easing in world tension."

The Conservative Sewspapers, including the strongly pro-government Daily Mail and Daily Telegraph refrain from editorial comment.

The Soviet news agency Tass carried a full report of the Churchill speech without comment.

The Communist East German press accused Churchill of preparing a third world war before the end of the Second World War.

Neues Deutschland, official Communist party organ, says Churchill's disclosure confirmed Soviet contentions that "even before the Second World War ended, and while the whole period ever since, the Western powers had systematically prepared the rearmament of West Germany."

In West Germany, the pro-government Frankfurter Allgemeine says Churchill was not trying to relate history with his disclosure but "to make policy."

"He apparently is trying to demonstrate Germany must be rearmed," it said. "It is undeniable that Churchill's remark will have a great impact, particularly in view of possible future peace talks with the East."

WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: An area of low pressure will stagnate slowly eastward from Lake Erie into New York state today and the centre should reach east Friday. In its wake, northerly winds will bring cold weather to southern Ontario down over the lower lakes. Some rain this morning will change to flurries or rain and snow to snowflurries this afternoon. Friday will be cloudy and cooler with all forecast regions.

Henderson, 37 - year - old Moose Jaw mechanical engineer, was charged with murdering Miss Levesque, 20-year-old native of Fisher Creek, Alta., and a former Edmonton waitress, in a Calgary auto court cabin Aug. 11, 1949.

Americans Mark Thanksgiving Day In Many Climes

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Americans the world around took time off today from worries about the Russians, taxes and the high cost of living to give thanks for the many blessings they have.

Although in weather over much of the United States left much to be desired, the day promised to be one of the most joyful in the annual observance of this holiday of prayer and feasting.

With the world's shooting wars stilled by an uneasy peace, Americans could join with President Eisenhower's proclamation:

"We are grateful that our beloved country remains free and strong, and that each of us can worship God in our own way.

"We are grateful for the manifestations of divine goodness in affairs both public and private, and for equal opportunities for all to labor and serve, and for the consequent rewards of joys and satisfactions which enrich our lives."

Thousands of Americans overseas—troops standing guard at Berchtesgaden mountaintop, navy men at sea and public servants stationed far from home—joined their host to celebrate the holiday in traditional style. The armed forces furnished special dinners to their men in foreign posts.

The award of $75,000 general damages and $32,000 punitive damages went to Anton Kraft, 48, who was employed by the Montgomery Ward store here in 1949. Kraft accused the company of false arrest and malicious prosecution.

JAPAN'S PREMIER SEEN AS CERTAIN TO LOSE OFFICE

Leaders of His Party Vote for Resignation

TOKYO (AP)—The newspaper Asahi says administration Liberal party leaders have voted that Japan's Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida should resign as president of the party.

Asahi interprets the action as a death blow to Yoshida's hopes of holding office longer. His six-year term has been the longest in Japanese parliamentary history.

The newspaper says the decision of party leaders will force Yoshida's resignation. Under Japanese law, this would bring about the automatic dissolution of his cabinet.

The party executives, who met at Yoshida's request to discuss the current political crisis, also voted that deputy prime minister Takeo Ogata be named president of the party. That would make him the party's candidate for prime minister in forming a new government.

COMMENT

Yoshida was not present at the session. There was no immediate comment from him.

The Liberal move should boost the chances of 71-year-old Ichiro Hatoyama to become prime minister as the compromise candidate of the conservative parties.

Hatoyama, founder of the Liberal party, broke with Yoshida last week and led 124 conservative lower-house members into the new Japan Democratic party, which he heads.

The Democrats, organized Wednesday, are pledged to oppose both Yoshida and any Liberal party successor.

This leaves Hatoyama as the only visible candidate strong enough to command the conservative two-thirds majority—Liberals, Democrats and independents—in the lower House of Representatives.

35 Are Injured As Train Derailed In Mojave Desert

NEEDLES, Calif. (AP)—Thirty-five persons were injured, shaken or bruised when 11 cars and the engine of the Santa Fe Chief on the Mojave desert Wednesday night.

Most of the injuries were minor, however. Only two passengers were taken to hospital and one put to bed in a motel here.

Barbara Coyle of Toronto, only Canadian listed among the injured, suffered shoulder and back bruises.

Engineer Ed Hall was standing on the train when eight cars jolted off the tracks, remained upright and stopped near Cadiz, 62 miles west of here. The first three cars, including the engine, remained on the track, brought the passengers here.

PARKS PLANNED

TORONTO (CP) — W. B. Greenwood, head of the newly-formed division of provincial parks in the lands and forests department, is making a survey of suitable areas in Ontario for provincial parks. The department is planning to convert a number of districts into provincial parks during the next year.

Ceylon Forest Guard Witnesses Ritualistic Birth of Baby Elephant

COLOMBO (AP)—A Ceylon forest guard has witnessed what few humans have seen in this island—the ritualistic birth of a baby elephant.

Guard W. L. A. Andiris watched from a vantage point within a cluster of high rocks in Yala game sanctuary. Writing in the official records of the Ceylon department of wild life, Andiris says the mother elephant was attended by eight "midwives."

He was obvious that the elephants made a careful selection of their "maternity room" some time before in an open clearing hidden by deep jungle on all sides," he adds.

The mother elephant lay on her side in the clearing. The eight attendants surrounded her, caressing her gently with their trunks.

As time for the birth approached, the mother became more and more nervous, shifting her position in the clearing by taking a few steps this way and that, lying down after each movement. Seven of the attendant elephants withdrew into the jungles leaving one with the mother-to-be. From time to time as the mother rested or moved around, members of the "midwife" group entered the jungle in pairs to check her with their trunks.

Chamber of Commerce Urges Immigration to Aid Defence

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce today cautioned the government against lowering Canada's defence guard and at the same time urged a step-up in immigration to boost manpower supplies for defence and economic purposes.

In a meeting with the cabinet, a 16-man chamber delegation, representing 100,000 business men, urged that Canada's population be doubled to 30,000,000 by 1975, but said this goal will not be reached unless there is a "marked increase" in immigration.

As for defence, the chamber, representing some 700 boards of trade and chambers of commerce in the 10 provinces, suggested "the greatest danger for Canada lies in the tendency to regard adequate defence expenditures as an emergency need instead of a permanent part of living in the 20th century."

The chamber's views on immigration and defence were included in a 40-page brief presented by Prime Minister St. Laurent and his ministers touching on a host of issues, ranging from unemployment to compulsory health services and the Bank of Canada's dividends.

The chamber made these points:

1. Seasonal unemployment is becoming progressively serious and employers, unions and governments should co-operate in fighting it.

2. Immigration was one way of bolstering employment.

3. Personal and corporate income taxes were too high for a developing country. State control increased with high taxation.

4. Compulsory health insurance medicine should be avoided. The chamber believed a rapid growth of prepaid and insurance plans will reasonably cover Canadians.

5. Civil defence training should be continued. All vital services and industries should ban the employment of Communists. The government must not relax its vigilance in combating communism.

6. Airports should be improved and a separate Canadian coast guard service established.

7. Britain and other sterling area countries should be urged to remove gradually import curbs against Canadian goods. The chamber also expressed concern with the United States' tendency to "modify" its commitments under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade.

8. A separate regulatory body should be set up to supervise radio and television in Canada.

9. The government should institute the use of the single alternative vote in elections. Marking on the ballot of a priority of candidate choices would eliminate the "plumping" to elect candidates by a minority of those voting.

10. The chamber suggested construction of the controversial South Saskatchewan irrigation and power project in southern Saskatchewan would be in the "national interest."

11. It requested the government to support development of the Arctic islands.

May Order Special Patrols To Trap Toronto Strangler

TORONTO (CP)—Special night police patrols may be ordered in an effort to trap the strangler.

The suggestion was made Wednesday night at a special meeting of police headquarters officials and Toronto's mayor Nathan Phillips. Mayor Phillips said he would ask Metro Ontario, who told police he was getting fed up, if he should as she walked to a home and school club meeting and was dragged into a laneway.

The attacker had released his hold on her throat after she attempting to remove one of her stockings when a car with a nearby garage was switched on. She screamed and the man fled.

She said darkness prevented her from getting a good description of him. A police guard, which she requested, escorted her home from work Wednesday night.

Police said the attacker, described by Mrs. Ounapuu as about five feet, eight inches tall and wearing a European-style coat, followed the same patterns as did the killer of Mrs. Marie Lopko (wookyi), who was strangled Sept. 25, and Mrs. Olga Zacharko, 29, who died five weeks ago.

The meeting Wednesday night was called by police Chief Allen and chief of detectives Alex McCathie and attended by Toronto's top police expert from the provincial crime laboratory and Joseph Jesselyn.

A $7,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the killer.

RAF Planes Keeping Watch Over Helpless Danish Vessel

LONDON (Reuters) — Gales swept the North sea today for the third day in a row as rescue craft plowed through heavy seas to the aid of a sinking Danish schooner.

RAF planes circled throughout the night over the 446-ton Sverdfisken, directing rescue vessels toward the three-masted wooden ship as the gale reached gusts of high waves. Radio reports this afternoon said the small British steamer N e r e i d e l e w e l had reached her and was standing by, awaiting the arrival of the Danish destroyer Evertsen. The Sverdfisken carries a crew of 14 men, stock from flooded farmlands.

Forty miles off the Swedish coast the vessel capsized in a hunt for survivors of the 79-ton Swedish fishing boat Eddie, which sent a distress message said she was in distress after springing a leak.

Overnight a severe inflicted new flood damage in west England, Wales and Northern Ireland.

For the second night in a row Belfast residents had to salvage furniture and other belongings from waterlogged ground floor rooms. In the Lancashire area of western England many farmers spent the night rescuing their live-

Tunisian Rebels Derail Armored Troop Train

TUNIS (Reuters) — Tunisian guerrillas derailed an armored train in central Tunisia today and fired on troops aboard it.

The train, carrying 20 soldiers, was making a routine security patrol between Metlaoui to Moularus when it was thrown off the tracks. The rebels, swarming up to the derailed cars, wounded an officer and a private.

The bandits swiftly withdrew into the neighboring countryside. Immediately reports from Tunis said ou were brought up.

In the central Sahel area, a notorious terrorist, Abdelatif Sejbaia, wanted for several murders, was arrested today.

U.S. PLANNING VIGOROUS DRIVE TO AID 13 MEN

Will Use All Measures Short of War With Reds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Measures short of war were being carefully weighed today by United States officials charged with trying to win freedom for 13 Americans condemned to prison by Red China.

With military action apparently ruled out—President Eisenhower Wednesday pledged every step "humanly possible within peaceful means"—state department officials have three principal avenues open to them:

1. To protest in "the strongest terms possible," as they already have set out to do to Red China's representative at Geneva.

2. To bring pressure on Communist China, as they have in the past, through British and other Allied representatives at Peiping, or perhaps even through the Russians.

3. To go to the United Nations, as they did with protests against atrocities in Korea and the shooting down of an American plane, with demands for a resolution of censure.

BUILD OPINION

They can also do their best toward mobilizing world opinion against Red China, for what the U.S. has called the "amoral" and "outrageous" jailing of innocents on trumped-up charges. Widespread public indignation on this score could force Peiping's drive for diplomatic recognition and a seat in the UN.

Red China announced Tuesday that 11 U.S. airmen and one civilian had been captured during the Korean War had been sentenced as "spies" to prison terms ranging from four years to life. Wednesday Peiping radio broadcast that three Japanese and five American pilots had died—were among 230 saboteurs the Chinese Reds said were captured or killed inside China since 1951.

Montreal Reform League Annexes Key Council Post

MONTREAL (CP)—The reform Civic Action League completed its hold of last night's municipal administration posts Wednesday when Pierre DesMarais, president of the league, was elected chairman of the powerful executive committee.

DesMarais, who was swept into office along with Mayor Jean Drapeau and 27 other reform candidates Monday, ousted former chairman J. O. Asselin, who had held the post since 1942. DesMarais placed one other man on the executive committee — Lucien Saint-Drapeau is a non-voting member of the group.

The Civic Action slate came to power on the heels of a report by Mr. Justice Frank Hall of Toronto convicted 20 members and former members of the police force for tolerating commercialized vice in Montreal in the wide-open era between 1940 and 1950.

Frame Building, Machines, Lumber Lost In Blaze

Two Box Cars of Dynamite Taken Out of Danger Zone

Fire of unknown origin caused damage estimated at $150,000 Wednesday night when the main machine building of Wilson Lumber Sales Ltd., Madoc, was completely destroyed. No one was injured.

A 250 x 100 foot two-storey frame building, more than a dozen wood-working machines and 50,000 to 60,000 feet of lumber were lost in a spectacular blaze that the 21-man Madoc fire brigade fought for more than eight hours.

Two box cars of dynamite on a siding 50 feet from the blazing building were pushed out of danger by spectators who loaded a truck with grain and used it as a ram.

Firemen's efforts were credited with saving nearby stock rooms, a loading chute, sawdust and shaving storage room and an office building.

No one was at work in the machine room when fire broke out between 9.30 and 10.00 p.m. Wednesday evening. Ray Parks, who lives near the lumber yard, turned in the alarm to Madoc Fire Brigade. Firemen, under Chief Leonard Mulrooney, confined the blaze to the one building, and were still on the scene at 6.45 Thursday morning.

REGT. 4 PATROLS HIGHWAY

"B" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was called out to patrol Highway No. 7, which passes near the site of the lumber yard, which is located on St. Lawrence Avenue West, near the Madoc railway station.

Stewart Lessard, plant manager, stated this morning that there were 30,000 to 40,000 ft. of rough lumber and 15,000 to 20,000 feet of dressed lumber lost. Wilson Lumber Sales Ltd. owned all but 2,000 feet, which was being processed for the Airbart Lumber Co.

$18,000 PLANER LOST

Machinery lost included a $18,000 planer and more than a dozen smaller machines.

Building saved included a main stockroom a few feet away from the main machine building; a sawdust and shaving shed ten feet away; a loading chute, 30 feet away; a lumber storage shed, forty feet away, and an office building.

Fire spectator, commenting on the fierce blaze that raged through the two-storey main and brick-covered shed, said 'that it seemed to explode from the inside."

The Madoc branch of T. A. Wilson Co. had been in operation for the past eight years and employed 18 men. Less than half of last season's logs were covered by insurance, but complete coverage have not decided, as yet, whether to rebuild.

Burns Prove Fatal

NORWICH, Ont. (CP)—Janice Hall, two-year-old daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ross Hall of this Oxford county village, died Wednesday in London hospital of burns suffered three days ago when her clothing caught fire.

The tragedy occurred while Janice was playing with other children at the rear of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Shawcross.

Fire broke out in a rabbit pen and set the girl's clothing alight, spread to the McMurchy home and destroyed it.

Tales Are Tall, Falls Are Slow, Out in Idaho

MELBA, Idaho (AP) — Yale Holland was flying at 1,000 feet over a farm near here when the door of his plane flew open and a quart of air whipped his glasses out into space.

Holland said he marked the location of the farm in his mind. Then he came back here by car, walked out into the field and picked up the lost spectacles. The lenses were not broken and the frames were only slightly damaged.

Fear Toronto Couple Drowned

TORONTO (CP)—A young married couple and a male companion may have fallen or jumped to their death off a lakefront breakwall after leaving two friends sitting in a car, police said today.

Police said Mrs. Dorothy Arsenault, 17, and Renault Hunnington, 18, haven't been seen since they left a parked car near a breakwall at Cherry Beach two nights ago. Police said Mrs. Arsenault and Hunnington went walking hand in hand past a spot 100 feet from a breakwall only 18 inches above the water. Officers said it is possible they either missed a step and fell in pulling the other along.

Donald Yelle, 21, and Jeanette Bellveau, 17, in the car when the couple left said they went back to search Wednesday. When they could find no trace of their friends, they went to police.

Britain Backs American Protest To Red China

By SEYMOUR TOPPING

LONDON (AP) — The British government today accused Communist China of violating the Geneva convention on prisoners of war in the jailing of 11 American airmen on charges of espionage.

The accusation came from a foreign office spokesman who denounced the Peiping regime for committing for more than a year the fact that the Reds held the Americans, long after peace was declared:

"The arguments by which the Chinese government justifies the different treatment of Korean prisoners of war are no more than legal quibbles. Their action is contrary to the Geneva convention on the treatment of prisoners of war."

AIRMEN JAILED

The statement was made in response to questions by newspaper men.

The foreign office spokesman said: "All prisoners from the Korean hostilities should have been returned during operation 'Big Switch' in August and September, 1953."

That was the big exchange of prisoners that followed the signing of the Korean armistice in July 1953.

HOME-MADE HAZARD

LONDON (CP) — The report of the government inspectors of explosives committee says one boy was killed and 16 persons injured last year in 13 accidents involving home-made fireworks.

Quebec Liberals Are Critical Of Federal Party

QUEBEC (CP)—Two members of the Quebec Liberal Opposition took a swipe at their own federal party in Ottawa Wednesday night, during a legislative debate that crackled with sharp-edged criticism of Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale administration.

One Liberal, Jean-Paul Noel (L—Montreal Jeanne Mance) said there was a "conspiracy" of silence between federal Liberals and the Union Nationale government about current taxation agreement negotiations.

The other, Jean-Jacques Bedard (L—Quebec County), said members of the Union Nationale party owed their election to the "wisdom" of certain members of the federal Liberal party. He added some Union Nationale members in high places held their posts due to the "co-operation" of some federal Liberal members.

A former Liberal Commons member, Gerard Cournoyer (L—Richelieu), mimicked Mr. Duplessis' repeated references to a statement made by Prime Minister St. Laurent endorsing Ungava's iron ore development.

But, he said, Mr. St. Laurent did not know all the terms under which the Iron Ore Company of Canada (Liberal party) gave a slice of Ungava's territory. These terms, he said, were a "shame" to Quebec.

He added: "The premier likes to say how we are hangers-on of the Ottawa party. He won't be able to say it much longer."

It was the first time an unfriendly note toward the federal Liberal party was injected into the legislative assembly debate by Quebec Liberals.

Confirm Order Of Extradition

TORONTO (CP)—Unless appeal efforts succeed, Bernard McCann, 51, a Canadian who spent 20 years in a Michigan prison before being convicted of murder, may go back there for the rest of his life.

The Ontario Court of Appeal has confirmed an order of extradition for McCann, who escaped from the Michigan state prison at Jackson last February and was caught on a murder list in his home town of Windsor.

John M. Reycraft, McCann's lawyer, said Wednesday he plans other moves in McCann's defence proceedings, including an appeal to Justice Minister Garson and selection of an appeal to be shown to the governor of Michigan.

The slaying was that of Leo Dipsa, proprietor of a roadhouse near Port Huron, Mich., killed by three robbers in 1926. McCann was arrested eight years later and convicted, chiefly on evidence of a woman who identified him as one of the robbers.

LONDON (CP) —Two hundred lime trees are to be planted in Kensington gardens to replace the young beech trees recently removed.

Full-Scale Probe Of Clerk's Office Asked by Ald.

TORONTO (CP) — Alderman William Allen Wednesday night demanded a full-scale probe of the magistrate court clerk's office following disclosures that police are investigating thefts of mail containing parking tag payments.

"Something in this department is screwy and needs proper investigation," Mr. Allen said. He suggested the parking tag administration be investigated thoroughly by the Metropolitan government.

Police were called in after officials said scores of motorists complained they had to pay twice because they could not prove they had mailed in fine payments. They said the complaints had reached alarming proportions.

Chief of detectives Alex McCrae said no evidence of theft has been uncovered but he is convinced the thefts have taken place.

Responsibility for the collection of fines was recently turned over to the court clerk's office by board of control.

The investigation is the second such probe into ministry mail activity hall in a little more than a year. In the first probe 15 suspicious pieces of mail was traced to a youth employed in the mailing room. He was dismissed.

Need Greater Production Of Food Supplies

BURKS FALLS (CP)—Industrial expansion throughout Ontario is resulting in the loss of good agricultural land at a time when there is a need for greater production of food supplies, says Dr. B. C. Matthews of the department of soils of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph.

He was guest speaker Wednesday night at the annual banquet and meeting of the Parry Sound Crop Improvement Association.

"According to our best estimates, we have about 8,000,000 acres of cropland in Ontario and this can be increased by less than 2,000,000 acres," he said. "Moreover, loss of good agricultural land to industrial expansion will reduce the net increase in arable acres."

The Trout Creek area retained its reputation as the championship potato section of Parry Sound when C. J. Long and Frank Rick, both of Trout Creek, placed first in the yield per acre and first place potato exhibit. Mr. Long produced 727.8 bushels of Chippewas to the acre and topped a field of nine agriculturists.

Harry White of Kearney, with 116.46 bushels of oats to the acre was declared champion grain of Parry Sound 100-bushel oat club. Lloyd Hosick of Dunchurch carried off the honors in the corn class with a yield of 76.77 bushels an acre.

Soviet Calendar Offers Variety Of Facts, Fancies

By RICHARD KASISCHKE

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Calendar for 1955 gives the people everything from historic dates to lessons on the evils of capitalism and treating snakebite with vodka.

And all this for four rubles ($1 at the official rate). It comes in desk pad form which also can be affixed to a wall holder.

On its small pages, only a few inches square, you can read not only how a heroic Soviet milkmaid got her cows to produce more, but a Russian view that New York city traffic is poor badly.

The calendar is political instruction for old and young in the best Marxist-Leninist vein. It also has true - life adventure stories and even cheerful checkers tips.

HELPFUL HINTS

For all Soviet citizens—peasants or city dwellers who queue to buy milk—there may be inspiration in the account contributed on a calendar page by a champion milkmaid of the Moscow region. She says she increased production by improved feeding methods and "giving much attention to the upbringing of the young cows."

Senators' Mail Reveals Shift Against McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The office of several United States senators report that in the last week or two they have received in favor of censuring Senator Joseph McCarthy has shown a marked increase.

"A noticeable shift has occurred," said an aide of Senator Thomas Kuchel (Rep. Calif.), who has not committed himself on the censure issue. Until about a week ago, the bulk of Kuchel's mail was favorably pro-McCarthy."

Several other senators of varying opinions on the censure issue were likewise reported getting more mail opposed to McCarthy's case, although in some instances the over-all ratio was listed as still in McCarthy's favor or about evenly divided.

JENNER DIFFERS

On the other hand, an aide to Senator William Jenner (Rep., Ind.) said the senator's mail is 100 to 1 against censure and has shown no change. Jenner is a supporter of the Wisconsin Republican senator.

The Senate's debate on the proposed censure of McCarthy, unanimously recommended by a special committee of three Republicans and three Democrats, began Monday 6 but was recessed a week ago until Nov. 28 after McCarthy went to a hospital for treatment of an injured elbow.

Whether McCarthy will be on hand when the Senate reassembles Monday is not known for sure.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP)—Stock market trading today fell to the slowest pace of the month. Brokers attributed the quiet market to the Thanksgiving Day closing of the New York exchange.

Despite the lack of New York direction, prices remained strong. The industrial index climbed four-tenths of a point to a new 20-year high of 275.67.

Papers, utilities, constructions and steels gained but foods eased.

Apart from industrials, the market was generally mixed with small price changes.

First-hour market volume was 861,000 shares compared with 1,416,000 Wednesday.

PRODUCE MARKET

TORONTO (CP) — Churning cream and butter print prices were unchanged here today.

The egg market was barely steady with offerings in excess of a quiet demand.

Quotations provided by the Dominion department of agriculture:

Eggs, in three cases, graded: A large 40-41: A medium 37-38: A small 33; B 35; C 25. Wholesale to retail: A large 45-46; A medium 42-43; A small 38; B 40; C 30.

Butter sold: Canada 1st grade 69-69½; western 61 (no sales).

Youth Suffers Fractured Hip In Accident

TRENTON. (Special.) — Two brothers were admitted to the Trenton Memorial Hospital on Tuesday night after they were hurt in an accident involving a home made wagon and a motor car.

Ralph Jackson, 15, the older brother suffered a fractured hip and is still in hospital. His younger brother, Bobby, 9, received bruises and shock and was released after examination.

Gary Cooney and Ralph were pushing Bobby on a wagon south on West street, shortly after 6.00 p.m. A car operated by Joseph Roy Ralph, 22, of 214 Dundas street, hit the front wheel of the cart upturning it on the road. Young Cooney was not injured because he was shoving on the opposite side to where the impact took place.

The brothers who live at 57 Edward street, were taken to hospital where they were treated by Dr. J. W. Byrne.

Police attached no blame to the driver of the car.

PREDICTS DEFENCE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Secretary Harold Talbott said Wednesday the fastest jet interceptors would be useless as a defence against missiles of the Y-1 type the Germans sent over Britain during the Second World War. But he predicted that "we will have defence against missiles" ultimately, utilizing atomic energy systems based on electronic devices now in the process of development.

ADJOURN HEARING

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec labor relations board Wednesday adjourned a hearing on a petition for decertification of local 144 of the International Union of Plumbers and Steamfitters (AFL-TLC) and said it will deliver its decision "in the near future." The petition, taken out by the Corporation of Plumbing and Heating Contractors following a recent 51 - day plumbers strike in the Montreal area, alleges the union "harbors Communists among its officers and organizers."

Delightful Christmas Bazaar Held by St. Andrew's Guild

Everything at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church resembled a tearoom, beckoned the near approach of the Yuletide season in the lovely decorations which adorned the rooms and booths for the Guild's bazaar and tea.

Receiving the many guests and patrons who, undaunted by the inclemency of weather, arrived in large numbers, and patronized the various booths with their attractive displays, were Mrs. M. C. Ryan, president of the Guild, Mrs. G. J. Shaw, 1st vice-president.

MISCELLANEOUS SEWING

The first booth to be visited was that of the miscellaneous, convened by Mrs. White's group and the assistants. This was prettily decorated with snowy-white and mauve colored candle standards, miniature Christmas trees at either end, and garlanded by loops of red and green. Here were little chairs in brown and green with removable seats in bold thread, needles and thimbles; a blue deposit in silver candle holders, salt and peppers, floral plaster of Paris wall plaques, tiny cacti in pots, African violets, lovely winter-white felt bonnets with felt floral trim, dainty baby's knit mitts with little faces on the backs of dogs, cats, teddy bears, cows, and little boys and girls in colors of greys, greens and browns; a gingham giraffe and picnic plate letter holders, boxes of fancy soaps, yellow Terry towels with matching cloths, embroidered tea towels, crocheted pillow slips, dainty handkerchiefs, clothes pin bags made like little dresses, knitting bags, pot holders plain and fancy; a silent butler set, and fire bricks, toilet set in mauve and white, and other articles of equal attractiveness.

LOVELY APRON DISPLAY

The apron booth was in charge of the "Friendship Group," and had as conveners Mrs. Sheer. This was a lovely display of sewing, and in many designs and colors in half and full-length aprons. There were aprons in yellow with pretty cretonne borders and pockets, green, dotted aprons, paisley pattern aprons, white organdy aprons with big lacy, fancy aprons with yellow plaid pockets, and blue and white check gingham, dark blue aprons, cocktail aprons in navy blue organdy, all with orange colored services, cobblers aprons in red with tassel trim, handkerchief aprons, strawberry aprons, panel aprons of yellow with contrasting mauve prima, a Christmas tree apron in lemon yellow with a row of tiny Christmas trees below.

The candy booth with its Christmas motifs was a mecca for the sweet-toothed gentry with its popcorn balls, maple creams, divinity fudge, turkish delight, chocolate coconut balls, peanut brittle, all in little baskets, boxes, with coconut ice candy and cherry centred cocoanut creams, making a fine complement to the other varieties. Mrs. Bell, assisted by Mesdames Alexander, Kidd, Cole and Manzie were in charge of these.

WHITE ELEPHANT

Downstairs the white elephant table, in charge of the Explorers' group, and the novelties were shown to advantage. The white elephant convened by Mrs. D. McDonald, and her assistants, Mrs. J. Langsbere, Mrs. H. Kinnear, Mrs. R. Buskard, Mrs. H. Cowie. The white elephant was centred by its namesake, around which was grouped a fine collection of what-i-don't-want, and hope-you-do articles, including little coats of iridescent artificial Christmas decorations; Christmas candles in red and green, flower pots, a bottle of cologne and perfume, dog collars, small

SIR MACKENZIE BOWELL

The only Belleville resident to be Prime Minister of Canada has been honored by the Post Office Department by having his likeness reproduced on a recent issue of five cent stamps.

For Sir Mackenzie Bowell, an English emigrant who rose from the position of chore boy in the offices of "The Intelligencer" to the rank of editor, publisher, member of parliament, cabinet minister, Prime Minister, Senator, Knight of the Noble Order of St. Michael and St. George, and a builder of the Canadian nation, it is an honor that, though slow in coming, is well deserved.

Long tenure in the office of Prime Minister by such as Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and William Lyon Mackenzie King has, to a great extent, tended to eclipse the fame of those other great Canadians who have held this country's highest office for briefer terms.

There are, however, in the story of Sir Mackenzie Bowell, elements of drama and romance that make one wonder why he is so little remembered in this city whose name he enhanced.

Mackenzie Bowell was born in England. He emigrated to Canada with his parents in 1833 at a time when a North Atlantic crossing was a fearsome and painful undertaking and not the overnight plane ride it is today.

His first job was as a chore boy in the newspaper office of "The Intelligencer"—one of the distinguished parents of today's Ontario Intelligencer. Mr. Bowell's energy and enterprise, and his talent as one of the ablest editorial writers in Canada, soon found its partnership in the paper in 1847. In 1848 "Bowell and Moore" became proprietors of the paper. In 1851 Mr. Bowell became sole proprietor.

The Intelligencer prospered under Mr. Bowell's direction and became a daily in 1867. In 1875 The Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Company purchased the paper, retaining Mr. Bowell, who was a large stockholder, as editor.

Mr. Bowell's official political career began in Confederation year when he was elected to the House of Commons for North Hastings, a seat he continued to hold in the senate after a post he filled with distinction until 1891. He became Minister of Militia in 1892, and Minister of Trade and Commerce in 1892-94. In 1894 he succeeded Sir John Thompson as Premier. He resigned as Prime Minister in 1896 after 29 years' service in the federal house, 18 years as a cabinet minister and more than a year as Prime Minister.

He was knighted for his distinguished service to Canada in 1895 by Queen Victoria while Canada's Premier.

He was subsequently named to the Senate and died a Senator, December 10th, 1917, surfeited with honors after a long and distinguished career.

One of his most prominent parliamentary efforts was the expulsion from parliament of Louis Riel, who, after the first Riel Rebellion in the North West, had been elected member of the House of Commons for a Manitoba constituency.

Sir Mackenzie's interests and abilities were not confined to newspaper work nor to politics. He was active in military affairs and held the rank of Colonel in the former Hastings Rifles, 49th Battalion. He was also a Grand Master of the Orange Lodge.

As a man of extraordinary talent and great capacity for work and public service, it seems entirely fitting that Sir Mackenzie Bowell should be honored by having his likeness on a postage stamp—itself a symbol of service and hard work throughout the nation. It is the sort of memorial that Sir Mackenzie Bowell, who rose to the first position without the aid of family or fortune, but simply because of ability and integrity, would appreciate.

DIME'S WORTH OF TROUBLE

How much is a dime worth? Not much.

It will buy a bus ride in some cities in Canada: It purchases a bottle of pop; a cup of coffee; a comic book for the kid; a draught of beer. These and a few other trivialities can be had for the exchange of a dime. It seems that the value of our present-day dime is qualified only by non-essentials, although facetious commentators also claim it comes in handy for church on Sundays. Kids no longer consider it a stroke of fortune to receive a dime from the visiting relative. A dime in the gutter is nothing to get excited about. A dime lost through a hole in the pocket is a matter of little concern.

Yet in St. Paul, Minnesota, a man died because of a dime.

The story goes that one night last week, in the skid row section of St. Paul, two men met, one a transient, the other a Great Lakes seaman. Sometime during their meeting a fight started; the "bum" was knocked down and later died on admittance to hospital. Police now hold the seaman without charges, pending the result of an autopsy. Possibly while this now is being read, he may be facing serious charges in connection with the incident.

A mission clerk told the police the men had argued over a dime which one owed the other.

A dime is a pretty insignificant contribution to our affairs. It buys little; it bought tragedy in St. Paul. Nothing it seems is so trivial that it cannot affect our actions at some time or other, even change our lives.

THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving Day is set apart
For every grateful mind and heart
In prayer, at table, to recall
The good Lord's blessings, great and small.

When life was difficult and grim
Our home forefathers turned to Him
And voiced together thankful prayer
For His continued loving care.

With folded hands and bended knee,
This day they kept, as now do we
With thanks for the abundant yield
Of tree and vine and harvest field.

Dear Lord, on this Thanksgiving Day
For freedom and the right to pray,
For country, home and strength to stay,
With grateful hearts to Thee we turn.

Editor's Lament

(Ottawa Journal)

From our little room, during these recent years, we have looked out on jets and television and atomic energy confident that science would never catch up with us. We had thought of ourselves as being creative, having thoughts and words and imagination that no machine could match.

Today the walls of our room have been pierced and security is shattered. We are told that, instead of bending our mind to the trials of the world, casting clear rays of thought into the murky murk, making words to sing and cure, we are approaching the day when we will set a machine and instruct it to prepare editorials of a certain length, in the style of hall, the situation in Trieste, the consequences of the by-elections and a light piece on drinking habits of the Druks. Then, while we lay back and relax, the clever machine will grind them out in grammatically sound form, of proper length and without the split infinitives of which we often are guilty.

We start our farewells now. We had to anticipate flying a few miles an hour, or having the Queen Mother in our home on a private visit, or having a new radioactive worm in its movements understandable. We have learned our lesson. We read that electronic calculators are already turning out basic texts intelligibly if not elegantly. From translation to authorship is a long step for a more advanced machine which will, in time, be trained to that end.

What we expect to see, as we bend down deep in the darkness are advertisements offering writing machines with an original text with style, polished sentences and capable of turning out articles on any topic from 500 to 5,000 words, thought-provoking and typographically perfect.

Then, if not sooner, we will know we are beaten.

Useless Facts Are Defended

(Boston Herald)

We think it's about time that we wrote a piece in defence of useless information. It may not be important to you to know that a cocker spaniel often grows to be eight feet long or that 5,000 Negroes live on stands in Wyoming, Pa., but we like it just the same.

We don't eat all the pickles we can, read all the books we have on the shelf or study every day practical use at the office of the fact we know that Abraham Lincoln served in 1830. But that's nothing against pickles, books or stray facts.

We think the world makes much too much of what is called practicality. No amount of use could add to the charm of knowing that the Indian corn harvest was in wide use in Pennsylvania in 1620 or the cattle, including hogs, people and the air, weighs six billion trillion tons.

It is impossible to state the value of a painting by Michelangelo or a cantata by Bach. In the same way, it is impossible to tell how much beauty and joy comes into the life of one who knows, perhaps not that the Caspian sea is the world's largest lake or that the deepest spot in the seas is called Tuscarora deep off the coast of Japan. Who knows, but that a single cubic foot of granite weighs 165 pounds, avoirdupois?

Knowledge is always exciting and finding a tiny, interesting piece of knowledge while in the act of, as finding a tiny, round purple pebble on the beach.

And that's the reason we were excited at finding a new paper bound encyclopedia for sale for 10c. It was filled with bits, scraps and pieces of information that we could not put it down. Did you know that people have 206 bones?

Germans Get Ships, Planes

(The Times, of London)

The announcements that the Bleken and Voss shipyards are to be rebuilt and that the Lufthansa will be reconstituted this month are a far cry from the Potsdam agreement. By the time the political sovereignty of the Federal Republic is restored little trace will remain of the restrictions which the Allies imposed on Germany for building a ship or engaging in sea or air transport. It has been a gradual process, but certain milestones stand out. One of these was last February, when the North German Lloyd re-entered the Atlantic service with the sailing of the Gripsholm and the Hamburg-America performed the Far Eastern routes with the Dornumd.

The big growth in the German merchant marine from 120,000 tons just after the war to over two million after the beginning of this year dates back to major changes in the policies of the western Powers between late 1949 and early 1951. The decisive factor was the revival in West Germany dates from the Petersberg agreement of November 1949, when complete freedom was granted for ships which were certain limits of size and speed. And beyond those limits allied licences were required only for ships of more than a year the German yards built and delivered an aggregate total of 700,000 tons—nearly 40 per cent more than in the best year before the war. In the first nine months of 1954 the yards launched 7, three days after operation, slipped away from her mother ship, fitted out like Tom Sawyer with her mouth open, tearing the sutures out of the right side; and a man aged 65 who jammed his lower dental plate into the right

Real Danger Of Railroad

(Louisville Courier-Journal)

When the Illinois Central was buying right of way in Hardin County, Kentucky, a landowner named Brown bitterly opposed the railroad coming through his farm. But he was prevailed upon at last to sell his part of the right of way.

The day came when the first train was to run through. It was a long freight.

Brown had passed a neighbor said to Mr. Brown: "Now, you see, the train came through and didn't hurt anybody or damage anything."

"Yet, by grabs," Brown replied, "but just wait till the first day it comes through sideways!"

Count to Five, You Are Alive

(Brantford Exositor)

There's an old and wise observation to the effect that if you hear the thunder you haven't been hit by the lightning.

This has been brought right up to date by Dr. Lorenz Conroy, chairman, a professional consultant in anaesthesiology and operative surgery, of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation Hospital, Washington. Addressing the annual meeting of the American Society of Anaesthesiologists in Cincinnati the other day, he pulled out a tip on how to survive the A-bomb and even the H-bomb.

If you see or sense a sudden brilliant or blinding flash of light, he says, the proper thing to do is duck and count slowly to five.

If you reach five you have survived. Then do a quick check. If you aren't maimed, if you can hear, if you aren't heading badly anywhere, you probably have nothing to worry about. For it will mean that you haven't been affected directly by radiation (including X-rays and neutrons) heat or the blast wave of the bomb—and the distance flying is a factor. If you can count off the five seconds, it will mean that you were at least a mile from the heart of the A-bomb. (For H. bomb, multply by seven.)

There is grim humor in this, fun far too sardonic to be really funny, even though most of us are far too complacent on the subject.

One may wonder, on reading accounts like the foregoing, whether we are not overdoing the horrifics of H-bombs, hopefully with a view to terrifying potential enemies into peace with the aid of frightening ourselves.

Magnet Cures Nail Chewers

(Philadelphia Bulletin)

The custom of chewing nails is not common among human beings, though it is frequently manifested. The nails they chew are probably finger nails, and reasonably edible. But once the chew nails and other metallic objects and are subject to an ailment called hard-ware disease.

A preventive, if not a cure, has been found by Dr. Sam Goldwyn of Roanoke, Va. He persuades cows to swallow a powerful magnet, which collects hardware before it goes too far.

Contrary to popular impression, a cow has only one stomach, but it is a four-section affair designed to extract milk and butter from vegetation in which human beings would find nothing better than hay fever. Dr. Cooper's magnet is supposed to stay on the floor of the first instalment of the stomach, picking up scrap iron which might otherwise puncture an inner lining or block the plumbing.

It probably wouldn't work so well with nervous, restless people who get "mad enough to chew nails."

But our foes, we countries, are hydrogenous too,

It would be better if, instead of using our hydrogenous imaginations to make our hair stand on end, we set about doing something more practical along the line of civilian defence.

WHY MAKE A PRODUCTION OF IT?

In the richest medical journal in America, appeared a description of a method for reducing the orrhage after tonsilectomy. A member of the Department of Surgery, Division of Otolaryngology, of one of the surgery.

The operation takes about 30 minutes for an adult, twenty minutes for a child. Main feature of the method is that after blunt dissection, and cold wire snare to remove tonsil tissue extending into the tongue, the operator inserts four or five interrupted catgut sutures to close the wound completely but without undue tension. Then the whole procedure is repeated on the other side of the throat.

Whadaya mean formidable? In 634 cases of "closed tonsil tissue technique," as the method is called, most of them children from 3 to 12 years of age, there was no postoperative bleeding, except two accidental hemorrhages on the 6th and 7th, three days after operation, slipped away from her mother's side, and lived off the farm with her mouth open, tearing the sutures out of the right side; and a man aged 65 who jammed his lower dental plate into the right tonsil fossa and tore out the sutures. There's nothing remarkable about a 7-year-old American citizen with the high tonsil but conservation of the teeth in Yankeeland must be staunchly fudged, ed if a youngster of 65 must wear falsies.

Children more often than not eat fair sized breakfasts the morning after closed tonsilectomy. Swallowing is easier than it was before the ordinary activity. Healing is complete in four or five days. Adults can return to work in a week.

The question of the danger from blood tonsil loss is answered by the surgeon quite frankly: "If the tonsil is removed by careful blunt dissection by a competent surgeon, the number of remnants of tonsil tissue should be minimal". Where have I heard something like that before?

The surgeon who describes closed fossa tonsillectomy does not explain, probably doesn't think it necessary to explain why we should use the snare operation, out of what should be a simple office or home operation, as simple, as safe, as free from blood and safe as the extraction of a tooth—tonsillectomy. Inadequate word for "clipping" or slicing off the obstructing portion of tonsil.

I want to understand why a physician, surgeon or throat specialist should attempt anything more than simple tonsillotomy for enlarged tonsils.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WANTS

In early life we are beset with wants. That's what makes us so much richer than the richest, for the later our wants, the less of them wants with money. Wants in early life, that can be satisfied, are most, for our appreciation is freshest. Those same wants later are but faded memories.

As we grow older, and more experienced, so many of our wants have disappeared! We learn that we didn't really want to give up happiness for the unwanting less and less with the years, having centered upon the essential.

The wants of youth are not the wants of later life. Those of the latter are the calmer, or more settled wants. Instead of the companionship, friends, health are a few of those wants that tend to give us happiness and the ability to get along best with ourselves. We then love ourselves equally as well as others, and some of the wants that have served us so well. Nothing so can give such pleasure joy as to administer to the wants of childhood. Each one of us can look back and revive our own memories. How the satisfying of certain wants seemed to change our whole outlook, be it bicycle, skates, small engine, or cart. They loomed big—and some of them had to be—for contentment and "singing"—some of them departing into mere dust.

It would be a wonderful thing if we could all accurately appraise the value of the food of the mind. Benjamin Franklin once wanted a whistle and so he bought it, only to discover that he had paid too much for it!

Lessons of Experience

Experience would be a better teacher if more people were adept at driving its lessons home.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

OUR THANKSGIVING PRAYER

We thank Thee, our Heavenly Father, that we are privileged to live in a free country amid liberties purchased and retained by the blood of those who died for Thee that we have been born into Christ's kingdom, and into the Way, the Truth, and the Life. We praise and bless Thee for the opportunities we have been given to learn in schools which are dedicated to truth and to use the tools of tyrants whose aim is to destroy the bodies and minds of men.

For good health; for recovery from illness which may have come upon us or upon our loved ones; for prosperity; for the courage which we may so sorely have needed to surmount a reversal of fortune; for joys unnumbered; for sorrow met and survived in faith; for the love of dear ones; for their protection and advancement; for the privilege of living, we give Thee thanks, O Lord. For a year of rich harvests, for industry and prosperity, for the termination of armed conflict and the unwavering determination of our country to live at peace with other nations, we render our sincere thanks. Bless Thy Church. Deepen its power in men's lives and its favor in the hearts of the people that Thy blessings unto us and our loved ones. In Christ's name. Amen.

TV Set in One of Every Five Canadian Homes at Present

By GEORGE LINTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Television, a six-year-old industry in Canada, has become a giant in the field of consumergoods manufacturing.

Today there's a set in one of every five Canadian homes and only one other consumer product, the automobile, returns more buying dollars.

Canadians paid $120,000,000 for television sets in the first nine months of this year. In value of output, TV sets have surpassed refrigerators as leader among home appliance sales.

1,000,000TH SIET

This month the industry marked an achievement record—production of the 1,000,000th Canadian set. Twenty-three companies are in the field and about 25,000 workers are employed in Canada's electronics industry of which TV manufacture is a big component.

Canada's earliest reception was a jumpy picture on a 10-inch screen at Toronto's Canadian National Exhibition in 1946.

Canadian manufacturers faced a narrow market at that time for the country had no TV stations. The only hope of set sales was to residents close to the border who could tune in United States stations.

When the first Canadian television stations began operating in 1952, television set sales began to boom. From 146,000 in 1952 they jumped to 365,000 in 1953. This year's sales are expected to mount to 600,000 sets.

PRICES CONTRAST

The 10-inch receiver on display at Toronto in 1946 was priced around $850. Today most of the 17-inch sets, smallest now sold, cost around $150.

Eighteen Canadian stations now are providing television programs in areas all across the country and the number may be increased to about 30 by next summer. By this Christmas, 30 per cent of Canadian homes will be in areas of good reception, says the Canadian Radio and Television Manufacturers Association.

More than half the sets now in operation in Canada are in Ontario, according to figures compiled by RTMA. They estimate the number by regions as 11,000 in the Atlantic provinces, 280,000 in Quebec, 310,000 in Ontario, 29,000 on the Prairies and 60,000 in British Columbia.

Many Canadian viewers have been intrigued by commercial television in the United States, but no plans to introduce it in Canada have yet been made.

An all-Canada TV network however is expected to be operation by 1960.

Varying Degrees of Criticism Levied Against Crown Officers

TORONTO (CP) — Assistant crown attorney Fred J. Malone was the target Wednesday of varying degrees of criticism from lawyers appearing at an inquiry into charges of police brutality.

The lawyers' comments were heard by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach of the Ontario Supreme Court, presiding at the inquiry. The charges stemmed from a fracas at Varsity Stadium Oct. 23 after a Big Four football game between Montreal Alouettes and Toronto Argonauts.

Robert Wright, 21, said he was beaten and kicked at a police station after he was arrested in the scuffle during which James Cowie, a stadium policeman, died of a heart attack.

Earlier testimony said Mr. Malone had counselled police that newly arrested prisoners had no right to communicate with their lawyers until completion of police investigation.

SAYS UNTENABLE

A. A. Macdonald, the inquiry commission's senior counsel, said: ". . . That is the most ridiculous and untenable position we have heard . . . I take no middle position on that score . . . This thing has been a comedy of errors . . .

"I must say Mr. Malone is wrong in that attitude . . . This is not by any means the first time in this city that this sort of thing has happened . . . The rights of citizens are being lorded."

Toronto police should be "quickly disabused" of the idea that their investigations should take precedence over the rights of citizens, he said.

"It is apparently possible for an officer in Toronto to reach the rank of sergeant and still believe that a lawyer who advises his client to make no statement is guilty of obstructing the police," Mr. Macdonald said.

SAYS POLICE BLAMELESS

Senator Arthur Roebuck, representing the Toronto Police Association, said:

"I take no issue with what he (Mr. Macdonald) has said about the rights of the public . . . It is the right of John Doe to have the protection and advice of counsel."

However, the police were blameless in this respect, he said. An officer at the station at which Mr. Wright was held had sought advice from the crown attorney's office. He had merely followed that advice.

With the Grey Cup football game only three days away, Senator Roebuck asked Mr. Justice Roach for a clear definition of the proper conduct of the public and police at sports events.

ASKS DEFINITION

The senator suggested it would be unfortunate if, as a result of the inquiry, the public lost its respect for the police force, especially with the Grey Cup game coming and with it every prospect of great excitement among the fans.

In asking for a definition of the limits of permissible rowdiness, Senator Roebuck said:

"There is a lot of carrying on by people who think they are above the law. This inquiry may well be understood as a warning to police not to interfere at rowdy sports events."

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The British frigate Morecambe Bay lost a 115-mile race to one of its crew, Able Seaman Stannard—on a bicycle—the captain acknowledged Tuesday. Stannard rode the bike from Long Beach to San Diego—about 115 miles—while the frigate was steaming between the two United States navy ports. He was at the dock waiting when the frigate arrived.

Weddings

SHANNON—WOODHALL

In a ceremony on Saturday, October 16, in Corpus Christi Church, Rochester, N.Y., Barbara Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Henry Woodhall of Prince Street, Rochester, became the bride of Gerald Edward Shannon, of Brookdale Avenue, Rochester, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vincent Shannon of Plainfield, Ontario.

The couple pledged their vows in a setting of white flowers and candelabra before Rev. Raymond Shannon of Prescott, Ontario, cousin of the bridegroom. Rev. Bernard Walsh of Kingston, also cousin of the bridegroom, celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Rev. J. P. Ward, pastor of Corpus Christi Church, was present in the Sanctuary.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory silk taffeta gown 'en train' with appliques of Cyclea lace outlining the portrait neckline and trimming the full skirt. With it she wore a crown of sequins and seed pearls and a veil of illusion, and carried rhaleacarpis orchids, lily-of-the-valley and stephanotis.

Mrs. Ellis J. Spece, of Wellsville, N.Y., was matron of honor, and Mrs. William Attridge, of Rochester, was bridesmaid. Both were attired in ballerina-length gowns of light green crystalet trimmed with dark green velvet. They carried beige colored orchids and ivy.

Mr. Francis J. Shannon, of Rochester, N.Y., was groomsman for his cousin. Two brothers of the bridegroom, Mr. Clare Shannon, of Belleville, and Mr. Francis Shannon and a cousin, Mr. Harvey Shannon, of Plainfield, seated the guests.

At the reception held at the Colonial Hotel, the guests were received by the bride's mother, attired in navy blue silk taffeta with matching accessories and corsage of orchids and ivy. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a dress of dark green crepe, with autumn gold and brown accessories and corsage of orchids and ivy.

For travelling to New England and Canada, the bride chose a two-piece dress of black silk velvet with white satin and seed pearl trim and black accessories and orchid corsage.

The bride and bridesmaid are graduates of Nazareth College, Rochester.

MOYNES—CARMAN

Holloway Street United Church parsonage was the setting on Saturday, November 6, at 4.00 p.m., for a quiet, but pretty double ring wedding, when Velma Mildred Carman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carman of Bayside, was united in marriage to Elgin Douglas Moynes, son of Mrs. Earl Moynes, of Belleville, and the late Mr. Moynes. The Rev. S. R. Larman officiated.

The bride was attractively attired in a royal blue tailored suit with a rhinestone trimmed white hat, while gloves and a corsage of rust roses and carnations.

Miss Helen Arnott, of Belleville, attended the bride, dressed in a charcoal tailored suit, turquoise hat, white gloves and a corsage of pink roses and carnations.

Mr. Don McCurdy, of Foxboro, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, the bridal party was entertained at the home of the bride. The bride's mother received the guests attractively dressed in a grey tailored suit, navy accessories and a corsage of white 'mums. The bride-groom's mother was unable to attend.

Later, the bridal party enjoyed a supper at Golden Acre Inn, after which the happy couple, amid a shower of good wishes and confetti left for a trip to the U.S.A.

Mr. and Mrs. Moynes will reside at 34 Octavia Street, Belleville.

BONGARD—MACDONALD

Christ church decorated with white and pink 'mums, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, October 23rd, at 2 o'clock, when Shirley Ann, daughter of Mrs. Thelma MacDonald, Plainfield, became the bride of George Wesley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bongard, of Belleville. The double ring ceremony was performed by the rector, Archdeacon J. B. Creeggan.

Mr. John Croydon Withers, organist of the church, played the wedding music and accompanied the choir who preceded the bride down the aisle singing 'Praise My Soul, The King of Heaven." During the signing of the register, the choir sang the fifth Psalm and "Jesu Joy of Man's Desiring."

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. Charles F. Tilbrook, wore a gown of white nylon net over satin with jacket of nylon lace. The fingertip veil of nylon net was held in place by a crown of satin and seed pearls, a replica of the Queen's headdress. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink and white roses.

Miss Constance Tilbrook was maid of honor in blue nylon net over satin, her headdress of blue nylon net.

The bridesmaid, Miss Eleanor McCrory, of Canniton, wore a gown of pink nylon net over satin with headdress of pink nylon net. Both carried nosegays of autumn flowers.

Mr. Gerald Bongard was best man for his brother, and Mr. William Black and Mr. James Cook were ushers all of Belleville.

After the ceremony, the reception was held at the bride's home in Plainfield. The bride's mother received, wearing a navy blue dress with navy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who also wore a navy dress with navy accessories and corsage of pink roses.

The Rev. Everett Smith proposed a toast to the bride.

The bride chose a navy wool suit with pink accessories and a corsage of pink roses for her wedding trip by motor through the United States.

Prior to her marriage, the bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts at showers, a miscellaneous shower by A.Y.P.A. members at the home of Miss Allen Gardiner, Belleville, and a miscellaneous shower by friends in Plainfield, at the bride's home.

St. Margaret's Guild Holds Attractive Christmas Bazaar

Neither leaden skies, nor drizzling rain could dampen the spirits of the many who thronged the bazaar and tea sponsored yesterday afternoon by the Guild of St. Margarets-on-the-Hill, nor deaden the colorful Yuletide decorations which made of the assembly room a picture of beauty.

On the eastern part, rambling over dark brown curtains were lovely scintillating iridescent, green, metallic sprays, interminged with large, white poinsettias, among which gambolled a snow-white fawn. On the western part, a tall, gaily-lighted Christmas tree pointed its gleaming finger to the Giver of every good and perfect gift; while another snow-white fawn and tall candy cane flanked the walls on either side. The windows, too, had their complement of Christmas motifs in the form of a big, red poinsettia and sprays of palm leaves, and in between were cut-out Christmas trees, with frosted branches.

PRESIDING

The tea table was appointed with white damask, centred by a gleaming Christmas tree, fashioned from green and silver glass, and flanked by tall, green candles in silver holders. Presiding at the silver services were: Mrs. J. B. Creeggan, wife of Archdeacon Creeggan, of Christ Church; Mrs. Everett Smith, wife of the assistant rector of Christ Church; Mrs. W. J. Robinson, wife of the rector of St. Thomas Church, and Mrs. R. Babcock.

The little quartet tables were covered with white cloths and presided over by ladies enjoying a pleasant get-together.

Those serving included: Mesdames R. Bailey, D. Brown, Hay, DeCarlo, A. Plaizik, B. Balyea, W. Roberts, and E. Bowsman. Assisting in the tea room: Mesdames H. Wright, D. Allan, G. Platt, Burns, R. Angus, R. Brettingham and L. Saunders.

APRONS

The various booths were decorated with garlands of evergreen and red and green, with miniature Christmas trees. Convening the aprons were Mrs. Taylor, assisted by Mrs. J. Bennett, who were busily busy wrapping up the many purchases, of aprons of every hue and color in all the fashionable half styles and all-over variety, there were aprons with borders of large, red strawberries with edge scalloped in yellow.

Others had bands of yellow, blue, red, green, divided by white, ric-rac braid; soft and warm flannelette pyjamas, pretty cushion covers, cushions, tiny crocheted baskets for dice-dish treats, little boiler cases, pale blue broadcloth aprons with shirred waistbands accented by pretty colour ric-rac brain, and many other dainty kinds, all pretty, and all just right to put in some Christmas parcel.

FANCY ARTICLES

The knitting and handicraft booth had its quota also of many delightful articles such as Christmas stockings, felt doll folds with sequin trim in colors of green and blue; Christmas corsages of tiny little red, green and yellow globes with sprigs of pine, hot dish mats in crochet centred by a blue rose, a baby set knitted in shell pink, and one in white with blue trim, felt tams with felt 'mums, a starlish centre piece in sea-crochet, little knit sockees, and two little Christmas trees indicative of the manufacture of star-pointed crinoline material, and dotted with red, green, blue and yellow sequins, centred by a red candle and small candle, ropped lively, as the tree boles. This booth was convened by Mrs. J. Hilchie, and Mrs. H. Thain.

DOLLS

Mrs. R. Van Everdingen and Mrs. Owens had charge of the doll booth with its attractive little dolls, and wooden chair with its shelves of tiny toys, teddy bears, knitters, tanks, cars, Donald Duck books, racks of doll dresses and crocheted and knitted sweaters, all that any doll would want, tiny hats and bonnets, and little aprons, and nighties.

The novelties drew their quota of buyers. There was a heterogeneous collection of oddments: African violets, a barrel wine set, little fancy pitchers, plastic cake plate with handle, costume jewellery of every variety, rings, brooches, lapel pins, bracelets, beads, birds of Paradise, compacts, and assorted fancy pouches and dog and sleigh. Mrs. A. Watson and Mrs. L. F. Reid had charge of these.

ATTRACTIVE CANDIES

The candy table was most attractive with its little taffy apples, popcorn balls with candy canes for handles, cups of cream, fudge, chocolates, divinity fudge, cups of assorted sweets, and cellophane bags with candy cane and a generous mixture of the above candies, and boxes of hand-dipped chocolates. Convening these were Mrs. F. H. Clarke, Mrs. J. Shepherd and Miss B. Bennett.

The homecooking was literally ransacked with purchasers, and kept the dispensers of the dainty confections on their toes wrapping up the pies, both lemon and apple, angel cakes, taffy and plain tarts, boiled raisin bread, chocolate nut squares, lemon cup cakes, white layer cakes with mounds of delicious boiled icing, sundial party cakes, pineapple fluffy 4-x-8 pastry pie with lattice work face, cup cakes in chocolate with tiny whipped cream icing, hermits, and many cookies. Convening these were Mrs. D. Leeming, Mrs. C. W. McIlraith, and Mrs. W. M. Bishop.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BROKEN HEARTS REALLY MEND, TEEN-AGERS!

Some people have unhappy experiences and, refusing to allow themselves to get over them naturally, remember them with bitterness all their lives. Others—they suffer just as much when the unhappy thing occurs—are willing to let themselves recover and, in the course of time, find that they have actually learned something useful from the episode.

In between are the young people who, when some misfortune strikes them, are convinced that their lives are ruined forever, then get over it in spite of themselves and go blithely on their way.

This conviction of the younger generation applies particularly, of course, to affairs of the heart. Just let a teen-age romance be blasted, and the one left with the temporarily broken heart is perfectly certain that she—or he—will go mourning down through the years, never discarding the last damp handkerchief of tears, until it drops from her—or his—palsied hands.

There's nothing an older person can tell them that makes any difference. Even though they beg for advice on "how to forget", they firmly believe all the time that they never will.

So it's a very pleasant thing when once in awhile, some young person volunteers the information that she has discovered all by herself, from personal experience, that a broken heart doesn't last forever, and that it's even possible, eventually, to take an interest again in the opposite sex.

With the thought that it might help some other girls who may have made mistakes similar to her own, an 18-year-old sends me the following letter, which she asks me to print. Her chief concern, however, is not with the fact that she survived her blasted romance and lived to sit up and take notice once more. That comes in more or less incidentally. What she wants to get across is a warning not to be in a hurry to tell your boy friend you're in love with him, which is another matter of very practical value.

So here's the 18-year-old's letter, and each young reader can take from it whatever applies to her own case:

"Two years ago, a very nice-looking boy moved to my community and we went to school together. Right away, I thought he was the one for me, and I thought he felt the same way.

"He seemed a little distant, though, and I got the idea it was because he was shy and afraid I didn't like him. So I wrote him a letter telling him I loved him.

"This was the greatest mistake of my life. Soon after, he didn't bother much about me except to tease me, and he would make up to other girls in front of me to make me feel bad. I even overheard him telling a boy friend of his that he could have a big time now, because I would love him regardless of what he did.

"I was idiot enough to go on loving him, because I thought I could never forget him, and I almost had a nervous breakdown. Now I realize that I didn't really love him at all. I was just infatuated. He moved away, and love went with him. For awhile, I was heartbroken, but time has taken it all from me, and I'm out now to find the one I really do love, and one who would make me a perfect mate. I know that in time I'll meet him."

More power to this 18-year-old, I say! And I hope her letter may help a lot of teen-agers dry their tears over broken romances and realize the boys they lost aren't the last ones in the world!

Dual-Purpose Christmas Cookies

By Mary Moore

We were driving by a bridle path on the side of a hill yesterday when Marianne reminded me of the good old days when she used to hike along it, when she and Pete were young, for our holiday cook-out suppers.

My youngsters, who are now full-grown, love to think of those precious times together. That's because it was family fun.

How I wish I had those two pairs of little hands, grubby and all as they sometimes were, to help me roll out the Christmas cookies this year. Actually I'm lucky because Roddy, who is three, and David, who is six, are my beloved little neighbor children and their mother shares them with me.

They have helped me roll and cut out some of the special Christmas cookies you will find here today. Can you imagine how proud they will be to reach up into their tree for a cookie-Santa to give to one of their little friends on Christmas Day?

CUT-OUT COOKIES

Four cups sifted cake flour, 2 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 2-3 cup soft shortening, 1 1-2 cups granulated sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 6 teaspoons milk. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream shortening, sugar, eggs and vanilla. Add flour mixture alternately with milk. Chill dough thoroughly. Heat oven to 400 deg. F. Roll half or third of dough at a time on lightly floured, cloth-covered board. Keep rest of dough chilled. Roll dough paper-thin for crisp cookies. For soft-er cookies, roll to 1-8" or 1-4" thickness. With floured cutter, cut into desired shapes. (See notes below.) Place on lightly greased cookie sheet, 1-3" apart. Bake until delicate brown (about 9 minutes).

NOTE:

(1) If you want cookies to hang on the Christmas tree, press a loop of clean string into the cut-out dough just before baking. (2) To decorate cookies, you may use a toothpick-dipped in green or red food coloring and, with it, pick out the features of Santa Claus, or the tassels of Christmas tree, or points of a star, or the clapper of a bell. (3) Colored granulated sugar or silver drageés are some of the simpler decorations.

MINCEMEAT COOKIES

These keep and travel well in mailed parcels. Each cookie should be wrapped separately.

Three cup thick mincemeat, 3 1-2 cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking soda, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon instant coffee, 1 cup shortening, 2 cups (well-packed) brown sugar, 2 eggs. Heat oven to 400 deg. F. Sift together flour, soda, salt and instant coffee. Cream shortening, add sugar, then add eggs, mincemeat and flour mixture. Drop by teaspoonfuls, 2 inches apart, onto greased cookie sheet. Bake until brown (about 12 minutes).

FINNISH SHORTBREAD

This recipe comes from Finland, yet note how similar it is to our familiar Scotch Shortbread.

Three-quarters cup soft butter, 1-4 cup sugar, 1 teaspoon almond extract, 2 cups sifted flour. Mix together butter, sugar and almond extract. Stir in flour and mix thoroughly using your hands.

Chill dough. Roll out to 1-4-inch thickness. Cut into strips 2 1-2" long and 3-4" wide. Beat 1 egg white slightly and use this to brush tops of cookies. Mix 1-3 cup finely chopped blanched almonds and 1 tablespoon sugar and sprinkle over top. Transfer carefully to ungreased cookie sheet. Bake just until cookies are delicately brown in moderate oven (about 350 deg. F.) about 17 to 20 minutes.

Mother's Helper

IF YOU'RE planning to include your young children in a big holiday dinner with extra guests, be sure to plan dinner-time at an hour when they (and you) will enjoy the occasion. Try to have it before they're too hungry or tired, even though your adult schedule must change.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

POUCHES UNDER THE EYES

Pouches under the eyes make a woman look old and haggard. Unless she has inherited this condition, it can be corrected. What she must do is to find the cause. That is something that women seldom do when they have beauty problems. Instead, they seek cures. Quick ones.

Loss of sleep, overwork and fatigue are common sources of these swollen tissues. A warm bath will take the ache from one's bones, relax the nerves. After the fifteen-minute soaking and a rousing scrubbing with a brush to stimulate the blood streams, the heavy-eyed woman should apply ice cold compresses to her eyes, after which she should spread a heavy cream on the surrounding tissues, working from the inner corner of the upper eyelid out to the the temple, coming back under the eye to starting point.

This treatment will tend to keep lines from forming. The tissues on these areas are soft and delicate, the underlying fibers small.

Beauticians suggest that our worried friend should drink quantities of water each day—at least four glasses. Water is more essential to well being and good appearance than many women realize.

The right kind of make-up will help. A darker powder, than that used on the face fluffed over the swollen areas will throw them into a shadow.

Rouge should be of subdued coloring—only the faintest rosy flim. It should extend far out at the sides of the face—never placed below the line of the center of the cheek.

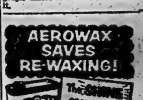
THANKSGIVING DAY . . . THE TURKEY-THANKS DAY

"BREAD ON YOUR TABLE GRACE IN YOUR HEART"

Even though, in your home, it is not the custom to say grace—why not at your table this Thanksgiving Day say some heart-uplifting words to express your gratitude for the "bread on your table" and to show the "grace in your heart"? To say thanks is good, very, very good. An inspiration for our thoughts. A tonic for our spirits. The words of thanks-giving you say may be the inspiring words of a traditional grace . . . or they may be a few simple words of your own, words of gratitude said in the spirit of this wonderful old adage:

"And whether we have less or more,
Always thank we God therefor."



SHALL SHE GIVE HIM HER PHOTOGRAPH?

Dear Mrs. Beecham:

I have a boyfriend whom I like very much, although we don't "go steady." I have just had some photographs taken, and I would like to give him one. Is this proper? — Patricia D.

Better not give him your photograph unless or until he asks for it.

Mr., Mrs. F. Sarles Celebrate 50th Anniversary

On Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sarles, of Stirling, celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Their daughter and her family, Mr. and Mrs. M. Laflin of Whitby, spent the week-end with her parents and on Sunday afternoon many friends and relatives called to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Sarles and to wish them health and happiness.

Mrs. (Gertie) Ben Dickens, of Belleville, bridesmaid of 50 years ago, and sister of the bridegroom, also Mr. Murney Stapley, of Stirling, best man and brother of the bride, spent the afternoon and evening with Mr. and Mrs. Sarles.

In the afternoon Mr. Bert Sarles asked friends and relatives to give him their attention while he read a short address signed on behalf of Mr. Sarles' brother, Bert, of Trenton, and his sisters, Mrs. Edward (Marina) Walsh, of Moira, and Mrs. Ben (Gertie) Dickens, of Belleville, congratulating Mr. and Mrs. Sarles on their golden anniversary, with appreciation for their kindly lives and Christian influence, couched in verse form, wishing them health and happiness in the years that lie ahead, and asking that they would accept this gift in token of their high esteem and love.

Following the address a lovely table lamp was presented by Mr. Sarles' brother and sisters.

Among the many other gifts received was a cake plate decorated in gold, one with 50 new one dollar bills, this being a gift from the family of Mrs. Sarles, "the Stapleys."

Mr. and Mrs. Sarles thanked relatives and friends for their kindness shown on this, their anniversary.

In the evening pictures were taken of the bridal party, also family pictures. The day closed with their friends and relatives again wishing them many more years of health and happiness.

Minister Tries To Settle Ford Strike

TORONTO (CP)—Rev. M. C. Davies, Speaker of the Ontario legislature and rector of St. George's Anglican church in Walkerville, said Wednesday he is the third party promoting settlement of the paralyzing wage strike of 7,800 men at Ford Motor Company plants in Canada.

For the first time since negotiations resumed Sunday, Mr. Davies was identified as the mediator guiding the meetings between the company and the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL).

The talks have been only exploratory to date but both parties hope they will lead to direct contract negotiations. The walkout now is in its seventh week.

ISSUES STATEMENT

Mr. Davies, Progressive Conservative member of the legislature for Windsor-Walkerville, issued a statement saying:

"At the request of representatives of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. and Local 200, United Auto Workers, I was requested to be chairman of meetings of discovery for resuming negotiations on the present difficulties.

"Such meetings have been held since last Sunday morning and are continuing. I have accepted this onerous responsibility fully aware of my shortcomings, but as a priest of the church I pledge myself to give my very best in its services."

Those close to the meetings said Mr. Davies had entered the strike picture as a minister of the church and not as a member of the government. Neither company nor union officials would comment.

DEALER TROUBLES

As the talks continued, Ford dealers, some with new cars to show but none to sell, were reported laying off sales and mechanical help in increasing numbers.

Several distributors are reported to have hired their salesmen to Queen's Park officials.

"The fact is that business is going past their doors to their competitors," one Queen's Park official said. "It is going to be a gloomy Christmas unless the strike is soon settled."

Ross Fewster New President Of Rural Assoc.

GALT (CP) — Ross Fewster of Ingersoll was elected president of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association Wednesday. He succeeds G. R. Stewart of Barrie, who held the post for two years.

Vice-presidents are: W. D. Scott of Copetown, E. V. Mehlenbacher of Cayuga and Joseph Steen of Erin. Horace Ovenden of Wainfleet was named secretary-treasurer.

Fewster appointed James Richardson of St. Mary's and Arthur Lawson of London to the executive.

Delegates to the association's annual meeting agreed that all group champions must play off for the all-Ontario championship. Senior and intermediate A champions will meet in one series, intermediate B and C in the other. The winners meet in the finals for the cup.

A motion that OHA senior B players be eligible to play in OHJA competition without obtaining permission of the executive was defeated.

Smog Control Measures Urged In Great Britain

LONDON (Reuters)—A government-appointed committee of experts today outlined a comprehensive program for ending Britain's perennial smogs and restoring a state of air cleanliness unknown for the last 100 years.

The anti-pollution recommendations involve drastic controls on the use of coal by home owners and factories, with local governments given vastly increased powers to eliminate the emission of smoke into the atmosphere.

The committee notified the government, at the end of an exhaustive study, that air pollution has become a "social and economic evil of the first magnitude," costing $100,000,000 a year apart from the gigantic wastage of inefficiently used fuel.

Bailey Bridge Opened

TORONTO (CP)—Traffic moved through Hogg's Hollow at the northern city limits Wednesday night for the first time since the collapse of a two-lane bridge four days ago.

North and southbound traffic moved over a temporary Bailey bridge put up after the old Hogg's Hollow bridge, weakened by the Oct. 15 flood collapsed Sunday.

Mechanical Engineers in Short Supply Says Labor Dept.

OTTAWA (CP)—If you're looking for a professional job in Canadian industry, mechanical engineering is the best bet for the next couple of years.

A labor department survey made public Wednesday shows the tightest shortage in professional help through 1955 and 1956 will be for mechanical engineers. These are men trained to handle all forms of motive power other than electrical machinery, inventing, designing and manufacturing various types.

After this group, the survey shows, come geological, chemical, mining, electrical, metallurgical and civil engineers.

The conclusions of the labor department's research and economics branch were reached after a canvass of 800 firms employing 17,000 professional personnel.

FAVORABLE LOOK

In another survey, the department found that employers now are looking more favorably on university graduates as recruits to business, regardless of what courses they have taken.

In the past, a department statement said, finding work for all arts graduates was difficult. But employers now feel their training gives them maturity and tends to make them valuable employees.

The survey indicated that the continuing shortage of dentists has reached "a critical stage." The prospective graduating classes over the next few years would not even take care of the annual deficit of dentists.

No Details Released

EDMONTON (CP)—Dr. M. M. Cantor, Alberta's chief coroner, said Wednesday he has received by mail details of an autopsy performed in Kingston, Ont., on the body of Mrs. Margaret Thompson, 33, Calgary, who died Nov. 14.

Dr. Cantor released no details. He said he has passed the report to Attorney-General Maynard, who was not immediately available for comment.

The autopsy was performed on instructions from Calgary police and Dr. Cantor which indicated Mrs. Thompson's death was not from natural causes.

The woman, mother of five, died in Calgary. A heart attack was given as cause. Her body was sent to the Kingston home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Brown.

CEYLON FOREST

Actual birth was accomplished without any apparent strain or sound from the mother. The mother left the baby and walked about 10 paces away. She trumpeted and the other elephants emerged from the jungle, also trumpeting, and seemed to caress the mother again with their trunks.

"Then all eight turned in unison to the child," Andiris reported. "One raised it about four feet from the ground, then gently lowered it on its feet. In turn each one of the eight moved past the newborn baby and blew sand on it with their trunks, drying its hide. This continued for half an hour, at the end of which time the calf stood quite steady on its feet and attempted to suck milk from the other elephants.

"Fifteen minutes later the mother, ending her postnatal rest on the ground, stood up, trumpeted loudly, and walked swiftly to her tiny child. Then she lifted it with her trunk and took it aside from the other elephants.

"Then as the calf attempted to suckle the mother the big female elephant gently lowered herself to her knees and permitted her child to have its first meal.

"This important event finished, the mother again trumpeted, picked up her calf in her trunk, raised it high over her head and disappeared into the jungles, escorted on either side by her 'maternity' staff.

"This was exclusively a female affair. The male elephants gave this spot a wide berth."

FRANKFORD

St. John's Church Laymen's Assoc. Holds Meeting

FRANKFORD — Members of the Laymen's Association of St. John's Church, Frankford, were present at the service of Evensong on Sunday and saw slides on the recent Anglican Congress held in Minneapolis. Afterwards they met in the hall and discussed business matters relating to the church school pageant and other activities of the school. A round table discussion took place on the Missionary work of the church.

George Noble and Ralph Andrews reported on their visitation. Ray Mallory and Bruce Bell were appointed visitors for the coming month.

The president, Ray Mallory, welcomed Mr. Sam Walker to the meeting.

The rector spoke on "Stewardship," illustrating with pamphlets.

Crackers, cheese, cookies and tea were served at the close.

Madoc

TRINITY WMS

MADOC — Mrs. R. C. Jackson was the hostess to the members of the Women's Missionary Society on Wednesday afternoon with an attendance of 17 members.

Mrs. Albert Empey took charge of the meeting in the absence of the president, Mrs. D. Carman.

Mrs. Lane was pianist for the meeting. Mrs. Empey offered prayer for the Missionary. Mrs. T. Bennett read a letter from Miss Millicent Howes telling of her work in Africa and thanking the members of our society for the gifts sent to her to be used as she would see fit.

An account of the Presbytery supper was given by Mrs. Empey. The proceeds to be used for the expense account of the society.

The slate of officers was brought in by the nominating committee, the installation to be at a later date.

Miss A. Holmes, Supply secretary, reminded of the bale and the need for good used clothing. Each member is to bring an article for the towel bib to the Christmas meeting instead of the usual exchange of gifts. Mrs. Empey reminded the members that the December meeting would be a joint meeting with the W.A. and would be held at Mrs. Lane's.

The worship service was taken by Mrs. Lane who began her service with a Remembrance Day thought and reading of a poem on "Remembrance". Mrs. George Devolin also gave a reading on "Remembrance".

The theme "Discovery and Mission", a challenge to the WMS to carry on in the church that carries on the life of Christ. Mrs. J. Starring read the Bible Story bearing on the theme.

The program was taken by Mrs. E. Moore, who was assisted by Mrs. Jackson, and Mrs. McCoy, who gave readings on Remembrance Day. Owing to the lateness, the study book was left for further meeting.

A social half hour followed.

W.I.

The Madoc Branch of the W.I. held its regular meeting at the home of Mrs. G. C. Moon, on Friday afternoon. Mrs. Herrington, the president, was in charge and conducted the business.

At this time Mrs. Beatty made reference to the Tweedsmuir Book commending Mrs. James Aylesworth on her untiring efforts in compiling the book. In appreciation of her work, Mrs. Aylesworth was presented with a gift from the W.I. members.

Mrs. Allan Pigden gave a fine talk on 'Current Events'. Mrs. Beatty and Mrs. G. C. Moon reported the highlights of the Area Convention held at Belleville quite recently.

Mrs. K. Nicol, who was privileged to visit the home of the United Nations in New York this past summer, gave a most interesting and informative paper on what she saw and learned.

Mrs. E. Moore gave a talk on the motto of the month, which was interesting.

A committee of Mrs. K. Nicol and Mrs. G. Hill was appointed to enquire re. the flag for the Memorial Park.

After a vote of thanks to all who took part in the program and to the hostess, a pleasant social half hour followed.

Sen. Euler Urges Housewives To Fight for Colored Oleo

TORONTO (CP)—The man who first successfully introduced a bill in Canada lifting the ban on margarine sale and manufacture has urged housewives to fight for colored margarine and repeal of the 10-per-cent sales tax.

Senator W. D. Euler of Kitchener, speaking at a conference on the economic and nutrition significance of margarine held by the institute of edible oil foods, said Wednesday a plebiscite would show Canadians overwhelmingly in support of colored margarine.

He said the housewife could best fight the color ban and the sales tax through appeal to elected representatives.

"There is no reason why housewives should be forced to go on coloring margarine in their kitchen when the manufacturer is prepared to do it without extra cost" he said.

ON SALES TAX

Concerning the sales tax, he added: "All foods should be exempt and I think the fact it is still on margarine is partially an oversight. When an exemption schedule went into effect there was no such thing as margarine."

A gathering of women's groups, food manufacturers and medical people heard support for removal of the colored margarine ban.

At present, colored margarine can be sold in British Columbia and Newfoundland. No margarine is manufactured and sold in Quebec or Prince Edward Island.

SUPPORTS SENATOR

Support for Senator Euler's statement that Canadians would support lifting of the color ban came from Miss Byrne Hope Sanders, of Sander's Marketing Research, the organization which conducts the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion.

Miss Sanders said that a public opinion poll conducted in 1953 by the Institute showed Canadians 80 per cent in favor of lifting the ban as against 35 per cent in favor in 1943.

Farming population sampled by the poll in 1953 showed 30 per cent in favor as against 25 per cent support 10 years ago, Miss Sanders said.

K. A. Standing, secretary-manager of the Ontario soya-bean growers marketing board, said prospects for continued expansion of soya-bean production in Ontario are "promising." Present production of edible oils from home-grown soya beans was capable of supplying all the soybean oil used in margarine production in Canada.

BIG OUTPUT

SHOTTON, England (CP)—The Hawarden Bridge Works in this Flintshire town established a European record by producing 3,-000 tons of pig iron from a single blast furnace in one week.

Elimination Of Level Crossings Is Recommended

TORONTO (CP)—Gradual elimination of all 19 level-crossings in the metropolitan Toronto area at an estimated total cost of $15,000,-000 was recommended Wednesday by the metropolitan council's roads committee.

The committee proposed an immediate start on doing away with four of the crossings.

Leslie Allan, metropolitan roads engineer, said the federal board of transport commissioners has increased to $300,000 the limit of grants from the railways to municipalities which remove level crossings. Formerly the limit was $150,-000.

The committee also recommended that a proposed $12,000,000 super-highway up the Don valley in northeast Toronto be started immediately. The road would connect with the projected lakeshore expressway on the south and, either directly or through links with other roads, with the Toronto by-pass highway on the north.

Duck Hunters Are Rescued

HAMILTON (CP) — An early-morning duck-hunting trip nearly ended in disaster for two Hamilton men, when their tiny boat was dragged into Lake Ontario by a cool, stiff breeze.

Earl Grainger and Ross Marinelli managed to pull their boat back into shore, using a broken thwart as a paddle, just before a Hamilton harbor commission rescue boat reached them.

The two men set out about 7:30 Wednesday. A short distance from shore, they lost one paddle and a stiff breeze caught the blind they had built on the boat, pulling them farther and farther from land.

The tiny boat, nearly half-filled with water, drifted slowly a mile offshore. Numbed with cold, the two men tore off the thwart, to replace their lost paddle, and worked their way back to shore.

Armed Showdown Settled Moscow Struggle for Power

NEW YORK (AP)—An "armed showdown" by Communist leaders in the Kremlin settled the Moscow struggle for power and sent police boss Lavrenty Beria to his doom, says a former officer of Beria's forces.

Writing in Life magazine, LL-Col. Yuri Rastvorov, who defected to the Americans in Japan last January, declares:

Beria, allied with Stalin's son, LL-Gen. Vasily Stalin, gathered forces during Stalin's final illness with the intention eventually of seizing the Soviet government by force. Marshal Georgi Zhukov and other military leaders, fearing a blood purge even greater than Stalin's if Beria succeeded, joined forces with Georgi Malenkov and other Communist elements to thwart the intended coup, seize Beria and his cohorts and send them to death by execution.

Expenses High For Democrats In Election

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Democrats spent all-least $1,081,396 this year on the election campaign that won the governorship for Averell Harriman.

And the Democratic state committee went into the red for $434,-699, reports filed with the state secretary showed Wednesday.

Republican filed expense statements totalling at least $884,679 for the statewide campaign. But the Republican state committee turned up with a surplus of $50,146.

Harriman himself and members of his family gave and loaned at least $113,044 to the Democratic campaign fund.

20-Year Contract Given Sullivan

NEW YORK (AP)—The Columbia Broadcasting System announced Wednesday it has signed a 20-year contract with producer star Ed Sullivan.

Terms were not disclosed, but were said in trade circles to run into five figures weekly.

The National Broadcasting Co. was known to have been dickering with Sullivan on a possible switch when his current CBS contract expires in the fall of 1955.

Sullivan is co-producer and master of ceremonies of "Toast of the Town" which has been on CBS television without a break on Sunday nights since June 20, 1948.

Will Seek Control

EDMONTON (CP)—Solon Low, national leader of the Social Credit party, said Wednesday the party will seek control of the House of Commons in the next federal general election.

"Believe me we're making our bid in 1956," Mr. Low told the Alberta Social Credit League annual convention.

SEEK APPROVAL

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—A spokesman for Canada's UN delegation announced Tuesday that the government intends to seek parliamentary approval of a contribution for 1955 of $1,350,000 to the UN expanded program of technical assistance.

Divorce Settlement

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Actress Rita Hayworth and Aly Khan Wednesday got the legal stamp of approval on a divorce settlement which sets up an elaborate guarantee for the return of their five-year-old daughter, Yasmin, when she visits the Moslem prince.

The 22-page document, which also sweeps aside any legal questions concerning their 1953 Nevada divorce, made no mention of a huge inheritance when Yasmin's grandfather, the Aga Khan, dies.

Rita's lawyer, Bartley Crum, earlier had told reporters Yasmin would inherit under Moslem law "a very substantial amount"—rumored at $140,000,000.

The agreement, approved in court, provides that the red-haired actress receive $8,000 a year for the child's support.

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Buyers paid $29,625 for 40 head of Holsteins Wednesday in the annual auction sale held by Rosafe Farms, Brampton, Ont.

The animals, including 18 bulls, brought an average price of $900 each, topped this year only by the Holstein Sale of the Stars at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair in Toronto.

Romance Over

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The romance of Liberace and Joanne Rio is over, the pretty brunette announced Wednesday.

"I don't intend to date him any more," Miss Rio said. "I don't think it's right for either of us."

The love match blew up over the issue of some articles she wrote about the 34-year-old candelabra king for a newspaper syndicate. He was quoted as saying he disapproved of the stories, which detailed their romance.

15 Men Accused Of Free-Masonry

BANCROFT

Over 750 Attend North Hastings High School Commencement

BANCROFT — More than 750 people jammed the auditorium at the North Hastings high school commencement held on Friday Friday night.

Principal Gordon Wragg introduced the guest speaker G. W. Smith, principal of the "Grove" school, Lakefield. The speaker was thanked by public school principal Gordon Fresque.

VALEDICTORY

Miss June Keller presented the valedictory and an entertainment program was provided by the junior and senior girls clubs, directed by A. F. Zettler, and the school band under the direction of Charles Montreuil.

The presentation body comprised school board members Guy Beckley, Emerson Laundry and Wayne McMurtrery; staff members, W. A. Morrison, and Ernest Carswell, student council president; Haroldeen Watson, Cadet Major Cyril Sharp, and Mrs. R. L. Reid.

Concluding the valedictory, Miss Keller said, "It is with deep regret that we leave here tonight to proceed further into our already chosen fields of work. As we come up against new people, new ideas, and new attitudes, we think back to the valuable lessons we have learned here — lessons of co-operation, perseverance, humility and self reliance. From our Alma Mater we take sufficient knowledge to form a basis for further learning. To those who remain we leave our motto: "Vincit Fides, Dignitas" — strength, loyalty and honor — which has been our guide in the past five years and which we hope will remain as yours in the years to come. Be it yours to pass on."

Lewicki, Leafs' Castoff, Proves Scoring Pepper-Pot For Rangers

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By Geo. H. Carver, Sports Editor

ANOTHER TIE!

Hockey dressing rooms before and between periods and after the game is no place for a sportswriter. Shucks, it is all right in the metropolitan centres where coaches and players love to "give" to the scribes, but here in the sticks it is not good policy.

If it were, we might be able to discover what Coach Frank Boucher injects into his Memos between the second and third periods. It's damfunnie, but this Memo gang can be anywhere up to a dozen goals down going into the final heat and they come up roaring like a cataract to climb back into the fray and at least tie it, even if it does take overtime.

Take last night in Peterborough. We don't know if the Memos took the Petes on their basis of league standing, but if they did they got fooled—but plenty. The Petes ran in five goals to a single return after twenty-eight minutes of play, then the Memos realized they were in a hockey game.

They ripped back for a pair in the period and then went on to score another double in the third to tie the count while holding the Peterborite gang off the board, and ditto'ed that performance in the overtime. And by the same token, the Petes did just that to them in the extra session.

The Memos haven't struck that Cornwall stride yet, but with a day's rest they should be in fine fettle for the proud Colts come Friday evening. They had better be, for the Cornwall crew haven't recovered from that big horse collar the Beachcomers hung on them last Sunday. It should be a top-roarer of a game. Let's hope the boys get caught up with their income tax and forget about civic elections and the price of salami on Zwicks Island, and get down to serious business and hockey brass tacks—by fish-day evening.

GAGNET (With Apologies)

This is the city. This is the sprawling hive with its thousands of teeming human bees. (Some of the queens ain't so bad.) This is the metropolis (Greek for village of 10,000 plus), which has its wards (including teams and badminton), its judges, its officials (the referees stink), and its law and order. It has a library with books in it—a city hall with a council in it—and an arena, with pucks in it.

It has its police and fire departments. Both are here to protect the people and property. Both hold their annual balls. The latest "bawl" resulted in a salary increase.

The story you are about to read is not a true one. The names have been left in to protect the innocent.

I belong to the "Louie-the-Lash Private Eye and Freelag Pugil Investigation Association." My partner is Shamus Shoughnessy. My boss is Sleuth Snoopoodle. My name is Monday. I was born Friday.

The powery-thai-be' distributed the annual Grey Cup tickets. After allotting teams, member associations, distilleries, breweries, insurance companies, brokerage houses, personal friends and the stinky sets that quote, "The pasteboards are missing." It is rumored they are in this neighborhood. Your job—try and get 'em. That's our job, too.

It was cold in the city yesterday. At 8.20 we reported in to the office. 8.40, the phone rang. Shamus got it.

"Yup . . . yup. What's the address . . . Yup, be right over. All right boys, this may be it."

9.10 a.m. We entered a department store. The manager beckoned to us. "That stout lady by the corset counter," he whispered. "She keeps pulling an envelope from her purse and looking at what appears to be tickets."

9.15 a.m. we approached the lady. "Pardon me, ma'am," I said. "Private detectives. Could we ask you a few questions, ma'am? Just routine."

She bristled. Four chins overlapped in indignation. "Private eyes, eh?" she quivered. "Well, I ain't done nuthin'. Me ole man's done nuthin', and me income tax is paid."

"No offence, ma'am." I said. We questioned her and found the tickets in question were for the Annual Dishwashers' and Chairdusters' Marching Society's Christmas turkey draw.

11.00 a.m. We had investigated several false clues. It looked like a dead end.

2.30 p.m. We investigated a call that led us to two bearded characters who had been acting suspiciously. They had been seen taking tickets from their wallets and gloating over them. We questioned them and discovered they were nuclear scientists who had just invested their money in tickets for the annual Fission Chip Jamboree.

3.40 p.m. the phone rang. I answered it. It was a drugstore clerk who excitedly told me he had a boy in his store who had two pasteboards that looked like the subjects. I woke Shamus and Sleuth and we proceeded to the spot.

4.00 p.m. We questioned the suspect. Finally he admitted he had the tickets. This was it. "I didn't steal 'dem, he shrilled, "I found 'em in a garbage can." Sleuth lifted an eyebrow and smiled, sarcastically, "Shamus must be slippin' or this kide lyin.' Shamus woulda found 'em on his morning inspection and search for cigaret butts."

4.15 p.m. "Okay sonny," I said, "we'll have to take you down to headquarters." The suspect was searched and held.

Later the case was heard in the juvenile court. After hearing the evidence and inspecting Exhibit "A" the judge dismissed the case.

The tickets found on the accused were of the Grey Cup variety, but were dated 1951.

Shamus and Sleuth are now back at their former occupation, and appear happy with the job of wearing out pick handles for a construction company.

Me? I have gone back to the moonshine business. I am now known as "Snitch No. 3145".

Sparks Club to 3-1 Victory To Break Blues' Loss String; Runs Season's Goal Bag to 13

By The Canadian Press

For years Danny Lewicki was known as the problem child of big league hockey. But the only trouble he's stirring up these days is against National League goaltenders.

Lewicki, whose best move came when he was switched into New York Rangers by Toronto Maple Leafs earlier this year, scored two goals Wednesday night to lead Rangers to a 3-1 victory over Boston Bruins in a tough game at New York.

It was the only game of the night. Lewicki stole the glory by beating goaltender Johnny Henderson in the second and third periods before 10,335 hometown fans. It ran the 25-year-old leftwinger's goal output this season to 14 goals in 19 games, close to the leaders.

It's been a long time since Danny has done that well in the NHL. He was ushered into the big time in 1950 with enough rave notices for five players but turned out to be a one-year flash. He scored 16 goals in 61 games in the 1950-51 campaign but never came close to that figure in succeeding years.

That's why he found himself being shunted, time and forth to the Leafs' farmhand Pittsburgh Hornets of the American League until this season when he shed a Toronto uniform for the last time.

The victory broke a five-game New York losing streak but left Rangers in fourth place with 17 points, six behind the second-place Toronto Maple Leafs and Detroit Red Wings. Bruins are in fifth place.

Rightwinger Wally Hergesheimer scored his first goal of the season when he whipped a shot past Henderson at 13:35 of the first period to break a shutout streak of 160 minutes and 50 seconds by Henderson. Hergesheimer, once top Ranger scorer, had been out of action since March 11 when he broke a leg against Bruins.

Lorne Ferguson counted at 10:43 of the third period to round out the scoring.

Lewicki got his first goal at 2:12 of the middle period on passes by Rangers ahead 2-0. Don Raleigh and Aldo Guidolin were given assists. The second came at 4:21 of the third, with Dean Prentice assisting.

Referee Frank Udvari handed out 19 penalties, including two 10-minute misconducts and two majors. Boston was given 10 of the penalties. The fight broke out in the third period between Raleigh and Boston's Bob Armstrong after got majors.

Every team faces action tonight. The league-leading Montreal Canadiens go against last-place Black Hawks at Chicago, Leafs are at Detroit and Rangers go to Boston.

If You Believe The Records, Larks Will Win by 8 Points

MONTREAL (CP) — If both teams play according to their season records, the Montreal Alouettes figure to beat Edmonton Eskimos by about eight points in the Grey Cup game in Toronto Saturday.

The high-scoring Alouettes piled up 341 points in 14 league games this season for an average of 24.4 points a game. The Eskimos could manage only 255 points in 16 games for an average of just under 16 points a game.

The Eskimos had a slight edge defensively, but not nearly enough to overcome the Als margin on the attack. Edmonton allowed 165 points by its opponents for a 10.3 average, while Montreal gave up 148 for a 10.6 mark.

Most western fans think the odds are out of line. Bob Ptacek, sports columnist manager of the Calgary Stampeders, arrived in Montreal Wednesday night. He doesn't think the Eskimos may pull an upset Saturday.

"I'm looking for some of those boys who want Alouettes and will give 13 points," he said. "Just show me some of those boys."

"Faloney (Bernie Faloney, Esk monton quarterback) is a terrific ball handler," he said. "He was the best in our league. Our Eddie Lebaron is a magician but Faloney is better. He runs a very deceptive offense from the split-T and they also employ other formations about which I will say nothing, being a westerner."

"Parker (Jackie Parker, Edmonton halfback) is a fast, shifty runner. He is great on that optional split-T device and he can score touchdowns."

Silent Doug Walker, coach of the Als, wasn't talking about his team's prospects in the game. He put the team through a workout Wednesday but barred everyone but the players and equipment men from the field.

Coach Walker was known to be sharpening the team up on defence against the split-T, which favors a running attack rather than the passing preferred by the Als. The only time Montreal ran up against the formation during the regular schedule was early in the season when John Crandlemire used it for the Ottawa Rough Riders. Ottawa abandoned it when Crandlemire was called into the United States Army.

Montreal officials reported that Jim Staton's ankle, which limited his action in the Big Four final against Hamilton, is coming along well and the big tackle is expected to be going at almost full speed Saturday. The exodus to Toronto starts Thursday when the team, band, drum majorettes and fans will board special trains.

Maxim Squeezes Decision Over Paul Andrews

By Charles Chamberlain

CHICAGO (AP) — Joey Maxim looked as fat as a Thanksgiving Day turkey and appeared doomed to be carved up by young Paul Andrews, a 4-1 choice, at Chicago Stadium Wednesday night.

But Joey, his right eye nearly closed by a glancing left blow from the first round through the last, called forth all his experience in 106 bouts to take a 10-round unanimous decision from the Buffalo flaster in the nationally televised fight.

Maxim, former lightheavyweight champion, weighed a blubbery 189½ pounds. Andrews, who at 24 is eight years younger, trimly carried 180 on his 6 foot 3 inch frame.

There were no knockdowns, or anything that came close to one.

FOURTH LOSS

Maxim, fainting, weaving and piling up points with stinging combination punches at close range, handed Andrews his fourth loss in 23 scraps. It was Joey's 81st victory against 21 defeats.

Referee Frank Sikora scored it 96-96 for Maxim, Judge John Bray favored Andrews 99-93 and Judge James McManus had it 96-95. The Associated Press card was 99-97 for Maxim.

"I think I trained too fine for this one—I just couldn't get off," said Andrews. "The worst thing that happened was closing Maxim's eye in the first round. He started fighting from the side instead of coming forward like I wanted him to. I could only hit him on one side instead of two."

Maxim's manager, Jack Kearns, said that he would guarantee heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano $250,000 to meet Maxim for the title in Las Vegas. Rocky was at the fight (he refereed a preliminary bout) with his manager, Al Weill.

But Weill said: "If everything is okay, we have three possible opponents — Nino Valdez, Archie Moore (the light - heavyweight champion) or Dan Cockell of London. We may fight one of them in February or March."

Wednesday night's attendance was 1,731 paid with a net gate of $3,840.

Mercs Defeat Dutchies 5-2; Take Over Lead

By The Canadian Press

One thing stands out in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league: It's going to be tight between the top two—and there apparently have little to worry about from the rest of the pack.

Owen Sound Mercurys vaulted into a first-place tie with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen Wednesday night, defeating the home team 5-2.

Each team now has won 11 games, lost two and drawn one. The only edge is Owen Sound's scoring record. The Mercs have scored 81 goals against Dutchmen's 64 and have had only 37 scored against them compared with 44 against Kitchener.

In another game Wednesday night Chatham Maroons defeated Windsor Bulldogs 5-3 before 2,100 hometown fans.

WIDE EDGE

The Mercs had a wide edge in positional play and didn't have much trouble winning after taking a 4-2 edge in the second period.

Ken Green and Vern Gardiner each scored twice for the winners. Ed Loutitt scored the odd goal. Mike Delich and Bob Oberholzer scored for Kitchener.

Doug Gillespie played well for Owen Sound, setting up the last three goals. A crowd of 3,661 saw the game.

Marcocs pulled into fourth place in the league with their victory. They now have 10 points, one up on Windsor and five up on Niagara Falls. The leaders each have 20 points, nine over the second-place Stratford Indians.

Memos Roar Back From Four-Goal Deficit To Tie Peterboro Five-All

Outscored in First Period Bouchermen Hit Goal Stride; Teams Stalemated in Overtime

PETERBOROUGH (Special) — The Petes couldn't stand prosperity here last night and the Memos of Belleville, came from behind a 4-1 deficit as the first frame finished to gain a 5-all overtime tie in a fast-stepping OHA Senior "B" tussle before a slim crowd. Memos outscored the Petes 3-1 in the middle heat and threw in two unanswered goals in the third to send it into a scoreless overtime chukker. The draw pulled Belleville up into a second-place tie with Kingston in the standing and left the Redmood men trailing the field.

It was quite a clean contest throughout. The homsters drew four of the six minor penalties, not a sentence being handed out in the third or in the extra spasm. Arn Dugan banged his head hard on the ice in the second period after a collision with Keith Montgomery, but was patched up and returned to action in the third stanza.

"Red" Dorrn notched a pair for the visitors, singles going to Dave Jones, Doug Dey and Erwin Duncan. Two assists each were garnered by Arn Dugan, Vern Goyer and Edwin Duncan, and one apiece to Rob Wilson, Ted DeGray and Peter Jones.

The Petes' tallies were by Dick Peloquin, Bill McMaster, Chum Fryia, Bert Hill and Bill Crowley.

Coach Ed. Redmond had two assists as Gus Leonard, Fryia and Hill got one apiece. Both goalies kicked out some hot stabs in each frame of the speedy struggle.

STRIKE FAST

Petes struck fast to score two early ones. At 15 seconds Fryia took Redmond's pass-up and batted at it three times by the net side before it clouted Parisi. Bert Hill came right back with a partially screened shot at the fence to dent the twine. Montgomery was off for charging when Dorrn scored in a close-in scramble from Dugan and Goyer. Monty returned and Crowley put the Petes up 3-1 as he broke in with a burst of speed to rap home Leonard's corner passout. Parisi drew a high-sticking sentence and it was a goal as Peloquin angled a hot shot into the net on a pass back by Fryia. Montgomery served a charging penalty near the close of the canto.

"RED" CLICKS

Dugan was back from a high-sticking trip in the second when McMaster caught the upper net corner with a sizzler on a play inside the blue line with Redmond and Hill. Dorrn got it back a minute later in close on combination with Pete Jones and Dugan. The latter was carried off hurt shortly after. Belleville pressed hard and Dave Jones whittled the Petes' lead with smart finish on Bouchermen doorstep with a pass from DeGray.

Donlevy drew a slashing penalty later and Collins followed for slashing. But no damage was done before his return.

Fryia was thrilled by Parisi to open the third frame and Twist came close. Parisi got a cut on the cheek but returned to action. Dey scored on a backhander at defence on a play built up by Wilson and Ed. Duncan. Seconds later Erwin Duncan tied the score in close on a quick play with Ed. Duncan and Goyer as Memos poured in around the home citadel. The Petes struck back to press toward the end of the frame but were missing the net on their shots.

The first five minutes of overtime saw the Redmond pack keeping the puck mostly in the Quinte end, but they couldn't sink it. Later it was more even with both sides checking well and the rival goalies pulling several fine stops on hot shots from close in. It was fast and clean with no goals and no penalties before the final whistle.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Parisi; defence, Wade and Macey; centre, Ed. Duncan; wings, Erwin Duncan and Day; alternates, Wilson, DeGray, Dugan, Goyer, P. Jones, Doran, D. Jones, Hull and Mucklet.

Petes—Goal, Donlevy; defence, Redmond and McMaster; centre, Leonard; wings, Fryia and Crowley; alternates, Hill, Collins, Potvin, Twist, Floyd, Armstrong, Peloquin, Montgomery and Hunscault.

With Its Luck Varsity Yelps About 'Jinx'

TORONTO (CP)—When University of Toronto Blues meet Western Ontario Mustangs Saturday in London for the intercollegiate football championship, they will face a jinx almost as old as the players.

For 17 years the Blues haven't been able to produce a victory over the Mustangs at London. Their last win was in 1936 when varsity edged Mustangs 8-5. No games were played during the five-year war lapse.

The best the Blues have been able to whip up are five ties in 13 games on the Mustangs' home field.

Varsity coach Bob Masterson thinks the Mustangs have had more than their share of luck and it's ready to run out.

"I've never seen a team with luck like Intern's," he said.

HE DISAGREES

Coach Johnny Metras, a Mustang disagrees. He says Western doesn't benefit from more breaks than other teams.

"We just get ours later in the games," he commented.

Mustangs edged Queen's Golden Gaels 20-18 last Saturday in the last 10 seconds of the game on a converted single. They beat Varsity 12-8 in the last 40 seconds of last year's final.

Breaks may play an important part Saturday since there isn't much to choose between the two teams. In their two meetings this season they have tied both times.

Weather May Help Eskys

TORONTO (CP)—The weatherman Wednesday blated at the possibility a storm from the West hitting Toronto for the Grey Cup football game Saturday between Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes.

"Are the wily Eskimos brewing a surprise attack on the weather front?" asked Fred Turnbull, the Dominion weather office's chief forecaster for Ontario, as he reported pressure falling fast in Edmonton and signs of a storm centre coming to life on the eastern foothills of the Rockies.

Despite the storm threat 1,700 miles away, Turnbull said he thinks a guess he made Tuesday will stand up for the big game: Northwest winds, a trace of snow in the air, afternoon temperatures in the high 30s.

Name Officials For Cup Classic

OTTAWA (CP)—Names of football officials for the Grey Cup final in Toronto Saturday were announced Wednesday.

Hap Rhodities of Ottawa was named referee of the game between Edmonton Eskimos and Montreal Alouettes at Varsity Stadium.

There will be three umpires instead of the customary two for league games: Cliff Rosebrough, Winnipeg; Seymour Wilson, Hamilton; and Paul Dojack, Regina.

Judge of play will be Bill Hairs of Winnipeg and head linesman, Sam Richardson of Hamilton.

Three umpires were appointed to allow nomination of three officials from the West and three from the East.

The officials were selected after telephone conversations between Dave McCann of Ottawa, referee-in-chief of the Big Four Football Union, and Syd Halter of Winnipeg, commissioner of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

In addition, the East and West each will have a time-keeper. The yardstick men and the downs-box man are expected to be the regular Varsity Stadium officials in those positions.

MOSES NEW COACH

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wally Moses, 44, an American League outfielder for 17 years and coach of the old Philadelphia Athletics for the last three seasons, Wednesday was signed by Philadelphia Phillies of the National League as batting coach.

WING TITLE

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—George Barnes of Australia floored Hollholder Barry Brown of New Zealand in 50 seconds of the first round and went on to win the British Empire welterweight crown Wednesday night by knocking out Brown in the 11th round. Barnes weighed 142¼ and Brown 146¾ for the scheduled 15-rounder.

Minor Coaches, Managers, Referees, Attend OMHA Rules Forum

The Rules Forum of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association can pin another feather to its already well-decorated cap of achievement.

Over forty coaches, managers and referees of minor hockey in the city and district attended the first of four rules forums to be conducted in Ontario this year, held in the city hall council chamber last night.

The purpose of these forums is to instruct referees in the correct interpretation of the rules; to arrive at uniform interpretation and to instruct in the proper method of handling OMHA games. They are also designed to acquaint managers and coaches with the rules; with the instructions issued to referees, to acquaint them with their responsibilities and to instruct them in the manner in which OMHA games are to be conducted.

Representing the OMHA were Doug Patterson, executive member for Stirling and secretary registrar James Whiston of Toronto. The chief instructor was the "Ole Perfessor" of other forums, OHA referee Maurice Wahl, of Ajax.

Doug Patterson chaired the meeting which was representative of several districts in the area, and introduced special guests. He then outlined the duties of a manager stressing his responsibilities, leadership and other phases of his position.

DUTIES OF DEFENCE

Mr. Walsh pointed out the duties of a referee before, during and after a game and his conduct as a whole. He said a referee should always be on time, be properly dressed, be polite but firm in his rulings, should not fraternize with players "and get out of town as soon as the game is over".

Mr. Walsh also conducted a quiz session which was one of the highlights of the forum. He read questions and answered them in the correct interpretation of the rules and then invited questions from the assembled hockey men. Many were fired at him and much valuable information was obtained by the managers, coaches and referees present.

Mr. Whiston outlined the OMHA's insurance policy for players stressing the fact that co-operation on the part of managers was necessary. He dealt with over 17,000 applications last year he said, sometimes as many as ten teams a night. He urged managers to fill in the certificate carefully with special attention paid to the spelling and inclusion of full names.

ASKED CO-OPERATION

Mr. Whiston also answered several questions regarding the insurance and it appeared that the majority of the managers present were interested in this phase of OMHA activity.

He urged that claims be presented within fourteen days from the time of occurrence of injury. This, he said, was a new ruling, and any claim submitted after that period of time will not be honored by the insurance company.

Mr. Walsh went into some detail at the request of some of his audience in explaining the penalty shot, delayed penalties and others. He interspersed his talk with actual experiences during his tenure as a referee in the National Hockey League, American Hockey League and the OHA.

The forum was highly interesting and informative and the Ontario Minor Hockey Association should be highly commended in this addition to its policy of furthering hockey for Young Ontario.

STRANGE SHAPE

BROMLEY, England (CP) — A new church, fan-shaped and flat-roofed, is planned in Kent, Rev. S. Shave says it's a modern adaptation of 11th and early 18th century meeting houses.

Studio Still Using Foreign Productions to Get Locales

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Join the movies and see the world. That's still Hollywood's slogan, despite the end of the 18-month tax deal for overseas workers. The studios are still using foreign productions to get exotic locales—and also to take some frozen coin in various places.

A glance at the production schedule shows 37 movies at work, 11 in overseas lands. Three are in London, two in Mexico, and one apiece in Manila, Hong Kong, Egypt, Monte Carlo, Munich and Weisbaden. Working in the overseas films are such stars as Clark Gable, Anne Russell, Gregory Peck, Shelley Winters and Joseph Cotten. No wonder the local unions are campaigning against "runaway" filming . . .

NAPOLEON ANGLICIZED

Wonder why Marlen Brando played Napoleon with a British accent in "Desiree." Did he fear that a bit of Stanley Holowski might creep into his Little Corporal? Or is this part of the 20th Century-Fox philosophy that all classical figures must speak in British tones?

There is no evidence to support the thinking that Napoleon, early Egyptian, biblical figure and medieval knights sounded like a breath of Cot Piccadilly. Fie on Fox! Let it take a lesson from sister studio, Universal - International. Now there's a place that will let its classical heroes talk in the Bronx and Brooklyn Lingo on Tony Curtis and Jeff Chandler . . .

CALLS STAR HOME

Things I can't get used to: The sight of Zachary Scott wearing a loop of gold in his pierced ear at the legit opening of "Sailor's Delight."

Errol Flynn better get back here and start jazzing up his career. Local theatres bill Gina Lollobrigida over him in a new epic . . .

And it's interesting to note John Wayne and Susan Hayward getting the billing over Ray Milland and Paulette Goddard in the reissue of "Heap the Wild Wind." The latter pair were the stars of the film in the original release.

Larks 'Hot' To Win Grey Cup

TORONTO (CP) — Anyway you take them, with a point spread or straight cash, Montreal Alouettes are hot favorites to win the Grey Cup classic against Edmonton Eskimos on Saturday.

Eskimos were 5 to 1 underdogs in many betting circles here Wednesday. The bookmakers couldn't recall a Grey Cup game where the betting was given as poor a chance.

They started off early in the week by quoting Montreal 2½ to 5½ favorites. That is, if you wanted to wager on Edmonton the bookies would lay 2½ to 1. If you liked Montreal, you'd have to give them 5½ to 1.

The odds went to 3 to 4 Tuesday. A fan had to bet 4 to 1 if he wanted Montreal or get 3 to 1 if he rode with Edmonton. It went to 5½ to 5 Wednesday.

Remember When

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ottawa Roughriders walloped Toronto Argonauts, Canadian champions of the previous year, by 25-6 before a crowd of 19,329 to win the Eastern Big Four rugby title 15 years ago today. Ottawa then beat Sarnia in the Eastern final, but lost the Grey Cup Canadian championship classic to Winnipeg Blue Bombers by 8-7.

Little Benny's Notebook

Today in school Miss Kitty told the class about honesty and good conscience an' happiness and everything, zz..ug. There's one thing that all intelligent people agree upon, and that is, to use a popular expression, money isn't everything. What do you think, Benny? Why isn't money everything? she said.

Because money dont make you happy. It's just the things you can buy with it. I said, and Miss Kitty said, Not at all, the poorest people are ofenest the happiest because they have kind hearts, and kind hearts bring more happiness than all the money in the world. Now I want you all to write a little story to illustrate why money isn't everything, and the feist ones to finish may reed their story to the class, she said.

The feist one to finish bring Skinny Martin, and he redd it out loud, being. Once there was a bugger with a tin cup, and poor people with kind hearts dropped so much money into it that the bugger got rich while they stayed poor but kind. But the bugger was a miser, and he kept the money in bags down a dark celler where he couldn't even see it himself, and one day he tripped over a bag and broke his neck in 4 places and never felt the same again, but the poor people stayed just as happy with their kind hearts.

And the 2nd one finished was Dopey Short Judge, and he redd his, being, Once there was a poor man and he accidently found a uranimum mine in his back yard, but he had a kind heart and realized money isn't everything, so he kept his uranimum mine and his kind heart too, and lived happily ever after.

The result being Miss Kitty started the spelling lesson.

States Chaplains In Armed Forces 'Not a Race Apart'

By STEWART ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches was told Wednesday chaplains in the armed forces "are not a race apart."

Dr. W. Harold Young of Toronto, chairman of the committee on chaplains in the forces, said nothing should be left undone to assist them in every way.

"They are our own ministers. Their first relationship is with the church in which they were ordained," said Dr. Young.

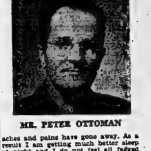
Council today considered reports of the women's inter-church council of Canada, the department of overseas missions, department of social relations, the British and Foreign Bible Society and the committee on Christian stewardship.

Fourth Vancouver Bank Is Robbed

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bank employees looked into the wrong muzzles of gangster guns for the fourth time in three weeks here Tuesday.

Three men, in a swift raid on a Canadian Bank of Commerce branch, escaped with $1,500 to bring the total of bank loot inflicted within the last month to almost $14,000.

It was the first major holdup since police chief Walter Mulligan announced a week ago he was removing 30 men from traffic and other departments to the criminal investigation division.



He made the move following public outcry over three gun-slaying orgy, an attempted murder and three bank holdups in three banking days."

Only one arrest has been made in the fatal shooting of his girl friend's stepfather.

Gets Help From Syntona Second Time In 2 Years

This Man Was Troubled With Stomach Disorders; Felt Tired, Worn-out, Full Of Aches and Pains.

MR. PETER OTTOMAN

"This being the second time in the last few years that I've had good results by taking Syntona I am certainly convinced of its merits", said Mr. Peter Ottoman, 541 Mary Street, Woodstock, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I had recently become very run-down, wasn't able to get my proper sleep at night and I felt tired most of the time I would get up in the morning. Some days I would be afflicted with aches and pains. In addition my stomach was acting up badly. Food that I ate gave me indigestion, gas pains and sour acid rising. Constipation was a daily worry to me.

Knew What to Take

"About three years ago I had been in a similar condition and at that time by the good results I got I knew by taking Syntona. So I decided to try it again. From the first bottle my food began to digest better and now the gas, gas to digest better and now the gas, sourness and indigestion have cleared up. Constipation is relieved and the aches and pains have gone away. As a result I am getting much better sleep at night and I do not feel all fagged out as I did before."

Made from 12 of Nature's Herbs and Roots, Syntona acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. At the same time it helps rid the system of excess acids and impurities and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville by Dolan The Druggist.

Ready to Review Aid to Victims Of Hurricane

WOODBRIDGE (CP) — Flood victims were told Tuesday night that if anyone considers the cash settlement made by the Ontario Hurricane Relief Fund for household and personal loss to be unjust, his case will be reopened on request and, if necessary, the claim will be revalued.

This assurance from Col. E. W. Phillips, fund chairman, and Attorney-General Porter was relayed to a meeting called here to review the whole question of compensation for homes and belongings lost or damaged in the Oct. 15-16 floods.

The meeting passed a resolution urging the provincial and federal governments to place a $10,000 ceiling instead of the $5,000 maximum compensation for house damage.

Killer Fails To Burn Pickering Man, Son

Doors Fastened, Then Fire Started On Roof Of House

Father, Alone With Infant, Smashes Through Window

PICKERING (CP) — A Pickering township man and his young son escaped their burning home early today in what police say was "a clear case of attempted murder." Police said the fire was set from the outside and both front and back doors were fastened shut from the exterior.

William Faswersky, 45, and his son, George, 2½, were asleep in their home on the second concession, Pickering township. Police said a large stone was thrown through the window of the house Wednesday.

Police and fire officials would give no explanation of the incidents and were reluctant to discuss details.

Mrs. Faswersky, 32, was in hospital where she recently gave birth to a son. She was to come home today.

DOOR TIED SHUT

Police said the front door of the house was tied shut with a clothesline anchored to a tree 38 feet away. The back door was jammed shut with a wooden plug driven through the hasp.

A ladder was found leaning against the house near the roof area where firemen believe the fire was started. It was taken from the nearby home of a neighbor.

Faswersky told police he was awakened by the crash of smoke about 4 a. m. He heard the baby crying. He said he ran downstairs and looked into the cellar where he saw the reflection of flames in a window.

He ran back and grabbed the child. The front door failed to yield to his frantic efforts. He dashed to the back which was also stuck. Finally he escaped with the boy through a window which he smashed.

Faswersky went to a neighbor's home and called firemen who arrived late to find a mass of the building. Damage was described as "extensive." Some furniture was carried out by neighbors.

'Immoral Attire' Brings Thirty Marriage Offers

HUENFELD, Germany (CP) — After the Town clerk of Huenfeld turned 22-year-old Hermelen Knittel out of the council offices for wearing "much too moral costumes," as three-quarter - length trousers, she wrote an indignant letter to the local newspaper.

Now the reports that she has received 30 offers of marriage from Germany, Austria, Norway, Sweden and other countries.

Agreement Ends Massey-Harris 11-Week Strike

TORONTO (CP) — Officials of Massey-Harris-Ferguson and the United Auto Workers (CIO-CCL) signed a tentative agreement Thursday which will end the 11-week-old strike at the company's plant here if approval of the 2,500 workers is obtained.

A union meeting has been called for Sunday and if members approve the agreement the plant will be able to open Monday morning.

Ontario's chief conciliation officer, Leslie Rice, met with representatives of the company and union Thursday and announced later that a memorandum of agreement has been signed.

"I feel sure the agreement will be ratified," said Mr. Rice. The proposals were "excellent" from those submitted before.

TERMS SECRET

The terms will be announced at the union meeting Sunday; they are believed to be slightly more generous than those previously offered.

The employees walked off their jobs Sept. 10 to back demands for a 10-cent-an-hour increase and changes in seniority provisions for all workers. Before the strike, average wage at the plant was $1.61 an hour.

The employees, in leaving their jobs, rejected a recommendation by George Burt, UAW Canadian director, that they accept a settlement proposal which would have extended the contract virtually without change, until spring.

SEEK APPROVAL

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — The Canadian government intends to seek parliamentary approval for a contribution of $500,000 for 1954-55 to the UN Relief and Works Agency for Palestine refugees, it was announced Thursday.

WEATHER

TORONTO (CP) — Synopsis: There will be scattered snowflurries in northern Ontario today, otherwise cloudy skies are forecast for most of the province. Saturday's weather is in the lap of a Prairie storm centre which developed overnight and is currently moving southeastward. The storm centre is accompanied by southeast winds, cloudy skies and a light but continuous snowfall. The eastern fringe of this snowbelt is expected to reach Toronto vicinity Saturday afternoon.

PARLIAMENT WILL OPEN SESSION ON JANUARY 7

Jobless Insurance Amendments Promised

OTTAWA (CP)—Parliament has been called into session for Friday, Jan. 7, with an initial promise that the government would like to see early legislative action.

In announcing the date, Prime Minister St. Laurent Thursday made clear the House is expected to clean up on opening day two of the special sessions it has summoned in recent years have taken up a second day.

This may set the tone for a session that has been called later than usual, but within which the government looks for fast ratification on at least one of its legislative proposals — improved unemployment insurance amendments to take hold during the winter season.

TO SPEED UP

Mr. St. Laurent's decision to speed up legislation in the early days of the session is problematical. The throne speech debate is a wide open. It could ramble for weeks. It has. Not agreement among the parties could tighten it up.

In any case, the government has concluded that parliamentary business can be wound up in less time than the near-record 139-day sitting of the first session of the 22nd Parliament, which began Jan. 12, 1953, and ended last June 26. That sitting hadn't been exceeded in length since 1903.

For the last three years, Parliament has been starting off its sessions in the fall and stretching them into the following year after a Christmas vacation. Mr. St. Laurent has said it is his desire to work can be compressed into less time by starting right after the New Year.

The date chosen for the opening of the session is the second Friday in January. In 1926, it met on the same date chosen for this coming session.

In the Commons Jan. 7, the government is expected to express in reply to the throne speech will be moved by Paul Martin (Essex East—Mondial Verdun) and Donald Carrick (L—Toronto, Trinity). Mr. Leduc returned the House in a by-election about a year ago, Mr. Carrick was elected in a Nov. 8 by-election.

The Senate's mover and seconder have not yet been chosen.

New Orchestra

TORONTO (CP) — Hart House Orchestra, a 22-piece group formed by Boyd Neel, dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music, made its concert debut Thursday night.

The music was arranged, written for small wall safe in a bedroom closet by thieves.

REPORT BIG THEFT

WEST ORANGE, N.J. (AP)—Theft of $32,000 worth of jewelry from the home of Anthony Desiderio, wealthy manufacturer, was reported by police Thursday night.

The jewelry was taken from a small wall safe in a bedroom closet by thieves.

Three Runaway Indian Boys Rescued From Burning Cabin by Flying Cop

KENORA (CP)—A policeman's hunch saved three little Indians from certain death in a forest fire on land, water and air hunt for them through the wilds of northwestern Ontario.

The boys, Roger Martin, 10, Fred Big George, 9, and Ernest Big George, 12, ran away from the St. Mary's Indian school here in a stolen canoe and the RCMP and searchers a merry chase.

The trail almost ended in tragedy at Big Island, 65 miles from the starting point.

Constable Bob McGarva flew to the island on a hunch. With him were Constable Ken Hayes of the RCMP and Constable Lyle Marshal.

The canoe was spotted from the air near a deserted camp owned by American sportsmen. As the policemen approached, the boys ran down through this ice, McGarva noticed smoke pouring from one of the buildings.

Leaving the other men to pull the plane ashore, he dashed to the building and kicked open the door. Great clouds of smoke poured out. One of the missing boys was lying in the doorway unconscious. A second was found propped against the wall and the third was cowering in a bedroom.

The men dragged a flaming mattress outside and put out the fire in the building. They wrapped the boys in blankets and flew them to St. Joseph's Hospital here where Dr. Peter Playfair said they were suffering from shock.

"Another half hour at most and the damp would have been all over," said McGarva. "Had we decided to search one of a half dozen other spots, nothing more may did. It would have been too late."

It would only be a matter of hours, said the constable before the whole lake in the area would be solid ice, trapping planes and boats.

Despite the run they gave him, he gave the boys top marks for courage. "Think of the hardships the little fellows must have had to feed," he said.

Chinese Nationalists Claim Red Invasion Is Beaten Off

TAIPEH, Formosa (AP) — Chinese Reds sent in assault forces against a tiny Nationalist outpost in the Formosa strait today, the Nationalists announced.

The communique made no reference to a landing, or to prisoners.

SINK 5 BOATS

The communique said the Communists opened up on Wuchiu with three directions in five gunboats and "quite a few junks" at 1:06 a.m. and were repulsed around 2 a.m. It said the Nationalist navy sunk five Red motorized boats and a number of junks about 6 a.m.

"The situation on Wuchiu is quite good and we have heightened our defenses," the communique said.

It was not clear whether the attack on Wuchiu Island was intended as an invasion, a hit-and-run raid, or an effort to see what the United States 7th Fleet might do.

Press reports said the Reds stormed ashore from motorized junks under cover of spellfire from gunboats. Nationalist planes raced to the island and helped drive the invaders into the sea.

Wuchui is a guerrilla base only a mile long and half a mile wide. It is 15 miles from the mainland and 10 miles south of Red-held Nanjih Island. It is 63 miles northeast of Quemoy.

The 7th Fleet has been patrolling the Formosa strait since June 27, 1950, just after the outbreak of the Korean war, to protect Formosa and the Pescadores from invasion. U.S. policy has been to keep the Reds guessing about what the fleet might do if one of the many offshore Nationalist outposts was threatened.

Press reports said the defenders of Wuchiu decided under the initial attack, then counter - attacked, and with the support of Formoso-based planes erased the Communist bridgehead. They also said Nationalist warships went into action immediately.

The defence ministry also reported the Reds on Toumen Island, 13 miles northwest of Tachenu, fired five artillery shells at Yikiang Island, five miles off the Tachens. The ministry said this provoked strong retaliatory fire.

TORONTO MAN HELD FOR ATTACK ON TEACHER

Will Be Seen by Those Who Escaped Strangler

TORONTO (CP)—John Trenton, 35-year-old truck exchange clerk, was charged early today with attempted rape as a result of an attack Thursday night on a pretty 24-year-old school teacher from suburban Leaside.

Police said they plan to put Trenton in a police lineup to be viewed by women who have escaped attacks from a man blamed for the attempted strangling of two Toronto women.

Trenton was arrested at his home after police swarmed into Leaside following reports the attacked teacher had struggled.

The clerk was questioned at the Leaside police station for several hours before police said he was charged with rape.

Police also said today that Veronica McGivern, 24, reported to them Thursday night that a man had grabbed her from behind in the same laneway as the one in which Mrs. Gunapu was attacked.

Miss Harvey told police she was attacked as she turned into the driveway of her home about 1 a. m.

She said a man followed her after she got off a bus after attending a downtown dance.

EYES SCRATCHED

When she was in front of her home, the man grabbed her around the body and by one arm and clawed at her face, police said.

During the three-minute struggle, she gouged his eyes, she said. She broke free of him when he half-released her for a moment to scoop up her purse from which fell from his pocket.

She then dashed into the house. Her brother, John, called police while the frustrated attacker fled through a laneway at the rear of the front door.

Police said the attacker had left before Harvey got back to the window.

Police said Thursday night's attack on the school teacher differed from the previous two only in that, as far as detectives can learn, the strangler doesn't follow his victim but waits for her to come back to pass and then creeps up on them.

The first Chinese radio was keeping up its drumfire of propaganda that it said the confessions of the two civilians whose sentences by a military court to terms ranging from four years to life was disclosed by the Peiping regime Tuesday.

All were captured during the Korean war. Both the American and British governments have denounced the charges as false and have demanded the immediate release on prisoners of war. The United States is trying to arrange it was held only recently.

Largest Crowd In Many Years At Nomination

Mrs. Forrester, Mrs. McCabe Seek Aldermanic Seats

A possible four-way fight for the mayoralty at the municipal elections on December 6th was in sight today following one of the biggest and most enthusiastic nominations meetings held this morning at city hall.

Long before 11 o'clock when nominations for the various civic offices opened the council chamber was packed with enthusiastic minded citizens showing a very vital concern as to whom would be nominated to run the city affairs. So big was the crowd shortly after nominations opened that it overflowed into the upstairs hall and city hall entrance.

Nominated as candidates for the office of mayor were Mayor John Both, Alderman Don. A. Thomas and Robt. Temple, and former city alderman Charles L. Hyde.

THREE ANNOUNCE INTENTION

The first three had previously announced their intention to run for the office of mayor with Robt. Temple creating his seat in council to contest the mayor's chair. Candidates have until nine o'clock Saturday night to qualify.

Public utilities commissioner W. Harry Rollins received acclamation for a second term of office with no other nominated for the one seat open being received.

High interest in the aldermanic race was evident from the number of nominations received for council. In all 33 nominations for council were received, including two by women, Mrs. Effie McCabe, and Mrs. Jane Forrester, wife of Dr. James H. Forrester. Notable among those nominated for council were the number of labor men offering themselves for the first time.

ACCEPTED AT SAME TIME

Contrary to the customary procedure nominations for all civic offices were accepted at the same time. This procedure was to accept nominations for mayor first and for aldermen after the mayoralty nominations were closed.

But although nominations were technically over at noon they were still being received in the city clerk during the noon hour. All nomination papers had to be filed with the clerk by 12 o'clock with the time of receipt noted.

City Clerk Jamieson Bone announced that all candidates nominated for more than one office must file for the first nomination unless they resign today to stand for the second office.

For the first time in the history of separate school trustees will be elected this year by municipal ballot. Accordingly nominations for separate school trustees in the various wards of the city were being accepted at the nomination meeting. This possibly added to the crowd attending the meeting.

34 NOMINATIONS RECEIVED

Twenty-four nominations were received for separate school board with 14 members to be elected, two from each ward. Nominations for public school board numbered 13 with seven to be elected for a two-year term.

Many of the candidates noon-

Suspend Ford Strike Talks Until Monday

TORONTO (CP) — Talks between Ford Motor Company and United Auto Worker representatives were suspended today until Monday.

A Ford company spokesman said the meetings were cancelled temporarily due to lack of accommodation.

Representatives of the two sides have been meeting in Toronto in hopes of finding a solution to the paralyzing wage strike of 7,900 men at Ford Motor Company plants in Canada.

M. C. Davies, Speaker of the Ontario legislature and chairman for the talks, left for Windsor today but will be back Monday or Tuesday, his office said.

Stated for the various offices received time to think over whether or not they intended to stand, and the staff in the city clerk's office was busy looking after signing of qualifications before the candidates crowded in even before the nomination meeting was closed.

As in previous years the Belleville Chamber of Commerce will sponsor a pre-election meeting at the Belleville collegiate when candidates for the various offices will be given the opportunity to speak on the issues. The public meeting will be held Thursday evening commencing at eight o'clock. The Monday night meeting club meeting will be held on Wednesday evening.

Want Municpal Fiscal Problems Given Study

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities urged today that municipal fiscal problems be considered at any federal-provincial conference that may be called.

The federation's recommendation was contained in a foreword to a brief presented to the cabinet. The brief said:

"It seems inconceivable that any federal-provincial agreement involving a redistribution of governmental revenues can be concluded without considering adequacy of the revenue resources of Canadian municipalities."

The revenue-tight municipalities recommended these measures to allow more flexibility of current municipal revenues: A federal unemployment assistance program; revision of the Municipal Grants Act whereby municipalities receive federal grants in lieu of property taxes on federal property; wider exemptions from payment of the federal sales tax on municipal purchases.

Probe Demanded Why No Search Made for Child

AYLMER, Ont. (CP) — Town council has been asked to investigate why no search was started for a six-year-old girl who disappeared for 14 hours last week. The request came from members of the Canadian Legion and the Aylmer fire department.

The child was reported missing Thursday night. She was found next morning, shivering and crying, on the banks of a creek near the main business section of this St. Thomas district community.

Police Sunday charged Ross Moore, 25, of Leamington, with criminal assault after the girl described a stranger who she said took her to the creek. Moore was being held in Woodstock for Tillsonburg police on a bogus cheque charge.

Weekly Livestock Review

TORONTO (CP) — Cattle prices were uneven at the Ontario stock yards this week. Calves and sheep and lambs were unchanged but hogs were 50 cents a hundred weight higher.

The run of 7,878 head of cattle was added to a carryover of 1,300 common killers, stockers and stock calves. Included in the fresh run were 1,788 western cattle and 2,084 heavy western calves.

Good demand prevailed for the light offering of choice slaughter steers and fed yearlings, forcing prices fully 50 cents a hundred weight higher. Cows were fully 50 cents a hundredweight lower and closed under pressure.

Choice steers all weights $22.50-25 with odd small lots to $22.25; good steers $20-22; mediums $17-19.50; commons $12-16; few choice heifers $18.50-19; good heifers $17-18; medium heifers $14-16; common heifers $12-14; light boner cows and heifers $8-12 a hundredweight.

Good cows $10-10.50; canner and cutter cows down to $8; good heavy bologna bulls $11-12; common light bulls down to $8; choice fed yearlings $23.50-24; good fed yearlings $22-23; mediums $18-21.

Replacement cattle: This class met a narrow demand with prices steady to $1 in spots. Generally lower, particularly on stock calves. The most dependable demand was for the lower feeder type cattle. Good stockers $17-18; a few picked lots at the extreme top of $19; medium stockers $14-16; commons $12-14; good stock calves $16-18; common to medium as low as $11 a hundredweight.

Calves totalled 3,537 head, including 2,064 western stock calves. A light run of good to choice vealers sold actively at $22-24 a hundredweight; medium and heavy rough calves slow $19-21 a hundredweight; grass calves sold for slaughter $8-12 a hundredweight.

There were 2,370 hogs. Grade A $28.50-28.75; sows $18.50 a hundredweight dressed.

Sheep and lambs totalled 2,201 head. Lambs firm at $20-22 a hundredweight for good ewes and wethers. Included in the fresh run were a few lots of western lambs. Bucks were discounted $1 a hundredweight and heavy lambs were discounted as much as $2 a hundredweight. Common to medium lambs $16-18 a hundredweight; feeder lambs $15-17; good light sheep $8-10; common and fat sheep $8-10; common and fat sheep down to $4.

Body of Marx Is Reburied In Larger Plot

LONDON (AP)—The body of Karl Marx, father of communism, has been dug up and reburied in a different plot in London's Highgate cemetery. A bigger site was needed for a large memorial to be erected shortly.

The coffin was moved in darkness early Tuesday by five gravediggers, working by the light of oil lamps. Officials said the home office, in approving the transfer, specified that the reburial must take place at night.

Marx died here in exile from Germany in 1883 at the age of 65. His most famous book, "Das Kapital," is a bible of communism.

Vishinsky's Ashes Are Deposited In Kremlin Wall

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Andrei Vishinsky was given a state funeral in Moscow's Red square today.

A casket containing the ashes of the statesman, who died in New York Monday, was deposited in the Kremlin wall, behind the mausoleum where the bodies of Lenin and Stalin lie.

The long lines of Muscovites which began to file past Vishinsky's remains Thursday were still forming today in the snow-covered square.

The urn was carried from the Hall of Columns in Trade Union House to the burial site to the tune of funeral marches, accompanied by a long procession.

The body of Russia's chief delegate to the United Nations, which was flown back from New York Wednesday, had been removed from the historic hall for cremation during the night, according to an official announcement.

Dental Service For Eskimos Said 'Ridiculous'

WOODSTOCK (CP)—A dentist who provided government dental service to Eskimos says the Canadian government's program to bring modern civilization to Arctic peoples is "ridiculous" since Nature provides the Eskimos with everything they need.

Dr. R. S. Robertson, who operates Rennwood Farms at Cobourg, Ont., told a meeting of Guernsey breeders Thursday that the government is spending a fantastic amount of money in the Arctic and that it's all being wasted.

Dental and medical services are greatly appreciated by the Eskimo but he is much better off with his own mode of living, he said.

Dr. Robertson makes a trip on the Canadian government ship C.D. Howe every year to provide dental services to Eskimos.

Two Oppose Windsor's Mayor

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

At least 13 civic leaders received acclamations Thursday when nominations were held in 18 Ontario centres.

Mayors, reeves and deputy reeves in a city, five towns and two townships received acclamations, a Canadian Press survey shows.

It's going to be a three-way fight for the mayoralty in Windsor and Sault Ste. Marie. Two are seeking seats in Barrie. In each of the cities the present mayor is up for re-election.

At Windsor, Mayor Arthur Resume will contest the chief magistrate's office with Robert M. Fuller and Michael Patrick. Mayor C. H. Smale of Sault Ste. Marie will run against Peter King and Tom Mason and Mayor W. C. Nelson has one opponent, William H. Wright, at Sarnia.

BITES RUNNING

At Oshawa, five persons were nominated for mayor. Three were elected in Haileybury and two in Port Dover.

WARNS UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) Pakistan warned Wednesday that the trust territories would be lost to communism unless efforts were made to rid them of racial discrimination. Sir M. Fazlul Chowdhury told the UN's trusteeship committee that the administering powers must treat the backward people in their trust territories as human beings and administer for their benefit and "not behave as colonial exploiters."

Blood-Shunting Operation Can Prolong Life

CHICAGO (AP)—Two pioneers in heart surgery have presented evidence that a blood-shunting operation can prevent or delay cardiac failure in certain patients suffering from plugging or narrowing of their heart arteries.

Drs. Claude S. Beck and David S. Leighninger of Cleveland say the surgery is delighted to prevent convulsion and stoppage in damaged hearts which are capable of continued function for additional years.

These are the cases in which a recuperating heart patient might suffer a sudden fatal attack while shovelling snow or witnessing an exciting athletic contest.

The difference between life and death in such cases could depend on less than an extra thimbleful of blood a minute which could be supplied to the heart with the help of surgery.

TRANSFER HEARING

MONTREAL (CP)—The board of transport commissioners said Wednesday final debate on a joint application by the CNR and CPR for increased commuter fares will be held in Ottawa Dec. 13. The hearing, now in its second week, was ordered after both railways requested permission to double fares in the Montreal lakeshore service.

BUTTER PROBLEM

Canada's 30 million pounds of surplus butter pose a problem of great magnitude that will not be resolved by wishing it would disappear.

Everyone has a solution for the problem but, like the mythical hydra, every time one head is lopped off, two more appear. Retail price reductions, subsidies, giving butter away to foreign countries is the answer. Such a move clears away the menace of bargain prices shattering the normal market should the government decide to sell the surplus at a loss. It also guarantees continuing butter production at a government floor price that producers have found very profitable. To the producer a "butter giveaway" means the only way out.

The consumer, looking at a stockpile of butter purchased with his tax dollars, is not too receptive to the idea of giving away something in which he already has a substantial investment. He has the dubious privilege of continuing to pay high prices for butter on the domestic market.

Foreign countries are not agreeable even to taking a free gift of butter because such gifts would disrupt their domestic production.

Some people have advanced the idea that the butter surplus is due to unusually rich pasturage during the summer and autumn with increased milk production leading to more butter manufacture.

What would appear to be the truth of the matter is that the price of butter has been fixed at a figure that stimulates production and discourages domestic consumption. But no amount of talk on the hardships of producing milk, the cost of making butter, nor the advantages of butter over margarine will move people to buy butter when they are convinced they cannot afford it.

There are only two ways to eliminate the present butter surplus and possibility of more in the future. One is in the future and that is to sell what is in storage at a reduced price and to curtail present butter production. As long as the price remains at its present level and consumer resistance is strong there is little hope of selling the huge quantity of butter in storage. A decline in the government's guaranteed minimum to producers is the most practical way to curtail production.

It might even develop that once Canadians start eating butter again they will discover what a good product it really is and will eat their way out of the butter dilemma.

THIS IS NO SUBSIDY FOR THE RAILWAYS

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan of British Columbia has won the praise of Mr. A. Campbell, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees, for "his long-range analysis of the factors entering into the railway financial situation."

Since Mr. Campbell voiced disappointment at the contract terms awarded by Chief Justice Sloan in his role of arbitrator between the non-operating employees and the railways, his commendation of the Chief Justice's recommendation for payment of a government subsidy is all the more striking.

At the time of writing the railway companies had expressed no opinion on Chief Justice Sloan's report, but it would appear unlikely that they will oppose receiving a subsidy as compensation for the Crow's Nest Pass rates.

Some point, though, should be made clear, especially to taxpayers throughout the nation, out of whose pockets any government subsidy must come.

Any such subsidy would not, in any realistic sense, be a subsidy to the railways themselves. Rather it would be a subsidy to those economic interests which benefit from the unrealistically low rates the railways have been forced to charge under the Crow's Nest Pass Act.

In effect the railways have been subsidizing the interests who export western grain and other products. In the past, Chief Justice Sloan says, the cost of this subsidy has been borne by the railways, railway employees and the shippers and consumers of those commodities which pay high rates. He now proposes that the cost of this subsidy be paid out of federal taxes. The payment would be made to the railways—but they would not pocket it but would merely be passing it on to those interests who have benefited and would continue to benefit, by the low Crow's Nest Pass rate schedule.

Chief Justice Sloan's proposal does not appear unreasonable. It is to be hoped, however, that, when it is debated in parliament, those who will support the plan make it clear to taxpayers throughout the country, that what is under consideration is not a subsidy to the railways, but to those who produce and ship grain.

If that point is made clear there is, of course, no good reason why parliament might not enquire whether a continuance of this policy of subsidization is in the nation's interests. Chief Justice Sloan apparently thinks that it is, for he observed that the Crow's Nest Pass rates "have contributed in great measure to the economic stability of the nation by moving the wheat crop of Canada to world markets at competitive prices and will, no doubt, in the future continue to do so." This is an opinion which should not be carelessly disregarded. It is, however, an individual's opinion on a subject concerning which parliament, and no individual no matter how high his qualifications, should make the final decision.

CLUB DIRECTOR

They have made him a director of a very pleasant club.
Now he's going to hear them discuss what is called
"the grub."
And he's going to hear them asking at the various affairs,
When they'd visit in the grill room, or why they have to climb the stairs?

He is patient and he's friendly;
that directors have to be.
But he'll find some fussy member wants a different brand of tea.
And they're going to keep him guessing to explain the reason why.
A waiter brought them coffee
when they asked for custard pie.

A two-year term they gave him,
and he'll surely find it long.
Not a day when he is present but he'll hear of something wrong.
Though the club is meant for laughter, for refreshment and relief,
Some will wonder why on Fridays they serve fish instead of beef.

A director's cares are many. He will frequently be told
That too hot the soup is always, and the ice is much too cold.
But, he'll learn to shrug his shoulders when complaints come pouring in,
And he'll let the grumblers grumble and then answer with a grin.

Is There Duty On Dolphins?

(Edmonton Journal)

A strange reflection of our over-complicated and over-governed society is revealed in the current sequence of events which occurred when a bottle-nosed dolphin was washed ashore on the Belleville beach recently.

Normally such an event would attract, at most, the attention of a few sightseers. But according to the newspaper reports, arrivals were visited by "representatives of customs, police, the Department of the Receiver of Wrecks, and the Licensed Horse Slaughterers Association."

The interest of the British Museum is comprehensible; possibly its gallery of bottle-nosed dolphins needs replenishing. But the presence of the other authorities is hard to understand. The customs officials, for example—surely by this is no duty on deceased dolphins? The attendance of the Receiver of Wrecks is even more of a puzzle; are dead fish now classified as wrecks? And what were the police doing standing by to prevent the other authorities from coming to blows over the spoils?

The real puzzler however, is why the Licensed Horse Slaughterers found it necessary to send their representatives to the beach. We can only hope that their visitation had no connection with the composition of the British sausage.

Scot Beat Edison

(By Gerald Kloss in the Milwaukee Journal)

While North America this Fall honors the memory of Thomas Alva Edison for the invention of the electric light 75 years ago, a note of appreciation might also be thrown in the direction of Dundee, Scotland. There occurred the first public demonstration of an electric light — 44 years before Edison produced the first practical model.

"The light is beauty surpasses all others," ran the description in the Dundee Advertiser of July 11, 1835. "It has no smell, emits no smoke, is incapable of explosion, and, not requiring air for combustion, can be kept in sealed glass jars . . ."

The inventor was an unsung genius, James Bowman Lindsay, who not only preceded Edison on the electric light but also patented a process of noiseless telegraphy four decades before Marconi started his experiments. Lindsay's life had its full share of triumph or a fortune — was due to his versatility, his seeing one project through, he usually was embarked on several others in different fields.

As it turned out, Lindsay's fame and fortune did not spread to Dundee, where he was a school teacher most of his life. A confirmed bachelor, he did his work in three small rooms, cluttered with books and scientific apparatus.

His first big project was not in the field of science. In 1826 — at the age of 22 — he started compiling a superdictionary of words in 107 languages and dialects. They included such tongues as Manx, Tibetan, Coptic, Tonga, Gaelish, Basque, Hottentot and Madagascan, as well as the better known languages of the world. He died before he could publish it.

For more than 25 years he spent his spare time doing research and writing the huge tome, to which he gave the impressive if unwieldy title, the "Pentecontaglossal dictionary". He was known in the British Museum as the Advocates' library in Edinburgh to get the hand-written manuscript of the Chinese character.

In 1846, Lindsay produced a "Pentecontaglossal Paternoster", giving the Lord's Prayer in 50 languages. The unfinished manuscript of his dictionary was given to the Dundee public library after his death.

Lindsay's experiments in electricity began in 1832. After three years he produced the first workable model of an electric light using a primitive battery for power. In a letter to the Dundee Advertiser in the Fall of 1835 he wrote:

"I am writing this letter by means of the light at six or eight inches distant, and at the present moment can read a book at the bottom of one and same-half feet. From the same apparatus, I can get two or three lights, each of which is fit for reading with."

In the same letter, he made some prediction on the use of electric lights:

"On its introduction to spinning mills, conflagrations there will be unheard of. Its bearing will recommend it to the fashionable. Being capable of surpassing all lights in splendour, it will be used in lighthouses and for telegraphs. The present generation may perhaps have it burning in their houses and enlightening their streets . . ."

No technical description of Lindsay's light can be found, so it cannot be compared to Edison's first incandescent lamp.

But his wireless telegraphy system was given wider notice.

Using the principle of signals through the air, Lindsay used bodies of water for a medium. In 1852 a current was across a small pond. The Dundee Advertiser, July and August, 1852, home town inventor, remarked:

"The experiment removes all doubt of the practicability of Mr. Lindsay's invention; and there is no reason why it should not in time soon connect continent with continent."

The increasing the size of immersed batteries and plates, he believed, would enable signals to signal across two miles of water. He patented the process in 1854.

According to his calculations, the whole globe could be bridged by a wireless signal if the batteries, plates and immersement were large enough — a battery of 130 square feet, he thought, ample. He had the honor of being the first man to suggest wireless communication through space, England and America.

He also invented an electric welding (1858), established a book on astronomy (1858) and a pamphlet on navigation (1861).

He died in 1862. This timid, humble scholar had invented a way to telegraph without wires. Rather than accept the accolade of scientist, a profound student; an earnest Christian."

Kilts Better Than No Pants

(Canadian Army Journal)

When Highland units and Highland dress were introduced into the British Army in the eighteenth century there was considerable speculation as to whether the kilt was suitable garb for the battlefields of Europe. An article in the Journal of the Royal United States Institution suggests that any doubt was soon dispelled:

"The sight consisting of the highlanders and some other regiments, had occasion to ford a river which was thigh deep. When they reached the opposite bank they dried off the kilts as it does off a woolen blanket and found the remaining dampness was dried by their swinging on the march. The white trousers of the other regiments were however, soaked and so remained.

"When the brigade arrived in camp the war was apparently not very active. The trousers were removed and hung up to dry. Dusk fell and frost appeared. The remark was broken by an alarm. The Highlanders quickly stood to. Their comrades, to their consternation, found their breeches frozen as stiff as boards. They were obliged to fight the action without them."

War Against Sparrows

(German Information Service)

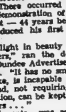
In some parts of Lower Saxony sparrows have become such a plague that at present one of the affected areas had to use poison to reduce their numbers. One total bag in over 300 communities 302,771 sparrows.

Experts have calculated that each sparrow consumes annually for roughly five pounds of grain worth about 24c. Sparrows give preference to wheat—about 33 per cent of their diet. The rest consists of oats (7 per cent) and barley (4 per cent). They hardly touch the seed of weeds and only 10 per cent of the sparrows feed on insects.

The anti-sparrow campaign in Lower Saxony proved that if the right kind of poison is used (in this case strychnine) sparrows will hardly suffer. The number of songbirds killed along with the sparrows amounted to less than one per thousand. On the other hand, it is a well known fact that songbirds begin to disappear from districts infested by too many sparrows.

Lost Amateur Standing

(Ottawa Journal)



In a Toronto court a man of 53 years tried to argue that 28 convictions since he was 16 did not make him a habitual criminal. The judge held, however, that the accused had lost his amateur status.

three — syllable word, want to know how we came by it.

In my lexicon any one who lives in North America is a Yankee, and any one who needs only a smattering of knowledge to argue with the doctors is a Wiseacre.

For instance, a Yankee Wiseacre doesn't ask whether cabbage juice has particular food or remedial value. Not he. Instead he infaths me that "for some time" he has "experienced symptoms of duodenal ulcer" and he has noticed that drinking cabbage juice gives considerable relief. Now he is wondering, far be it from him to ask an ordinary doctor, whether the ice cream or white loaves are the more effective or whether the juice of red cabbage . . . etc.

And so we leave the poor geek wondering among the cabbages . . . aw, don't be so stuffy. I have never called you anything — merely display and illustrate. And if you read more than the headlines and furniture ads you should know that if I believed red, white or green cabbage juice had any effect on peptic ulcer you should have heard me say so in here.

To the best of my knowledge cabbage, red, white or green, is a wholesome food for everyone. Most people do not include cabbage in their diet as often as they should. Particularly people who give too much thought to digestion.

Cabbage is not at all nutritious—an ounce of peanuts yields more calories than a pound of cabbage — but 46 is an excellent source of some essentials of good nutrition in which the exasperating diet of most Americans is inadequate, calcium and Phosphorus, to say nothing of the vitamins A, thiamin, riboflavin, C, and D.

Most healthful way to eat cabbage is raw, as in coleslaw; or fermented in its own juice, with salt, as in sauerkraut; or cooked not more than five minutes, as in that famous American dish, pork and cabbage or corned beef and cabbage — the meat well cooked, the cabbage not longer than five minutes.

As for cabbage juice — no objection to drinking as much as you like, whether it gives any more relief in the discomfort of peptic ulcer or hyperacidity of the stomach than other foods or not.

Sauerkraut owes its sour taste and its healthfulness to lactic acid fermentation by the fermentation of carbohydrates (starches and sugars) by vitamin-loving bacteria—bacilli as the grain naturally present in milk, which cause curding of milk and the grain planted in skimmed (or separator) milk to produce buttermilk. Acidophilus milk, yoghourt etc.

If you ask me, mother-in-law, mind-your-own-business, aunts, there's nothing to ask now — I have said all I'm happy to think adviser to say about cabbage or cabbage juice, except:

"Every man to his own taste."

IN HEALTH

An endless number of books have been written on health—and, indeed, that nearly every individual has his own special pattern to assure health. Hundreds of books and hearsay ideas and formulas. I look to cheerfulness and a happy philosophy of life as the greatest guides to health.

I think that I came across in Thoreau's diary where he said, "In health the sound of a cracked fiddle is sweet music." In all nature are to be found suggestions and sounds that make you glad to "praise God, from whom all blessings flow."

In health we think happy, constructive thoughts. We face our problems and our disappointments as well as our sorrows, courageously and without complaint. It's a wonderful thing that we say things we regret and for which we are later sorry.

Speaking of the wood thrush, Thoreau said: "This bird never fails to speak to me out of an other purer than that I breathe, of immortal beauty and life." And he sings to make men take higher He was then past eighty.

PARENTS NEED TO PONDER

Every generation of oldsters has worried about the young people and prophesied that they would come to no good end.

These dire forebodings are heard today. Humanity has struggled through many crises and emerged, not unscathed, but at least able to stagger on to the next crisis. The generation of youth will be no different in all probability, to do the same.

But this generation of youth does face unprecedented problems in the threat of war and particularly in the unusual moral temptations they have to confront. In times past, young people of good family have enjoyed a certain protection furnished by cultured surroundings

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

There is a type of eater—more noticeable amongst the women than the men—who doesn't seem able to decide what to have for lunch.

When they sit down at the restaurant they look, they smell, they talk about them, not at their neighbors, but at the plates from which their neighbors are eating. They are hoping for suggestions.

Entering upon the restaurant, they spot a table as far off as possible; and, having reached that table, slowly pass by each table anxiously inspecting the various dishes spread before the other customers.

Taking as much time as possible while removing their coats and reposing of their purses, they survey everything with extreme interest, and then, after ordering, they look to see if they have anything left to eat.

Then they pick up the menu card doubtfully. They read it over, with an air of great hesitation. They turn the menu card over. It is of no help. Summoning the waiter, they go to work and read the thing all over again.

Then, in the end, air, they take another look all 'around them at the adjoining tables, even craning the neck to get a better look at the farther customers. The waitress arrives, and, after a long consultation, the poor souls grip the table-cloth and prepare for the threading a needle.

When the order is given, the poor soul sits dejected, and still covertly glancing around at the food before others. When the order arrives, it is instantly evident that it is the wrong thing after all. The fork is picked up as if to dissect a frog . . .

Such a great majority of us thank Heaven for a good digestion and a made-up mind.

Jos. H. Nulty in Photographic Business in Town 36 Years

TRENTON, (Special.) — "Not on Your Tin Type" was the popular saying of the day when Joseph H. Nulty, a young Trenton man seriously decided on learning photography.

He says he was lucky to get the chance to take his apprenticeship under Clark J. Smith, who now operates a studio in Brandon, Manitoba. Wages, those days were small in comparison with the rates paid to learners now; in fact young Nulty worked the first six months without pay.

That was back in 1904 when Trenton was a town with a population of scarcely 3,000 people.

Today, 50 years later, Mr. Nulty is the owner of one of the finest studios in the Quinte district. Recently he restored the premises and added new equipment.

The whole face of the town has changed since Mr. Nulty was a beginner. The Smith studio where he developed his first negative was in the building on King street now owned by Mark Tripp and occupied for years by the late Sam Finger.

USED PATINO SYSTEM

In the early 1900's photographers used the Patino system of processing prints. It took all day to make one picture, relates Mr. Nulty. The sun was an important factor in providing the light to print the negative on a piece of sensitized paper. When there was no sunlight the customer just had to wait. Contrary to modern methods it took a week for the customer to get the results he can now expect in eight hours.

Mr. Nulty has much to say for the Patino process. He figures the platinum and gold tones of the print excelled anything on the market today.

He remembers that early day photographers melted up gold money, strictly against the law, when their supplies of gold ran out and they had a job to finish.

HAVE IT EASY

"Photographers have it easy nowadays," says Mr. Nulty.

The oldtimers had to lug bulky plates and cumbersome equipment around with them. To take a flash picture was an ordeal. The subject and cameraman were lucky to escape with their lives. There was an explosion and then great clouds of smoke rolled across the room when the photographer tripped the mechanism that ignited the flash powder. Nearly always the photographer had to standby until the smoke disappeared and the air was clear enough for another picture to be taken.

Great improvement over flash powder came in 1907, Mr. Nulty recalls. The Aricio lamp which threw off tremendous quantities of white light, was introduced. It had its drawbacks, because invariably the finished product showed the subject with a flat white face on one side and dark on the other. Photographers were just learning the art of adjusting lights at that time.

Hard to believe in a day when the camera is as common as the telephone. Mr. Nulty remembers when there were only two amateur cameras in Trenton and district.

One was owned by the late Dr. J. S. Shurie and the other by Jack Austin of Woolcer.

Some of Mr. Austin's first glass plates developed by Mr. Nulty were printed by him two years ago in an exceptionally good state of preservation.

36 YEARS IN BUSINESS

In 1918 Mr. Nulty opened a studio here that has carried on continuously for 36 years. His official opening was practically simultaneous with the drastic Chemical plant explosion. The youthful photographer soon learned however, that it was an ill wind that blew no good and subsequently capitalized on selling thousands of copies of pictures of the disaster. The next morning after the dreadful night or convulsive blasts and spontaneous fires a Toronto newspaper gave the ambitious lensman his first news assignment. Needless to say company policemen banned trespassing and young Nulty left the scene disappointed and without the pictures.

If you asked Mr. Nulty what he likes to photograph most, he'll answer children. He finds little people interesting and natural but admits you need the patience of Job at times. One of his pet-trails of a child won honors in international competition.

Train Hits Car But Occupants Escape Injury

TRENTON, (Special.) — Occupants of a car that ran in front of a train crossing North Front street yesterday escaped without a scratch. The car they were riding in struck on the right side was pushed along the tracks. Damage to the 1946 car was estimated at $200.

O. C. Nesbitt, his wife Margaret and son William from Frankford were travelling in the car south on Front street. The yard engine hauling a line of cars approached from the south. As the car ran up on the tracks the cowcatcher caught it and carried it sideways down the rightaway. Fortunately the train and the car were not moving faster.

The elder Nesbitt said he saw the train coming and tried to put brakes too late. Rain was drizzling down at the time on a dark slippery road and visibility was poor.

The train crew included: Cecil Garbutt, Trenton, engineer; George Whitman, Trenton, and A. N. Dickens, North Front street, Belleville.

Lawyers Argue Pros and Cons Of Death Penalty

TORONTO (CP)—Pros and cons of abolishing the death penalty were argued Thursday by two prominent Canadian lawyers.

Arthur Maloney, chairman of the Canadian Bar Association's committee on the administration of criminal justice, said at an Empire Club luncheon statistics show the death penalty is not a deterrent to killing.

Joseph Sedgewick, prosecutor or defence counsel in many criminal cases, said at the same luncheon he favors retention of the death penalty but feels it should not be compulsory in the case of a murder conviction. The jury should have the final say.

"It is the right, and it may well be the duty, of death to purge society of those elements which are dangerous to it," said Mr. Sedgewick, a royal commissioner on revision of the Criminal Code during the last few years.

A joint committee of the Senate and the Commons heard debate on the death penalty earlier this year. It is expected to reconvene soon.

Criticizes Resignation

GRENFELL, Sask. (CP)—John Diefenbaker, Progressive Conservative MP for Prince Albert, criticized Thursday the handling of the resignation of L. B. Thomson as director of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Administration. Mr. Thomson resigned to contest the Saskatchewan Liberal party leadership.

Speaking to the annual meeting of the QuAppelle Progressive Conservative Association, Mr. Diefenbaker said handling of the Thomson resignation was "one of the most serious things that has happened in the history of the province."

Quoting Agriculture Minister Gardiner as saying that Mr. Thomson's $10,000-a-year position does not come under the Civil Service Act but under orders-in-council, Mr. Diefenbaker charged it was a loophole to allow the re-instatement of Mr. Thomson should he not win the leadership.

Saskatchewan Liberals will elect a new leader today at their convention in Saskatoon.

touch for budding lensmen of today Mr. Nulty observes. Subjects for portraits today likewise find having their picture taken is not the ordeal it was 50 years ago. When Pte. sat for a photo in 1901 your head was placed in a clamp so that you would keep it still for five minutes, while the camera man made his exposure, he revealed.

For a man who has worked hard all his life and should be thinking about taking a well deserved rest Mr. Nulty plans ahead like a young businessman. "I don't ever want to talk about retiring," he remarked. One superstition he offered to prevent him with a handsome gift on the day he celebrates 60 years in photography.

Duplessis Hopes For Tax Pact By End of Year

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Duplessis said Thursday there is reason to hope a temporary tax agreement may be reached this year between Quebec and Ottawa.

He made the statement to newspaper men between sittings of the Legislative Assembly, after four officers of the federal Income Tax bureau had conferred with Quebec revenue officers.

The four men—not identified here —met with Georges Shink, Quebec comptroller of revenue, to "examine our tax figures," Mr. Duplessis said. They have returned to Ottawa.

DEBATE GOES ON

The conference took the spotlight away from the Legislative Assembly sittings where Union Nationale and Liberal Opposition members ended a three-day debate on the address in reply to the throne speech.

Mr. Duplessis, who prides himself on never missing a single sitting of the assembly, kept in touch with the revenue conference through secretaries.

Chatting with newspaper men between sittings, Mr. Duplessis said current tax talks are "too important" to be considered on the level of "who wins out."

"The only winner in this dispute must be the province and the nation," he said.

HIGHER UNESCO BUDGET

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP)—UNESCO's general conference Wednesday adopted a compromise budget of $20,000,000 for 1955-56. The budget figure, proposed jointly by France, Japan, Brazil, and Egypt, is about $2,000,000 above the last two-year budget.

Federation Wants New Products Marketing Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Federation of Agriculture Thursday asked the provincial government to bring in a new and amended Farm Products Marketing Act.

The federation, in its annual brief to the cabinet, said a new act, combining good features of the present act with certain features of acts in other provinces, would "give our producers confidence."

It also would help producers "carry through their marketing plans with the minimum of government assistance."

The federation also endorsed the agency marketing system under which producers organizations have control of marketing.

The brief noted a contended decline in farm income and said farmers should be able to exert their influence over the prices of their products equal to that exerted by secondary producers.

The federation also asked that the Edible Oils Act be strengthened so "products camouflaged under the name of dairy products cannot be sold to the detriment of the dairy farmers of the province."

Police Protest Ban

OAKVILLE (CP)—Officers from five Ontario provincial police detachments will meet in Hamilton Dec. 9 to protest a ban on picking up relief squads by patrol cars.

Supervisors stopped the practice because, they said, some men were chasing fire.

Then the officers started hitch hiking their way to work.

This was stopped when Inspector Isaac Roble of the Dundas division put a ban on hitchhiking because it was "against the dignity of the force."

Affected by the order are detachments in "Oakville, Dundas, Brantford, Waterdown and Simcoe.

Thousand Ships Cleared Port At Fort William

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Dock officials Thursday reported 1,000 ships have cleared this port so far this year.

About 18 to 13 lake boats are clearing daily in advance of the jump in harbour activity the last week. Last year 1,833 cleared port.

Albert is the same tonnage of iron ore has been moved but wheat shipments are almost half that of last year.

Canadian National ore dock officials reported 1,135,474 tons of ore shipped so far this year, compared with 1,301,000 for the whole of last year.

Only 252,206,000 bushels of grain have moved, compared with 648,000,000 last year.

Shipping is expected to continue beyond next week because of the announcement that the St. Lawrence Seaway will remain open until Dec. 11, a week later than last year.

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Police today found remains of the body of Arundell Grey Leakey, missing since 6 Mau Mau raid on his home a month ago. Gigantic Iron-Steel Deal Made by Nova Scotia Firm

SYDNEY (CP)—Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. announced today it has completed a gigantic iron-steel deal with West Germany, Britain and Mexico which includes history's biggest single order for the Sydney steel plant.

Lionel A. Forsyth, president of Dosco, made the announcement on his return from a round of sales negotiations in Britain and West Germany.

The orders include: More than $25,000,000 worth of finished steel products for the Mexican Pacific Railways. This comprises 175,000 tons of rails and 56,400 tons of tie-plates and other rail accessories.

Five million tons of iron ore to be purchased by Britain from Dosco's Wabana, Nfld. mines during the five years between 1956 and 1961.

UNCERTAINTY ENDS

An increase of 250,000 tons of Wabana iron ore—to 750,000 tons—in 1955 shipments to West Germany which also has taken an option on 5,000,000 tons of ore between 1956 and 1961.

The order wipes out the uncertainty which had clouded the steel plant's future beyond 1956 when the end of the shipping season would have meant the end of iron ore deliveries to Britain and West Germany.

The (Mexican) rail order in itself is the largest single piece of business ever fixed with our Company plant," Mr. Forsyth said. "It is of such volume as will, with other business which ought to be forthcoming from time to time, absorb the capacity of a single shift operation of the rail mill for some three years."

COMMITTED IN FRAUD

TORONTO (CP)—John Copnes, 28, reported missing in the Oct. 16 floods and then listed as safe two days later Thursday was committed for trial on charges of defrauding two students out of $45 and $90. The nurses testified at the preliminary hearing that Copnes told them he was a jet pilot in the United States Army Air Force.

Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair ... And Guarantees It
Demonstration to be Held Here

This new method at home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Belleville, Ont., Sunday ONLY, November 22, '54.

These private, individual demonstrations will be held at the Queen's Hotel on Sunday ONLY November 28, 12 noon to 9 p.m.

Halifax, Nov. 19 — in an interview here today William Keele, internationally famous trichologist, and president of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists, Inc., said: "There are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Keele said.

Once a person avails himself to the Keele treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee: "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair growth after the end of 30 days your money will be returned."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED

First the trichologist is quick to tell hopeless cases that they can not be helped. Only if a man is completely, skinny does he tell this lost category.

A complete, private examination is given by a trichologist to determine the condition of his scalp, and cause for his hair trouble.

FREE EXAMINATION

This examination is very thorough and highly technical, it requires 30 to 90 minutes. The trichologist makes no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After the examination the person is told the requirements of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in Halifax to check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities throughout Canada to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL

"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is still capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle."

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head don't do anything wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR LIFETIME

"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said. "Our firm is definitely behind this treatment. It all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules."

HOW'S YOUR HAIR?

If it worries you, call Trichologist H. Lockwood Hendriksen at the Grocery Mart in Belleville, Ont. on Sunday ONLY, November 28, 12 noon to 9 p.m., The public is invited to drop in and get an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.

Vienna Women Still Demand Lots of Chivalry

VIENNA (AP)—Vienna women still demand old-world chivalry from their husbands. But most Viennese wives would rather have men do their jobs well.

A public opinion institute asked Vienna wives what makes a "perfect husband." Listing various characteristics, 2,500 wives mostly agreed he could smoke and drink as long as he was a good worker and a true lover.

Here are some of the qualities the women listed as essential, in order of importance:

Efficiency in his job; faithfulness; being a good provider; kindness; having a sense of humor; intelligence; chivalry; witness; elegance; strength; an ideal wife; a nonsmoker.

Several wives stipulated that the ideal husband must be blonde. Some wanted him to wash dishes, others insisted that he stay out of the kitchen entirely.

Penitentiary Scene Discussed At U.W. Club

The University Women's club held the November meeting at the home of Mrs. MacArthur, with Mrs. Meta Seibert as acting president in the absence of Mrs. Don MacKinnon, who sent greetings from Calgary and points west.

After the various reports from Mrs. Baldwin, the secretary, Miss Daly, the corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Kunzie, the treasurer; a discussion followed about the dinner in December at the Queen's Hotel.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Floyd introduced the guest speaker, Mr. Carshine of Kingston. His visit was accompanied by Mrs. Carshine and Miss Margaret DeWolfe of the Kingston University Women's club.

Mr. Carshine was born in Montreal, and spent three years in the army from 1940-45. He received his B.A. from Sir George William's College in 1947 and then did graduate work at McGill University to M.A. level. He was assistant student counsellor with Sir George William's for a brief period. In 1949 he was appointed assistant class officer and in 1952 class officer at the Kingston Penitentiary. One of the special projects of the federation for the past year has been a study of penal reform in Canada and the local club was fortunate to have Mr. Carshine come and give a talk on "The Canadian Penitentiary Scene."

Mr. Carshine emphasized two points: "It is not the small group of professionals who himself who influence the inmates, but rather the instructors and guards who work with them day by day, and It is a fact that 98 per cent of the inmates return to the free community and therefore what happens to them in their period of incarceration is important to every citizen."

It was a most interesting and instructive address which provoked a lively discussion afterwards. Mrs. Littlejohn thanked Mr. Carshine for his highly informative talk.

The following new members were welcomed to the club: Mrs. Godfrey, Mrs. Simons, Mrs. Ashman, Miss Johnston and Ruth Dixon.

Study Club Given Outline Of Association

Detailed information about the Canadian Association of Consumers given at the regular monthly meeting of the Study Club was enthusiastically received and the members felt very grateful toward the result brought about from the vast work of this unique organization.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. R. G. Coulter. The president Mrs. H. R. Varcoe, warmly welcomed the regular and new members. The minutes were read and committee reports were submitted by the chairman.

Mrs. Geo. Wishart read for the third time, the revised Constitution, which was adopted by a majority vote of the members present.

The devotion period led by Mrs. L. D. Scripture was entitled: "Contemplation Almost a Lost Art," written by N. Jane Scott after a visit to the Anniversary Service of the Marble Collegiate Church, New York City where Dr. Vincent Peale is the rector. It stressed the need for time to be still and know that I am God," hence strengthening ourselves daily to accomplish face everyday problems.

Although a vast amount of material had been gathered for presentation about the C.A.C., Miss Olive Kleer, with Mrs. E. Rietz presented it in an amusing, informative, thought provoking manner.

Organized in 1947 after the Wartime Price and Trade Board is disbanded, the C.A.C. is now the largest most representative, most responsible consumer organization in Canada. It is non sectarian, non political. It has numerous 15,000 individual members you from all provinces and fifteen national organizations representing 500,000 women.

The C.A.C. tells the consumer what they should know for wise buying. It tells the government the kind of laws consumers want for their protection and informs the manufacturer what the consumer needs and wants in his product.

C.A.C. influence has brought about acts in parliament to empower the government to set up standards for Canadian goods requiring manufacturers to use accurate labels on goods. It has also brought about standardized garment sizes for children, brought pure drugs to the market and enforced rules making it necessary for net weights being printed on all packaged goods. It has been the means of protection of the consumer in numerous ways.

Bearing their slogan of: Discuss, Decide, Do, C.A.C. emphasizes the need for women to learn to buy intelligently to offset the wiles of advertising.

The president thanked the two members for their splendid marvelous job of presenting so much information. Before closing all joined in extending happy birthday felicitations to Mrs. Coulter. Light refreshments were served by the two hostesses Mrs. A. Wells and Mrs. A. E. Wilson.

Member Enlivens Two Sessions Of House With Colorful Ideas

By STEPHEN SCOTT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP)—Firm in her convictions, Mrs. Lydia Arsens, only woman member of the British Columbia legislature, has enlivened two sessions of the House with her colorful ideas.

Elected Social Credit member for Victoria in 1953, Mrs. Arsens has made many down-to-earth and sometimes unorthodox proposals during her House speeches.

PURRED "ARRRINEMM"

Many of her suggestions have been termed "arsenisms" by one Victoria newspaper.

One of 10 children, she was born in Didsbury, Alta., in 1906, and before coming to the coast 20 years ago taught school in Alberta.

At high school in Calgary, Mrs. Arsens was a pupil of William Aberhart, the school principal who was the founder of Social Credit in Canada.

She admired Mr. Aberhart so much that when he became Social Credit premier of Alberta "I knew he must be right."

But it wasn't until 1951 that she became active in the Social Credit movement. She was an unsuccessful legislature candidate in Victoria in 1951. A year later success came when she was elected at the general elections.

NOT DEMOCRACY

Health and welfare have been two of her big debating points in the legislature. And she has been firm in her opposition to chlorination and fluoridation, of water supplies. These, she says, are against "true democracy."

Mrs. Arsens, who with her husband, James, operates a restaurant here, has told the House:

"The physician gives you pills which are expensive and break you. The surgeon cuts your parts out which God put there, but the physiotherapist or the dietitian can prevent all ailments."

Termed an "Arsenism" was her proposal that Victoria residents be "compelled" to keep their gardens neat and to burn their garbage cans in every yard—one for flattened cans, one for paper and the other for waste foods. The food would be composted for fertilizer for Victoria's famous Beacon Hill Park.

Mrs. Arsens has been critical of the press, claiming her speeches have been "distorted." She proposed that newspapers adopt a point - scoring system "to make them toe the mark."

The newspapers would start with 100 points. Each time a reader proved "something had been distorted" it would lose a point.

"They would have to print their grading on the front page," she said. "That would soon make them toe the mark."

She won't sell liquor in her restaurant, opposing all forms of public drinking.

Lunon, ship - building centre in Levis county, Que., was named Pointe de Levy by Champlain in 1625.

ENLIVENS SESSIONS

Mrs. Lydia Arsens, only woman member of the British Columbia legislature, has come up with some colorful ideas to enliven two assembly sessions. Her subjects on which the Social Credit member for Victoria has talked range from three garbage cans for every home to an apple-a-day plan for health and contentment. A native of Didsbury, Alta., she taught school in Alberta before coming to British Columbia 20 years ago. She was elected to the legislature in 1952. (CP Photo).

Square Dance Party Enjoyed by Many

The Square Dance party sponsored by the Soroptimist International of Belleville, recently, was enthusiastically enjoyed by an appreciative crowd of 200 people.

The Masonic Temple was an ideal setting for the evening's frolic.

Jean and Norman Moore of Toronto, conducted the dancing in their inimitable manner, Jean's music perfectly synchronizing with Norman's calling. Both are dancers the lead and support in several hours of pure enjoyment.

FOLK DANCES

The Moores, who are exponents and teachers of the art of square and folk dancing, brought with them a team of twelve dancers, who entertained the audience for an hour with exhibition of folk dances of Scandinavia, Batavia, England and Israeli. The dancers, costumed attractively, delighted the spectators, who applauded again and again.

Many who enjoyed the evening have asked for a repeat performance.

Soroptimists are to be congratulated in introducing to Mr. and Mrs. Public this type of entertainment—delightful, satisfying and enjoyable in every way.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

MAKE PLANS TO LEAVE YOUR MOTHER'S HOUSE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a young woman of 20. Recently I divorced my husband, and my little girl and I are living with my mother and her second husband.

My step-father, whom my mother married after I left home so that I am not really well acquainted with him, has taken a very dominating attitude toward me, and thinks he should tell me what to do on every occasion. That was bad enough but, still worse, he has lately made improper advances to me. Naturally, I don't want to upset my mother by telling her this, so could you please advise me what to do?

Dear L.W.:

What you should do is to lose no time making your child and leaving your mother's home. If you stay there, it seems all too likely that serious trouble might come of it some day.

You live near a large city where there should be some social welfare organization to which you could go for guidance in finding a place to live and making plans to get a job—if you don't have one already—and in working out arrangements for the care of your child during the hours when you would be at work. It might be much better, of course, if you could leave town entirely, and go to some place far enough away so there would be no danger of your having any contact with this man, by chance or otherwise. Perhaps the people at the social welfare organization can figure out with you a way to make this possible.

At any rate, you should make your plans immediately; then, when they are complete, and you know what you're going to do, tell your mother and step-father of your decision and carry it out at once.

ONLY A CRYSTAL BALL COULD ANSWER THIS QUESTION!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

There are two of us, and we are both interested in the same boy.

The problem is that we do not know which one he prefers. If something is said in a kidding way about one girl, he will stick up for her, but, on the other hand, he continues to kid around with the other.

Is your estimate of which girl he do you think he prefers, and how would you suggest that the other girl go about getting him interested in her also? — T.H.G.

Dear T.H.G.:

Now, really! If you two, who evidently are (in) love all the time, can't figure out which of you two this boy prefers, just how do you think I could possibly tell? I try to do the very best I can with the problems you have presented to me about, often with only the very thinnest of facts to go on, but your question would require a person to have second sight, or a crystal ball that really worked, and I have neither.

As for how "the other girl" would go about getting the chap interested in her, I would say the best plan for both of you to follow would be to stop mulling over such foolishness and get too busy with your normal teen-age interests to have time to spend on it. If you are girls who are liked by everybody because you are friendly and natural toward all, and who always have something interesting to do about which you are enthusiastic, boys will notice you, all right, without your having to try to attract their attention by competing with other girls for it.

LEATHER ACCESSORIES

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

New process and techniques have added more suppleness, better washability and more color to leather gloves. Making use of this improvements is a charming little glove in washable kid, the shade "blue mink." Three pairs ded dots on the back and a rope-like motif add just the right touch. Black kidskin lined in beige leather makes a handsome tote bag that has a useful oval back. Sunset calf pump for the last of this good leather trio. Black lace circles add interest to the high, curved heel and also form a filled-in V on the cuarp.

A PLEASING VOICE HAS CHARM APPEAL

Women expend much time and money in an effort to preserve their figures and complexions and to achieve chic and becoming hairdos. But what price these assets if the pretty one has a voice so ranging that her listeners want to pick up their heels and run?

An unpleasant voice and incorrect speaking habits can be corrected. Many universities have classes in voice culture, where the student learns that there is a close relationship between posture and voice control. The full chested woman is likely to speak more pleasingly than the one whose shoulders are thrust forward and whose flat chest causes shallow breathing.

Few voices are naturally unpleasant; the trouble is in the way they are used. American women have a reputation for loud voices. Ladies, of course, do not shout. The voice that is soft and low is an expression of culture and good manners.

There are women whose voices have a flat quality. They harp on one tone, drone on and on. Too much more attractive these women would be if they would pronounce each word with precision, use a range of tones to give a beautiful, expressive quality to the voice.

Be mindful of pitch. It should not be high. Don't use too much volume if you suspect that your speaking voice can be improved.

Enunciate clearly, so that the listener will not have to ask you to repeat your words. Good practice stunt: say the vowels slowly. This can be combined with breathing exercises that will not only improve the voice but the figure and the complexion.

Stand tall, chest high, tummy in. Say the first vowel and inhale deeply through the nostrils, exhale slowly through the lips. Take a deep breath and say the second vowel, and so on.

WHEN DOES A DIVORCEE CHANGE FORM OF NAME?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have applied for my divorce, but it will not become final for several weeks. I would like to use now the form of name you advise for a divorcee to use . . . for example, Mrs. Robinson Brown (Mary Robinson, let's say, being my maiden name). Would this be proper? M. S.

No, You will not be a divorcee until your divorce becomes final. And only when your divorce is final is it correct for you to change your name from, say, Mrs. John Brown, to Mrs. Robinson Brown.

HUSBAND IN SERVICE . . . WIFE SIGNS CARDS WITH BOTH NAMES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband is in the Army, stationed in Germany. In the few years we have been married, we have, of course, sent our Christmas cards together, with both names signed to them. Now I'm wondering what would be proper this year, for him to send cards signed with his name only and for me to send cards signed with my name only, or should I send them with both our names? — Wife

Please do continue to send your Christmas cards. We, too, as you have heretofore sent them. Relatives and friends will delight to think of the greetings as coming from you both, lovingly together in your separate homes. And, please, this suggestion: Rather than just to sign the names on these We Two cards, you have a wonderful opportunity to write a witty remark or verse on each card: news about you, news about your husband, and perhaps his address too, with a big, broad hint that he would greatly welcome letters or cards from him. Like this, perhaps: "Bill and I send you and Bob and your family our devoted Christmas greetings, as we did not happily when Bill was here. This year, from so far away, he asked me to send his greetings with mine. He writes that he is well" with him, but that he's "starved" for mail. So (and here's a Big Hint!) his address is—"

WHERE TO SEND WEDDING PRESENTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the bride-to-be works in one city, and her parents live in another city, where the wedding is to take place, should the wedding presents be sent to the bride's apartment or to the home of her parents? — Reader

Since the invitations to the wedding and reception would carry the name and address of the bride's parents, it would be sensible and practical for relatives and friends to send their wedding presents to the bride at her parents' home.

SPECIAL HOUSEWARMING QUESTIONS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have recently bought a "brand new" house, and will very soon move into it. Even though the house we now live in, but are planning to sell this. We would like very much to give a housewarming, but need your advice about several questions.

(1) Is it permissible for us to give a housewarming if we have owned a home before?

(2) Is it proper to have a housewarming party even if your new house isn't exactly "new-shaped"? I will take us about two years to finish the landscaping and also several of the important things on the inside.

(3) May I have two separate parties? (We have too many relatives and friends to handle them all at one time.) — M.S.

(1) Yes. This housewarming you are planning for your home is a solution to this new ho... a welcoming invitation to your relatives and friends to cross the threshold of this new house. It makes no difference whatever that you owned a house before, not even that you may have given a housewarming for that house.

(2) Give the housewarming when you think the new house is in pretty good shape for showing to your relatives and friends; perhaps not exactly "ship-shape," but to order as far as it is finished. Capture that first endearing radiance of your new home . . . and don't wait to finish the landscaping and other features which will, and must and should, take time.

(3) Yes, entirely proper to have two housewarming parties. Sometimes, to take advantage of preparations, one party is given on Saturday afternoon and one given on the following afternoon. Sunday. Occasionally a series of parties is given, on three or four succeeding Saturdays or Sundays . . . this procedure is chosen by some people who prefer smaller groups, particularly when the idea is to show a new house.

HOPE CHEST FROM HER FIANCE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Bob and I are engaged, but our engagement isn't to be publicly announced until Christmas Day. Then I am to receive my engagement ring as my Christmas present. As my Dad says, I'm a present. Bob would like to give me a hope chest for the linens and silver I have been collecting. Would this be correct? (Several of my friends have told me it is a girl's parents should give her her hope chest.) — Beatrice.

Yes . . . It will be correct for your fiance to give you your hope chest, since at that time your engagement will have been announced. What a Christmas Week of Happiness for you . . . the announcement of your engagement, your engagement ring, your hope chest!

DEEP SPOTS

YOUR OLDER children can make original and charming gifts by enameling earthenware flower pots in a solid color. Let them dry, and decorate them "free style." This can be done, too, with the handles of wooden salad forks and spoons.

Readers' Friday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

I do so enjoy your column and I so often use your recipes. I love to cook and bake and am fond of oven meals. I would appreciate very much the recipes for glazed carrots, fluffy shredded beets or buttered shredded carrot casserole, casserole of baked chicken, casserole of green limas and corn kernels.—A. M. G.

ANSWER:

The baked chicken I had in mind when I gave you the menu you refer to is a dish we have loved for many years. It is quite simple.

BAKED CHICKEN

The amounts given are for 4 1-2 lbs. of chicken. I use 2 fryers or 1 young roaster. Prepare chicken for washing and cutting up into serving pieces and drying. Place in baking dish after dredging in salted and peppered flour. Dot with 1-4 cup butter. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 10 minutes, then remove from oven and begin to baste with a mixture of 1-4 cup butter and 1-4 cup boiling water, using only one-third of it. Turn the chicken over, return It to oven, reduce heat to 325 deg. Fahr. Time required is about 50 minutes if fryers are used or 70 minutes if roaster. Use up remaining basting liquid at 2 more basting and turning intervals. Transfer chicken to hot platter when tender. Make cream gravy by stirring 3 or 4 tablespoons flour into fat and sediment in roasting pan, until blended and then stirring in until thick 1 cup each thin cream and boiling water or chicken stock. Pour over chicken on platter. Mashed potatoes are delicious with this because of the rich gravy.

GLAZED CARROTS

Boil whole small (or quartered) carrots until not quite tender in barely enough water to keep them from burning. When done water should be nearly cooked away. Now add 1-4 cup each butter and sugar and cook gently, carefully stirring occasionally, until tender and glazed all over. During the growing season when you do these add 1 or 2 tablespoons very finely chopped mint to the glaze. For special occasions press a sprig of parsley into top of each whole cooked carrot for a garnish.

SHREDDED BEET OR CARROT CASSEROLE

To serve 4 or 5 pare and shred raw beets (or carrots) until you have 3 well-packed cups. Put in buttered casserole (or this may be done in top of double boiler) with 2 tablespoons each butter and boiling water and season with salt and pepper. If desired 1 teaspoon lemon juice and 1 teaspoon sugar may be sprinkled over. Cover tightly and bake until tender. The ideal baking temperature is 400 deg. but this may be baked with other things in the oven at other temperatures until it is tender.

CASSEROLE OF LIMAS AND CORN

When in season raw corn cut from cob and raw baby limas may be used. At this time of year use canned corn and frozen limas. Put in layer in buttered casserole. Add 1-3 cup cream and 2 tablespoons butter. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and bake until tender—about 375 deg. or temperature required for other food in oven.

PIONEER STEAMBOAT

The first steamboat on the St. Lawrence was built by John Molson at Montreal in 1808.

UPSET APARTMENT

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A frustrated squirrel trapped in an apartment his feelings by ripping curtains, heaping peanuts on the floor, knocking over lamps and chewing on window frames. Owners returning to find the damage captured the intruder after a 15 - minute chase.

Sunday School Lesson:

Help for Man in Trouble

By ROY L. SMITH

There is nothing new about trouble except the names we give to it. From the beginning of time men have had to face defeat, frustration, hunger, disaster, opposition, misunderstanding and fear.

In the process of meeting trouble mankind has developed a variety of defenses. He has accepted the blows of life with stoical resignation, as though there were nothing that could be done about it. He has drugged himself into oblivion in an effort to escape from trouble. And he has appealed to his gods for help in outwitting trouble.

PSYCHOLOGISTS HELP

In more recent years the science of psychology has come to the rescue, providing us with a series of techniques designed to enable the troubled individual to better deploy the forces of his own personality, and the help that has been given has been very considerable.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for November 28: "In Time of Trouble," Psalms 46:1-12.

The truth is, however, that in many areas of life the psychologists have only given new names to old troubles. They have provided us with a new vocabularly with which to discuss our difficulties. And they have given us new lenses through which to look at ourselves. All this is of real value, of course, and must not be minimized. But at the same time must face one simple fact very frankly: the psychologists have given us no new powers. They have only taught us how to use those already available to us.

PSALMIST VERY MODERN

The pitiful cry of the ancient singer who has left us the 103rd Psalm is a very modern description of the troubled man. He has suffered unjustly, he has been trapped by his enemies, he suffers from frustrations, and he takes any interest in his direful plight, his enemies are relentless and he has been overpowered. Feeling himself completely helpless and undone, he prays.

It is very probable that there is a great deal more praying done in our world than the preachers realize. Rare indeed is the troubled man who does not "cry unto the Lord" in some way, even though his prayer may sound highly unconventional and at times may actually smack of profanity. To appeal to something or someone higher and stronger than we are is as natural as yawning when we are tired, or sleeping when we are exhausted.

GOD DOES HELP

Much confusion arises from the fact that it often happens that the help God sends us in the midst of our difficulties comes in some form we do not recognize. A good many years ago Henry Ward Beecher, the famous Congregational preacher, told the story of a woman in his congregation who prayed very earnestly that God would make her patient, and "the Almighty heard her prayer and sent her a stuffy servant girl, so that she had to become patient."

The best solution of our difficulty is always to be found in the removal of the difficulty, but in the provision of power which enables us to overcome our opposition.

The wise teacher does not make the problem easier, but undertakes to help the student increase his skill and his understanding.

The best prayer is not that which removes the obstacles from before us, but that one which leads us to greater self-reliance, strength and wisdom, by which obstacles can be overcome. And it is precisely at that point that good religion makes its greatest contribution to our lives.

French Fighter May Be Selected By NATO Officers

By RON EVANS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Observers wondered today whether the British aircraft industry is due for another punch at its prestige.

This follows reports that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is ready to turn down a pocket-size British jet fighter in favor of a French model.

Easzler, British experts predicted that the Gnat, a stubby, swept-wing fighter, half the size of the standard modern jet, would fly off with the NATO order for about 1,000 light fighters. Gnat prospects soared after a fine performance at the Farnborough air show last August.

FAVOR STOLENT

Now the inspired guess is that the French Baroudeur, an aircraft similar to the Gnat which takes off from a trolley and lands on retractable skids, has stolen NATO favor.

Defence Minister Harold Macmillan told the Hou.e of Commons Wednesday that no decision has been taken by NATO, but questioners were not completely reassured by his statement that "the matter has not yet gone beyond the stage of technical recommendations."

The News Chronicle suggests that the Gnat may be losing the contest because of delay in producing a suitable engine.

Designed by the creator of the British Canberra jet bomber and financed entirely by a private firm, (Folland Aircraft Ltd.) the Gnat is to have a small but powerful new jet engine. The News Chronicle says the engine will probably not be ready until 1956.

HIGHER SPEED

Both the Gnat and the Baroudeur carry two 30-millimetre cannon and are designed for ground-attack and troop-support duties. Performance details for either plane have not been officially released, but the Gnat is said to have a top speed of 600 mile an hour compared with the Baroudeur's 646.

If NATO does decide for the French plane, it will be a fresh reverse for the British aircraft industry at a time when the Comet inquiry has led to some anxious questions in Parliament.

Rossmore

ROSSMORE — Mrs. Vance, of Belleville, entertained the Rossmore W.A. at her home Tuesday afternoon. A pleasant afternoon was spent, and refreshments were served by the hostess and Assistants.

Members of the afternoon euchre met at the home of Mrs. J. Kropinak, Thursday afternoon. Three tables were at play and a pleasant afternoon enjoyed.

Rossmore W.A. held a most successful bazaar and tea at Tobe's County Gardens on Wednesday afternoon. The decorations were attractive, and the tables of fancy work, aprons, gifts, candy and home cooking were liberally supplied. The fishing pond proved popular. Tickets were sold on a basket of groceries and a beautiful pair of pillow cases.

Mrs. R. H. Williams, secretary Stirling Branch of Upper Canada Bible Society, which comprises five churches, has completed plans for the annual combined service which will be held Sunday evening, November 28, at 8 p.m., in St. John's Church of England, Stirling.

The guest minister will be the Rev. Dr. R. A. Ward, Toronto, professor at Wycliffe College. This is the 130th anniversary of "The British and Foreign Bible Society". The five churches cooperating with their pastors are: St. Andrew's, Presbyterian, the Rev. W. H. V. Walker; Grace Chapel, Mr. A. R. Wannamaker; St. Paul's United Church, Dr. Arthur Packman; Bethel United Church on the Rawdon charge, the Rev. W. G. Fletcher, B.A., and St. John's Church of England, the Rev. H. C. Secker.

The society hopes to promote wider Bible reading, more missionary education, with literary gospels for millions of new readers, illustrated gospels and a special Bible for school children. Their jubilee advance campaign has been launched to carry a program of Christian service in Canada and throughout the world.

Tea tables, Mrs. R. Green convener and Mrs. G. Morton. Pouring tea, Mrs. R. McInnes, Mrs. Hoyland, Mrs. Roy Parks and Mrs. Harold Long. Mrs. William Irvin was in charge of receipts for the tea tables.

The bazaar and sale was most successful, despite the nasty weather.

TWEED — Miss Doris Bateman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Bateman, Tweed, who received her graduation diploma in nursing from Toronto General Hospital in June, has received word that she was successful in passing her Registered Nurses' examination which she tried last September. Miss Bateman will have completed her training course on New Year's Day, having had to forfeit some of her training time through illness.

Fifteen members of Tweed Business and Professional Women's Club attended an inter-club dinner in the YMCA, Belleville, recently, with guests present from Picton, Napanee and Tweed. The Belleville club was hostess at this special evening, which was addressed by the new regional director, Miss Kay McFarland, of Napanee.

Work has started on the new Stedman store on North Victoria Street on the vacant lot adjoining the old store on the south side. The work will be rushed to completion by Mr. Pat Whalen, local contractor, who has a large gang of men at work, laying the cement foundations and walls.

Scoharie

SCOHARIE — The deer hunters, Will McGee, Henry and John Leavitt returned the first of last week from the north and report the deer quite plentiful. Everyone in their camp secured their venison and had it been permissible believed they could have doubled their quota.

Mrs. Ronald Foster, Rhonda and Kathy have moved into their new home. Mrs. Victor Leavitt, Cherry Valley, is staying with them for the present.

Quite a number from here attended Variety Night's program sponsored by the Junior Farmers at Bloomfield hall on Friday evening. A one-act play was presented along with a goodly number of duets, recitations, tap dancing numbers and piano solos, rounding out a splendid program. The hall was filled, which was gratifying to the Junior Farmers.

TV NEWS

by Gene Hitchon

Being in business, we don't like lecturing the customers on how they should do their buying. We don't think they like it, either.

So we sought out an independent expert. He's John F. Kennally, a qualified radio and television engineer.

Mr. Kennally has some interesting views on what the average purchaser should look for in a TV set. Here are some of them:

Screen size — The 21-inch screen is becoming standard, but 24 or 17 inch screens are suitable for small rooms. Anything less is a poor investment. No increase is lessened, and so is trade-in value.

CABINET — This should be the least important component. It is, after all, the screen you'll be viewing — not the cabinet.

Tubes — Different sets use from 16 to 23 tubes. Generally a 19-tube set is superior to one with 20. But a difference of only one or two tubes is not considered vital.

Price — In TV, as in every other commodity, the customer gets what he pays for. Generally, the "cheap" sets, but the picture quality is usually in direct line with the price.

Well, those are the views of an expert. We hope they've helped you.

When you think of television you immediately think of quality. And you're right! For today's TV receiver has more to offer than ever before.

Come in soon and we'll be glad to show you all the features of the latest models. The new Electrohome, with 23 tubes and cabinet by Danforth, excels in performance and cabinet beauty — see them at

Council of Churches Ready To Battle Against Move Making It Easier to Hold Lotteries

Sask. Liberals Prepare to Elect New Leader

By STEWART ANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

KINGSTON (CP)—The Canadian Council of Churches, which today began the final session of its five-day biennial meeting, is ready to battle against any move to amend the section of the Criminal Code that deals with lotteries.

The council Thursday made known its continued opposition to gambling in a report presented by the department of social relations, another section of which expressed alarm at the increase in the number of so-called giveaway merchandising campaigns.

"The value or quality of the product offered for sale appears to be quite incidental to the glittering prize which the customer may be lucky enough to win."

GREAT LENGTHS

The report said some businesses went to great lengths in their promotion of raffles and lucky draws in an effort to obtain customers.

"We are going to have a real battle on our hands to maintain the present position as it relates to lottery laws in Canada," the report said. "We appeal again to the members of our constituent churches for their whole-hearted support."

The report said a brief opposing any move to amend the section on lotteries is to be presented by the council to Senate and House of Commons members at the next session of parliament.

Figures showing a 15-per-cent increase in horse racing races last year compared to 1952 were included in the report.

RECORD PRESIDENT

"During the 1953 racing season Canadians spent an all-time high of $77,796,358 on the track.

These statistics give us cause for concern, especially when we consider that they represent but a fraction of the total amount spent by Canadians in all forms of betting and gambling, some of which are legal, many of which are contrary to the laws of the country."

Today's business included nominations and election of officers and installation of the new president. Nominations were to be voted on and groups which have discussed various topics through the week will be dealt with in their reports.

JOBLESS CONCERN

The department said it has been concerned by increasing unemployment in certain sections of the country during the past few months. The report outlined suggestions and recommendations made to governments by labor, from meetings with social workers, specialized agencies, churches and labor and industry officials.

Housing was another topic. Good housing is the first responsibility that remains obstinately beyond the reach of many workers in Canada."

The report said the aim of the government in making a low-cost and low-rental housing available should be to take care of those needs which "obviously cannot and will not be met by private enterprise at today's cost of production."

Dentists See Demonstration Of Hypnosis

TORONTO (CP)—A demonstration in the use of hypnosis in dentistry was given Thursday at the 25th International Dental Association meeting by Dr. Harold Mason of Gali.

The session was closed to the press. Members of the Toronto Academy of Dentistry, the sponsoring group, explained that hypnosis was not an accepted procedure in their profession. Also, they said, many members were not satisfied that it was a technique devoid of harmful effects on patients.

Dr. Mason has used hypnosis for several years in his practice and has demonstrated his methods previously in Toronto, Hamilton and other Ontario cities.

FEELS OF USE

Dr. Mason has said the use of hypnosis eliminates pain and is particularly helpful for patients who, for medical reasons, are unable to take anesthesia. It also may be used to calm patients of nervous temperament.

A similar demonstration, also closed to the press, was given here last May by Dr. Donald Moore of Hamilton. Previous to May, Dr. Irwin Shaw of Chicago demonstrated hypnotic, surgical and dentistry analgesia. Many surgeons and other persons outside the profession were permitted to attend.

At that time a young dentist volunteered as a subject and Dr. Shaw said he was highly pleased to experience no pain.

The profession is also studying the use of hypnotism for some time, a spokesman said. Some dentists say the word hypnotism has militated against more serious study of it.

SUGGEST NEW NAME

Some have suggested that it be changed to "relaxation" or "psychosomatic relaxation or a similar phrase.

The trouble is that too many of us dislike the possibility that the public think we're playing around with just another fad," a member of the Toronto academy said.

"Also, we don't like getting people's hopes up about something that may be a complete flop. We've had that in such things as surgical transfusions and anesthetics which were publicized, bringing hordes of patients to our offices seeking the new thing, and it was ultimately proving that the miracles had flopped after their announcements."

The two municipalities signed the annexation agreement Wednesday and the first stage of the first phase of the construction will be 185 new homes.

Georgetown, 36 miles northwest of Toronto has a population of 3,500. Officials forecast a population of 10,000 on the new site within seven years.

Network of Cancer Treatment Centres Is Being Planned

BRANTFORD (CP)—A network of strategically-located cancer clinics where Canadian cancer patients may be treated with the famed cobalt bomb therapy unit is being planned by the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Health Minister Martin told the 50th anniversary dinner of the Canadian Order of Foresters here Thursday night that he expects the network of care and treatment centres will be in operation in the near future.

His announcement was contained in the text of a speech issued to the press before the dinner.

Mr. Martin said Canadian-made Cobalt 60 beam therapy units now have been installed in hospitals in Vancouver, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Winnipeg, Arthur, Hamilton, Windsor, Hamilton and Toronto. Delivery of similar equipment would be made this winter to cancer centres in Ottawa and Montreal.

The Order of Foresters presented $25,000 to the Canadian Cancer Society. The cheque was accepted on behalf of the society by Mr. Martin.

Canadian Mayors Urge Govt. Action on Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian mayors said today "abnormal unemployment" exists in some areas and urged the federal government to do something about it.

They disclaimed ability of the municipalities to pay for assistance to the unemployed and charged government with the duty of providing such assistance.

The Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, in its annual brief to the cabinet, recommended a four-point program:

1. A federal-provincial-municipal program of publicly-financed undertakings, especially in the most depressed areas;

2. Transfer of unemployed persons from "economically distressed" areas to localities where jobs are in greater supply;

3. Extended coverage to the Unemployment Insurance Act to cover classes of workers not now included;

4. Federal assistance payments to unemployed persons who have exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits or are not eligible to receive benefits.

The delegation was headed by Mayor Don MacKay of Calgary.

SOME INDUSTRIES HIT

The federation said in its 37-page brief that while no one would seriously suggest Canada's economy is headed for a slump, "certain industries faced depressed conditions, resulting in some prolonged periods of unemployment."

The 314,630 unplaced job applicants on June 1 last represented 5.9 per cent of the total labor force, the federation said. However, this percentage did not reflect the situation as it exists in some areas or even in some municipalities, where it was much higher.

"The unemployment picture thus revealed emphasizes the need for the implementation of the federal government's policy of maintaining a high level of employment," the brief said.

"This policy should include a planned program of publicly financed regional or local undertakings which would help to increase employment opportunities during periods when normal regional or local economic activity is declining."

URGE GREATER MOBILITY

Such a program should consider the measures necessary for a mobile labor force, able to move from a depressed area or community to an economically-active one.

The responsibility is a federal country such as Canada for unemployment assistance was on the central government.

The federation regarded, unemployment insurance as a measure to assist workers temporarily out of a job, but not as an unemployment assistance program.

When workers had exhausted their unemployment insurance benefits, they invariably turned to the local government for help and not to the provincial or federal governments. Since the resources of Canada's provinces varied, the provinces could not all supply the same level of assistance.

The responsibility then fell on the federal government to establish within the framework of the unemployment insurance commission some system of assistance.

This assistance would not mean that municipalities and the provinces would abandon their aid to certain special cases.

The federation also recommended that grants paid in lieu of municipal taxation on federal crown property be increased.

Prison Gates Will Swing Open For Alger Hiss

LEWISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The prison gates that closed on Alger Hiss 3½ years ago will swing open Saturday for the 48-year-old former United States state department official.

The one-time ranking government official will leave Lewisburg federal penitentiary on a probation hear basis.

Protesting his innocence to several days when he said he never passed secrets to a Communist spy ring, Hiss was committed to the federal institution in 1951.

He will leave the prison as a convicted felon—without the right to vote or hold public office.

His wife, Priscilla, is expected to meet him at the prison gates when he is released.

WORKED AS CLERK

Prison guards have described Hiss' prison life as that of "an extremely co-operative inmate." He has worked in the prison time as a clerk on the clothing issue detail.

His spare time, they said, was devoted "almost exclusively" to reading in the prison library.

Hiss' release comes just a few days after the death in the same prison of William W. Remington, another government employee who was imprisoned on conviction of perjury in connection with questioning on Communist connections.

Remington was murdered by Carl Robert Carl Parker, face murder charges in the Monday bludgeoning of Remington with a sock-encased piece of fire brick.

Sheppard Ave. Bridge Closed

TORONTO (CP) — Heavy rushhour traffic was slowed to less than five miles an hour late Thursday after the Sheppard Ave. bridge was closed by the Oct. 16 floods, was closed to traffic.

Sheppard avenue, running east and west, is a main route just north of the city.

The 40-year-old bridge was closed about 4 p.m. and many motorists were unaware of it until they became tangled in the jam of hundreds of homebound motorists near the bridge area.

The overflow on to Yonge street complicated an existing traffic problem caused by two Bailey bridges erected to replace the Mogg's Hollow bridge which collapsed early Sunday.

The 200-foot-span bridge was ordered closed after divers discovered that the floods had washed away a large section of footing.

LAUNCH ESCORT

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's newest destroyer escort, the HMCS Restigouche, was launched Monday. The ship, some of whose equipment is still on the ways here, slid into the St. Lawrence river from the yards of Canadian Vickers in the east end of Montreal. She is the seventh of 14 destroyer escorts planned by the navy.

48 Volunteers To Fly to Britain For Sub Training

OTTAWA (CP)—The first group of Canadian sailors to undergo submarine training in Britain will leave Canada by air this weekend.

The navy said today the first draft of 48 volunteers, drawn from ships and establishments across the country, will fly from Montreal Sunday. They will start training immediately at HMS Dolphin, the Royal Navy's submarine training base near Plymouth. Training periods will vary from three months to a year.

After training, the Canadians will be assigned to duty in Royal Navy submarines. The majority will go to the three undersea craft of the 6th Submarine Squadron to be based at Halifax to provide more training facilities for the anti-submarine ships and carrier-based air squadrons of the Canadian navy.

TO TRAIN 200

Eventually, nearly 200 Canadian navy officers and ratings will be trained for submarine duty. The second draft, 80 men, is scheduled to leave early in January. The other 38 arriving some three weeks later.

The British Admiralty and Canadian navy recently concluded an agreement under which three Royal Navy submarines, the Astute, Ambush and Alderney, will work out of Halifax to help train RCAF maritime squadrons as well as navy destroyers and ships.

The Canadian navy has no submarines of its own, but a Halifax-based sub has been based at Halifax. The first craft of the 6th Submarine Squadron is due to arrive at Halifax in mid-March, the last in June.

Jury Attaches No Blame To CNR Employees

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner's jury decided Thursday night that Fireman Orrin Shirley and Engineer Pella, 21, killed when her car was struck by a train at a level crossing was accidental death.

The jury said the death was due to the engineer and the fact gates and not a safety signal were used at the crossing. It recommended that a bell be placed at the crossing.

Mervin G. Robinson, 22, a passenger in the car, died later in hospital.

The blame was attached to the gateman, William Pemberton, 58, of Toronto, employed by Canadian National Railways freight train, Daniel Moran, Belleville.

Pemberton was on duty time he was unable to lower the gates because of heavy traffic crossing the railway track.

Sir Winston Is Descendant Of Charlemagne

LONDON (AP)—Research completed Thursday showed that Sir Winston Churchill—half American and half British Indian—also is a descendant of Emperor Charlemagne, founder of the Great and William the Conqueror.

C. F. J. Hankinson, editor of Debrett's Peerage, the 2,200-page book which is an authority on ancestry, reported Churchill's connection with ancient kings after long research through the centuries. Hankinson, who has his job as a sort of birthday present to the prime minister, was 30 on his 80 next Tuesday.

By hard-to-accurate to female lines, Hankinson established that Churchill descended from Henry VII by only 12 generations. From that point backward the editor's line runs through Henry VIII's links with Charlemagne, Alfred and William had been established centuries previously.

The line down from Henry VII, often regarded as the founder of families, is highlighted by such names as Charles, first Duke of Suffolk; Henry, first Duke of Derby and Knight of the Garter, George, the Duke of Marlborough, and finally, the prime minister's father, Lord Randolph Churchill.

Hankinson's chart shows the prime minister has American, Irish, Scottish and Welsh blood in him.

His mother was Jennie Jerome, daughter of Leonard, who was a newspaper owner. By Jennie there was a touch of Iroquois Indian blood.

Mendes-France Cuts Short Rest to Deal With Situation

PARIS (Reuters) — Premier the phenomenon of detente (be- Mendes-France Thursday night cut coming accustomed to an unstable short his rest after a triumphal international situation) was ready tour of North America to deal with to become concrete. This is one of a stormy political situation brewing in the French National Assembly.

Mendes-France planned to rest until Monday after flying into Paris from New York Wednesday, but the explosive North African situation caused him to return to the French capital Wednesday night.

Thursday the total rose to eight deputies who have asked for a debate on the shocked North African situation. The French are plagued by the war in Indo-China and the Tunisian crisis.

Many deputies objected to what they called the government's "soft" attitude toward the terrorists.

But if Mendes-France was having to cut short his visit to America, the Paris newspapers were happy about the success of his North American trip.

Most of them did not comment editorially but carried stories from their New York and Washington correspondents.

Typical is the correspondent for the independent mass-circulation France-Soir, who said the trip was "a considerable success."

Malton Airport May Soon Come Under Transport Department

OTTAWA (CP) — Toronto's big and busy Malton airport may soon be taken over by transport department ownership and get bigger and busier. In return, the smaller inland airport in Canada's second largest city would gain some $1,500,000 worth of improvements.

The city and the federal government have long discussed Toronto's two airports. Thursday night Mayor Leslie Saunders indicated agreement was close to actuality. So did Deputy Transport Minister Baldwin.

Mr. Saunders said the transport department plans to develop Malton as a modern international airport "as soon as possible." In a separate brief, Mr. Baldwin outlined plans for its expansion include increased runway facilities, improved navigational equipment and a new terminal building. Mr. Saunders said the terminal would be similar to one being built at Montreal's Dorval airport.

The proposed agreement was discussed Thursday by Mr. Saunders, Ernie Griffiths, general manager of the Toronto harbor commission, which operates Malton and Toronto island airports and Mr. Baldwin and other department officials.

Mr. Saunders said that if the proposed agreement Between Toronto and the federal government is approved "in the near future," the transport department is prepared to begin improving facilities at the island airport in 1953. He said he had cleared his statement with Mr. Baldwin before handing it in.

The improvements to the island airport, separated from downtown Toronto by the western channel entrance to the harbor, would include more runways.

Mr. Saunders said he will write the Toronto Harbor Commissioners St. Laurent for assurance that the government will give favorable consideration to any applications for international overseas service to Malton. Given such assurance, the agreement still will need the approval of the Toronto city council, Mr. Saunders said.

Mr. Baldwin said the transport department has plans for a terminal for Malton expansion, but the time required to put them into effect depend upon the availability of funds. He said $20,000,000 would be about right, but he could come at present to any estimate of costs, Put in three, the improvements will run to more than that.

The present arrangement is that Toronto harbor collects and the island airports, but rents Malton, Toronto Transportation Ltd. and other heavy commercial aircraft to the transport department for $1 a year.

Government Financed Industry Controversial Issue in Nfld.

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—One of the most controversial issues of post-Confederation life in Newfoundland has been the development of government-financed industry.

The Liberal government of Premier Joseph Smallwood, in an attempt to provide Newfoundlanders with a diversified means of wage earning, has spent $20,000,000 promoting industry in a province whose resources previously were centred around fish and lumber.

Sixteen diversified industries were established, 14 of them scattered between low-lying hills surrounding scenic Conception bay on Newfoundland's Avalon peninsula. To the government they have been a symbol of progress; to the opposition a waste of money.

Starting with a cement mill, the government launched its development program in 1950. With production wheels gradually grinding into high gear only a knitting mill remains in the construction stage. One industry, a gypsum plant, had a temporary closedown because of market flooding by a lower - priced Montreal product. The others, manufacturing leather, rubber products, batteries, wood products, shoes, insulsbrey and many types of clothing, are either in partial or full production.

With a $43,000,000 post-Confederation surplus to work from, Premier Smallwood personally directed the drive for new industries. He climbed into ditches where workers had foundations mounted scaffolds to watch walls being erected, ate giant machines being unerated, pushed buttons to start wheels turning and signed thousands of orders, invoices and bills.

His technical adviser for the first two years of development was Dr. Alfred A. Valdmanis, Latvian economist and industrialist, who this year admitted swindling the government of $200,000 and was sentenced to four years with hard labor.

The 47-year-old Latvian was replaced as director general of economic development by Gordon Pushie, a former Time magazine editor.

STRIVE FOR OBJECTIVE

Employing 1,900 Newfoundlanders, the industries are still far below the production rate of early government predictions but the premier and Mr. Pushie say it is only a matter of shaking off growing pains. Critics say the industries will fade away under competition from mass - production mainland firms.

Only five plants are at full production but the government's hope of providing employment for 5,000 Newfoundlanders may still be realized. Government sources say that already two textile plants are making money and others are said to be near the borderline.

"The program started at Humbermouth, near the west coast town of Corner Brook. Cement and gypsum plants were put into production at a cost of $3,000,000. Next a $200,000 birch processing plant was built near St. John's.

After this big initial spending, the government went after private enterprise and more than $6,000,000 was loaned to European industrialists, to be repaid over a 14-year period.

NEED MAINLAND MARKETS

Basically, the plants produce high-priced products not greatly affected by shipping charges to larger Canadian markets, but cheaper competitive products are also turned out by most of the industries. Newfoundland supplies only a small outlet for the products and some plants look to mainland Canada for 90 per cent of their markets.

Premier Smallwood says he is interested in seeing more industries established in Newfoundland but he has not said what type of industries would interest him.

Opposition members of the legislature have called for a royal commission study of the nearly-completed program, but such motions have been defeated by the big Liberal majority.

Without the complete protection of "Prestone" Brand Anti-Freeze, you may suffer the expense of serious cooling system damage this winter or even next summer after the anti-freeze has been drained and replaced with water and rust inhibitor.

Remember—a 'substitute' anti-freeze just might get you through the winter without cooling system freeze-up. But freeze-up is less than half the hazard of winter engine operation. Many cases of summer engine over-heating problems are caused by inferior anti-freeze protection during the previous winter.

HOW GOOD IS THE BUTTON HOOK PASS?

THE BUTTON HOOK is a "spot" pass, thrown by a receiver who runs, turns abruptly and catches the ball at a pre-arranged spot while facing the passer. His run follows the pattern of an old-fashioned button-hook.

One of the strongest weapons in a short-passing game is the bullet-like "button hook" pass, rifled by the passer to a sure-handed receiver as he "hooks" and catches the pass at a pre-arranged spot! Using this fast-striking pass, a heady quarterback can pull in the opposing defense, setting up openings for longer payoff passes!

Eskys Bank on Dry Fast Field, But Stadium Will Be Muddy

TORONTO (CP)—The big odds were still riding against Edmonton Eskimos today despite indications the Grey Cup football classic may not be played in muck.

Eskimos, basking on a fast, dry field to help their spill-2 attack against Montreal Alouettes Saturday, arrived here Thursday night only to be greeted with the news that Varsity Stadium was muddy after intermittent rain for the last few days. Alouettes get here tonight.

It was a disappointment to Edmonton coach Frank (Pop) Ivy, who said he had hoped for a speedy field to make things easier for the fast-breaking Eskimos. At the same time, there was hope of clear skies instead of rain for the game, the country's greatest sports spectacle.

The weatherman wouldn't make an official forecast for Saturday, but said this much:

Although a storm over western Canada still poses a threat of dirty weather at the 1 p.m. EST kickoff time, it appears to be changing direction and there is a good possibility that Saturday will be partly cloudy with temperatures around 40 degrees. There's still is a risk of showers, though.

Groundskeepers at Varsity stadium, traditional site of the game, lifted the $12,000 tarpaulin from the field today in an effort to dry out the ground. If it doesn't rain too much and the winds are brisk enough between now and game time, the field will improve considerably.

There is no outlook, however, for the fast gridiron that Ivy wants.

Meanwhile, Eskimos, Western Interprovincial Football Union champions who won the Grey Cup semi-final 38-6 against Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen last Saturday, took it easy today. They showed little reaction to the fact that bookies have them only 1 to 5 to upset the powerful Als.

Frankie Anderson, a crashing end from Oklahoma, summed up Eskimo feelings when he said:

"Good. Good. Maybe they'll be complacent about the game. We'll be hungry team. As the underdogs, we'll play that much better."

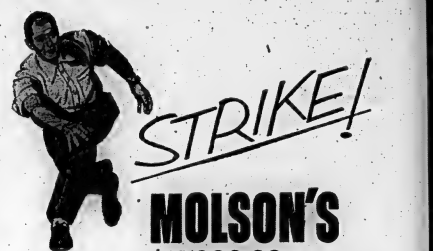
Ivy and line coach Cliff Speegle said Eskimos are mentally "up" for the classic and that the team is in fair physical shape despite a season-long injury siege.

The bookies aren't doing a big business with straight cash bets so they have come up with a 13-point spread if fans prefer it this way. One in every five of the 41 Grey Cup finals since inception of the classic in 1909 has been an upset.

Eskimos had a rough flight before landing at nearby Malton airport. It took 11 hours for the Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star to make the trip from Edmonton. It was 2½ hours late taking off because of a faulty engine and then ran into strong headwinds east of Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

With the team was Claude Arnold, who quarterbacked Eskimos when they lost 21-11 to Toronto Argonauts in the 1953 Grey Cup final.

"This is as good a team as the one in 1953," Arnold said. "They'll play a better game than we did in 1952. We got a bad one out of our system."



Arnold has been on the sidelines since he was hurt in the second game of the WIFU schedule.

Ivy said he is worried about only two players. They are halfback Rollie Miles, who suffered a slight concussion against Dutchmen, and bruising end Roland Prather, who has a twisted knee.

Eskimos, looking sporty in white cowboy hats and camel hair jackets as they stepped from the plane, left for their motel about 18 miles east of downtown Toronto shortly after they arrived at the airport. They were to have a light practice this afternoon and see a movie tonight. Other than that they will just loll around.

Detroit Lions Within One Win Of Title

DETROIT (AP)—After getting a "bad" game out of their system, the Detroit Lions today were within one victory of clinching their third straight western division title and a spot in the National Football League's championship game.

The Lions, playing loosely both on offense and defence, squeezed past the Green Bay Packers 28-24 Thursday in their annual Thanksgiving Day game before 53,333 fans in Briggs Stadium.

The victory—coach Buddy Parker called it a lucky one—moved the Lions into a position where one more victory will send them against the champions of the eastern division.

NEARLY UPSET

But the Lions were dull and unimaginative against the Packers, 16-point underdogs who narrowly missed pulling a big upset.

There were flashes of brilliance in Detroit's game—such as Bobby Layne's record touchdown passes (the 100th and 101st of his career) and two dazzling runs by Jack Christiansen, who went 36 yards with an intercepted pass for one touchdown and 52 yards with a punt return for another.

But for the most part the sharpness which characterized Detroit's play earlier in the season was missing.

Tobin Rote, a one-man team if ever there was one, almost singlehandedly upset the Lions. The former Rice star handled the ball on 56 plays, passing for one touchdown and scoring another. He completed 13 of 38 passes for 254 yards and ran seven times for another 39 yards.

After Fred Cone put Green Bay into a 17-14 lead with a 26-yard field goal, the Lions struck for two consecutive touchdowns to take the lead for keeps. As the third period ended, Rote lofted a tremendous pass which end Max McGee caught behind the entire Detroit team and rambled to a touchdown.

Hornets Whip Hershey Bears; Share Top Spot

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh's Hornets have muscled in on the first-place position held by the Hershey Bears in the American Hockey League, but except for a crack in Spring-field's winning streak they'd be but a couple of runners-up today.

A pair of third-period goals by Bob Solinger gave the Hornets their share of first place in a 2-1 victory over Hershey Thursday night. Each has 21 points.

Springfield's Indians could have moved into a one-point lead, but Paul Larivee's rebound shot in overtime enabled the Providence Reds to pull out a 3-2 success that snapped the Indians' streak at five games.

The Buffalo Bisons also figured in a change of pace, ended their own five-game losing streak with an explosive 7-2 route of the Cleveland Barons.

Hershey had a 1-0 lead until the final period. Solinger tied it early in the closing period, then won it with 1:35 remaining.

Springfield scored twice in the second period for a 2-1 lead until Jack Sladdard's goal sent it into the fatal overtime. Just about every play worked for the Bisons after their winless troubles as rookie Kenny Wharram and veteran Gordie Fennell scored twice.

Tennis Fastest Growing Sport In Russia

LONDON (AP)—Tennis is a favorite with the capitalist country club set, is one of Russia's fastest growing sports.

The game is played extensively in Moscow, Tiflis, Leningrad and a dozen other cities, says S. B. Reay, secretary of the International Lawn Tennis Federation.

"They play mostly on hard courts," Reay said. "They have both indoor and outdoor games and to help them along Jaroslav Kabob, the veteran Hungarian Davis Cup star, has been to Moscow twice and played with the best Russians.

"I have talked with several Russian sports officials and they told me the game is growing rapidly."

The Russians are far below Wimbledon or Davis Cup class, say Westerners who have seen Russians playing. Most of their equipment is American or Swedish, bought in huge lots and imported into Russia after the Second World War.

Hamilton Cubs Whip Flyers By 8-5 Score

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cubs exploded in the third period Thursday night's junior A Ontario Hockey Association game defeating Barrie Flyers 8-5 before 1,500.

John Macdonald Barrie forward, went for the hat trick, scoring in every frame.

Blowing his old form, Hamilton's goal-tender Dennis Riggin, stopped 31 shots. Ross Brooks had 18 fired at him, 4 in each period.

Barrie opened the scoring and only held the lead for four minutes of the first period. After that the Cubs never looked back.

NEW YORK (AP)—Denver and Wichita, a couple of also-rans before this year, each wrapped up their conference title in Thanksgiving Day college football action.

In addition last year's national champion ran up a fantastic score before a nation-wide television audience.

Denver clubbed Colorado A and M 34-0 and thereby won its first undisputed Skyline Conference title in the school's 80-year history. The Pioneers wound up the season with a 9-1 record.

Cornell scored an unexpected victory over Penn in Philadelphia 20-6 and thereby equalled the 4-3 won-and-lost record of Yale atop the Ivy League. Counting games outside the Ivy League, Cornell has won five and lost four this year.

Maryland, the 1953 national titleholder, played the college television game of the day at College Park and gave the audience something to remember with a 74-13 parting of Missouri. Maryland scored in every quarter.

Virginia Tech crushed Virginia Military Institute 46-9 and thereby concluded its first undefeated season in 36 years.

Terry Sawchuk Registers Sixth Shutout As Red Wings Blank Leafs 2-0

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THIS IS IT!

This is it. Take your choice. You can have the Alouettes at five to one or take a thirteen-point spread.

That's it. The Montreal Aouleties are top-heavy favorites to wallop the lighter Edmonton Eskimos, injury-riddled as they are in tomorrow's Grey Cup classic.

But, it says here, bettors, giving those odds are not banking too heavily on making any money yet. It seems one in every five of the 41 Grey Cup finals since inception of the classic in 1909 has been an upset.

A glimpse at past records shows western fans may return happy, despite what the odds-makers are saying now.

The first big upset in cup history was in 1912 when bettors made Toronto Argonauts at the Big Four 5-1 favorites over Hamilton Alerts of the Ontario Rugby Football Union. Argos lost 11-6. Two years later University of Toronto Blues were favorites over Argonauts. The score: Varsity 7, Argos 14.

Things went according to the betting until 1927 when Hamilton Tigers were overwhelming favorites. But the fans stayed away in droves and Toronto sports writers, who had seen the West lose year after year since 1921 when the cup became an East-West affair, dubbed the game a "farce, a joke and a menace that cannot be avoided."

Tigers had such greats as Brian Timmis, one of the games all-time great plungers, Fred Veal, Alex. Denman, Gene Kiford, Fay Lumley and Timmy Lemay. The club, coached by Mike Rodden, now sports editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard, was considered the powerhouse of the country. But Toronto Beaches won 8-6 on a muddy field with such battlers as Ted Reeve, Ross Grimsley, Jimmy Keith, Alex. Fenton, Erak Cowhurst and Bobby Reid.

Tigers brought along all the trappings for a victory celebration, including a bucking flivver painted in Tiger black-and-yellow colors.

The big Hamilton team made yards 17 times to Beaches' three but the game was lost when Ike Commins blocked a Hamilton kick in the first quarter and Bobby Reid, lightest man on the Beach team, grabbed the ball and went over for a touchdown.

In 1935 the Winnipegs travelled east with Fritzie Hanson, Jeff Nicklin, Bert Oja, Lou Mogul, Rory Adelman, Greg Kalbat, Russ Reibolo, Dynamite Eddie James, Cliff Roseborough, playing-coach Bob Fritz, Bud Marquardt and others.

They were underdogs, as every western team has been since 1921, but won on Hanson's third-quarter 78-yard touchdown gallop.

The last upset was in 1948 when Calgary Stampeders, making their first trip East in search of the cup, beat Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7.

CORNWALL TONIGHT

The Cornwall Colts, champing at the bit and still smarting over their 5-0 whitewash handed them by the Memos last Sunday will be the honorable opposition at Memorial Arena tonight. The Colts rated in some quarters as being senior "A" calibre, are leading the league two points in front of Kingston, Belleville and Whitby. Clinton is in third spot with Brockville and Peterborough following in the order named.

The Colts pack a powerful punch, a hard-hitting, bone-jolting rearguard and a sharp shooting bevy of up-forwards. The last time the teams clashed here the Colts matched a 3-2 victory, two of the goals being scored while the Memos were two men shy.

The Memos must needs be on their best hockey behavior if they want to win what should be the best game of the senior "A" season here.

Incidentally the Colts held the Valleyfield Braves of the Quebec Hockey League to a 3-4 score the other night in an exhibition game.

NEW PREXY

Fred Norman, sincere minor sports worker from Simcoe, will be the next president of the Ontario Minor Hockey Association, it was announced from Toronto today. Mr. Norman, first elected to the OMHA executive for the 1944-47 season, twice headed the polls in elections for the executive committee, then moved into the vice-presidency, and prearranged until now he is in line to succeed one of the OMHA's most popular presidents, Mike Welchel of Elmira. Mr. Norman, long an active minor hockey worker in Simcoe, is a past president of the Simcoe Young Men's Club.

Mayor A. E. "Bert" Hick, of Lindsay, will move up to first vice-president, by acclamation and J. W. Oakes, of Strathroy moved from third to second vice-president. Frank Doherty, of Thorold, who covers the Niagara peninsula like a blanket of snow on behalf of minor hockey is being promoted from the active executive to third vice-president.

Nine candidates are in the running for the seven positions on the active executive committee. Seven will be defending posts, and two newcomers will be endeavoring to serve for the first time. Present members seeking re-election are Ted Elmes, Galt (chairman of the OMHA Rules Committee); Jerry Simmons, Gravenhurst; Jim Austin, Stouffville; Albert Watkins, Peterborough; Frank Cudmore, Wallaceburg; Doug Patterson, Stirling, and Jim Trott of Collingwood. The two new aspirants are Gordon Bishop, of Newmarket and Bev. Schram of Port Dover, either of whom would make excellent executive material for the OMHA.

AUSSIES LEAD

BRISBANE (Reuters)—Australia batted cautiously to score 58 for one wicket by lunch after being put in to bat by England on the opening day of the first test match pitch here. Winning the toss for England against Australia for the first time since 1921, Len Hutton apparently gambled on his pace attack being able to reap some advantage from the early life in the first period and bothered Lumley all night. Harry handled 39 shots to Sawchuck's 26. The insurance goal was fired by Ted Lindsay into an empty net in the third period after Leafs yanked Lumley in favor of a sixth attacker.

Canadiens were forced to go the limit against Hawks Tuesday night they managed a 4-4 tie against the league tail-enders in St. Louis and Thursday night trailed 3-1 at the end of the second period.

The Montreal firing power broke out in the final 30 minutes as Bernie Geoffrion and Maurice Richard scored. It was Geoffrion's 12th goal of the season and the 11th for the Rocket.

Chicago whipped out Calum Mackay's opening-period goal with two in the second period. Forward Bill Molenko scored his fourth of the year and defenceman Gus Mortson got his first of the season to put Chicago in the lead.

It was Gus Bodnar's first goal of the year that gave Bruins a tie. It came in the second period and wiped out a 2-1 lead Rangers built up in the first session.

Real Chevrefils produced the scoring for Bruins only to have Rangers' Pete Conacher and Andy Bathgate hit in quick succession. There was no scoring in the third period.

Toronto Maple Leafs will be the first to admit that goalkeeper Terry Sawchuck of Detroit Red Wings is back to his old tricks in the National Hockey League.

The impervious Mr. Sawchuck wrote his sixth shutout of the season in his record book as the Red Wings blanked Leafs 2-0 in Detroit Thursday night.

It was Sawchuck's third shutout in a row and the Detroit win broke a second-place tie that dumped Leafs into third place. Terry shut out Chicago Black Hawks twice last weekend.

Sawchuck's scintillating new adds up to 204 scoreless minutes.

He has allowed only 30 goals in 19 games.

Meanwhile, Montreal Canadiens maintained their five-point grip on first place by slipping Black Hawks 3-2 with a third period tally in Chicago. New York Rangers and Boston Bruins tied 2-2 at Boston. It left New York three points in front of the fifth-place Bruins.

The Detroit win broke the first time in three games that Red Wings have been able to beat Leaf netminder Wilf Cude.

The last two meetings were 1-0 victories for Toronto. The Detroit trolt took an early lead on Alex Delvecchio's goal at 13:08 of the

Senator Donates Trophy For Junior Puckists

MONTREAL (CP)—Senator Donat Raymond, president of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, has donated a challenge trophy for competition between Quebec and Ontario junior hockey teams, it was announced here Thursday.

The prize, to be called the Sir Wilfrid Laurier Trophy, is being donated to stimulate interest in junior hockey in Quebec and Ontario.

To date, three teams form Quebec and three from Ontario have signified they will compete for the trophy.

The three Ontario teams are Toronto Marlboros, Kitchener Canucks and St. Catharines Tee-Pees. Quebec Frontenacs, Trois-Rivieres Flambeaux and Montreal Canadiens are the Quebec teams.

There is a possibility that a fourth team from Ontario, as yet unnamed, will compete.

The competition will take the form of a round-robin home-and-home series.

A tentative date for the first game of a series has been set at Dec. 5 when St. Catharines Beach is scheduled to play at Quebec. St. Catharines would play at Montreal Dec. 7, and at Trois-Rivieres Dec. 8.

Lionel Conacher, president of the Quebec Junior Hockey League, announced that, due to the arranging of the trophy series, the remainder of the QJHL schedule will be released next week.

The QJHL schedule was upset recently when Jonquiere Marquis dropped out of the league.

Echo from The 'Halls of Ivy' 'If Good Enough, We'll Win'

EDMONTON (CP)—Frank (Pop) Ivy coach of the Edmonton Eskimos, was his usually canny self Wednesday night when asked for "rumors last words" on the eve of the team's departure for Toronto and the Grey Cup game.

"If we're good enough, we'll win," hazarded Ivy. "If not, we'll be beaten."

Further than that, the coach would not go.

After a brief workout on their home Clarke Stadium turf Wednesday afternoon it was early to bed, early to rise for the Eskimos, scheduled to leave here by air at 8 a.m. MST and arrive in Toronto at 5:40 p.m. EST.

FULL SLATE

Ivy will take along the full slate of 33 players in the 48-passenger Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star chartered each year by the Western Interprovincial Football Union champions.

Everything's planned, right down to the menu on board. A special breakfast at 7:30 a.m. and there'll be a roast-beef lunch after the plane takes off following a 20-minute stopover in Winnipeg.

Eaks will have one practice session in Toronto Friday afternoon in preparation for the big battle against Montreal Alouettes here the following Sunday.

The team will return to Edmonton Monday night.

Ivy was still not too happy about a few men licking their wounds from last Saturday's WIFU-Ontario Rugby Football Union semi-final in which Eaks downed Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 36-6 in a brawl of a game.

RECUPERATING

But with most of the knocked-about, it was just a case of soothing the few remaining twinges. End Rollie Prather, key member of the defensive squad, was sprinting around quite merrily Wednesday.

Another end, Steve Mendryk, whose nose was broken in the semi-final, also declared: He'll wear a plastic mask in the Toronto game.

Halfbacks Rollie Miles, Glenn Lippman and Jackie Parker and flying wing Glenn McWhinney have also recuperated.

Already on their way to Toronto are roughly 300 Eskimo supporters, whooping it up at every stop made by their special train.

Aboard the Canadian Pacific Railway's special which passed through Winnipeg Wednesday was Tom Coley Sr. of Clyde, Alta., believed the oldest fan making the trip. He'll celebrate his 75th birthday on the journey. Mr. Coley went east with Saskatchewan Roughriders in 1951 and with Eskimos the following year.

On the Canadian National Railways' train which left here Wednesday night was a banner crying: "Alouettes—poor bets, vive l'Eskimos!".

Everywhere, in green on gold and gold on green, was the war cry "Love Those Eaks."

Big Four Will Scout College Final

TORONTO (CP)—The 1954 college football season ends at London, Ont., Saturday, and 24 hours later officials of the Big Four Football Union will meet here to look over the 30 players up for the college draft.

Coach Bob Masterson of Varsity said this season's crop of draft prospects is "the best in several years."

"For the most part, college draftees won't be competing against American imports for their positions," he said. "So who do they have to beat out except maybe Junior or intermediate players?"

Fourteen Varsity players are listed as draft eligibles, six from McGill and five each from Queen's and Western Ontario Mustangs.

Masterson mentioned tackle Alex Mackie, fullback Bob Kimoff, Bill Horton and half Bob Pinkney from his Varsity Blues as players who could be valuable to Big Four clubs.

Hoff Steve Oseschuk, Varsity's leading scorer, won't be in the draft because he was claimed last year by Hamilton Tiger-Cats before returning to college for another year.

The college championship final between Varsity and Western Saturday will give Big Four representatives their last chance to watch draft eligibles before Sunday's meeting.

Guard Henry Zuzek and end Jack Cook are top candidates from Queen's. Fullback Lionel Quinn, who scored seven touchdowns in five games for McGill, is another outstanding prospect.

Original Big Train of Canadian Football Thinks Game Terrific

By JIM BASTABLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The original Big Train of Canadian football today looked back over 45 years of the game and said "It's been terrific all the way—it's still terrific."

Dr. Smirle Lawson, who played with University of Toronto in 1909 when Varsity won the first Grey Cup, says football has changed "quite a bit" since the old days of the two bucks and a kick. But, to men who love the game as he does, it will always be great.

"Modern-day football is even more thrilling," he said in an interview, "the forward pass did it. The fans see the ball more often. The forward replaced the long lateral, which is a beautiful play but rarely seen."

Now 65 and supervising coroner for Ontario, Dr. Lawson played senior football for six seasons with Varsity and Toronto Argonauts in that time he became one of the most bruising players in the business. He was in four Grey Cup finals and on two championship teams.

Old-time fans thrilled as they watched the sensational halfback hurtling over the line, crashing opposing players aside with his 180 pounds or carrying two or three of them across the goal line in a modern drive.

He so dominated backfield play that he was tabbed the Big Train, a name later given to Lionel Conacher, who was chosen the greatest athlete of the half century in a 1950 Canadian Press poll.

"Eughie Gall was the greatest kicker of them all," Dr. Lawson said in his booming voice. "He could boot the length of the field with either foot and two men on his back. He could also kick right up the backs of his linemen, something you don't see these days."

Lawson said Ross Craig was probably the greatest plunger of all time. He was with Hamilton Alerts when they won the Grey Cup in 1913.

"The only way to stop him was to have three men, one on each ground," Dr. Lawson said. "Ross had to fall over them."

The doctor never missed a Grey Cup. He will be on hand here Saturday when Montreal Alouettes meet Edmonton Eskimos. As do most easterners, he figures the Als will win, but he adds: "It may be close."

Dutchies Better Next Year Says President

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, who hit the Grey Cup semi-finals this season, expect to be back in the Ontario Rugby Football Union next year with a better club, team president Sphio Kearns said Thursday night.

Dutchmen, who lost 39-5 to Edmonton Eskimos last Saturday, were given a windup dinner party Thursday night. More than 125 local fans, including Mayors Don Weber of Kitchener and Frank Bauer of Waterloo, attended.

Doug Brown, club vice-president said Dutchmen intend to continue building up the club until they are of Big Four calibre.

Quarterback Bob Celeri was presented with the Auchterlonie Trophy as the most valuable player on the team. The former All-American and United States professional star said "this past season was the most enjoyable of my life."

Coach Harvey Johnson thanked the players and said they were the finest group with which he had been associated. He asked all the players to turn up for the 1955 practice sessions.

Petes Plan ORFU Rating

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Jack Harris, president of Peterborough Orfums, eastern Canada intermediate football champions and Wednesday night his club is planning to move up to the senior Ontario Rugby Football Union next season as a farm club of Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

He said arrangements for the tie-up with Bombers, in the Western Interprovincial Football Union were started when the Orfums played the Rams for the Canadian intermediate championship last Saturday at Winnipeg. Rams won 16-13.

Harris said he will confer with Haigh Mizenyr, Blue Bombers president and Bill Boivin, manager, when both will be in Toronto for Saturday's Grey Cup game.

The Orfums have been ORFU intermediate champions for the last three years, winning the eastern title twice in that period.

The ORFU Senior League now has only three teams and Peterborough's entry would be welcomed to round out the circuit, it was reported.

MOOSE ANTLERS

The great antlers of the Canadian moose, measuring up to six feet across, are grown and discarded each year.

Larks All Set for Big Game, Heavy Favorites to Beat Esks

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes go through their last workout today prior to the Grey Cup game Saturday—without two of their brightest stars.

Sam Etcheverry, all-star Big Four quarterback, and Alex Webster, the league's leading scorer, left for Toronto Thursday night for a brief whirl on the banquet circuit. They will attend the awards dinner in the Ontario capital tonight before rejoining the rest of the squad.

Pretty Joy Dibble, Montreal cheerleader who was chosen "Miss Alouette", also left Thursday night to compete against beauties from other cities in the Big Four and the Western Conference for the "Miss Grey Cup" title.

The remainder of the Montreal team and most supporters will leave for Toronto by train today. Coach Doug Walker, who has had the squad running through secret workouts all week, turned down an invitation to the awards dinner, saying he wanted to remain with the team until the big contest is over.

The Als continued Thursday to sharpen their defence against Edmonton's split-7 formation. Walker also is expected to unveil a couple of new plays of his own Saturday. Not even members of the club executive were allowed to watch the practice sessions all week.

Montreal remained a solid 15-point favorite to whip the western champs in betting here. Bookmakers were asking for 5-1 odds from anyone wishing to make a straight bet.

Except for end Hal Patterson, a defensive all-star who broke his ankle late in the season, the Als are expected to be in top shape for the game. Tackle Jim Staton, who saw little action in the series against Hamilton because of an injured ankle, is being counted on for heavy duty against the Eskimos.

The Montreal attack will be decided largely by the condition of Webster. If it stays wet, Webster, Chuck Hinsinger and Virgil Wagner probably will be used to plunge through the light Edmonton line. If it dries out, Etcheverry probably will rely more on passing and his best offensive weapon all year.

The Als will be making their first appearance in the classic since 1949, when they defeated Calgary for the cup.

Would Swap Cup Tickets For 'Caddy'

KITCHENER (CP) — Somebody in this city values his Grey Cup tickets highly.

In the classified advertisements of the Kitchener-Waterloo Record a male advertiser said he would trade two Grey Cup tickets for a "used 1954 Cadillac."

There must have been another horse trader in the barn. He had one reply.

Tony Curtis Says Psychiatry Can Improve Actor's Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Can psychiatry improve an actor's career?

Tony Curtis thinks so. And that's one of the reasons he has been consulting a psychiatrist for the past seven months.

Now don't get the idea that the current heartthrob of the bobby-soxers is blowing his top. He isn't.

"I'm not insecure," he explained on the set of "The Purple Mask." "I don't have a split personality. It's just that I wasn't as happy as I should have been. Little things bothered me. A friend of mine suggested I consult a psychiatrist he was going to.

"I tried it, and I've been going once or twice a week ever since. It has done wonders for me. I don't lie on the couch or anything. I just go to this fellow's office and we talk about all kinds of things. I tell him what's bothering me and we dig back into my past and find the reason for it."

The result has brought him happiness, he said, not only in his career but in his married life with Janet Leigh. And he feels it will be a wise investment for his future.

"I want to be in the movie business for the next 30 years," he remarked. "I think this is a good way of helping my chances."

"Some people work with their hands. Me, I've got to use my imagination. I've got to project emotion on the screen. I, Bernard Schwartz (his real name), am the only one who can do it; no one else can do it for me. It figures that the more I know about my emotions and why I react the way I do, the better actor I would be."

In 10 months, Tony ends his exclusive deal at Universal-International where he rose from a brash Bronx boy to a star of worldwide fame. He'll then be obligated to do a couple of pictures a year for the following three years, after which he'll be a free agent.

As soon as he starts the two-a-year contract, Tony will be able to make outside deals of his own.

END COMET PROBE

LONDON (Reuters)—A six-week investigation into the loss of two British Comet jet airliners in the Mediterranean, one of the most exhaustive inquiries in aviation history, was concluded Wednesday. The court of inquiry's findings now will go before John Boyd-Carpenter, minister of transport and civil aviation.

Minor Hockey

Eight games were played in the B.M.H.A. leagues last night, including three midget, two intermediate, and two juvenile-junior fixtures. In the squirt division the Black Hawks blanked the Bruins 5-0, the Red Wings edged the Maple Leafs 2-1 while the Canadiens and Rangers battled to a 3-3 deadlock. No scores are available on the midget and juvenile-junior games.

SQUIRT

David Reid and Billy Rushlow were the big guns for the Hawks, each netting two goals while Forrest Smith claimed the odd one. Richardson Thompson was the marksmen in the Wings victory, scoring both their goals while Rae Munroe hit the hemp for the Leafs. • The Canadiens three markers were all scored by Bobby Boyle while Donald Smith had two for the Rangers and Dan Stirling the other one.

Quebec Aces Take Over Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The Quebec Hockey League found itself with a new leader Thursday night at the Forum as Royals dropped a 7-6 overtime decision to Quebec. The Aces' victory put them two points ahead of Montreal.

Shawinigan Falls moved to within one point of the Royals by trimming Chicoutimi 6-1.

Montreal, faltering badly, have dropped three of their last four games, including two with Ottawa. Quebec's Bucky Buchanan won the Thursday game for the Aces when he scored at 9:24 of the first overtime period.

The four top teams, Quebec, Montreal and Shawinigan Falls are closely grouped with 23, 21 and 20 points respectively. Chicoutimi and the resurgent Ottawa Senators each have 16 points. Valleyfield Braves, who have won only six of their 18 games, are in last place.

Sport in Brief

FOR TITLE CHANCE

NEW YORK (AP)—Teddy (Red Top) Davis, probably the lightest boxing contender of all time, and punching Percy Bassett, the lead-ing challenger, collide in a 12-round televised bout tonight for the right to meet featherweight champion Sandy Saddler in a title fight.

Despite the fact he has 47 defeats on his record, Davis is rated even money in the betting in the the hard-hitting Philadelphian in Madison Square Garden. This is their fourth meeting. Bassett holds a 2-1 edge in the rivalry.

TAKES MARATHON

BERWICK, Pa. (AP)—Browning Ross, U.S. Olympic long-distance star representing the Penn Athletic Club of Philadelphia, won the Berwick marathon Thursday for the fifth year in a row. He outdistanced a field of 35 top American and Canadian runners to win the 42th renewal of the hilly road dale classic by 500 yards. Whitey Sheridan of Hamilton, Ont., was the first Canadian to finish, taking 15th place.

Think Yoshida Ready to Force Jap Election

TOKYO (AP)—Embattled Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida was reported ready today to throw Japan into a general election unless he can either hold office or name his successor as premier.

With a special parliamentary session only four days away, lines are hardening for an all-out struggle for power among three factions—two Conservative and one made up of the right and left-wing Socialists.

Beginning the seventh year of an unbroken and unprecedented administration, Yoshida faces the fight of his political life.

For the first time in his long rule he apparently has enough certain votes to topple him at will with a non-confidence motion in the Lower House.

SAID READY

Yoshida is said by the newspaper Asahi, Japan's biggest, to be ready with House dissolution that will hurl Japan's 467 representatives into a bitter and expensive election campaign.

Yoshida today said he would step down as president of the Liberal party in favor of deputy Premier Takeiro Ogata. The Liberals are still the country's largest party with 185 members, despite the Conservative bolt.

But he is apparently ready to fight for the premiership—or at least the power to name Ogata as his successor to it.

Yoshida appears ready to do anything to block the Conservative arch-foe, 71-year-old Ichiro Hatoyama, from forming a government.

Hatoyama, founder of the Liberal party, bolted with his followers for the second time last week and formed the new Japan Democratic party in coalition with the Progressives.

The British Army adopted the Patchett, named after its designer, in 1953. It weighs—six pounds compared to the nearly eight pounds for the Sten. The magazine of the Patchett holds 34 rounds compared to 32 for the Sten.

The big advantages of the Patchett over the Sten are that the new weapon is more reliable and lighter in weight—six pounds compared to the nearly eight pounds for the Sten. The magazine of the Patchett holds 34 rounds compared to 32 for the Sten.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

After reading a few cumbersome bridge books you begin to wonder what it is all about. What jones is it a city planning course? With ranges are you learning what to do in the wide open spaces?

Culbertson puts an opener in the intermediate zone if he holds something more than a minnie but not quite in the game zone. He has it holding 13½ to 16½ with its quota of honor tricks.

When partner responds to the opening one bid, how does opener determine these winners? He reviews his hand as if he were in the responding class; with slight additional variations.

Goren puts opener in the good hand range if he has more than a minnie but lacks enough for the very good hand range. He has it with 17 to 18 points; probably only 18 and possibly 19.

When partner responds to the opening one bid, how does opener determine these points? He reviews his hand as if he were in the responding class; with slight point variations.

If partner's response is a no-trump, a Culbertson intermediate second bid is a jump rebid of his own suit; a bid of two no-trump; a non-jump in a new suit; or a "reverse."

If partner's response is a no-trump, a Goren good hand second bid is (preferably) no-trump with balanced distribution; otherwise, a suit bid of some kind that is encouraging.

According to Gordon, an opener follows the T-A-N order of bids (takeout, assist, no-trump); each rates in number to have another trick.

Open one heart with the south hand you hold here:

♥ K Q 963
♦ A K 8 4
♣ J 6 5

If partner responds with one no-trump it is not a forcing signal. You bid only because you have something more to show. Your second bid is two diamonds. You are looking for a raise in number; not enough to promise game. Confide the fact if you prefer.

Canadian Army Will Adopt New Machine Gun

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Army is all likelihood soon will adopt the British Patchett as its standard sub-machine-gun in place of the Sten.

Brig. S. E. E. Moores, deputy quartermaster-general for design and development, said Thursday the Patchett probably will be manufactured in Canada.

It was understood that only settlement of the manufacturing rights is holding up final adoption of the weapon but this last hurdle is expected to be cleared.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section iff which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 27, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — You may find today somewhat annoying and irritating, especially in business or money matters. But do not give up without fighting. AM. news should relieve tension.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Take things calmly; don't jump at conclusions. Take a second look and two extra thoughts before acting. Some uncertainties in early hours; consult, take sound advice. Never say quit.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — "All is not gold that glitters" really applies today. There are some benefic rays, but don't count too heavily on them. Other vibrations may not be entirely generous toward your endeavors. Keep on the job, however.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Pitch right into your work now; don't procrastinate or opportunities may pass you by. Good nature, a happy disposition will help more than you may think.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Planetary vibrations are not entirely propitious. Be careful about the answers you give and use caution in signing papers. Don't be over-sensitive; it could work unhappily against you.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo)—Thrift and sound reasoning can help you today — may offset possible adverse conditions and bring some better results than expected. Prudence!

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Good plans stressed. Practice what you preach, study and make the best of things. You may at least have fewer chances. Institute harmony, system.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Good aggressive influence from your Mars, Moon and Venus rays on new opportunities in your special field, and for other activities suited to your fine talents. A day for gain.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — The planetary aspects are not entirely generous where financial advancement and prestige are concerned, but vigorous action in industry, trades and professions useful to government and public welfare are highly sponsored.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — You may have to work harder in money matters but artistic affairs, domestic and other personal interests can advance, especially with skill and smart management—your forte.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Greatly favored are military matters, finesse and cleverness in handling and making products designed for better living, cultural pursuits and health measures. Be careful with investments.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — A day in which to cultivate your talents and abilities and to develop new ideas which could prove valuable personally or generally. Science encouraged.

YOU BORN TODAY possess many fine attributes; are active, ambitious, enterprising, generous. Curb a tendency to work or play at feverish pace. Be sensible about this; realize that moderation is always a great aid. You are happiest when busily employed and like to start fresh tasks once others are completed. But remember that though the human body is the finest of machines it needs rest and time for refueling if it is to carry on capably.

Bancroft Area Rich In Uranium Ore Says Paper

First Samples Assay $421 Per Ton in Uranium Oxide

TORONTO (CP)—The Globe and Mail says the richest uranium ore ever found in quantity in Ontario has been uncovered by Faraday Uranium Mines Ltd. near Bancroft area, about 150 miles northeast of Toronto.

The story by Globe and Mail mining editor James Scott says the full importance of the discovery has yet to be determined, "but it has implications that could lead to a brand new perspective for a mining district that has always been looked upon with skepticism."

The paper says little attention was paid to uranium possibilities of the area until recently, despite the fact the presence of radioactive minerals had been acknowledged for years.

The paper says the discovery was made by Faraday in the course of underground develop-ment. Samples of "large tonnage indicated by surface diamond drilling" earlier this year."

MORE IN SIGHT

"So far it has been exposed for a length of 50 feet and a width of seven feet, but is known within the walls of the drift at both ends of the exposed length. First muck samples assayed $421.95 per ton in uranium oxide based on a chemical analysis."

The story quotes Ashton W. Johnston, vice-president of Faraday, as saying his engineers estimate there now is in sight more than $500,000 worth of uranium ore in the length so far indicated.

The story adds:

"There is still no assurance that the deposit will develop into the hoped-for dimensions, but the fact that diamond drilling about 600 feet ahead of the point where the high-grade ore was encountered indicated a similar parallel struc-ture, leads the company engineers to hope that the new occurrence is not just an isolated pocket."

Mines Minister Kelly of Ontario said samples of the Faraday mine have been assayed by department geologists and results will be known shortly.

He said that if the uranium strike at Bancroft continues in depth and maintains the grade of three per cent or better, "then we have made a discovery of the first magnitude."

"This could turn out to be a discovery of the first magnitude," he said. "The Faraday company is reliable one and their engineering and geological consultants are outstanding. If they feel that this is a major uranium discovery, no doubt they have good grounds for this belief, though undoubtedly much work remains to be done."

GAILY-DRESSED FANS TAKE OVER IN STAID TORONTO

Thousands Arrive To See Grey Cup Game

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Staid old Toronto, a bit starry-eyed as host to the Grey Cup thousand, has comported itself most pleasingly performed a double function early today. Late revelers were late good night and new arrivals welcomed at one and the same time.

By early-morning trains from east and west came supporters of the Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos, the teams that will battle for top honors in the football spectacle of the year. From Montreal and from parts of Ontario scores were also on hand to maintain the The Grey Cup madness was on in full swing. The first big contingent from Edmonton came in Friday morning less than two hours after the overnight train from Montreal had discharged its rabid Alouette delegation to meet that city.

The hundreds jammed hotel lobbies, they sang and snake-danced and carried on in high glee. Many a breakfast resulted in the "hair of the dog" and unhesitatingly allied himself with east or west.

NEUTRAL COURSE

There was color everywhere—the green and gold of Edmonton and the red and white of Montreal. There were streamers and ribbons and coat decorations. Busy hawkers supplied a combination of all four colors for those who wanted to be neutral.

All throughout Friday official and unofficial functions followed one another with almost bewildering rapidity.

At the posh Granite Club un-bowed, quarterback Sam Etcheverry of the Alouettes was awarded the Schenley trophy as the outstanding player of the season in Canada. Gerry James of the Winnipeg Blue Bombers was acclaimed the outstanding native Canadian player.

At the annual Grey Cup dinner Friday night 500 football fans, officials, past players, old-time players and well-wishers gathered in tribute to the game itself and, at $10 a plate, provided assistance for one-time players now in need or for members fatally disabled through injuries.

At another gala show, where Toronto Mayor Nathan Phillips and judges finally picked Joan Hunter as Miss Grey Cup, the eleven-girl selection had to be made from a dozen girls representing the 12 leagues across the country. Miss Hunter competed as Miss Toronto Argonaut.

Thugs Relieve 'Non-Truster' Of $18,000

DETROIT (AP) — A 67-year-old bachelor who doesn't trust banks was relieved of $18,000 in cash last night and robbed of $18,000 cash by two gunmen, police said today.

Martin J. Cielniak told police he was walking home from a movie when two men lashed at him out of the darkness. One held a knife at his throat while the other took his wallet.

Asked why he was carrying so much money, Cielniak said sadly: "Last January I decided not to leave any money in banks anymore. I cashed all my war bonds and took out my savings."

1,470 Auto Accidents Are Caused By Ground-Hugging Los Angeles Fog

LOS ANGELES (AP)—For the fourth successive day motorists in Southern California today was in the grip of traffic-paralyzing, eye-smarting smog and fog that the weather office says will continue through the weekend.

Indicative of the blinding effect of the fog, which rolled 10 miles inland from the Pacific, was a traffic report of 1,470 crashes since the dense, ground - hugging mist settled over Los Angeles International and Long Beach airports Friday night.

Football games scheduled for Friday night were postponed. Long Beach, a rugger game between teams representing New Zealand and Australia was halted because the spectators couldn't see what was going on.

Visibility in Los Angeles harbor was the one-quarter of a mile mark-ed but did not stop the movement of ships. Foghorns in the mountains of Santa Monica reverberated steadily for more than 48 hours.

Even Santa Claus was grounded by fog in Santa Monica. Merchants there had arranged for him to arrive by helicopter and the children were on hand despite the gloom and the mist, but old Santa just couldn't fly through the fog. The merchants changed signals and Santa finally showed up late, riding in a slow-moving bus. The kids weren't impressed.

Pope's Hiccups Have Returned, Has Taken Turn for Worse

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Pius XII has suffered a recurrence of hiccups and taken a turn for the worse, reliable Vatican sources said today.

The Pope has been nauseated in addition to the hiccuping, these sources said.

A complete rest has been ordered for the head of the Roman Catholic Church. General audiences will be cancelled and the Pope will not attend the special spiritual exercises held in preparation for the Christmas season. These begin Sunday and will continue till Dec. 4.

The Pontiff was to be brought from his summer home at Castel Gandolfo later today and it was planned, but cancelled his scheduled afternoon visit to the Basilica of Santa Maria in Trastevere.

He had been scheduled to pray there in front of the miraculous Madonna of Divine Love, which had been brought from the church on the outskirts of the Marian Year.

His physicians had warned the Pope lately that the strenuous schedule of audiences, appearances and church functions which he has insisted upon were weakening him.

He has had periodic attacks of hiccups in the past, at times lasting as much as a week. The 78-year-old Pontiff that indirect feeding has been necessary.

Sunday, when he held one of his twice-weekly general audiences at Castel Gandolfo, the Pope gave only his blessing to the cheering throng and did not speak, as he normally does.

Doctors gives at that time was that the weather was bitter cold and the precautions was taken to avoid his catching cold. However, another reason was that even then the pope was extremely tired, it was learned.

Contributing to his fatigue was the fact that the day before he had held a big general audience, also at Castel Gandolfo, where he spoke to many pilgrims individually and offered his ring to be kissed.

During the last month the Pontiff received the final of a series of three periods 'of inject' ons intended to build up his strength.

These were administered by Dr. Paul Niehaus, a Swiss glandular specialist. The first series was administered last February, during the Pontiff's illness that kept him for months confined to his Vatican apartment, and the second in August.

Last September, Pope Pius himself told The Associated Press that he was still not fully recovered, but that his doctors had told him he would be able to live many years. Apparently he was referring to the completion of the series of injections.

It is now learned here that the doctors have not had the hoped for results.

Churchill's 80th Birthday Party Will Be Biggest in Life

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — A mannequin pirouetting in a Regent street restaurant reminded Sir Winston Churchill, by general though not complimentary association, of a Hibernian alive, is about to embark on the ninth decade of a crowded life that is to end on a 15th birthday prime minister will be a mellow 79 years at the next Tuesday, and his birthday party, an all-day affair, is going to be the biggest he's ever had.

He will receive cheques and all sorts of gifts, including guaranteed donations from more than 250,000 admirers in most parts of the Commonwealth.

That may just be the natural reaction on what nearly everyone considers a special occasion, or it may be another indication that Churchill, despite his unpredictable character, has finally proved into what he might call the "mellow" years of old age, apparently.

Yet 16 years ago Britain's "unconquerable leader" was counted Halifax called him, thought he was through politically. After playing a leading role in Conservative politics through the middle 1930s, warning a battle and succeeding House of Commons about the dangers of Hitler's Germany, he wrote to a friend that he expected the Second World War saying he expected to be the sitdelizen when the storm broke.

Instead he became the great world leader, symbolizing the "white heat" of the war said sweep through these Islands when all seemed lost after the fall of France.

Now his car is again attuned to the pulse of peace and war.

And so Churchill remains at the helm, completing his 55th year in public life unmoved by frequent rumors that he will resign today, tomorrow or next week.

U.S. Rallying World Opinion In Effort to Free 13 Men

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States today announced it has decided to press a vigorous campaign for release of 13 Americans imprisoned in Communist China by rallying the support of friendly free world against the Red "outrage."

A demand for the prompt release of the 11 military men and two civilians was delivered to Red China's diplomatic representative in Poland through the British foreign office at the request of the U.S. state department.

Washington officials said the same angry note was being delivered also to the Peiping regime through the British diplomatic representative in that Communist capital. British channels were used because Britain maintains diplomatic relations with Red China and the U.S. does not.

And the United Nations headquarters in New York, the chief U.S. delegate, Henry Cabot Lodge, handed a copy of the protest to secretary-general Dag Hammarskjold with a request that it be circulated to all 60 member powers.

PATIENCE LIMIT

The American note flatly accused the Chinese Communists of violating the Korean armistice agreement by holding the 13, and indirectly warned them that there is a limit to the patience of the American people.

It also made a preliminary demand for "punishment of the Chinese Communist officials responsible" and for "appropriate action" the "wrong" done the 13.

The United States announced Tuesday that the 13, captured during the Korean war, had been given sentences ranging from four years to life on spy charges. They already had been held for about two years.

The mother of one of the airmen, Mrs. H. L. Suter, said in Vista, Calif., Friday that President Eisenhower's Thanksgiving proclamation would be "just a lot more than a form letter" and "about a year too late." Eisenhower had telegraphed the relatives of the 13 with a renewed pledge to "spare no effort" his effort would be made to free the prisoners.

CARDINAL (CP)—The body of a 39-year-old ship officer was found Friday, wedged in the lock gates of the Galops canal just west of St. Lawrence river town, Cardinal is 45 miles south of Ottawa.

The officer was identified as Floyd Casselman of Cardinal, third officer aboard the Norwegian freighter Ingerfire.

Police said Casselman was last seen Sunday, Nov. 21.

RED SCHOLARS EVICTED

AACHEN, Germany (AP)—More than 100 East German school children who came here for a Communist "children's festival" left Germany were sent back to the Soviet zone Thursday by police, who said they were the children of the Communist Free German Youth Organization prohibited in West Germany. The children were between ages 10 and 18.

A. H. MCDONALD SASKATCHEWAN LIBERAL LEADER

Wins on First Ballot Over Four Opponents

By WILF CHISLETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SASKATOON (CP) — Saskatchewan Liberals fitted together today the final pieces of party platform their new leader will carry into the next provincial election.

Only resolutions, basis of the platform, remained on the agenda after the election Friday night of A. H. (Hammy) McDonald, member of the legislature for Moose Jaw, as provincial party leader.

Liberal officers said the convention was the first move towards beating the CCF party on both provincial and federal levels. Liberals now hold 42 of 53 seats in the legislature and 11 of 17 federal ridings in the province. Progressive Conservatives hold one Saskatchewan seat in parliament and one in the provincial house.

First step on the "road back" was election of the new leader, replacing Walter Tucker who left provincial politics before the next federal election to regain his Rosthern seat.

WINNER FIRST BALLOT

Mr. McDonald, a 35-year-old wheat farmer and legislative whip, had four opponents in the race. The first ballot by gaining 388 of the 749 ballots cast. Runner-up was L. B. Thomson, former director of the prairie farm rehabilitation administration, with 227 votes.

Mayor Harold Simmie of Saskatoon, who split the leadership campaign wide open with his charges of interference against a federal cabinet minister, was last. However, he and his supporters claimed they had won the convention.

Mr. Simmie's accusations were brought to the attention federal Agriculture Minister Gardiner, whose son was a candidate. The Saskatoon candidate had charged the federal minister with bringing the influence of his office to bear in the leadership campaign to promote the election of Mr. Thomson, who he called a "tool of a political machine" operating in the campaign.

The agriculture minister, who denied the charges, received a standing ovation at a banquet Friday night.

Mr. Simmie said he hadn't hoped to win the leadership. He said his main interest was beating what he called Ottawa's "tool" and "political machine" operating in the campaign.

Dancing jubilantly on a chair, he announced victory for the new Liberal in the next provincial election, expected in 1956.

NEW MAN DIES

Two men may have lost their jobs because of the leadership convention and the new Liberal party's life.

Donald Hood, a candidate from the northeastern Saskatchewan town of Hudson bay, died when his private aircraft crashed near Hudson bay, died when his private aircraft crashed near Regina. He was en route to a public meeting held in connection with the campaign.

Mr. Thomson has already handed in his resignation to the federal government from his $10,000-a-year job. Mr. Simmie, mayor, is a branch manager for an insurance company in Saskatoon, planned to go back to work, this time as a salesman.

PARTY FOR QUEEN MOTHER

LONDON (AP)—The Queen gave a private dinner party at Buckingham Palace Thursday night to welcome Queen Mother Elizabeth home from her tour of the United States and Canada.

Another threat of war is evident in Central America, this time centering in Costa Rica and Nicaragua. President José Figueres of Costa Rica, and President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua have been in conference for some time, Somoza recently purchased 25 fighter planes from Sweden. Ten Seamen Lost, Hundreds In Peril In British Storm

Vessels Tossed Like Corks, Air Filled With SOS Calls

LONDON (AP) — Ten seamen were feared lost in wrecked ships and hundred of others fought for their lives today in hurricane-force winds that tossed vessels like corks in churning waters from the Irish Sea to the coast of Holland. S O S signals crackled out and rescue work was under way.

A United States Air Force helicopter from a base at Ramsgate, England, snatched two men off the lightship South Goodwin, up-ended in half sunk on the treacherous Goodwin sands in the English channel. Seven other seamen were trapped inside and believed dead. But the helicopter landed the survivor and flew back to the ship with an oxyacetylene torch and diving equipment.

The 20,125-ton Liberian oil tanker, World Concord, carrying 42 Greek seamen, split in two off the coast of south Wales. Eight hours later a lifeboat reached the men off the stern end and chugged off toward the forward section, which was drifting two miles away with the seven sailors aboard. Coastguards said the seven were in "great peril" in the mountainous seas.

British helicopters, the Royal Navy aircraft carrier Albion and the cruiser Tiger Tumoil went out to assist. The Tiger Tumoil joined in the drama of the broken-in-two Flying Enterprise three years ago.

WORST IN YEARS

The wind and rain threatened England itself with its worst floods in 30 years. Thousands of acres were already inundated in the south and the Midlands, and forecasters predicted the storm would last through the weekend.

Besides the seven men feared lost with the lightship, at least three others were reported missing and believed drowned.

One unidentified ship of around 1,000 tons was feared lost without a trace off the southeast England coast. The Liberian tanker Casino reported sinking in the Irish sea.

On the continental side of the North sea, the 500-ton Dutch trawler Wellingdorf flashed an SOS 16 miles off the Dutch island of Schiermonnikoog. A shipping agency in Amsterdam said the trawler struck a mine. A tug and lifeboat were speeding to its aid.

ABANDON SHIP

The crew of the new 498-ton Dutch coaster Gramsbergen radioed that they were abandoning ship after the vessel sprang leaks against a rock in Fishguard harbor, Wales.

The Polish trawler Penguin ran aground on Shipwash sands off the east coast of Britain from Harwich, and a lifeboat went to her aid.

The Norwegian freighter Granfos radioed she was in distress off Lowestoft, eastern tip of Britain. A salvage tug put out to take her in tow.

A Dutch destroyer, the Evertsen, escorted the Danish schooner Ane Margrete Eliandsen homeward bound for Norway after the schooner suffered storm damages.

An urgent call for help was sent by the 6,906-ton Swedish freighter Lars Anderson.

A heavy damage toll was reported from west England, where small boats and pleasure craft were smashed and beaten ashore by breakers and swollen rivers.

High water stalled road and rail traffic in many parts of Britain.

Russians Show Velvet Hand To Motorist

WASHINGTON (AP)—A velvet hand emerged from behind the Iron Curtain Friday to plead for friendly co-operation in a problem peculiar to capitalistic countries.

The reason was unprovoked-carsmashing convertible with non-diplomatic District of Columbia plates parked illegally in front of the Soviet embassy here.

Tucked under the windshield wiper was a neatly written note which said:

"Please do not park here. This is embassy's space. Your co-operation will be appreciated."

Charlotte Gives Cold Shoulder To One Candidate

OTTAWA (CP) — Charlotte Whitton, the capital's formidable mayor, was returned to the job and to one of the candidates running against her in the mayoralty elections Dec. 6.

At the nomination proceedings Friday, the 58-year-old Miss Whitton was friendly towards former mayor E. A. Bourque, but gave the cold shoulder to public servant Jean Burgess, a newcomer in civil politics.

All three filed nomination papers at the meeting, but the feeling is that Miss Whitton will be re-elected a record time.

Miss Whitton's partiality was shown when photographers tried to get all three majorcity candidates in one picture—with the mayor in the middle.

She objected, saying "I will not be photographed with Mr. Burgess' arm around me."

"If he wants to put his arm around somebody he can put it around Eddie Bourque."

So, Mr. Bourque moved into the centre, Mayor Whitton chatted amiably with Mr. Bourque but did not speak to Mr. Burgess.

Cheese from 4 Provinces Are Entered in Show Here

With a greater number of entries than last year, judging of the cheese at the British Empire Cheese Show was expected to get underway in the market room at the city hall late this afternoon or early evening.

Entries for the big dairy show being held November 30 and December 1 are now all in with cheese from four provinces being exhibited. Ontario cheese predominates but there are also entries from the province of Quebec, from Manitoba and for the first time in many years cheese from Alberta are being exhibited.

One of the features of the show is that three times as many stillons have been entered as there were last year.

Judges of the show, Jack M. Bain, chief dairy instructor for Central and Western Ontario, and Robert Gillan, chief dairy grader for the central area, are expected to have the judging completed during the week-end ready for the opening of the show on Tuesday morning.

Throughout the two days of the show the general public is welcome to attend the exhibition. There is no admission charge and visitors may just be lucky enough to take a door prize of butter or cheese away with them.

Exhibition officials noted that door prizes will be offered Tuesday afternoon and evening and also on Wednesday afternoon, the last day of the show.

Being held in conjunction with the cheese show is the 27th annual convention of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association and the cheesemakers' annual banquet scheduled for Tuesday evening, the first day of the show. The banquet will be held at the Masonic Temple and speaking and other awards won at the show will be presented.

Three-Way Mayoralty Race Assured, 12 Qualify for Council

Candidates Will Address Voters Thursday

The civic election meeting sponsored annually by the Belleville Board of Commerce, will be held in the Belleville College Auditorium Thursday evening, December 2nd, at 8.15.

All candidates for public office will be invited to address this public meeting. A strict time limit will be enforced for the speakers, with mayoralty candidates being given five minutes; aldermanic and public and separate school candidates three minutes.

The public utilities commissioner this year has been elected by acclamation.

Candidates will be seated on the stage and will be called in alphabetical order for the various offices, with mayoralty candidates tentatively scheduled to lead off.

Following the addresses travelling mimeographed will be circulated so that members of the audience can ask candidates questions about their stands on municipal or educational matters.

There will be no organized discussion of the money by-laws. Candidates wishing to discuss the proposed by-laws can do so during their campaign speeches and specific questions on the by-laws may be asked candidates following all speeches.

Freeman Burrows, president of the Chamber of Commerce, will be the chairman of the meeting.

The race for the mayoralty in Belleville simmered down to a three-way fight today with the withdrawal of ex-alderman Chas. L. Hyde, who Friday evening informed the Ontario Intelligencer that for personal reasons he would not contest the mayor's civic chair this year.

"For personal reasons I will not contest the mayoralty with one of the three other candidates I fail to qualify," he said.

The three other nominees for the mayoralty have already qualified with Mayor Arthur Bolt, Aldermen Don A. Thomas and Robert Temple having signed qualification papers yesterday.

An election for council was also assured with 12 of the 23 nominees having qualified by ten o'clock this morning. The two women nominated, Mrs. Jane Forrester and Mrs. Effie McCabe, have both qualified. Other nominees for the aldermanic race have been signed by mid-morning were J. Allin, H. J. Clarke, Edward deLeeuw, George Devaux, Frank Grandame, Ralph Graham, Leslie W. Digby, Frank Hinson, Gerald Hyde and Bert Robinson.

There will be no election for public utilities commissioner with Commissioner W. Harry Rollins returning unopposed by acclamation. He was the only nominee.

It is expected, however, that there will be a fight for public school trustee in at least some wards in the city. At mid-morning today city clerk-comptroller H. D. Bateman was unable to give the number of public school nominations either for public school board or for the separate school.

Candidates have until 9 p.m. to qualify.

A. J. Gibbons, C.N.R. Telegraph Operator, Receives $100 for Suggestion Box Idea

A suggestion box idea which will save the Canadian National Railways Telegraphs thousands of dollars in the future has paid off for a Belleville telegraph operator who this week was presented with a cheque for $100 for his idea.

Thursday afternoon at the Front street telegraph office, Austin J. Gibbons was presented with the $100 cheque by George J. Follet, commercial supervisor, and Glen Kirby, commercial superintendent for the Toronto district, and Mr. P. Burton, local office manager, looking on.

The box idea for which Mr. Gibbons received the $100 will reduce the telegraph tape used by the C.N.R. by one-half and already since the idea was adopted thousands of dollars have been saved.

Mr. Gibbons suggested that the telegraph tape be cut out. This is a record which appears on the tape of the sending machine and which identical material is merely discarded. As all telegraph operators use the "morse" system it is not necessary for them to "see" what they are sending. The home record cut-out will also reduce teletype ribbon expense. The idea will be adopted in all C.N.R. telegraph offices across Canada.

An operator at Belleville for five and one half years, Mr. Gibbons is a native of Acton in the Guelph district. He has been with the C.N.R. for 13 years.

Names Omitted Of 3 Nominees For Trustees

Three nominees proposed as candidates for public school trustees were not included in the list of nominees published in yesterday's Ontario Intelligencer. They are:

Samuel: James Brisbin, accountant; by Leslie Digby and W. B. Lattimer.

Ketcheson: James Ritchie, sales manager; by J. D. Robertson and Ezra David.

Murney: Frederick Symons, merchant; by J. C. Allen and G. E. Thompson.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

WINTER-PROOF BILLS

Once our cold season starts, only birds with winter-proof bills remain in Canada—bills capable of supplying the owner with food in spite of ice-covered water, snow-covered land, and lack of flying insects.

Imagine the plight of a detained Heron, whose long, slender bill is designed for grabbing fish, frogs, and crabs as it stands knee deep, waiting for dinner to swim within reach!

Pity the poor Thrush, a ground feeder, whose somewhat long, slender, down-curved bill is suited for probing into vegetation to pick up grasshoppers, worms, snails, ants, beetles and the like. How could a Swallow, with very short bill and extremely wide gape, survive without any flying insects to be scooped up?

OLD STANDBY

The conical "finch" bill is the ole, standby, worn by many birds that winter with us: sharply pointed for picking up very small objects yet strong at the base for crunching seeds. Juncos, Tree Sparrows, Goldfinches and Purple Finches can glean a living as long as the snow allows some seeds to stick up above its surface.

Common redpolls and snow buntings spread the summer beyond our cultivated regions, but in winter we see them here, feeding out seeds from the tall weeds protruding above the snow.

Evening and Pine Grosbeaks, whose beaks are simply magnified editions of the conical bill, wander around the country in flocks seeking Manitoba maples, berry bearing ash trees, and apples from which they can extract the seeds.

SPECIALIZED BILL

Both white-winged and red crossbills have highly specialized bills, even though they are basically the conical type, the crossed jaws acting like can openers, to pry open pine cones. They fill from ever-green to evergreen, travelling south in our direction.

The bills of Nuthatches and Chickadees, though quite unlike in shape, are both slender and pointed, for digging out tiny insects from bark crevices. The long, chisel-like beaks of Woodpeckers are capable of routing out insects hidden deep in tree trunks. A land of snow and ice holds no fears for such birds as these.

Rodents and other small animals are somehow able to weather storms of winter, tunnelling through snowbanks and running across the surface. They provide a food supply for our Owls and Shrikes, whose hooked beaks are perfect tools for tearing apart their prey.

To survive a typical winter in Canada east of the Rockies, one real necessity for a bird is a winter-proof bill.

CENTENARY ITS M.B.

CENTENARY — Elinor Roblin was hostess for the November meeting of the Centenary 3-7's Mission Circle, in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Ralph Lonergy. It was decided to hold the next meeting on December 13, owing to the proximity to Christmas of the regular date, this meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Ralph Loney's group.

A committee, consisting of the president and group leaders was appointed to decide upon a play to be put on, and to look after details pertaining to same, also a nominating committee comprised of the above officers to elect a slate of officers for the forthcoming year.

The meeting was turned over to group leader, Margaret Slavin. The Scripture reading was given by Elinor Roblin, and the theme for the evening was "The Fellowship of Suffering."

Program Three was followed, with Margaret Slavin, Shirley Hall and Elinor Roblin taking part.

Rev. R. W. T. Middleton informed the members that no one is allowed to kill a cow or rat in India, regardless of how diseased the animal might be. In government hospitals in India, the doctor and attendant must be bribed in order to receive good care, otherwise one is sorely neglected.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and helpers, and a social time was enjoyed.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Roblin and Elinor for their hospitality, on behalf of those present, by Mrs. Ralph Loney.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL

I Know That My Redeemer Lives

I know that my Redeemer lives;
What joy the blest assurance gives;
He lives, He lives, who once was dead;
He lives, my everlasting Head

He lives, to bless me with His love;
He lives, to plead for me above;
He lives, my hungry soul to feed;
He lives, to help in time of need.

He lives, and grants me daily breath;
He lives, and I shall conquer death.
He lives, my mansion to prepare;
He lives, to bring me safely there.

He lives, all glory to His name;
He lives, my Saviour, still the same;
What joy the blest assurance gives;
I know that my Redeemer lives!

Samuel Medley, an English Baptist minister, who was writing his religious songs nearly 200 years ago, has sent this hymn down through the years into our modern hymnals.

It made its first appearance in a volume of Psalms and Hymns published by the evangelist George Whitefield in 1775. Twenty-five years later in London, Medley also published a collection of hymns and it appears in that list as well. It is based on the Bible verse in Job. 19:25, interpreted in the light of the New Testament events.

Medley was born in Hertfordshire, England in 1738. His father was a school teacher and he grew up in a Christian home. At the age of 17, however, in the British Navy, he drifted away from the home influences of his boyhood and he might never have found his way back to the church but for a serious injury which he suffered in the Seven Years War.

That famous conflict began shortly after Medley entered the Navy. In 1757 he was severely wounded in a battle with the French off Port Lagos. It was while he was recuperating in the home of his grandfather in London that he yielded to the appeal of a sermon by Dr. Watts, read to him by his grandsire, and gave himself to Christ. Later, he left the Navy, married, and taught school for four years. Then, in 1767, after entering the ministry, he accepted the pastorate of a large Baptist church in Liverpool.

For 21 years he had a most successful ministry. Many of his parishioners were men of the sea because he knew how to fill his sermons with expressions which appealed to sailors, he converted many of the mariners.

A Lift For Living

Greatness and Fame.

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

Are we as interested in greatness as our grandfathers were? To be sure, we have a keen interest in prominent personalities. Our reading matter reveals that. Fill a book with personal experiences and it will outsell many times a thoughtful book dealing with ideas. The public energy devours news about the foibles and weaknesses of well-known lives.

A notorious criminal, sentenced to serve a lifetime in prison, wrote to a law-abiding friend, asking his friend to be sure to send him any stories which mentioned him. They would have to refer to a vicious, lawless career. No matter what the stories contained, this conceited robber wanted to read about himself.

Headlines do not make greatness. Henry Van Dyke once said that "Fame is a notoriety what solemn music is to a loud noise." In this publicity-promoting and spotlight-seeking age, it behooves us to consider what true greatness is.

FAMED IS EARNED

In unveiling the bust of Whittier at the Hall of Fame for Great Americans, Van Dyke gave this definition: "Fame is durable good reputation, honestly earned, approved by the wise, and applauded by the common voice."

Of course, we must distinguish between greatness and fame. Fame is only the sign of greatness. Some years ago I gave the message at the Easter Dawn services held in the quadrangle at Columbia University. I was disturbed by the echo. I tried to keep my mind on my words but subconsciously I was also listening to their echoes to note how well received I was. The echo of greatness may distract us from the real thing.

We see the same principle on the golf course. In his eagerness to see whether he is making a good drive, the player is prone to lift his eyes too soon in order to see where the ball is going. Hence he is told, "Keep your head down and your eye on the ball." I claim no originality for this bit of wisdom, because it has been repeated to me countless times!

DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

A public relations expert said recently that some men tax his profession hard that it was good publicity just to have the person or product talked about, regardless of whether the comment was favorable or unfavorable. He himself did not agree. Nor do I. Just to be talked about is not fame and it certainly does not constitute greatness.

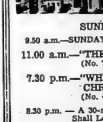
Back in 1930 a magazine compiled a list of 93 persons whom it regarded as the "immortals" of the first half of the twentieth century. The list was brought to me as the Director of America's Hall of Fame with the request that I write a few introductory paragraphs.

In the group I noted the name of Al Capone. And I said that I could not lend my endorsement to any list of so-called "immortals" which contained the name of Al Capone.

"Why not?" said the reporter. "Al Capone will be talked about for decades to come. Nero wasn't any good, but he is still talked about. That is fame." Not merely to be talked about is not fame. Fame is a person.

EARNED BY SERVICE

Also, if fame is to be counted greatness, it must be earned by service." Jesus said to his disciples, "Whoever would be great among you must be your servant." Worldly ambition seeks greatness for the mastering of men for the getting of things. But God would have us master things for the service of men.



At least, we have to pay lip service to this divine principle of service. Every person who seeks public office can claim that his motive is to serve the people. No politician could be elected on a platform that stood for more power for himself. The rich man who lives and dies without giving anything to charity would incur disgrace. The ruler who uses his throne only for personal pleasure and profit goes the despised way of King Lear.

"The Son of Man came not to be served but to serve." So must the sons of men if they would be great.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed. Reed

"TEMPLE OF TRANSPORTATION"

The New York Times, in a rather emotional editorial, has appealed for caution in the demolition of a railway station which it calls a "temple to the genius of transportation." This shrine is more commonly known to footloose pilgrims as Grand Central Station.

This house for iron horses is in danger of being demolished by its owners, the New York Central and the New Haven railroads, to provide a site for the erection of a more productive building.

"Grand Central is just some corporation's chattel, to be saved or razed at the nod of real estate developers, no matter how big. Grand Central belongs to the nation. It is a marble temple to the genius of transportation. It has been a wistful link to adventure to perhaps a billion people since it was completed 40 years ago," thundered the Times.

The Christian Science Monitor, viewing the situation with friendly but sober concern from Boston and the shadow of the Old North Church has this to add: "It isn't just Grand Central that is involved. It is a vestigial attitude of a people, a nation that needs to be brought into mature balance—the attitude that nothing should stand in the way of material progress."

The latter attempts to strengthen its appeal for preservation of Grand Central Terminal by noting that "America is a better nation for having saved what it has of the redwood giants, of areas of great scenic beauty in the original Yellowstone, Independence Hall, the Old North Church and the Alamo."

The arguments marshalled in defence of Grand Central Terminal fairly take one's breath. We are, however, unable to note the similarity between the giant redwoods and the original White House, both owned by the nation, and Grand Central Terminal which is the property of corporations that can be saved or razed at the nod of real estate developers," the opinion of the New York Times to the contrary.

The problem of this railway terminal is desecration of "a temple to the genius of transportation" then worshippers of the 7.35 and the 5.15 and lyric New York and Boston editors had better buy the temple before it is pulled down by sentimentally interested tycoons.

Preservation of the architectural magnificence of this marble structure may stir pleasant memories as a tribute to a period "for the building of which alleged to have passed through it in 40 years, but it must loom as a frightful financial monstrosity to the boards of directors of two railroads, not to mention the shareholders.

This business of preserving everything (including railway stations) because they are "vestigial attitudes of a pioneering nation" or because they are the repository of alleged adventure can become too much of a good thing. If Grand Central Terminal is a relic of great price whose passing cannot be endured, let it be preserved as a model which can be shown in a place of prominence in the new Grand Central Terminal which, with proper care, could become an even greater edifice and a better paying one as well.

AN UNWELCOME ALLY

Archie Arthur May was born in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania, in the good old United States, but now he is on our side.

We are not so sure that we are as happy as Mr. May might expect at this meeting of the Quebec Outfitters Association, agreed with critics of "tin-can tourists" from America. These sportsmen came to Canada loaded with their own lunch and their own bed rolls and rarely have few American greegbacks in Canada and Mr. May does not think this is fair.

This is unquestionably a reasonable attitude if we regard the American tourist as solely a source of revenue and our wildlife as merely something to be sold at a profit to the highest bidder.

It is possible, though, that there may be some Canadians who are so old-fashioned as to look upon a visitor from another country as a welcome guest and our fish and game as a possession without price which we may freely give to our friends but should sell to no one.

FIRE WARNING!

Man the pumps!

Vancouver is soon to be a raging inferno.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce of that fair city will be responsible for the holocaust.

Having sponsored a toy drive for tall themselves, have offered to exchange one hardbound classic for ten comic books.

Now everybody knows that the reason why youngsters read comic books instead of classics is because classics are so hard to obtain.

It is thus obvious that when Mayor Fred Hume touches a match to the pile of comic book "trade-ins" there is going to be a roaring fire, and if there is no strong wind blowing, His Worship might even be able to get a light for his cigaret.

As for the Jaycees, no doubt they will be adequately warmed by the pleasant glow of triumph in a worthy cause.

THE DECISION

Days come and go and never ask,
Are you prepared to do your task?
Hours pass both strength and will enough
To brave the struggle when it's rough?
Time leaves us every one to choose
Whether the time allowed we'll use.
Keep going or stop aside?
That question each must then decide.

The morning passes; comes the noon,
And night will surely follow soon.
Work well, or idle through the day?
That's left to every one to say.

Take time for friendship or for pelf
To wait until the friend has died?
That later write or let it wait
Although it may be week you're late?
Pass by, or stop some one to aid?
By all, that quick decision's made,

as Seen

"Good morning, Mr. Winterbottom - - - I thought I'd find you here."

Stamps Tell History

(By A. M. Dungy in "Postmark")

Many people think that all there is behind a postage stamp is the postage but to the philatelist, behind each stamp there is a story. Some time ago we paid a brief visit to Winslow's Centennial Stamp Exhibit. Unintiated as we were, the field of philately was held in a new deference after scanning such an informative display as was presented.

Letter writing today is probably one of the unappreciated cheap pleasures and luxuries which we are prone to take for granted. For the nominal sum of 4c we may now send an air mail letter to our heart throb on the storied banks of Sweet Afton in Scotland (10 cents for a shorter, serogram). In 1848, a letter weighing more than half an ounce and a Canadian letter designated for delivery not further than a radius of 60 miles from point of posting.

It may come as a surprise but public relations is not a new idea. Canada's Post Offices far back in this horse and buggy era of limited communication, evidently fascinated by a letter of early 1900 vintage which bears the following endorsement "Mailed 4 Hours Late," across the face of it. The unwieldy size of the expletive was naturally "So Don't Blame Us." If this was not trouble shooting, taking the potential dilemma by the horns, then we will buy the Post Office has no fury like a woman scorned or the wrath of a businessman whose letter has been unnecessarily delayed—(voice of experience).

Visiting a stamp display is both interesting and educational. It would be impossible to survey the progress of a nation without thinking of the historical implications of stamps issued. Also it was as if we had lifted the veil of antiquity and tiptoed into a sanctum-sanctorum of the past. We were intrigued to learn that before the invention of printing the only imperforate multiple extant and a rare horizontal pair of imperforates.

We drew philatelic conclusions running all the way from that of the pen and ink imposed, the cork, those of the period of numeral cancellations and machine cancellations creating a surrealist impression and so on from one to our modern electrical method.

Stamps? Who said variety? The geographical contour of the globe took shape in the consciousness of the stamps of the world's many countries came into focus. Here a stamp from Pitcairn Island, there stamps from Nigeria, from far away Gilbert and Ellice, from Indo-China, and Brunei. Each frame of stamps was artistically arranged for multiple appeal and each display as it were a kaleidoscope of color.

Once our interest in the pigment aspect had levelled off, circumstances of the stamps' issuance cross section of thoughts and motivations on the part of stamp issuers and artists. What a gallery of talent we found superimposed on the stamps. Here a colored specimen! In various degrees of refinement, the art of printing of industry, athletics in action, educational, agricultural designs and profiles and stamps with religious significance.

In the realm of stamp portraits the familiar faces of history's humanitarians, liberators, dictators, the political of contemporary would-be Napoleons, one got the impression that these latter fellows smiled benevolently, grimaced or appeared stoical. Such an appreciation naturally would be dependent to a marked degree on the viewpoint and nationalism of the spectator.

Last but not least was the realization and appreciation that today we truly live in an age of speed. We noted the back flap of an envelop posted at Montreal, September 19, 1931, and which had the subsequent postmarks of intermediate post offices en route conspicuously imposed thereon. The speed of delivery was really supersonic. Intervals and distances indicated there were Edmonton, Alta., September 20; London, Ont, September 23, (horse likely dropped dead, necessitating purchase of new critter); Raleigh (now Chatham, Ont.) September 24, and then—Eureka! the letter was finally delivered at its destination, Timberstrong, Ontario on September 25, or the same year. All those miles in only seven days.

"It's a fast world, McGee," the interviewer likely said to his inquisitive wife as she read the letter over his shoulder while the latter was in the time of posting.

Stamps, stamps, stamps! Shades of a storied past, survivors of a contrasting present go hand in hand with this interesting avocation.

Niagara Apples

(By H.L. Walsh in St. Catharines Standard)

Whether the Niagara District, with its softer climate, can grow apples with the finer color and finish of the apples which come from the Owen Sound district and from the Trenton area of Prince Edward may be a debatable point. The Land would seem to do some thing toward the apple.

And no dogmatic judgment is given when we learn from the famous Annapolis Valley in Nova Scotia that the apples from British Columbia ships to the east in large quantity.

Still, some apples here and good apples, too, with which this community can be satisfied. Indeed the Garden of Canada is more famous for its peach, cherry, plum, pear and small crop than for its apples.

Apple tree and man are very close partners. Let an apple tree revert and grow wild and it will become small, acid and harsh, a veritable crab apple, not to be confused with the highly cultivated crab apple species itself.

"The apple originated in Central Asia (the garden of Eden, of course) and is now grown in almost all temperate regions of the world. It is the fruit of a rosaceous tree, the species is Pyrus Malus, the genus Malus of the family Rosaceae, the apple farm at 525 Niagara highway, owned and operated by Ship Shipley and Ruddle.

That farm there is grown the Bottle Greening, the first apple ever to be introduced into America, in the year 1 of our ancestors. Captain Ruddle's trees must have, because it was he who was the Governor of Massachusetts Bay planted the first apple tree imported into America.

As pointed out, to grow apples, the tree must receive the right care of the tree. If man neglects the apple tree, Nature responds by doing the opposite and stands ready to know that on something around 640 of small boy and Nature has 640 cropbearing apple trees, and they represent no less than 13 varieties of fruit. Besides Adrienne Red, the Red Delicious, the improved Jones Snow, the Jonathan, the Stayman Greening, Rhode Island Greening, the Bottle Greening, the Wealthy the Yellow Newtown, Astrachan, Red Spy and Scarlet Pippin.

There is no doubt however, that this district can produce certain varieties of apple the equal of the products anywhere else in Canada. And the apples from the Niagara fruit belt certainly vie with the very best.

Clever Malice Is Amusing

(Hereford Gazette)

There is something curiously amusing in clever malice. And the other day someone said something clever about Somerset Maugham.'

In his kindred old age Mr. Maugham is still very much in prominence. He is not, to be sure writing many new stories. But he seems to be relishing in fact that he is an internationally known personality, giving comments upon life. And much of his prominence comes from the fact that his face photographs so remarkably well, with its air of wordly composure, its lines so modelled and so remote.

But to other day one observer, after visiting Mr. Maugham, made the oddly appropriate remark: "Why he looks just like a totem pole!" There is enough truth in that comment to make it hard for Mr. Maugham, with all his assurance, to live it down.

It is all rather like Sir Winston Churchill's celebrated remark about Mr. Clement Attlee being "a sheep in sheep's clothing." For all his many excellent qualities, Mr. Attlee will never quite shake that one off.

There have been similar bits of clever malice in the past. Philip Guedalla had a good one about the novelist, Henry James. He believed that Henry James' productions as a novelist fell into three clearly definable periods. And with a reference to the three Princes of British history, he said these periods might be described as, "James I, James II, and the Old Pretender."

Yet perhaps clever malice is best of all if something other than malice is blended with it. And it may be that the best thing in malice was Charles Lamb's comment on the irregular Samuel Taylor Coleridge—"an Archangel a little damaged."

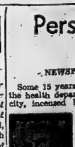
Eskimos Numbered

(Windsor Star)

As part of an official move to simplify identification, Canada's 10,000 Eskimos are to receive numbers, and the project sounds reasonable enough. It is to be hoped that personal numbering would catch up with them sooner or later, as it has with everyone else.

Having no family names, and a limited number of given names in the hope of changing their luck, Eskimos were hard to follow. That formula is not exclusive with the Eskimos, however. We superior races "outside" have representatives who learned long ago that an alias can change one's prospects materially at a time of troubles.

As for identification through numbers, the eskimos should not feel they are being relegated to the status of prison inmates. The utility of numerals has spread much farther than that.



"In reply to this letter," states a Pile PDQ 25-643-J," or whatever it happens to be. Then there are licence numbers, and unemployment insurance numbers, and family allowance numbers, and so on through a long classification.

The Eskimo who gets one number he can memorize around his igloo throughout his life-time doesn't know how many things are being made for him by the Great White Fathers in Ottawa.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

NEWSPAPER DIAGNOSES ARE MISLEADING

Dr. Brady

Some 15 years ago the head of the health department in a large city, incensed by my teachings about rabies printed in above my evidence which would make me change my mind. I assured him I'd be everlastingly grateful if he could dispel the nightmare fear of an rabies. Not long afterward he invited me to come to his health department office. He escorted me to the laboratories. A young man in charge showed me a rabbit in the cage. "The rabbit has had rabies," he explained. "The rabbit would die in 7 forget just how many days the young man said. The animal had been inoculated with a suspension of the dried spinal cord of another animal that had died of rabies.

I couldn't understand it, but the health commissioner seemed to think the demonstration settled the question of rabies in man.

About the same time there was an extraordinary interest in rabies in the community—according to the newspapers. One case was particularly impressive. A young child in apparent health was left alone in the house for an hour or two. When the parents returned they found the child in convulsions. The child died several house later. What could have caused a healthy child to go into convulsions and die? Was that? No, no, the child didn't find a package of candy coated strychnine pills and eat them. The health department decided that the child had rabies. A neighbor recalled that a strange dog... A child came home from school complaining of a sore throat and the smog. Her mother put the child to bed and doctored her. In the early morning the child awoke and complained of tightness in her chest, began coughing and lost consciousness. She choked to death. Parents say Smog did it, said the headlines. Her physician said smog could have been a complicating factor." At the same time a group of representative physicians of the community assured public officials that the smoke, though irritating and annoying was not injurious to health.

In spite of the untoward effects of aspirin, even in small doses, is there a warning about the "sore throat"

This question in my mind is, how much aspirin was there in the medicine the child's mother gave her? Most medicines which include such drugs as acetylsalicylic acid, phenacetin (acetphenetidin), acetanilid (phenylacetamid) and antipyrin (aminopyrin) have some remedial value.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE DEATH OF A TREE

There is something humanly blessed about a tree that has held our affection over the years. I am thinking of a towering oak that has cast its smile, tinted by the moon, on the small springing grass, and has spread its cool pool underneath. I have watched this tree grow as it has daily reached higher to embrace the sun, across the small springfed pool underneath. I have watched this tree grow as it has daily reached higher to embrace the sunlight. From my living room window I have for many years looked out upon its strength and beauty. Log of mild lists. Rooted in the earth, its career suddenly come to an end, stricken by the strange blight — "Hazel." Hurricane Hazel sounds more apt. For something like a hundred years this beautiful tree has stood under all changing fortunes of the district, become small, acid and harsh, a veritable crab apple, not to be confused with the highly cultivated crab apple species itself.

"The apple originated in Central Asia (the garden of Eden, of course) and is now grown in almost all temperate regions of the world. STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

FOR WHOM THE BELLS TOLLED

Centuries ago, John Donne the great English churchman and poet, wrote these words "I count all that part of my life which I have sent spent in communion with God, or in doing good."

Donne (1573-1631) had spent many years of his life in dissipation and debauchery. Suddenly, as a preacher's fashion, he was converted and thereafter became a man of such Christian humility and virtue that his influence reached to every class from the highest to the lowest. In addition he developed into one of the most appealing poets that England has produced.

John Donne was one kind of man one day and another kind of man the next day. Something happened to him—and that something has happened to millions of people in the last 2000 years and continues to happen to people today. This something is a decision—a decision which was earth-shaking. He decided nothing in this world was so important as the salvation of his soul. Last but not least was the realization and appreciation that today we truly live in an age of speed. We noted the back flap of an envelop posted at Montreal, September 19, 1931, and which had the subsequent postmarks of intermediate post offices en route conspicuously imposed thereon. Dog days, according to the dictionary, are those hottest days of July and August when a dog is supposed to be ill at heard to breath. But if we wegs to ask a dog, these are not the dog days at all dog days. And his habits are all shot to pieces. Hostile bodies wives about one of two courses: either the dog is kept indoors on a muddy day and has to be walked until he gets home from the office to dry his paws and scrub the mud off his belly.

With the approach of the tender Christmas season, at his family appear to share, the dog discovers a growing scarcity in everything attitude to him.

Canadian Giants Performed Prodigious Feats of Strength

(BY HARRY M. MOORE)

In the early 80s, the late 90s, of the nineteenth century there were two men, and they were prodigiously strong men. In his day and generation each man was known as "the strongest man in the world." One of these men was a native of Scotland, but he grew up in Nova Scotia; the other first saw the light of day in Montreal, Quebec.

Taking the Scots-born strong man first, for he arrived first, his name was Angus McAskill. One of thirteen children, and as a child considered normal. But in his early teens he started to lengthen out, to lengthen into the stature of a giant, the stature of a man who, at twenty-one, stood seven feet, nine inches; weighed (when filled out) 336 lbs. and had a chest measurement of seventy inches.

MacASKILL known to some people as the "Nova Scotia Giant", to others as the "Cape Breton Giant", met all the strong men in his day in competition, and he had no trouble beating them, for even then it was conceded that a good fighter could not win over a good big man when the chips were down. For several years MacAskill travelled with Barnum's Circus, made a fortune, retired, and went into business.

NOT LIVE LONG

But he wasn't to live long. To win a thousand dollar bet, he performed a feat of strength that to this day has never been equalled. He hoisted a 2,200 lb. anchor above his head, but in letting it down, one of the flukes caught a shoulder, caused a wound that contributed to failing health, an early demise.

Angus MacAskill's remains were interred in a cemetery at Englishtown, Cape Breton Island. A tablet over his grave fills in further details: Angus MacAskill, Nova Scotia Giant, died August 8, 1863, aged 28 years.

Twenty-nine years after MacAskill's death, Montreal-born Louis Cyr, in the presence of five thousand persons at the Lachine Locks, Montreal, was selling up weight lifting records that were to stand for many years, many of them even to this day; records which not only rated him as "the daddy of them all," but as the strongest man of his weight that Canada or this continent had produced up to that time, yes, even to this day.

Louis Cyr was of French-Canadian descent. His father was a sturdy man of average size; his mother was not only larger than most women but she was much stronger. As a child Louis Cyr was a squat, square figure, and possessed of unusual strength, an unusual strength that was to develop with him and at twenty-four he could outlift, and outfight, any man who dared dispute him at "cock of the walk." At that time Cyr stood close to six feet in height, weighed 194 lbs., and had assed a chest measurement of fifty-eight inches. His first and only job was as a member of the Montreal police force, but his family, his friends, advised him to quit and go on the stage.

With a set of bar bells and dumb bells, Louis Cyr started training in earnest. Later he was to meet and outdo every strong man who challenged his right to call himself the best. Cyr was acclaimed by this continent as a man without a superior, and there was but one person in the world who stood in the way of his becoming a champion.

That man was Eugene Sandow, and across the sea in London, England, he was having tremendous success. Like Cyr, Sandow had never met his match, and it was said that he was looking for more victims.

WENT TO LONDON

With no more worlds to conquer in the western hemisphere, Louis Cyr embarked for London in 1892 in quest of Sandow's scalp, but if the two men ever met in competition, there is nothing to show in the records. Cyr's backers, however, claim that the men did meet, that Cyr proved much too strong for his European rival, and that they had collected a handsome sum of money. What is actually known about a meeting of the two men is simply this:

Sandow held a world's record of elevating a 271 lb. bar bell by a method known as "the one arm bent press." His method was to use a long handled bar bell, stand it on end, rock it over and on to his shoulder, then holding it firmly in the right hand, he bent the body to the right, then left that the right arm eventually was straight, although the bell had hardly risen from the floor. Then it was a simple matter to bend at knees and press the bell until it was directly overhead, and finally to stand up straight.

In 1892 the two rivals were training in London, and Cyr announced an exhibition, to which he invited Sandow. Sandow came, but what he saw was not sufficient. Louis Cyr rolled out a short handed 373 lb. dumb bell, picked it up, rested it on a knee, swung it from knee to shoulder with the right hand and then, leaning slightly to the left, he pressed the weight cleanly to arm's length.

Louis Cyr was always ready to lift, and if there were no contests on the program he would devote an afternoon to making records.

AMAZED EUROPEANS

At the Aquarium in London, England, as previously referred to, he amazed the strong men of Europe as well as the thousands of other people present, by lifting 234 lbs. from floor-level to shoulder with two hands, and pushed overhead with one hand; lifted 268 lb. bell easily with two hands from ground to shoulder, and pressed overhead; lifted 273 lbs. with one arm; snatched 104 lbs. dumbbell with one hand, and then lowered until arm was horizontal — "muscled out"; set a 310 lb. keg of cement on shoulders with one hand, no help from knees; lifted 343 lbs. from ground with one finger; lifted 3,620 lbs. with back (no harness).

Four years later, at St. Louis Hall, Chicago, Louis Cyr broke many of the records he had made in London. This time he lifted, without harness, 4,125 lbs. with back; 545 lbs. from floor with one finger; snatched 188 lbs. with one hand; shouldered a 234 lb. dumbbell and then raised it overhead with one hand; muscled out 129 lbs., then did the same with 94 lbs. in right hand, 88 lbs. in left; put up a 134 lb. dumb bell, thirty-six times in succession; lifted from the floor with one hand, 975 lbs., and with two hands set a barrel of cement weighing 1870 lbs. on his knees.

When Louis Cyr returned to this continent it was to find that Cyclops Bienkowski, a German strong man, and another posing as Sandow, were muscling their way to stealing his thunder. Cyclops and his partner had beaten all comers, but they made the mistake of accepting in Montreal the latest challenge to any two men to meet them. Louis Cyr and his pupil, Horace Barre, were quick to accept. However, the man posing as Sandow failed to show up at the theatre, but Cyclops did and Louis Cyr promptly showed him how his bells should be lifted. The following day Cyr sent two and a half tons of weights to the theatre and at the evening's performance, offered first to let Cyclops and afterwards to present him with $2,500 if the German would even attempt one of his lifts, Cyclops declined, nor could he be coaxed to lift. He had seen enough.

WAS SCARED

Speaking to a friend later, Cyclops who weighed 230 lbs. and had a chest measurement of fifty inches, is reported to have said: "I was actually scared when Cyr stood on the stage. The breadth of his shoulders stupified me, and I felt like a baby when I was close to him. When he started to lift my leg, I felt that this man had twice my strength."

Louis Cyr knew nothing of the science that takes advantage of leverages and the use of legs. More scientific strong men of less weight have since broken many of his records, But, remember, Louis Cyr's knee nothing but pure strength and it is on that alone that he must be judged, must be rated. Undoubtedly pound for pound at his natural way of lifting, he was the strongest man the world has even seen, even to this day. Imagine a man who could shoulder 234 lbs., or to get arm put up a 158 lb. dumb bell thirty-six times in succession, or lift 1870 lbs. to his knees and, without harness, raise 4,125 lbs. with his back!

Of course, he never did, never could lift a 2,200 lb. anchor above his head, as the Nova Scotia Giant had done, but Louis Cyr was not a giant; six feet it not an abnormal height for a man 268 lbs. is not an unusual weight for a six footer.

Louis Cyr eventually retired from athletics and as the years passed, he added much weight. Shortly before he died in Montreal, he told a friend that the weight lifting records he had left to the world "were not his proudest, most satisfying memories. He had travelled all over Europe, the United States, his native country, and he could say that "he had never done an unkind thing, he had never committed a dishonorable act."

Belleville Presbytery United Church Of Canada Convened in Trenton

RAWDON — The Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada, convened on Wednesday in Grace Church, Trenton, with Rev. G. J. Mistelly, Trenton, as chairman. The ladies of the church served the noon meal.

The worship services were conducted by Rev. A. Packman, Stirling, and Rev. J. Wells.

Among the highlights was the address by the president of conference, Rev. H. C. Wolfrain of Lindsay, Ontario. Many people have expounded at length on "What is wrong with the Church?", certainly the Church is not perfect for it is made up of imperfect persons. The speaker's theme was "What is Right With the Church". He stated it was right in its origin and nature; right in its principles and program; right in its product and achievements as far as it goes.

BELIEFS COMPARED

Rev. W. G. Berry, of the Department of Evangelism and Social Service reported that over 100,000 copies will have been sold of the pamphlet recently published by the church entitled, "What's The Difference", by the author Reverend Lord, set forth a comparison of Protestant and Roman Catholic beliefs.

The position of the United Church of Canada on temperance, total abstinence from the use of beverage alcohol was again restated clearly. Presbytery was instructed to send letters of commendation to Senator Muriel Whilton of Ottawa, Ontario, for the stand she took in arranging for the Lord's Day Alliance Dinner. Mother Elizabeth where her health was toasted in non-intoxicating beverages. Another letter commendation was to be written to Mayor Leslie Saunders of Toronto for his action in refusing to approve the granting of civic funds to provide alcoholic beverages for civic entertainment in connection with the playing of the Grey Cup football game in Toronto this week-end.

APPROVE LAYMEN'S FOUNDATION

Presbytery gave its approval to the setting up of the "Belleville Presbytery Laymen's Foundation for Student Ministries of the United Church of Canada". Its purpose is fourfold.

To encourage young men and women to decide in favour of full time Christian Service in the Church;

To acquaint laymen to an awareness of the need for a vastly expanded program for ministerial recruits;

To render financial assistance where necessary to such young men and women;

To provide an opportunity for all laymen to participate in this effort and to actively encourage them to do so.

A committee of outstanding laymen from each charge is working for some time to draft a constitution for such a foundation". It was made up of men from Trenton, Belleville, Napanee, Foxboro, Cobourg, and other places under the leadership of Mr. J. G. Bonnerz, of the Ontario School for the Deaf, and Donald G. Williams, also of Belleville.

Plans were presented and allocations set for the Albert College Centennial Campaign to be held in February, March and April in 1955.

At the recent Presbytery meeting held at Odessa United Church the Rev. A. F. Binnington conducted the worship and the new ministers were welcomed which included: Rev. T. Hogerwaard, Tranboe; Rev. W. G. Fletcher, Rawdon; Rev. Arthur Packman, Bd. Pres's, Carmel; Rev. C. D. Chapman, Thomasburg.

INDUCTION OF MINISTERS

Plans were made for the induction at Foxboro of the Rev. R. F. Darke, of Renfrew Presbytery; and at Belleville Bridge Street United Church, of the Rev. H. M. Davis, of Fredericton, New Brunswick.

The commissioners to General Council at Sackville, New Brunswick, gave their reports.

The Rev. A. E. MacKenzie, addressed the court re the Albert College centennial campaign. In financial report the Presbytery travel allowance is to be the same as last year—ten cents per mile one way, with an additional two cents per mile one way for each additional delegate.

Books entitled "What's The Difference," and "A Look at the Elders", were approved. The value of "Preaching Missions," was discussed and a letter was authorized to be sent to Mrs. C. B. Templeton, who was in Belleville, with her Evangelist husband and who has been ill.

The Missionary and Maintenance Fund planned some rallies throughout the Presbytery at Trenton, Napanee, Trenton and Madoc. The United Church calendars were available as formerly.

A banquet was held at six p.m. and the special guests were the candidates for the ministry in Belleville Presbytery, and the students serving various charges and their wives.

Rev. S. M. Gilmour, principal Queen's Theological college, was the special guest speaker. He introduced each of the students.

The doctors, nurses and the Hastings County Tuberculosis and Health Association have worked hard to discover and help cure active cases of tuberculosis in Hastings county. Hastings County has one of the lowest records in the world for tuberculosis, but your Association is not satisfied because of the following facts:—

In Hastings County in 1951 there were 19 active cases of tuberculosis found

In Hastings County in 1952 there were 33 active cases of tuberculosis found.

In Hastings County in 1953 there were 14 active cases of Tuberculosis found.

In Hastings County up to the present time in 1954 — 12 active cases of tuberculosis have been found.

In the past four years 78 active cases of tuberculosis have been found. This is far too many and we are working hard to reduce this number and ask your financial assistance.

Your Christmas Seal money has been used to help these sick people and their families regain their health and financial independence. When people are ill they need assistance and we ask you to buy Christmas Seals so this assistance can be given.

African Violets

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Look Mother! Aunt Sally left a purple African Violet as a present for you and a white one for me. They look so pretty! But are they real violets?"

African violets do make a lovely present but they do not belong to the violet family. With their velvety textured leaves they look like violets. But they are members of the Gesneriad family and there are 3rd rate gloxinias belong. In recent decades they have become the favorite house plant of thousands of people all over the world. But it is only sixty years since they first flowered in Europe.

RECEIVED GIFT

A father in Somalia received the gift of either seeds or more likely plants of "das violetta Usambra" from his son who was a planter in rubber and vanilla trees in Usambra, Tanganyika. East Africa. The young man had discovered these in two very different places—a shady primeval forest where they grew on granite rocks, and also in limestone rock crevices in wooded areas near to Tanga. When they were shown to the Director of the Royal Botanical Gardens in Buchsbaumen, he named them. He chose the name of the Saint Paul family and a Latin word "usamba," which means "with violet-like flowers."

Specialists in the culture of African violets often disagree hotly about the best way to treat it. However, most of them point out that as it is a tropical plant, it does not prosper in draughts or sudden changes of temperature. Beware of the leaves being too near the window pane in winter time.

BLOOMS FALL

If the temperature drops below 60 degrees it will often result in a falling off of the bloom. A temperature around seventy degrees at night seems to agree with it. The north windows and also the east ones are often used for African violets.

They need a fair amount of moisture but should not have perpetually "wet feet." If they are watered by the top, care should be taken not to wet the leaves, and then let drops of moisture stay on the foliage in the sunshine. Fertilizer should be added to the water or to the soil.

Experts warn against re-potting too often and against using too large pots. If the roots are a big proportion, the plant is more likely to bloom. Soil can be baked in the oven to insure freedom from pests. Canadian flakes below the pot will scare away the little mites. GOOD MANNERS

WRITE NEWS OF NEW-ADDRESS ON CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

My husband and I recently bought a house in a new development in a nearby suburb, and are planning to move in soon after the first of December. Some time ago I bought our Christmas cards, had them imprinted with our names, and have now received these. Would it be proper for me to write a note on our Christmas cards telling our new address? If you do approve of this, would you please suggest a wording for this address-information? — G.F.

An excellent way to tell the Good News . . . proper, and pleasantly practical. For all for writing personal news-items on Christmas cards are . . . really makers for warm-hearted Christmas letters. And Christmas-time is a wonderful time to catch up on old friend-to-friend news. You might write, for example: "Ken and I and you and Bill dearest Christmas greetings, and the best of wishes for your happiness and well-being in the New Year, and always. We're very glad to share with you—we will be living in our new home at Christmas-time! Our new address is— You might give the new telephone number too, if possible.) And we hope to greet you there soon, very soon!"

I suggest also that you write your name and new address on the envelopes, either on the front upper-left or on the flap. Or on the back of the envelopes attach printed stickers with your name and new address.

WRITING INVITATIONS ON CHRISTMAS CARDS

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

Now that my husband and I are settled in the new house we own—the first real home either he or I ever had!—we have decided to give an informal get-together party either two or three days before Christmas or on New Year's Day or the day after. Sunday? Would it be proper to include the invitations to this party on our Christmas cards? — Kate D.

Yes . . . proper, and very festive too! And more often done these days. I'm sure "This New House" would welcome the idea of having this party during the holidays. I urge you to write the invitation so that it will be entirely distinct from the Christmas greeting on the card: for example, on the page opposite the message, write, say: We hope you both and also Susan and Tommy will come to our Christmas tea (with Christmas cookies) on Friday, the 24th, 4 o'clock to 6 . . . to join us in singing Christmas carols." Or, for a New Year's party: "Dear Mary and Ken, please come to an Egg-Nog party at our house on New Year's Day, 4 to 7 o'clock. We'll greet the New Year with a cheer!"

TRUE OR FALSE?

Dear Mrs. Beechman:

I'm trying to persuade my sister that when she eats soup that is served in a soup plate she should tip the plate away from her. True or false? — Sis

True.

ALMOST ANY little girl's favorite holiday gift is something to use in playing house. Sets of paper wear—and shoes can be cut into several of doll-bed size, and bound with colorful ribbon for "instant decor." An old blanket can be adapted the same way.

Wife Was Left With Handful Of Problems

WINNIPEG (CP)—When Fred Johnson died in 1949 he left his widow, Winnifred, with a handful of problems.

She had five children to care for, a home to manage and a thriving trucking business with no one at the helm.

Mrs. Johnson surmounted them all, and today the 49-year-old Englishwoman operates a trucking business between here and Portage La Prairie, 65 miles west.

She still keeps house for three of her children—David, 19, Joan, 17, and Brian, 10. But for most of the day she's at her Winnipeg office directing a staff of five, keeping track of the three daily trips to Portage and seeing that the six trucks are in operation.

She has the assistance of two married sons, Stan, 25, who operates the Portage terminal, and Ron, 23, who works in the Winnipeg headquarters.

David is one of the truck drivers.

Mrs. Johnson says it's a hard business—"a very hard, competitive, rough-and-tumble sort of business."

"But looking back I can't really regret my decision. Frank had worked so hard at the job. You couldn't for 20 years of a man's life go up in smoke, could you? Even the years were wonderful. I could never have managed without them. They seemed to grow over-

Readers' Saturday Column

By Mary Moore

QUESTION:

A few days ago I noticed a recipe for Jellied Vegetable Salad in your column . . . I have one a little different if you care to use it.

JELLIED VEGETABLE SALAD

(Courtesy Mrs. Geo. B.)

Two tablespoons gelatin, 1-3 cup cold water, 1 1-2 cups boiling water, 1-3 cup diluted vinegar, 1-2 cup sugar, juice of 1 lemon, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon all-purpose seasoning (I think by this Mrs. Geo. B. is referring to MSG), yellow coloring, 2 cups diced celery or less, 1 cup finely shredded cabbage, 1 cup shredded carrot, 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion. Soften gelatin in cold water. Mix boiling water, vinegar, salt, sugar, and seasoning, heat to boiling point, add to it the dissolved gelatin, add lemon juice and coloring. When slightly thickened add vegetables.

I have a problem . . . I would like very much to know how I can boil brown sugar and milk without curdling. Would boiling it quickly be the reason? If you know of any method tell me step by step. . . I am particularly interested in making maple cream.—Mrs. Geo. B.

ANSWER:

Thank you so much for the jellied vegetable salad recipe. I am sure there are many readers who will appreciate it, for in some families the cooks have trouble getting tossed green salads eaten but when they are molded and seasoned salad shunners are interested.

You can't boil milk with brown sugar without it curdling. It is like boiling milk with tomatoes or lemon. It does no harm for it to curdle though when you are making maple cream for the cooking and beating smooths out the curdling.

QUESTION:

Sometimes I wonder how I got along before I became acquainted with you. . . . I bought a new electric stove with a large oven . . . guide book says moderate oven means 350 to 375 deg. I baked a chocolate layer cake according to recipe for 30 minutes at 350. When the time was up the cakes were not finished. Should I bake it next time at 375 deg. Fahr. The oven is large enough to hold six pies . . . perhaps this size has something to do with it . . . when you are cooking rice on top of stove do you use double boiler. . . may I have your recipe for "Scalloped Tomatoes" not the kind with toast . . . the best of everything to you and yours—Vera R.

ANSWER:

It was pleasant to see your handwriting again Vera. I hope you never have to get along without me while I am some use to you. The usual temperature for baking chocolate cakes is 350 deg. but the time is 45 minutes for a cake containing 2 cups sifted flour and 2 eggs and baked in one oblong or square tin. That is a whooping big oven but temperature is what counts after all, and time, unless the thermostat is in a part of the oven where the heat is more intense—which I doubt.

This is the rule for boiling rice (it is not necessary to cook it in double boiler): Wash 1 cup long-grain white rice in sieve for about 1 minute or running water. Put it in aluminum or heavy bottomed pot and add 1-2 to 3-4 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoon butter and 1 1-2 cups boiling water. Cover. Bring to hard boil. Turn off heat for five minutes. Turn heat on as low as possible until all water has disappeared. Increase water to 2 cups for brown rice.

SCALLOPED TOMATOES

Eight large tomatoes or 1 28-oz. tin, 1 teaspoon each grated onion and salt, 1 tablespoon each butter and sugar, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 2 cups buttered crumbs. If raw tomatoes are used peel and quarter them. Butter a baking dish, put layer of buttered crumbs in bottom, add layer of tomatoes, dot with butter, sprinkle with seasonings then cover with crumbs. Repeat until all ingredients are used, finishing with crumbs. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. until boiling hot and golden brown.

I don't remember a Scalloped Tomato dish with eggs, but will hunt if you want me to.

When you are mixing ingredients for molasses cookies or cake, first measure the sugar in the measuring cup, then the shortening, then the molasses, and the molasses will pour easily from the greased cup.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

LET THIS GIRL ALONE FOR AWHILE

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For two years I have been going with a girl who is now 17, I am 18. Everything always went along fine until a few days ago.

I think the trouble really started during the summer when out-of-town company came to her house. The lady visitor kept urging my girl to go back with her to her home, and after that my girl seemed to act funny towards me.

After these people left, things went all right for a while. Then, all of a sudden, she told me one night that she didn't want to go steady any more. When I asked why, she said some kid where she works asked her to go out. We broke up, but a few days later went back together again. Ever since then we have had more fights that a professional boxer. It never was like that before. In fact, we had even made plans about getting married when we were in our twenties.

I've called her up and asked her for a date, but now she won't even go out with me. I've tried to forget, but that doesn't work. Just cause every time I take a girl out I think about my former girl friend all the time. I have talked with the girl friend and they don't know what's wrong with her, either. They think she gave me a dirty deal.

Do you think I should try to get her back or leave her alone? — L.M.

Dear L.M.:

I think I would leave her alone, for awhile anyhow. Don't call her up, or make any effort to get in touch with her. Just let things ride, and take other girls out, whether you feel like it or not.

Then if you happen to run into your former girl friend, don't act mad, or even as though anything had happened between you. Be friendly and, if she gives you a chance, stop and chat with her a few minutes. But don't beg her to go out with you again unless she makes it clear that she wants to be asked.

The point is not to slam the door on your friendship with her by letting her think you hold a grudge, but to leave the door open for always being friends. This will show her that you are ready to let bygones be bygones, if she wishes it that way. But don't put your entire interests, so that, if she doesn't want to renew the friendship, you won't find yourself too much at a loss.

CLEAR THINGS UP RIGHT NOW, BETTY!

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past year I have been going with a fellow who is in service. At first we got along fine and enjoyed being with each other very much. But lately, every time he comes home on leave, we seem to do nothing but fight. Also, he is always arguing with me about everything and getting me very upset.

Now he has gone overseas, and while I would like to break up with him, it seems mean to do it while he is away. Do you think I should wait until he comes home to break up with him, and do you think I would be doing wrong to go out on dates and enjoy myself while he is away? — Betty S.

Dear Betty S.:

It would certainly be better to break off with this boy at once if you intend to do so eventually anyhow. If he really cares about you, the longer you wait to tell him you don't want to be his girl friend any more, the harder it is going to be on him. However, I doubt if he is any more wrapped up in you, than you are in him. Otherwise, you wouldn't be constantly fighting.

I think the only sensible thing to do would be to clear up the whole situation by telling him exactly how you feel, and settling things once and for all. You would be doing him no favor to carry on with him under false pretenses.

THREE MORE GAS VICTIMS

NEW YORK (AP)—Three deadly gas victims were found dead in their Queens apartment Thursday, victims of a gas water heater that gave off deadly fumes. Their deaths brought to 19 the number of fatalities from similar faulty hot water heaters in the city in less than three weeks.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

DIRECTIONS FOR THE HOME SHAMPOO

Says a beautician: "Time and again this happens: We give the customer a permanent wave. She is delighted. Her hair is soft, silky and lustrous. Her wave is fluid, the ends ringlets. She departs pleased as can be.

"A fortnight later she comes stamping in, eyes afire with indignation. What has become of her wave, she wants to know. Her hair is straight and stringy, the shafts cling together, ringlets are nothing but bob-tails and rag-tags. One look, and we know what is wrong.

"So we place her in front of the shampoo bowl and give her head a thorough shampoo. Seated before the mirror afterwards, she is surprised to find that her glorious crown is a mass of curls. All we have done is to remove the soap deposits which had so coated the shafts that curls had lost their resilience. All too often the home shampoo destroys the beauty and quality of a permanent."

Young girls, especially, are inclined to give their locks a soapy lick and a promise," and call it a shampoo. Soap deposits left on the scalp invite dandruff and dandruff is the perfect lensement for bacteria.

There never was a time when so many excellent shampoo mediums were available, so there is no excuse for rubbing a bar of soap over the head—a practice that causes particles to adhere so closely that they are not easily removed. One has a choice of liquid soap, oils or creams.

The shampoo should start with a thorough brushing to remove surface dust. A strand at a time should be treated with a rolling motion of the brush. Groom from the crown downward at the sides and front, from the nape line to the ends.

A rinsing with the bath spray should follow. Cream shampoos are especially effective on oily hair. Distribute a tablespoonful, working it well into the temples and along the hair line. Keep on adding warm water during application over the entire head.

Don't stint on the rinsing. Use one application of lemon cream, then rinse again. If the hair is thoroughly clean it will have lustre and life.

FISH PROCESSING PLANT

New plants for processing fresh fish being built around the rocky coast of Newfoundland are bringing the first basic change to the fish industry in 200 years. Here, girls in one of the plants pack cod fillets for shipment to the United States. (CP Photo).

Colorful Characteristics of Nfld. May Pass if Plans Materialize

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Progress may mean Newfoundland one of its most colorful characteristics.

Hay Stack, Silver Fox Islands, Chandler's Pond and other outport settlements, where 60 per cent of the island's 15,000 Eskimo dwell, may become only a record of unique place names if plans for creation of centralized fish-processing plants along the rugged 6,000-mile coastline are realized.

Towns will grow up around the big plants and hundreds of tiny coastal villages will be deserted as the fishermen move close to the market for their catch.

$100,000,000 PROGRAM

The shrinking fishing population —less than half the 1949 figure—prompted the federal and provincial governments to step in with a giant development program, expected to extend over a 15-year period and to cost $100,000,000.

A three-man Newfoundland fisheries development authority was set up this year to supervise the program which Liberal Premier Joseph Smallwood says has a 50-50 chance of working.

If the program is successful fishermen now earning only $500 a year in dories and small boats will fish from big draggers and long-liners, bringing their codfish to modern plants where it will be dried, cured and packed by skilled year-round workers.

Communities or co - operative groups of workers will take over the plants once they are operating at a profit.

Guiding the program are H. G. Dunstan, former bank manager, Harry Winsor, former member of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, and Ross Young, former executive of an import and export firm here. They receive $25,000 annual salaries.

HISTORIC INDUSTRY

The revitalizing program will bring the first major change in the industry since its beginning 450 years ago. Most fishermen still use the same type of equipment their ancestors used more than four centuries ago.

The authority's main concern is the ice - bound northeast coast where long winters cut the fishing season to five or six months. Lanzie, a village on that coast with a natural harbor, will be the scene of the first development.

The provincial government will finance plants, boats, houses and social services and the federal government will pay for marine works wharves and breakwaters.

Quirpon and Seldom-Come-By, also on the northeast coast, will be developed later, with the governments sharing the cost. Arasheen in Placentia bay will be developed by the provincial government. Other areas slated for development have not been announced.

MIXED REACTION

Some $2,200,000 will be spent on the fisheries this year, two-thirds by the federal government.

Fishermen have mixed feelings about the possibility of moving but few have indicated refusal, accept the possibility of better educational and health services for their families and higher income.

A word of caution has come, however, from C. M. Lane, general secretary of the Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen, who warned that the development program may fail unless proposed plants are enlarged. He said they will have to be made two or three times bigger than planned or no one will make a decent living at the fisheries.

DECLINING ACTIVITY

Cod fishing has been on the decline since the Second World War after a fluctuating history from 1918 when 40,000 fishermen derived their living from Newfoundland and Labrador waters.

Rising costs and low returns have combined to discourage the Newfoundland fishermen and the only ships seen now on the Grand Banks and off Labrador are those of 11 private companies and foreign fleets.

It costs about $1,700 to rig out a small boat that provides only a meagre income for three men and today the average Newfoundlander limits his fishing to inshore waters. Draggers cost $20,000 and a longliner about $50,000.

SEA HARVEST

Production last year was 764,000 quintals of cod — there are 112 pounds in a quintal — 10 per cent drop from 1952. The average catch by a cod fisherman is slightly more than 50 quintals a year and with a guaranteed price of only $10 a quintal, 50 cents more than last year, the fishermen depend on casual labor for money to feed their usually large families. Annual income seldom reaches $1,500.

One part of the industry in which there has been improvement is production of fillets. Private fresh fish companies produced 54,427,339 pounds of fillets last year. This was six per cent below 1952, but the fillet industry is increasing and the temporary drop was due to smaller catches of ground fish—fish which live at the bottom of the water.

Garden Notes

A Collection of Geraniums

By FLORA M. SAVILLE

For many years red geraniums have been much in favor in plants adding a lively splash of color to the kitchen and living rooms. Mac, the Washington, apple blossom pink, salmon pink and scented geraniums were much prized, and slips of these were passed around in the family and to favored friends.

Then geraniums were considered old-fashioned and used only in park beds. In spite of disfavor and disdain grandmothers had their aunts continued to cherish a few geranium plants.

Now that they are back in fashion one wonders who kept all the old types alive and developed the new hybrids.

COLLECTOR'S JOY

It is startling to find that this family is so large. Of course, you will not find all of them in any one shop, but keep looking. A collector's joy is to discover an item here and there in unexpected places.

One way to get a good variety is to buy a package of geranium seeds. Canadian seed companies do not offer a good selection. Look in American seed catalogues for seed package offers.

There are many geraniums, zonal, gray, pink, and in the scented geraniums you may have lilbert, nutmeg, cinnamon, lemon, peppermint, orange, apple, musk, violet and lavender and the old much beloved rose geranium. It sounds like a confectioner's store, doesn't it?

ADDED FLAVOR

In by-gone days a leaf of rose geranium was placed on top of each glass of apple jelly to add that elusive touch of flavor. Another specialty was a geranium cake. A few leaves were placed on the bottom of the pan before the batter was poured in. After the cake was baked and turned out the leaf was peeled off, but the flavor had permeated the whole cake.

The original home of the geranium is South Africa and there they were brought to England. Frazier and Turner grow them for perfumed oils and as a substitute for the expensive attar of roses. Cosmetic companies buy this oil for their perfumes and toiletries.

There are other fancy geraniums too, such as Maxime Kovalevsky. It has bright green leaves with a much darker band on the outer edge and brilliant orange flowers. Aloha has a red-brown band on its bright green leaves. Mrs. Cox has a tricolor leaf; green red and cream.

WHITE EDGING

Perhaps Mrs. Cox is the mother of the little green and white edging geranium we used to see in large formal flower beds. Happy thought had a white green center to its leaves and a brown edge. Then there is Graven Judson and Skies of Italy. Black Vesuvius has very dark, small, green leaves and large red flowers. Pygmy has small light green leaves and large red blooms.

For one of a kind show see the full page picture in the new "Ladies Home Journal Interior Decorator" it shows in color a collection of salmon pink blooms in a room divider, made up of cubical shelves.

Since all geraniums love sun, or light you would have to substitute electric lighting where the plants are on an inside wall. They thrive in the average home atmosphere, but should be grown on the dry side. Pinch back to keep plants bushy. When buds form the plants will need more water and food.

Anti-Climactic, Sir, Anti-Climactic, Maple Leafs Play Rangers Tonight

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"WE WON — MUM"

Wow . . . another one like that and the city sawbones will do a land-office business handing out pills for cardiac ailments. Nearly 1,300 hearts flipped, unflipped and reflipped in Memorial Arena last night as the Memos, roaring from behind in high gear flung home two goals to defeat the powerful Cornwall Colts—and push them over for a share spot on the top rung of the senior "B" ladder.

Their performance last night the Bouchermen demonstrated beyond a shadow of a doubt they are as good as the best in the league when they want to unleash their potential. They skated inch-for-inch with the speedy downeasters, outshot and outscored 'em. They ripped up and down ice in consistent offensive and defensive action, and their performance was the best seen here since the inception of this clash of hockey. The game itself should go on the records as the best played here since way back.

That lone Cornwall goal scored fifty seconds after the second period started loomed larger and larger as the clock ticked off the seconds in the third heat. The pace was blistering as the Memos drove in for the equalizer time after time and were forced to go all out defensively to prevent the Colts from scoring the insurance goal.

The big moment came with a little over six minutes to go. The old smoothie "Red" Doran started the ruckus with a neat play with Peter Jones and Ted DeGrat. Peter lined his sights and the roof nearly ripped off the arena when the uncanny Colts' scaler was finally forced to say "uncle." He repeated it some 56 seconds later when Doran again eastwered that one and sent Jones and Vern Geyer rearing in for the winner with the big fella doing the honors.

It was the second win over the Colts for the Memos—and they take them on again Sunday afternoon in the down-east city.

GOOD YARN!

A newspaper "buddy" and friend of long standing, personal and otherwise, Harry M. Moore of Pembroke, writes a colorful piece of "Yarn Stringing" here which appears elsewhere in this edition. Harry's well-stocked store of memories was stirred the other day when he read the pitter's story on weightlifting and strong men of the world.

Harry, former owner, publisher and editor of the Trenton Courier-Advocate, was born in Brighton and while living there he saw Louis Cyr, famous French-Canadian strong man, lift 26 men sitting on a table, with his famous back lift.

Harry's pungent pen—he has turned out reams of stories, fiction and otherwise — turns to the strong men in a factual yarn that makes for good reading. It should be of special interest to the weight-lifting fraternity of the city and district, which, by the way, is holding the district championships at the YMCA tonight. It is a good show, packed full of thrills and entertainment.

Harry writes about the colorful Nova Scotian giant, Angus MacAskill, who at 27, stood seven feet nine inches, weighed (when filled out), 425 pounds and had a chest measurement of seventy inches. He died when he 28 years of age. It seems all the superman demise at an early age.

WOTTA MAN!

Speaking of big men, professional football fans across the border are going into raves over Marion Motley, fleet 228-pound fullback of the Cleveland Bearos. The younger sportswriters have dubbed him another "Bronko Nagurski" but the veteran scribes of the gridiron say it is merely wishful thinking. There will never be another "Bronk" in their opinion.

Steve Owen, well-known football figure south of the border, said "Bronk is the only man I ever saw who could run his own interference."

There was one game when Nagurski rammed across the goal-line for the Chicago Bears with such an irrisible thrust that he went catapulting into the end zone where a mounted policeman was holding back the overflow crowd. The 'Bronk' knocked over the horse.

A somewhat apocryphal story is the one which took place during a Bears-Redskin game. The 'Bronk' ripped over centre and sent the two backers-up spraying in opposite directions. We whomped over the defensive halfback and unconcernedly felled the safety man like a newsman dropping a bag of cement. Then he careened off the goalposts and shot right through the end zone into the Wrigley Field dugout. A trifle wobbly, he staggered to his feet and remarked:

"That last guy hit me awfully hard."

It sounds exaggerated but the Bears boarded up the dugout for all future games.

When the 'Bronk' was a freshman at Minnesota in 1926 he was six-foot one and weighed 218 pounds. Although he operated like a broncho, he actually was christened Bronko. It isn't a nickname.

The story goes that "Doc" Spears, the Minnesota coach, was off on a talent hunting expedition when he found Nagurski plowing a field—without horses. Spears asked for directions and Bronko pointed with the plow. The Gopher coach immediately brought him to Minnesota.

PROUD AND PRETTY!

The proud, smiling face of a Belleville gal peeked from the sports pages of a morning newspaper yesterday. She is Corporal A. E. Atkinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Atkinson, 108 Station Street. Corporal Atkinson is pictured with LAC M. H. Ferris of Toronto, and LAW G. F. Coulson of Milton. The trio of airforce people are shown holding handsome trophies won by No. 2 Fighter Wing RCAF stationed at Grostenquin, France. The men's softball team of the wing won three titles in competition with other units in No. 1 Air Station. Air Vice-Marshal Hugh Campbell made the presentations.

Boss Says Conacher, Gadsby Great Assets to Blues Team; Habs, Wings Meet in Montreal

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The invaded city of Toronto, overflowing with footballing outof-towners from east and west, buzzed madly with Grey Cup talk today, but at least one person managed a little oratory on hockey.

The speaker was Frank Boucher, New York Ranger manager, who strolled in a quiet corner away from the football din—the virtues of a kid with the great hockey name of Conacher.

Boucher, who admitted he'll be taking in Maple Leafs' afternoon classic before his Rangers meet Toronto Maple Leafs in a National Hockey League game tonight, also had many kind words for defenceman Bill Gadsby, who, like Pete Conacher, was obtained by Rangers from Chicago Black Hawks in a trade last week.

TOOK THREE POINTS

The two have played two games with Rangers, both against Boston Bruins. In both they have been responsible for three of the four possible points the move has given the club on Bruins in fourth place.

But it wasn't just coincidence that saw 2-year-old Pete score his first goal as a Ranger—a clincher in the Rangers' 3-2 tie with the Bruins Thursday night. As Boucher put it, it was a masterpiece that reminded him of the great Conachers of old.

"He certainly has just like his dad, Charlie, or his uncle, Roy, when they decided to go in and pull out the goalie," said Boucher. "I've seen lots of juniors in this league who can't do it and never will be able to do it.

GOOD WORKER

"But to Pete it was like falling off a log. It was the Conacher knack. He works like the dickens, and that includes back-checking. All he needs is a few breaks and he'll be great."

Conacher and Gadsby will be on display in Toronto tonight in one of two NHL games. The outcome of which could create a tie for second place. A Leaf win over Rangers and a loss by second-place Detroit Red Wings to the league-leading Canadiens at Montreal would put Wings and Leafs in second place. New York is five points behind Toronto and Shore's the same spread between Detroit and Montreal.

Sunday night could bring more changes as Leafs move to Chicago to meet the Hawks, Montreal is at New York against the Rangers and Detroit is at Boston where they meet the Bruins.

Expect 10,000 To Watch College Final

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—University of Western Ontario Mustangs haven't lost a game to University of Toronto Blues on Western home grounds in 18 years—and that's the only thing that could give Mustangs an edge in the betting on the intercollegiate football final here today.

Varsity and Western clash at 2 p.m. EST for the collegiate crown and it may take a pile driver to separate the two.

Neither squad ever edge during their two regular intercollegiate Union schedule meetings, losing 9-8 in the first meeting at Toronto and fighting to a 12-12 draw in the return match at London.

Varsity is expected to pit its vaunted passing attack against Mustangs' powerful ground smash. Ing and Canada Security Council Stadium is expected to crowd 10,000 persons through the gates for the bone-crushing affair.

BLUES HAD BYE

This year's final—on the same day as the Grey Cup in Toronto—is a week later than usual, result of a three-way first-place tie in the final league standings.

The defending champion Mustangs, seven-times college champions, advanced to the final against Varsity with a 20-18 victory over Queen's Golden Gaels last Saturday at Toronto. Mustangs won that by recovering a last-play fumble by the Queen's end zone. Varsity was awarded a bye.

The Blues last year won the Yates Cup in 1951, will be missing three regulars today, with tackle Jack Strapp, halfback Al Riva and wingback Bill Horton out of the picture. Mustangs will be without fullback Dale Creighton, but his place will be taken by Doug Aitch lon from the intermediate Colts.

In the only other league game, New Westminster Royals got their second shutout against Vancouver Canucks with a 4-0 victory. Max McNab scored two and Guyle Fielder and Motto McLean got the others.

Novel System Used to Dry Varsity Stadium

TORONTO (CP)—If today's Grey Cup football final is played on a good field, Montreal Alouettes and Edmonton Eskimos can thank a last-minute "Operation Warmup."

Varsity Stadium officials said that only bad weather could foil the success of this novel approach to drying a gridiron, never before tried in Canada.

The operation consisted of literally baking the field, until the ground became so dry it cracked, with 18 banks of powerful lights.

The weather office has predicted rain or snow, starting before the game ends. But even if this materializes the field still will be better shape than if the operation hadn't been attempted.

LIGHTS SHIFTED

The lights, set up on angle irons two feet off and facing the ground, were left in one spot for 20 minute intervals during the time they dried out a total area of about 150 square feet before being shifted to other wet spots on the field.

The $12,000 tarpaulin was laid at Varsity Stadium Monday and when it was lifted in mid-day Thursday, groundskeepers were dismayed to find a 30-yard strip down the centre of the field from one end zone to the other was a quagmire of mud and rain puddles.

The ground was already damp when the tarp was laid. In two days of subsequent rain more moisture seeped through the canvas covering.

EXPERTS HELPED

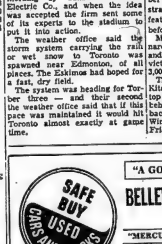
"The tarp is greatly over-rated," said stadium manager Harry Griffiths. "It's recommendations such as this it prevents all drainage and evaporation."

Operation Warmup was suggested to stadium officials Friday morning by Canadian General Electric Co., and when the idea was accepted the firm sent some of its experts to the stadium to put it into action.

The weather office said the storm system carrying the rain or wet snow to Toronto was spawned near Edmonton, of all places. The Eskimos had hoped for a fast, dry field.

The system was heading for Toronto three — and their second the weather office said that if this pace was maintained it would hit Toronto almost exactly at game time.

Cataracts Whip Mercurys 6-2 In Upset Win



By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Niagara Falls Cataracts, stepping stone in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series so far this season, turned stumbling block Friday night, preventing Owen Sound Mercurys from taking over sole possession of the league leadership.

The vastly-improved Cataracts, who have lost 11 games and tied one in 15 starts, posted ten number three — and three second straight — at Niagara Falls, defeating Mercurys 6-2 in an upset before 1,200 fans.

Meanwhile, Chatham Maroons narrowed the gap between them and Stratford Indians with a 4-3 victory over the Indians before 2,000 at Chatham.

The results left Merces tied with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen for top spot, Indians third, nine points behind, and Chatham two points back of Stratford. Fifth — place Windsor and Kitchener were idle Friday night.

Memos Snatch 2-1 Victory From Cornwall Colts In Best Game Of Year

Score Two in Third Period To Overcome One-Goal Deficit In Blistering Senior 'B' Fray

By GEORGE H. CARVER
(Sports Editor)

Striking swiftly, suddenly, in less than a minute in the third period, the Belleville Memos clipped home the lying and winning goals to snatch a 2-1 victory over the Cornwall Colts here last night in the best senior "B" hockey battle seen here in years.

Nearly 1,300 fans rocked Memorial Arena with hoarse cheers as Peter Jones fired the equalizer after 14 minutes of play in the final heat after Cornwall had scored the opener 50 seconds after play started in the second period.

The rafters rocked and the steel posts quivered as Vern Goyer, with "Red" Doran and Peter Jones assisting, slammed home the winner just 54 seconds later. The Memos, playing the best hockey of the season, hurled back the desperate efforts of the Colts to retrieve what, to this point, had looked like certain victory.

The victory vaulted the Memos into a shared top spot in the league with the Colts, each now having 14 points. They pay a return visit to Cornwall on Sunday.

It was one of those games in which a goal looked like a million. The teams started at a lightning-like clip from the first puck dropped and maintained a terrific pace throughout the entire sixty minutes.

Referees Jim Crombie and Les Heffering had a comparatively easy time. They dished out but nine penalties, one of them a misconduct to Bingley of the Colts, in the last minute of the second period after he unpolite reference to Crombie's ancestry. None of the three goals was scored with either team short of manpower.

It was fast, hard checking hockey with each man on each team in a star role. The Memos' goal does were given out, the two toppers should go to Barclay in the Memos' net, for his brilliance in the Colts' citadel.

It was senior "B" hockey at its "fastest and bestest." Both teams played the puck rather than the man." Forward lines backchecked brilliantly with defences and goalies performing with their behind-the-blueline chores.

Devanney in the Cornwall nets outshone Barclay in the Memos' twine for the simple reason he had more work to do. Both goalies rose to hockey heights when attacking forwards were in close. Both turned back fierce offensives of the opposition.

FAST ACTION

Both teams ripped into fast action when Referee Crombie dropped the first puck. Fifty seconds later Bob Macy got the gate for hooking and the Memos were tossed back to the defensive.

The Colts drove in with the extra manpower and they favored the play for all shooting, which was dangerous, but off net target. The Memos' defence came up with a brilliant job of penalty-killing and no damage was done.

Play ripped up and down the ice and 12 minutes and 50 of the Colts went off for interference. The Memos drove to the attack but Devanney was unassailable. The Cornwall goalie drew a penalty for cooping the puck but the Colts' airtight defence held the fort. The period ended with both teams even on a scoreless sheet.

The Memos ripped in on a collective power play to open the second period—and that paved the way for the first score of the game. Moe Savard, the league's top goal-getter, broke out of the pack and raced in on Barclay. He deked the Memos' goaltender inside by and sank the rubber for the first score of the game. The time was fifty seconds.

Smarting under the setback, the Memos roared in for the tying goal. "Red" Doran and Peter Jones engineered a neat passing play but Doran's strider hit a post.

Peter Jones slumped to the ice after a bodycheck and was carried off. It appeared he injured his leg, but later it was revealed it was not serious. Proof of that was Jones' fine efforts in the Memos' play of goals.

TERRIFIC SPEED

With the terrific speed and close, but legal, checking it looked as if a penalty would be a stepping stone to scores. Bob Wilson, of the Memos, went off at 15:50 for high sticking, but the penalty-killing quartet of the Memos had the play bottled up. seconds to go the same player got a borderline sentence for alleged interference. With a second to go Belmore of the Colts made an unconplimentary remark to Referee Crombie and drew a misconduct sentence.

O'Brien, of the Colts, drew a hooking sentence after two minutes of play in the third period but a terrific hard-checking Colts defence thwarted the efforts of the Memos. The Duncan twins with Doug Day roared in time after time but Devanney was invincible.

Then at 12:9 it happened and wowed his way up centre ice. He slipped Jack Macy and Ron Ryan and Osh Osh Osh

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

BY SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The battle of ideas could rage over each bid in bridge. Not that any great difference in principle is at issue. The main contention is over the degree of simplicity in its presentation.

An opening bidder may have slightly more than his minimum needs. Culbertson says such an opener is in the intermediate zone. Goren says he is in the good hand range. If so, he has a second bid.

If partner's response is a take-out to a new suit, what is the second bid by such an opener? Culbertson and Goren both agree that it should be some bid that shows the additional strength.

Culbertson says he does this with a jump raise assist; a jump rebid of his own suit; a bid of new no-trump; a non-jump bid of a new suit at the three level; or a "reverse" bid in a new suit.

An intermediate zone hand, says Culbertson, may have four good tricks; not quite enough to promise a game so far. So, only a jump in a new suit by him is forcing to a game.

Goren says the opener may bid two no-trump if the hand is of the balanced type; a raise of partner's suit; a bid in a higher rank suit (reverse bid); something that shows additional strength.

The good range hand, says Goren, may have a count of 17 or 18 points (one more or less possibly). Only if he jumps in a new suit does he force to a game. His no-trump jump is not forcing.

Accordin' to Gordon every opener (like his partner) follows the T-A-N order of choice of bids; that is, first, suit; second, no-trump last. But he may raise only with a trick more than promised.

Open with a diamond when you have this south hand:

♠ A K 8 5
♦ A Q J 8 6
♣ Q 4 3

If partner responds with two clubs, your second bid should be two spades. You need not look for an excuse to make a different bid.

You may battle only over how this is decided.

Kansas City Names Coaches

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—Two major league veterans, George Susce and Oscar Melillo, were named to the coaching staff of Kansas City Athletics Friday.

Selection was by manager Lou Boudreau and announced by Parke Carroll, business manager.

Susce, a pitcher who spent 22 years in the majors, will be Boudreau's coach. Melillo, a former infielder, probably will be on the playing lines.

Susce has been with Boudreau for the last 10 years, coaching at Cleveland and later in Boston when Boudreau took the Red Sox managerial job. Melillo was with Boudreau for five years in Cleveland and for one season in Boston. He scouted for Red Sox last season.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

HOROSCOPE – Warner
RELEASE SATURDAY
By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Monday, November 30, 1936.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Keep a sharp eye on all business and financial matters. Don't overestimate. The day is "tricky" in spots and it's possible to make mistakes, if not closed unless vigilant.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Proceed or retreat according to demands. Initiative and stick-to-itiveness count. If you give your natural ability and business sense the proper backing, you will move forward. Let it be so!

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Looks fairly promising, especially for familiar matters and other activities which experience tells you are okay. Good reasoning will prove profitable.

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Most personal interests, music, the arts, affairs that border on the exceptional will offer advantageous gains. An encouraging time for those who get into action early; don't delay.

July 24 to August 22 (Leo) — Some conflicting configurations. Be careful how you handle all matters. Study, analyze well before taking on new responsibilities. You in public and civil life, outdoor workers, builders; watch trends.

August 23 to September 22 (Virgo) — Influences generous. Both personal and business undertakings can make appreciable headway. Sound investments, industry and government dealings have a fine outlook.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Heart affairs, domesticity and other friendly matters are under very favorable aspects. Be eager to do right, co-operate when necessary and you will have little to worry about.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Don't wait till the last minute to do anything you should do earlier; there are always 5-minute new matters anyway. Enjoy the company of little children. Close eyes and relax, too.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — A better day than you may give it credit for being, but curb extravagance, don't gamble, and don't be hasty; thoroughness and common sense are important.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Don't put off till later what you can do now, if you can do it now as well as later (meaning have you all the facts you need). Try, and try again. And keep smiling.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Count, investigate, evaluate, do all you can and should to insure accuracy and efficiency. You can have a successful day. And be inwardly happy in the doing!

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Despite unavoidable obstacles you may be able to bridge unusual situations and carry on to success. Free thought, study, keen observation are master keys now, and you have them to use.

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with vitality, business acumen, brightness and general ability — enough to start and keep anyone on the high road to bountiful days. Live up to your inheritance. You usually put your best foot forward but at times may be hasty or abrupt. This can get anyone into "hot water", so be sensibly careful. You need occasional periods of solitude to insure calm nerves. A bobby or avocation would fit in well with your busy temperament. But don't overdo it. Birthdate of: Louisa May Alcott, author; Amos Bronson Alcott, Amer. philosopher and educator.

Little Benny's Notebook

Ma was looking in her mirrer with an unsatisfied expression, and she said, Oh my, oh dear.

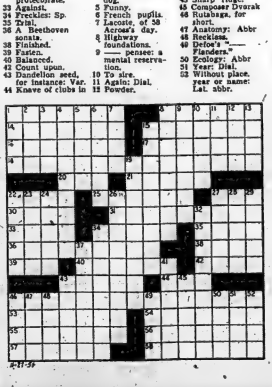
Why, ma? What's a matter? I said. Some days when I look at myself I feel I really should not complain, but day like this make me wish that mirrers had never been invented.

Aw G, ma, you look swell, I guess you don't see right. I said, and ma said, Oh, there is nothing the matter with my eyes, unfortunately.

Sure, there is, ma, I bet if the mirrer could see you, it would feel lucky, I said, and ma said, I see the mirrer, and I feel far from lucky. Oh dear, I suppose it's just one of those days. I'm probably still thinking of Mrs. Himmelberg, she said.

Who is she, ma? I said, and ma said, Oh, she used to live in the nayborhood a long time ago, and I spoke to her on the strect yesterday and she actually didn't know me. Goodness, I mees after all, it's only been 15 years since she saw me last, and I can't of changed that much, ma said.

Well jimminies, ma, you knew her all right, didn't you? I said, and ma said, Of course, I reckonized her immeedily, and I must say she has certainly aged.



Then that proves it, I said, and ma said, Proves what, for land sakes?

It proves she expected you to look diffrent and older just like she does, and when she saw you looking diffrent and younger, no wonder she did not know you, I said, and ma said, Now that's the silliest remark I ever heard.

And she laifed happy and gave me a kiss and a piece of candy.

Proving it couldn't of been so silly.

Close Fight In Six Cities Is Promised

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nominations took place in seven Ontario cities Friday and indications are that it's going to be a close fight in six of them.

Only three civic leaders received acclamations and these will all take place in Barrie. Mayor F. R. Greer, Reeve A. R. Girdwood and deputy reeve A. W. Kindle all were acclaimed.

Three candidates were nominated for the mayoralty in Ottawa, including outspoken Mayor Charlotte Whitton. She will run against E. A. Bourque, a former mayor, AND David L. Burgess. Elliott F. Johnson, a grocer, who proposed to run, dropped from the race.

At Sarnia, Mayor W. C. Nelson is running for re-election. His lone opponent is William H. Wright.

Another man-a-man incumbent-Mayor Bernadette Smith of Woodstock, is in the mayoralty contest. R. M. Mackay will oppose her in the Dec. 6 elections.

At Chatham Arthur Stirling and Garnet Newkirk are running for the chief magistrate office while Fred W. Cox and Wilfred F. Gregory will contest the Stratford office.

Thomas H. Currah and Peter Laing will compete for the mayor's office at St. Thomas.

Sault Ste. Marie held its nominations Thursday and all three candidates were qualified Friday. They are Peter Hog, Tom Mason and Mayor C. H. Smale.

Famous Trichologist Will Demonstrate How To Grow Thicker Hair ... And Guarantees It

Demonstration to be Held Here

This new method of home treatment for saving and growing thicker hair will be demonstrated in Belleville, Ont., Sunday ONLY, November 28, '54.

These private, individual demonstrations will be held at the Queen's Hotel on Sunday ONLY November 28, 12 noon to 9 p.m.

Halifax, Nov. 19 — In an interview here today William Keele, internationally famous trichologist, and president of the Keele Hair and Scalp Specialists, Inc., said: "There are 18 different scalp disorders that cause most men and women to lose hair. Using common sense, a person must realize no one hair tonic or so-called cure-all could correct all the disorders," he explained.

GUARANTEED

"The Keele firm, recognizing that most people are skeptical of claims that hair can be grown on balding heads, offer a guarantee," Keele said.

Once a person avails himself to the Keele treatment his skepticism immediately disappears. To insure this, we offer this guarantee: "If you are not completely satisfied with your hair progress at the end of 30 days your money will be returned."

HOPELESS CASES DISCOURAGED

First the trichologist is quick to tell hopeless cases that they cannot be helped. If a man is completely, shiny bald is he in this last category.

A complete, private examination is given by a trichologist to determine the condition of the scalp, and cause for his hair troubles.

FREE EXAMINATION

This examination is very thorough and highly technical. It requires 20 to 30 minutes. The trichologist makes no charge for this examination and no appointment is necessary. After the examination the person is told the required length of treatment and how much it will cost.

After starting treatment, the person makes regular reports to the Keele firm in Halifax to check the progress of the home treatment.

To spread the opportunity of normal, healthy hair to the thousands who are desperately looking for help, independent trichologists are visiting various cities throughout Canada to conduct examinations and start home treatment.

NO CURE-ALL

"We have no cure-all for slick, shiny baldness," Keele emphasizes. "If there is fuzz, the root is there capable of creating hair and we can perform what seems to be a miracle.

There is one thing Keele wants to be certain every man and woman knows. If a recession appears at the temples or a spot begins to show up on the crown of the head there is something wrong and it should be given immediate attention.

HAIR FOR LIFETIME

"If clients follow our directions during treatment, and after they finish the course, there is no reason why they will not have hair all the rest of their lives," Keele said. "Our firm is definitely behind this statement. It all depends on the individual client's faithful observation of a few simple rules.

HOW'S YOUR HAIR?

If it worries you, call Trichologist H. Lockwood Hutchinson at the Queen's Hotel in Belleville, Ont. on Sunday ONLY, November 28, 12 noon to 9 p.m. The public is invited. You do not need an appointment. The examinations are private and you will not be embarrassed or obligated in any way.

IVANHOE

'Missionary Work in New Guinea' Stirring Address at St. Andrew's

IVANHOE — St. Andrew's Presbyterian W.M.S. observed "family night" on Thursday evening, when the members and their families met in the S. S. rooms. A delicious potluck supper was served at 6.30.

Following the supper the W.M.S. president, Mrs. Chas. Taggart, presided. The meeting opened by singing "Jesus Shall Reign," followed by prayer, led by Rev. W. H. V. Walker. The Scripture lesson, Romans 12, was read by Mrs. W. H. V. Walker. "The Grand Old Story" was sung by a trio, Mrs. M. Shaw, Miss A. Fleming and Bessie Fleming. A reading, "The Little Church," was given by Mrs. John Wallace.

GUEST SPEAKER

Mrs. Milton Shaw introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. T. Hagerward, who told of her experiences as a missionary in New Guinea.

"I want to talk to you this evening about mission work in New Guinea. This started in the middle of the last century. The missionaries learned the language, taught in small schools, and trested them when they were sick. Converts were few in number, and in the beginning of this century, the number of graves of missionaries, their wives and children was larger than the number of converts.

"Several years before we went to the eastern end of New Guinea, where the beautiful Sentani lake is situated, there was a movement toward Christianity, and whole villages applied for instruction and baptism.

IN HOLLANDIA

"We arrived in Hollandia in June 1954, and after a three days' journey by foot, we arrived in Genjem, where we were to live. We stayed in the home of a senior missionary to learn of the work and after three months my husband and I went together for the first time to visit the congregations. There were about 34 of them.

"In each village was a "guru", a combination of teacher and preacher. Our work was to supervise their work and assist them in every respect, sacraments were administered by the missionaries only. My husband baptized in five months no less than 1000 people, more than many a retired United Church minister has baptized in his life time.

"Along the coast we travelled by prahoe, a sort of large canoe. In the interior the only means of transportation was walking and often we walked 15 miles a day.

"My husband had attended a two years' medical course at Leyden University, and I was fortunate to be able to attend most of the medical lectures, which proved a great help in New Guinea.

ATTEND SICK

"Every morning a group of 20 to 40 sick persons gathered round the little cottage where we kept our medicine. My husband worked two hours to help those in need of medical attention; the doctor lived 60 miles away and only visited our place twice a year. When my husband was absent I took his place.

"Two events were of great importance in the lives of the Papoeans there. The first was the Christmas celebration, and the second the yearly missionary festival. Christmas was an affair lasting a week. Inhabitants of five villages came together and joined in the singing and Biblical plays. The mission feast was held in the summer, so that several thousands came together. This was also the time of the great offering — the Papoeans gave thousands of dollars to keep the mission work going.

"At the age of three or four our children were able to speak Malay as fluently as the native children.

HEALTH SUFFERED

"On the 22nd of April, the Japanese came and took us prisoner and so our work was abruptly stopped. After a three and one-half years' stay in the Japanese concentration camp our state of health made it impossible to stay in Indonesia. It is a wonderful things to see pagans in the power of darkness being liberated by the gospel and start a new life. We are extremely thankful that it was granted to us to work eight years in the mission work; for those who want to serve the Lord it is the greatest work that exists."

HUNGERED

Mrs. Hagerward also told of their life in the concentration camp where they suffered hunger, privation and great danger.

After their liberation they went to Holland where their health was gradually restored. On September 3rd, 1947, they went to the West Indies as missionaries.

Mrs. Hagerward concluded her address with these words:

"During those years of misery we have often experienced in a most wonderful way the direct help of the Lord—had it not been for His protection, not one of us would ever have left the concentration camp alive. He, and He alone, was our only help and refuge."

Mr. Walker expressed thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Hagerward and the meeting closed with prayer.

SISTERS SAVED FROM BOG

SKOWHEGAN, Me. (AP)—Two teen - age sisters, bramble-scratched and exhausted, were found knee-deep in freezing swamp water Thursday night by their father and searchparty companions. Posse members peeled off outer clothing to wrap Eugenie Bolduc, 13, and her sister, Janette, 16, to protect them against 26-degree cold before carrying them out of the bog where they strayed while hunting.

Wellington on the Lake

NOVEMBER SNOW

The air was sharpened by a breath that stings,
A herald of the coming winter
wind
With clouds portentious and a chill that sings
Of snow and frost to mark the ending year.
The gaunt trees shivered 'neath
the threatening storm,
The brown leaves danced
before the freshening gale,
The snow came down and spread a blanket warm
O'er hill and hollow and the sleeping vale.

—H. B. A.

WELLINGTON — On Tuesday morning we were greeted by a world of white, every bush and tree white with winter snow. Particularly beautiful were the spruce trees, decked in ermine. Every roof had its covering or white, and altogether the scene was one of beauty and purity, for the dead leaves and the old scars of autumn were hidden.

Looking on the scene I thought of the South where such a picture is unknown, and I thought of the little lad at the front door of a home where we stopped in Jacksonville on our way South, and how eagerly he listened as I told of the snow in Canada, and how the boys coasted down hill, their sleds taking them far out on the frozen lake. He had heard of the northern winter and longed to enjoy the winter sports. A slight frost the previous night was his only knowledge of winter.

The latest on Maple Avenue to have televisions installed are Mr. Harry Carling and Mrs. Alberta Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Vandewater spent Sunday in Bath, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Vandewater.

The deepest sympathy is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Anderson, of Sprucedale, formerly of Wellington in the death of their only child, Suzanne, who passed away in Kingston hospital. The funeral service was held in Picton United Church on Saturday with many friends attending from Wellington. Rev. Alfred Poulter spoke comforting words to the bereaved.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Morton were at home on their 33th wedding anniversary, entertaining their daughters and families. Guests included: Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Black and George Hoff's Island; Mr. and Mrs. John Cochrane and Brent, Peterborough, and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Harris, of Burr's.

Mrs. F. J. Vanskiver and son, Mr. George Vanskiver, of Picton, were guests of Miss Marjorie Blakely and Mrs. Anderson on Tuesday.

Mr. Garfield Whitney is a patient in Trenton Memorial Hospital. His many friends are hoping for his recovery.

Miss Ruby Nash is the new president of the W. A. of St. Andrew's Anglican church. Mrs. W. A. Davis resigned after many years of faithful, successful service.

UNITED CHURCH W.A.

Mrs. Percy Elliott entertained the members of the W.A. of the United Church at her home on Tuesday afternoon. The meeting, which was well attended, was conducted by the president, Mrs. R. Alyea, with Mrs. Poulter, pianist, in the absence of Mrs. Maykes. The program was directed by Meadames Adams, Jackson and Bovay. Mrs. Harold Nash conducted the devotional and Rev. A. Poulter presided at the election of officers. The program presented consisted of a humorous reading by Mrs. F. Harris, a poem read by Mrs. Poulter, and a contest by Mrs. W. Adams. At the close a social hour was enjoyed with refreshments.

At the time of writing (Thursday) the snow has all disappeared and the clouds are heavy with rain.

The day is cold and dark and dreary,
It rains, and the wind is never weary.
The vine still clings to the mouldering wall,
At every gust the dead leaves fall,
And the day is dark and dreary.

Be still, sad heart, and cease repining,
Behind the clouds the sun is shining.
Your fate is the common fate of all.
Into every life some rain must fall,
Some days must be dark and dreary.

Farmer Signs Appeal Against Death Sentence

DIGNE, France (Reuters) — Gaston Dominici, grizzled old French goat farmer, today signed an appeal against the death sentence imposed on him Sunday for the murder of a titled British scientist, his wife and child who were camping on his farm.

The 77-year-old farmer signed the document in his cell in Saint Charles prison here demanding that the appeal court examine alleged procedural irregularities in his trial.

Gaston sat with his sheepdog Mirza in his cell today. The dog was brought to his cell in Saint Charles prison as a special favor for his jailers, who have guarded him for over a year waiting trial.

ONLY COMPANION

It was the one companion he wanted after the bitter 12 days in court when his family broke into wrangling factions and his son Clovis alleged he had admitted the murders.

Gaston was convicted of shooting Sir Jack and Lady Drummond and bludgeoning their 11-year-old daughter Elizabeth in the early hours of Aug. 5, 1952.

After the verdict and sentence were announced Sunday, Dominici's wife Marie, 75—he called her "the old sardine"—made an appeal at the farm for their son, Gustave, and his wife.

Gustave had once accused his father of the murders, but during the trial proclaimed the old man's innocence.

Clovis, who has been ostracized by the family, went home to his wife a few miles away.

CNR to Offer Bond Issue Of $250,000,000

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian National Railways today announced the offering of a $250,000,000 government - guaranteed bond issue by way of temporary loans from the government and to help pay for new equipment.

President Donald Gordon said the bonds, to bear 3½-per-cent interest and to mature in eight years 1½ months, will be offered to the public immediately through investment dealers and banks.

The bonds are being offered at 99 per cent to yield 2.89 per cent to maturity. Books on the loan will be opened at the Bank of Montreal at Ottawa, Dec. 1. The bonds will be dated Dec. 15, 1954, and will mature Feb. 1, 1963, subject to redemption at the option of the company on or after Feb. 1, 1961.

"The issue is guaranteed unconditionally by the government of Canada as to both principal and interest," Mr. Gordon said.

MURDER CHARGE LAID AGAINST HAMILTON MAN

Burlington Beach Home Scene of Crime

HAMILTON (CP) — Daniel J. Campbell, 31, was arrested Sunday night on a murder charge in connection with the death of Stanley Pudjunas, 31, of suburban Burlington Beach.

Pudjunas, shot in the temple, staggered nearly half a mile after being shot and was found on the street by police. He died seven hours later in hospital.

Police said Pudjunas was shot at the home of Daisy Gradwell early Sunday. Mrs. Gradwell is Campbell's mother-in-law.

Campbell came to the Gradwell home, police said, and forced his way into the house. He grappled with Thomas Chetrit, an uncle of Campbell's wife, and during the struggle, two shots were fired. One hit the woodwork and the other struck Pudjunas in the temple.

Police said Chetrit overpowered Campbell and held him until police arrived.

Eastern Canada Accidents Claim Fifteen Lives

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Fifteen persons died violently in eastern Canada during the week-end, including seven persons in Ontario, two in Quebec and one each in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

A Canadian Press survey shows eight persons died in traffic accidents and three in the drowning. Three persons died as a result of gun wounds. A Shelburne, Ontario girl was asphyxiated as she sat in a parked car.

Paul Giasson, 23, Thessalon, was crushed to death Saturday when a load of logs rolled onto the cab of his truck. Two Montrealers perished about 60 miles south of Mont Ste. Marie.

Stanley Pudjunas, 31, of Burlington, died after he was shot in the head during a scuffle in a Hamilton home. Police have arrested Daniel Campbell in connection with the shooting.

TWO MEN SHOT

David Hindle, 27, and Tom (Rocky) Lavalle, 27, were found dead of gun shot wounds Saturday in Niagara-on-the-Lake. Police believe the double shooting was a murder-suicide.

They said Hindle's death was probably murder. Lavalle's wounds appear to be self-inflicted, police said.

Hazel Blair, 19, of Mulmur township near Shelburne was found asphyxiated in a parked car Sunday.

Alexander Edward Harrison, 24, of Shelburne, was discovered unconscious.

Eight-year-old William Testerink of Morewood, 70 miles east of Ottawa, was struck and killed by a truck Sunday as he crossed the highway.

Police are trying to identify a woman killed Sunday night in a two-car crash on Queen Elizabeth highway. They said the woman was in her early 20s.

To Live to Be 100 Just Stay Alive As You Grow Younger from 60 to 75

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—You have a good chance of living to be 100—if you first hurdle a curious invisible barrier which lies in the middle years reported today.

This barrier is a period in which certain chemical and physical processes of the body begin to reverse themselves in a kind of reverse ageing. You begin growing younger in certain ways.

This new finding on growing old is described by Drs. A. A. Goldbeter, Otto Deutschberger, Irving Chapman and H. B. Elder of New York University College. It is an exhibit at the clinical session of the American Medical Association opening here today. It is based upon a survey of more than 1,000 persons aged 60 to 100.

They find evidence that some chemical and physical signs cease begin to go into reverse between 60 and 75. Just why they do this is a mystery. But it looks as though the changes amount to "some invisible, not clearly understood barrier."

"Most of us die before reaching that barrier," they write, going through it. But, once we get through, our chances of living to be 100 years are good," Dr. Elder said.

The medical team finds that increased blood pressure at older ages is not necessarily harmful or abnormal or inevitable, but rather something which can and should be controlled, to help people reach the century mark.

Forget Political Differences To Pay Homage to Churchill

LONDON (AP) — Britons set aside political differences today and got into a sentimental mood to salute Sir Winston Churchill on his 80th birthday Tuesday.

He spent a quiet weekend with his family at Chequers, the prime minister's official country residence, to rest up for festivities that will be coupled with the formal opening of a new session of Parliament.

The pro - Labor Daily Mirror, which for months has been calling Churchill too old to be prime minister and demanding he retire, said in a birthday tribute "Beyond all doubt he is the greatest Englishman of this century."

Sponsors of the Churchill birthday presentation fund disclosed they have received one anonymous donation of 11 Russian rubles. Another donor sent a cheque for 29,226 farthings—one for each day of Churchill's life, and not forgetting the leap years. A farthing is for all, we shall not look upon his a quarter of a British penny, and 29,220 of them are worth $25.22.

Tuesday Churchill will be replenishing with an initial payment on the fund running into at least $100,000. It is expected he will use the fund, which may finally total 10 times that much, for student scholarships and other philanthropical projects.

Two 90-pound birthday cakes have been baked—one to be cut at a party for Churchill's friends in Parliament, the other at a family party at 10 Downing street.

The cake, iced in pale amber, has eight big candles and badges showing milestones in his career—including among other things the Harrow school colors and crest; the Nobel prize badge picked out in sugar; and a miniature jockey in the Churchill racing colors of pink and brown.

The other cake, for the family party, has 80 candles and this quotation: "He is a man take him all in all, we shall not look upon his

Red China's Defiance Poses Difficult Problem for U.S.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Communist China's defiant refusal to free 12 Americans jailed as spies confronted the United States government today with the problem of how to make the Reds change their minds.

With the British serving as intermediaries, the Chinese Communists Sunday rejected an American note protesting the imprisonment of 11 captured airmen and the United States Army civilian employees on spy charges. The state department called the charges "trumped up."

The British government, reporting the Chinese turned down the U.S. note as "unacceptable," said the Reds insisted the evidence against the 12 Americans is incontestable.

The British acted as go-betweens because the United States does not recognize the Red Chinese regime and maintains no direct diplomatic move up to the U.S. government.

In the Red capital, the Reds remained an open question as state department officials reported "all appropriate measures are being considered."

President Eisenhower may have marked out the bounds for American action in this case when he said the phase "within peaceful means" last week in assuring the United States will not start war. This means that the U.S. is doing everything possible to win their freedom.

Ultimately, policy in this situation probably will be determined by the president and the national security council, the country's top defence and foreign policy strategy board comprising the military and diplomatic measures now being considered.

Titles Decided In Weightlifting At Y.M.C.A.

The Belleville weightlifting championships were held at the local "Y" on Saturday night, and a real good crowd was in attendance. Competitions were held in the various classes from bantamweight to light heavy. Also on the program were gymnastic displays and a fine exhibition of judo by a group from 8 RD.

Winners in the different classes were:

Bantam Class: Leon Short, (Army, Navy Club).

Featherweight Class: Bill McMurter, (Belleville YMCA).

Lightweight Class: Bob Wesley, (Belleville YMCA).

Middleweight Class: Richard Bertrand, (RCAF Club).

Light Heavy Class: Don Cherry, (Belleville YMCA).

Open competitions were staged in most classes and the champs had to be good to win, especially as the runner ups in the Lightweight Class, Joe Cox gave champ Bob Wesley a terrific go, also in the Middleweight Class Tom Annis showed great promise of future greatness in the lifting game. In the Light Heavy Class, the runner up was Ron Carr, Smith, who gave Champ Don Cherry quite a run for the title. A special award was given to Don Cherry as the outstanding lifter of the evening, and a trophy donated by Paul Mercier was awarded to the YMCA club as the winning team. This trophy will be an annual award in the Belleville championship.

Tommy Peddar acted as referee and Herb Mowatt was judge.

Master of Ceremonies of the evening was Don Brant of Kingston.

The total poundage by the lifting champions are as follows:

Bantam, Leon Short, 405 lbs.; Feather, Bill McMurter, 485 lbs.; Light, Bob Wesley, 515 lbs.; Middle, Richard Bertrand, 520 lbs.; Light Heavy, Don Cherry, 600 lbs.

A special exhibition was made to Jim Sakeli in the Light Heavy class for his good showing after only two weeks training.

Ottawa Couple Pinned in Car In Deep Ditch

A young Ottawa couple, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bristol, own their living to fast work by Ontario provincial police and two passing motorists, who pulled them from their car after it overturned early Sunday in five feet of water, when it went out of control and rolled into the ditch near the Dutch Mill Inn, east of Trenton.

The young couple who gave their address as 27 Warren Ave., Ottawa, were taken to Trenton Memorial Hospital, where they were treated for shock by Dr. J. W. Prescott and were later released.

Provincial Police officers Louis Pelissero and A. G. Oliver were on patrol early Sunday morning when they spotted an overturned car in the ditch. Steam was still rising from the motor as the car rested sideup down the water-filled ditch.

A quick investigation revealed the car was still occupied and assisted Kenneth McMurter, 31 Dominion street, and Stewart Sinclair, Toronto. Mr. and Mrs. Bristol were pulled from the overturned auto.

Police say high credit to the two young men who stopped and assisted them in rescuing the two persons in the auto. "They really deserve credit," Cpl. Harry Batkin said. He stopped and gave every assistance to the police and in doing so got their clothes completely drenched.

When police first spotted the car in the ditch it was not believed anyone was in the vehicle but on closer investigation the couple was found with the front seat pinning them down.

Police said that the Bristol car had been east-bound when it went out of control, sliced across the highway and then rolled into the ditch near a culvert.

Bristol's father lives at 90 Mc-Gill street, Trenton.

ATTENDS WEDDING

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen Mother attended the wedding here Thursday of Anthony Berry, youngest son of British newspaper magnate Viscount Kemsley, to Miss Mary Roche, 20, elder daughter of Lord and Lady Fermoy. The bridegroom, 29, became a director of Kemsley newspapers earlier this year.

N.E. Employees Organize Credit Union

Operated by employees of the Northern Electric Company, the Norlecto Employees (Belleville) Credit Union, for the benefit of the firm's employees, will open here Wednesday.

The business office of the new operation will be situated in the main office section of the company's plant at Sidney Street.

Similar to other credit unions throughout Canada object of the union is "to promote thrift among employees and also to provide them with a ready source of credit at reasonable rates," a release from the organization states.

Interest in this particular instance will be one per cent per month on the unpaid balance of the loan.

Employees at the company's Montreal plant have been operating a credit union successfully for years.

Funds are derived from members' deposits on the form of shares, and each five-dollar share participates in a dividend declared annually on recommendation of the board of directors.

INSURANCE PROTECTION

Savings insurance policy has been secured by the organization which protects deposit accounts up to a maximum $1,000, against death or disability of the member. Simply this means that should the member die and have $900 in the credit in the union, his estate would receive $900 plus an equal $900 insurance coverage. Insurance coverage is slightly reduced if deposits are made after age 55.

Loans are also insured against death or permanent disability of the organization states, and the member dies and has an outstanding loan, the loan is automatically paid up for him by the insurance company.

Membership is open only to employees of the Northern Electric Company in Belleville and their husbands or wives and dependents.

Officers of the credit union are not paid for their efforts.

The Board of Directors consists of President, Les Digby; vice-president, Gerry Thompson; secretary, Edna Lalonde; treasurer, Art. Crane; Membership education chairman, Stan Armstrong; assistant-treasurer, Bud Chipps.

The committee comprises chairman Vera Vandervoort; secretary, Dick Charlton and Tom Morrison. Supervisory committee consists of Jim Aitken, chairman, and Bill Harvey.

ESCAPED IN CROWD

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—A "disinguished-looking" bandit stuck up a suburban branch bank Friday, escaped with $14,000 and eluded a police search centered at a nearby race track. An all-day combing of the fair grounds race track half a mile from the robbery scene failed to turn up the bandit although eyewitnesses said the man ran across the infield with a money bag in each hand.

Tweed, Deseronto To Have Elections For Reeveships

Red hot elections for the reeveship in both Tweed and Deseronto headed up the municipal election field in the rural units of South Hastings today following Saturday's qualifications.

In Tweed the present reeve, Clarence T. Graham, and Ellard Clarke will fight it out for the reeveship, while five aspirants for council will fight it out for the four seats. Qualified to run for council are all of this year's councillors, Douglas Spencer, Ambrose Trudeau, Burton Thompson and Stewart Lessard, with Robt. A. Wood also seeking election.

Sam Curry received acclamation for the one seat on the public utilities commission.

At Deseronto Thomas Scott was elected mayor by acclamation, when Hon. D. C. McVicar declined to qualify. Fighting it out for the office of reeve is present Reeve C. J. Brennan and R. K. Jackson who contested the office two years ago.

A new nomination for council will be necessary as only four men qualified. Qualifying were Bert Twiddy, Gerald Lott, Oscar Pitchett and Cecil Wilson.

The accident took place on the east side of the highway near the intersection of the Glen Miller bridge. It is presumed Mr. Patrick had left the house to walk to a neighbor's when he was struck by a northbound car driven by John Hemahill, 86 Crown Street, Trenton.

Witnesses said the elderly man was knocked five feet into the air when struck by the front of the vehicle.

Provincial Constables Harry Mackenzie and Ivan Yinkens investigated.

Police Blotter

It was merely a case of forgetfulness for a local resident who over the week-end complained that her car had been stolen from where it was parked on Church street. Police made a check and found the auto right where it had been left and with the doors still securely locked.

Joseph Weymark reported the disappearance of his topcoat and hat from the Army and Navy hall.

Two juveniles were apprehended as they were making an entry into the Walker Hardware store on Front street. One of the owners of the store found one of the lads in the store and another on the roof by an open window. They were turned over to the police.

MORE DEAD DRAKES

ST. MARYS (CP) — An overwhelming male majority in the local duck-drake population has been reduced by 65 since Tuesday, conservation officer Charles Hosken said Friday. A flock of 350 drakes was the target for marksmen in the police-supervised shoot. The drakes outnumbered ducks 7. Constant bickering and fighting amongst the male birds has been destroying eggs and young birds on the Thames river are also cut non-existent, officials said. An approved ratio is three ducks to each drake.

Industrial Employment Up in September

OTTAWA (CP) — Industrial employment and payrolls increased during September but remained below last year's levels, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The industrial employment index stood at 113.3 at the beginning of October, as against 112.9 a month earlier and 116.9 at Oct. 1, 1953. The index is based on 1949 figures equalling 100.

The index of total payrolls was 157, compared with 155.6 a month earlier and 158.7 a year earlier.

Average weekly wages and salaries reached a record high of $59.27, as against the average of $58.93 at Sept. 1 and $58.11 Oct. 1, 1953.

'Hard Core' Reds Still Plague Malayan Forces

By LARRY ALLEN

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaya (AP) A "hard core" of approximately 3,000 Communists deep in Malaya's jungles are still giving enough time to British troops and Malayan security forces who outnumber the Reds more than 50 to 1.

Malaya has been under a state of emergency for six years and more and more areas are becoming free of Communists as they are forced deeper into the jungle. But the end is not in sight.

There are 300,000 men trying to wipe out the Communists, who carry on their activities in guerrilla style. The Reds specialize in ambush of British troops. Malayan security forces and rubber estate men.

PROLONGED FIGHT SEEN

British authorities say there is no evidence the Reds are getting supplies or arms from Russia or Red China, but what they have left from the days of the Second World War and what they manage to capture or steal will keep them fighting for some time to come.

The hard core of 3,000 Communists is about the same number as was in Malaya in 1951. The federal government's latest count of 600 Reds have been killed since the state of emergency was proclaimed June 1, 1948, but recruits take their place.

The Reds have killed 2,336 civilians and wounded 1,312 others, and 705 are missing since the state of emergency was proclaimed. They have wiped out 1,250 regular, special and auxiliary police and about 800 British troops.

Up to March 1 terrorists killed totalled 5,230, of which more than 4,900 were identified as Chinese. Voluntary surrenders were estimated at 1,459.

Hastings Farm Forum

Four forums reported meeting last Monday to discuss farm insurance, eg: Brookdale (19) at Carman Frost's; Foxboro (10) at Herb Watt's; Hazzardville (31) at Allen Ketcheson's and River Valley (9) at Gerald Brooks'.

The answers varied a bit, though the majority thought automobile insurance should be first on account of liability hazard. Three favored fire and tornado insurance as second with life as third, except River Valley, who changed these around putting life second and fire third.

STRAIGHT LIFE

Hazards gave a straight life policy preference in the life insurance field because it would give the most protection for the lowest cost. The Kers agreed with this. Brookdale listed farm liability as essential since farming is becoming more and more mechanized, and Foxboro mentioned workmen's compensation.

The other two didn't mention this phase; also Brookdale and Foxboro thought some form of medical and hospital insurance was necessary.

Brookdale specified that all types of life insurance were good, but whether term, straight life, or endowment depended entirely on circumstances.

Three forums agreed that the farm family does not carry enough insurance for proper protection, but they are carrying all they can afford.

At River Valley they say "the average farmer in the vicinity carries adequate insurance."

Mrs. Burt, of Belleville, secretary-treasurer of the Quinte Medical Co-op. and Mr. B. Hollinger, Foxboro, representative of Co-op insurance, were guests of the Brookdale forum.

Hurricane Hazel Proved Prankster, Drying Up Well

Hurricane Hazel was as much prankster as gangster last month as it moved from the Caribbean to the Humber Valley.

In Syracuse it played one of the weirdest pranks of its whole journey. It dried up a well.

Mac Prest, formerly with the Ontario Intelligencer, and now living in Syracuse, passed the story along to friends in Belleville. It goes something like this.

Several weeks B.H. (before Hazel) well drillers from Oswego, N.Y., sank a 160 foot well on the farm of Lawrence Wilson, Marcellus, N.Y. The hit an excellent vein of water that filled the well pipe to a depth of 100 feet.

The Wilsons were overjoyed. For 23 years they had drawn most of their water for table use from a spring near a family of 13 children. When their well came in they splashed water happily in their bathroom and their automobile. Neighbors brought milk pails to the new well to take advantage of its excellent, cold water.

Hazel arrived Oct. 15th. Two days later, when the electric pump was plugged into operation, there was no water.

The problem of the missing water provoked considerable local speculation. The generally accepted theory now is that Hazel caused a subterranean shifting of the water-bearing rock, stopping up and carrying the Wilson's water supply away from their well.

With $1,400 down a 160 foot drain the Wilsons were understandably miffed. The Oswego papers, perplexed, are hoping to hit the missing water vein with a small amount of further drilling.

Everything Ready For Opening Of Dairy Show

With judging of the various entries expected to be completed by noon, everything was in readiness today for the opening of the British Empire Dairy Show Tuesday in the dairy hall at the market building.

This morning Jack Bain, chief dairy instructor for Central and Western Ontario, and one of the judges of the dairy show, said that judging was well underway with the last classes scheduled to be completed by noon. The prize lists would then be made up and the awards placed in readiness for the opening of the show Tuesday.

Deep prints of cheese and butter are being offered Tuesday and Wednesday at the show and the afternoon session of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association convention will be held in the showroom.

Tuesday evening the cheese makers' banquet will be held at the Masonic Temple with the cheese show and convention to conclude on Wednesday afternoon.

CCF Executive Urges Conference On Unemployment

OTTAWA (CP) — The CCF national executive said today unemployment this winter probably will be worse than last year and urged an early meeting of federal and provincial government representatives to take action.

In a statement issued after weekend meetings here, the party executive said the latest labor department figures "indicate that unemployment in Canada will be at least as bad and probably a good deal worse this winter than last."

It noted that the figure of 259,270 persons looking for work at Oct. 1 through national employment service offices is 30 per cent higher than a year earlier.

The executive said the government should implement a five-point emergency program of public works; special steps to eliminate seasonal unemployment; reduction of sales and excise taxes on such things as textiles, furniture and automobiles; a sharp increase in unemployment insurance benefits, and direct federal aid to boost eligible for unemployment insurance.

Santa Claus Parade Attracts Many from Quinte District

PICTON — Hailed as the best Santa Claus parade ever held in Picton, that on Saturday attracted a tremendous crowd not only from the County but points many miles distant. Largely represented were such points as Kingston, Napanee, Belleville, Trenton, Brighton, Tweed and other centres. Good roads and good weather added much to the success of the event. While the sky was overcast, there were intervals of sunshine which brought out the glitter of the many floats.

As a setting, there was the crowd, many deep, along the mile-long route, large spruce trees on light standards, string of lights and pennants across the street, and gaily decorated stores.

Quality of the entries was particularly high and revealed weeks of hard work by the Santa Claus committee. The parade took an hour to pass a given point.

Bringing up the rear of the parade was Santa himself, seated in a red cutter and driving his prancing reindeer which sported brilliant red blankets and bells galore. This huge float was arranged by Eaton's of Canada.

SANTA GREETS CHILDREN

Later, in the armouries, Santa greeted 2,500 children and each received a package of nuts, popcorn, toy and orange, distributed by members of the business and professional Women's Club.

Interspersing the floats were forty walking characters, clowns, animals, story book and comic characters. A huge swinging wagon was a highlight. Perhaps the highlight was the entry section of the parade. From the glittering pipes of a huge music box, came music, apparently played by a clown at the keyboard. A merry-go-round had miniature horses whirling around. The McFarland Co. had a brilliantly colored cage in which "Wild Men of Borneo" cavorted, and a kitten played on the truck roof. A huge 18-foot elephant glittered in its red and silver costume. Clowns added to the spirit of fun.

Heading the parade was a toy train with realistic engine and two other sections. Then came two pretty girls mounted on horses.

Heading Picton Odd Fellows band, resplendent in scarlet uniforms, were two drum majorettes, Elizabeth Williams and Margaret Kingsley. Floats following were Brownies which showed Mary Quite Contrary in her garden; Picton Heights play ground on which Jack stood by his castle with the huge beanstalk towering overhead; Canadian-Girls-in-Training whose chariot depicted "The Night Before Christmas"; the Sea Rangers who had "Puzzy in the Well." Then came Picton's "Humpty Dumpty"; Big 5 Junior Farmers with their hay pulled float which presented an agricultural scene; the Catholic Women's League with their beautiful float depicting the Nativity.

A house built on a Bible circled out the theme "Build the Home on the Bible", by the Salvation Army. Then came Picton S.A. Bands played carols.

Ole King Cole and his musicians three were on Hadden Hardware float. A group of dancers in beautiful costumes, in a float of red, silver and white were on the Barfact that the Polish government was not represented at the hearing. "They haven't chosen to come here and give any information to us. Maybe they don't really want them back."

Refuses to Send Polish Sailors Back to Reds

LONDON (AP) — Lord Chief Justice Goddard today refused to send back to Communist Poland seven Polish sailors who appealed against the master of their fishing trawler and sought asylum in Britain.

Lord Goddard ordered the seven released from custody and also who landed in Britain without permission, the Poles now become subject to a decision of the home secretary on whether they can stay.

Lord Goddard said he would give reasons for his ruling at a later date.

The seven seized their trawler, locked up the captain and came into the port of Whitby Sept. 23. The Polish government claimed that their extradition on a charge of revolt on the high seas.

CHURCHILL—EIGHTY YEARS OF LIVING

On Tuesday Sir Winston Churchill will have lived for eighty years.

Not an octogenarian can make that boast.

Of those who can, few can also claim that, in living, they have given life—and a good life—to millions of their fellow men.

As the shadows lengthen, that achievement should bring pride and joy to this great man—and inspiration to the rest of us.

The desire to pay tribute/to him is natural, but the task is no easy one.

Great men deserve great eulogies and few men in editorial articles around the world possess talents to match their subject.

To use many of the best phrases which might be written about Churchill would be to do him injury, for they would be stolen from that treasure house of golden words which have flowed from his tongue or poured from his pen.

One is tempted, for instance, to say that never before have so many men owed so much to one man. But Churchill has reserved that thought for those knights of the air who soared above his bowed and bared heads during London's bomb-scarred monuments to a nation's great past, he labored to build for it and all the world a bright future.

One is tempted, too, to say that all men do him honor, but that is to paint him as some paragon of all the virtues, to picture him as a saint.

That he is not. One of his distinguishing features is that he has possessed all the passions known to man. Thus he has made foes, as well as friends.

It is perhaps a measure of his greatness that some of his greatest admirers are also among his bitterest critics —and that he loves their criticism much more than the fulsome praises of some fawning flunkey.

The other day, in the House of Commons, Churchill and Emanuel Shinwell clashed once more. Shinwell, many will recall, is the Labor member who defeated his fellow socialist, Ramsay MacDonald, the flossy-mouthed Laird of Lossiemouth. Shinwell and the despised MacDonald, the Laborite who joined forces with the Conservatives to form Britain's National Government in the depression-ridden thirties. Churchill wins Shinwell's ungrudging respect, as well as his unstinted opposition.

Emrys Jones, writing in the London Recorder, says that Churchill "has appeared inconsistent sometimes because he is always candid." Candor alone, however, does not begin to explain Churchill's apparent inconsistency. It has been truly said that only a fool is consistent. Every man makes mistakes—but to refuse to recognize a mistake and publicly alter one's stand is a proof of either stupidity or cowardice, two traits of which Sir Winston has never been accused even by his worst enemy. Many men, however, manage to preserve an appearance of inconsistency only by a refusal to acknowledge mistakes but by an inability to recognize that what was true yesterday is not necessarily true today, that when time alters conditions it makes intelligent men change their views. Churchill has not enjoyed the doubtful blessing of being blind to the changes wrought by time.

That is the answer to the charge of inconsistency which in no case says is still levied by some as the result of Churchill's "change of party from Tory to Liberal and then again to Tory."

Greatness attaches no weight to it. Indeed it would be difficult to find better words than those in which he pays tribute to Sir Winston.

"In a thousand years," he says in part, "his name will be as potently familiar as is Charlemagne, Leonardo, Shakespeare and Napoleon.

"It is enriching to be alive at the same time as he, and generations to come will think of us when they who shared his period, who breathed the same dangerous by exhilarating air, knew something of the magic of his personality, and were woven into the British legend even in his own time.

"He is the greatest man in the world, certainly the greatest living Englishman, and some would dispense with the adjective for the magnitude of his achievement is yet only dimly discerned in many minds.

"It has been given to few men not only to save a great nation but to save for the world the virtues of freedom, courage and the spirit that enables a nation to become great.

"Yet though he towers above mankind he stands among us as a man, and some can remember him as he looks like being, but as a man with many of man's glories and some of his defects.

"Like Caesar he has made history and then written it from the time when he was a subaltern on the North West Frontier, as a soldier in the Sudan when he criticised later the conduct of Kitchener, as a correspondent in the Boer War when his capture and escape made his own story read like a piece out of Buchan, right down to the war memoirs in which he was the leading character in the drama and the narrator and critic when the curtain fell on the defeat of Germany and Japan.

"Apart from his own courage, heroism and drama have been his daily companions. The days of battle on the field and in the House of Commons have provided for him a magnificent occupation.

"Yet this picture of an Elizabethan reborn in the twentieth century is incomplete and it will remain so as long as men write about gods and heroes.

"For this man of action, impetuous though he is, is an odd fellow among adventurers, a student and no apprentice was more industrious in all that he has undertaken. Painting, bricklaying, public speaking, writing are not merely gifts but cultivated gifts. He is conscientious, he is his own most severe critic. The best is good enough.

"His vitality, his capacity for sheer hard work, his mastery of the subjects he speaks and writes about are a denial of the legend that he is impatient of criticism. He is his own best critic. His capacity for self-criticism is obviously tremendous for without it no orator or man of letters could achieve the results he does.

"He has been guilty of rash statements and moments of rash judgments. On the opinions he holds firmly he has all the facts, knows all the arguments for and against, and will use every one to the advantage of his case and to distress his opponent."

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

KEEP SHINING

The traffic lights at a nearby intersection keep changing from red to green all day, and all night too, although the streets are not main thoroughfares, and there are many hours in the night when not a single car passes. Some householders in those windows let the lights shine; others have complained about the wastefulness of having them on every night, ing the traffic-free hours of the night.

But in the twenty-four months before the lights were installed, only one fatal accident occurred there. In the seven years since then, not one has happened.

A great many tasks in life are as routine and as apparently pointless as the steady flashing of those lights down empty streets at night. This sort of task may be very discouraging. "Why should I do my job when I can't see that it matters? I'll get paid just the same for a careless job." "Why follow rules, tions," asks another, "when nobody can see whether I break them or not?"

But the truth is, good work is always better than bad work. And right way is always better than the wrong way even when no one sees the difference. The traffic lights must shine for thousands of hours to be sure of working during that important second that will save a life.

We cannot always tell what the important job is, or when the vital moment will come.

WOMAN'S WORK

Since man, at home, is apt to shirk,
He little knows of woman's work.
To help his wife, a friend of mine
Once hung the washing on the line,
To learn that not enough he knew
What seemed a simple task to do,

Upon the front line he displayed
Garments of every hue and shade
For all the passers-by to see,
When only white things there should be.
To gaze on underwear and socks,
It seems the neighbors all it shocks

To hang a washing properly,
Like things together ought to be,
The shrewd he was wrong with them—
Should not be fastened by the hem.
She also told him with a frown
He'd hung the dresses upside down.

She also told him that the hose
Should be suspended from the toes,
And this his ignorance reveals:
He had them hanging from the heels.
Instruction first a man should get
Who tries to do a woman's task.

Fluoridation Test Success

(By Bob Kenyon in the Toronto Telegram)

More than nine years' experimental fluoridation of water as a preventive of tooth decay in Brantford are, so far, proved an unqualified success and has shown no ill effects of any kind, Dr. H. K. Brown, in charge of the Department of National Health and Welfare, reveals in the Canadian Dental Association Journal.

Fluoridation has:

Reduced decay in children six to eight years old by 59 per cent.

Reduced decay in children nine to 11 years old by 44 per cent.

Reduced decay in children 12 to 14 years old by 36 per cent.

Further decay reductions in the children nine to 14 may be expected.

Brantford physicians, asked whether any bodily ill effects had shown up in the period of fluoridation, said they knew of none.

Fluoridation, while mottling of teeth, discernible only to a dentist, which had shown up in a few children, is not a serious drawback to fluoridation, as has been believed, Dr. Brown told the Canadian Dental Association.

The water is free of fluoridation.

Dr. Brown's report, the first involving thousands of children, is of world-wide importance as people in mankind's most prevalent disease problem — dental decay. So preventive it is found, people take to it for granted.

Dentist now say most decay can be prevented by fluoridation. The Brantford tests have proved them right.

(Two years ago and again last year, Toronto Board of Health and MOH Dr. L. A. Pequegnat recommended fluoridation for Toronto. Each years, city council rejected it.)

To be fully effective, said Dr. Brown, fluoridation should be persisted in from the time a child is born. Fluoride taken into the body during early years remains in the teeth are forming inside the gum is very important. At this maximum effect will take about 13 years from the start of fluoridation. The dentist's quote maximum effect will be felt about 1952.

This is why the children now aged 6 to 8 in Brantford have much better teeth than those 9 to 11, who, in turn, have better teeth than their elder sisters in the 12 to 14 age group.

However, it is expected later decay will set down, that fluoride does seem to have an effect even after the tooth enamel is formed.

Recently, Dr. W. L. Hutton, Brantford MOH, asked the city's doctors whether they had noticed any ill effects in their patients due to drinking fluoridated water.

The doctors answered: At a recent meeting of the medical staff of the Brantford General Hospital the matter was briefly discussed and they had seen any untoward effects from the use of fluoridated water in the vicinity, with the result that no such observations had been made by any practitioner to the best of our knowledge."

The Canadian Medical Association, at its annual convention at Vancouver in June endorsed the fluoridation plan, reported Dr. Brown.

The research project, of which Dr. Brown has been the chief dental expert, involves 10,000 children in Brantford, 10,000 children in Brantford, Sarnia and Stratford. In Brantford the water is naturally fluoridated; in Sarnia the community water supply was fluoridated; in Stratford it was naturally fluoridated.

Results show that Stratford, which has always had fluoridated water, has the best teeth among Brantford, with nine years artificial fluoridation, is catching up to Stratford, and may do so by 1955. Sarnia, which has no fluoridation, has far more decay than the other two, and is about at the level where Brantford was in 1945.

Vanishing Corpse

(London Spectator)

Although I have heard two slightly different versions of this story I do not think it is yet universally current, and will relate the simpler of the two.

A young couple took with them on a motor tour in Spain an elderly and prosperous aunt, partly out of kindness and partly because she agreed to pay most of the expenses—One afternoon, feeling a little weary and unwell, she stayed in the car while they finished their sight-seeing. When they returned to the car they found that she was dead.

The young couple, who spoke no Spanish, were in a frightful state and decided to seek out the British Consul. They accordingly hired some story with sympathy, undertook to see to what could be done to save them from being too deeply embroiled with the Spanish police, and told them to call for them in the patio while he telephoned for a doctor.

When they got out into the street they found that the car had been stolen . . . It was recovered some time later, but Auntie was no longer on board and no trace of her has since been found.

Listening In On Brains

(Windsor Daily Star)

That was a notable broadcast Louisiana doctors listened to the other day, when they turned on to the intelligible sounds of human brains. But in its own way, and as the first step on the long road, the development had implications more disturbing than any lie detector has.

The experiment, briefly, showed that thinking and speaking are like a well tuned motor. But the other kind, which generally are associated with thinking, such as those all their marbles, were loud and full of confusion.

If this line of research continues, as it surely will, the result can be most humiliating. A brain reading can be added to the counterespionage and police forces and who can be sure what the recording instrument will pick up?

Sitting there while a technician counts the "pings" in one's cerebellum can be imagining things. If he's counting them, would not be the experience calculated to build morale.

The fact is that science has moved a long way closer to the day when "You ought to have your head examined" will be a real and extremely pointed hint.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

My daughter brought me from Austria a pair of these Tyrol hats with the big brush of chamois tail sticking up at the back and sundry oxydized silver ornaments dangling on the brim. Actually I am a deer hunter; a black-game, because I shoot only cocks and point-blank at weeks and the cross of Switzerland and a fish or two. It is black, with a green band; plus some twirls of green edge. In the hat shops these hats are the various trends as poachers to it in popular American and English makes of hat. But this is the real thing, so far, I have been scared to wear it. My daughter tells me I must wear it out in the rain and snow and get it beaten up by the elements as soon as possible, because in the Tyrol, the more battered the hat, the greater the style.

In the privacy of my home, I paraded the hat for the benefit of friends, and for laughs.

"Where does it come from?" asked one sour-faced visitor.

"Austria," I explained. "Not Austria, Ostwia. They call it Oostrich, or something like that in it."

The very good friend grew a little red with anger.

"You're making fun of the hat," he said, "and of the place it came from, and the people who live there. Let me tell you that with all these New Canadians coming to this country, your grandchildren or your great-grandchildren may be Owstriches, as you call them."

I thought I'd better be a little more respectably on my head.

"You'd feel pretty silly in our grave," pursued my friend, "if your great-grandchildren were Owstriches, and I don't imagine any place more miserable in which to feel silly."

I put back the hat off and examined its plume and its silver bangles, and decided to wear it at the first opportunity. And if anybody smiles I'm going to tell them I am an Owstriches or some other kind of New Canadian. And if the smile isn't friendly, I will know they are Canadians and are secretly gazing to feel silly, some fine day, in their graves.

Good News---Paper Closes

(Philadelphia Inquirer)

Ordinarily the suspension of a newspaper is not something to cheer about. Likewise they are exceptions.

Take the case of the Communists are supposed to be particularly powerful, the pro-Communist newspaper, Milano-Sera, has closed down. The reason? Lack of funds.

Italian Reds did their best to raise money to save their propaganda sheet. Special appeals were made by the Red paper in Milan, Turin and Genoa, but neither Rome nor Milan were enough Italians willing to hand over enough lira to rescue Milano-Sera.

Personal Health Talks

By DR. WM. BRADY

YES? NOT THAT'S MY BABY?

Aunt Polly regularly comes through with a good story and as likely as not it has an element of truth in it, at least the core of the plot is true although the embroidery may be a shade of fancy.

The latest is about the two mothers who were handed the wrong babies in

Dr. Brady

English hospital. Somehow the babies got mixed during feeding time out there in the show window (you know, what nineteenth century hospitals call the "nursery for newborns.")

The mothers, who, under the rigid hospital rules, so dear to the hearts (am I serious?) of nineteenth century lying-in institutions, had not been permitted to get acquainted with their babies, so the poor souls both accepted whatever the hospital authorities handed them.

Well, the swap might have come off all right, but after the two young mothers got home and home with the other's baby, the hospital authorities became worried about the mix-up, and made some blood tests which proved that the babies had been exchanged. But the respective parents—no, the putative—oh, well, the two couples were all pretty much satisfied with the babies they had brought home from the hospital and there we leave them.

If the young English couples had been educated enough to have their babies at home — the best place to have a baby, they would not have had to decide to turn in the baby they have brought to the wrong home just because a cold scientific blood test shows that the baby they were handed by the jokers at the hospital really belongs to the other home.

It may be that these mixed-up young people were unaware of the blessings in modern life that are used in twentieth century lying-in institutions—the privacy, the encouraged and expected to remain with his wife as much as he can before, during and after the birth of the baby, and the baby is kept mother's side from birth until the mother goes home. This gives the young parents a chance to get acquainted with their baby, to give the baby the warm love and affection a newborn baby instinctively wants and to learn how to keep the baby comfortable and healthy when they go home. Rooming-in is practiced there, no crowding of babies together in the show window where a nurse even though gowned and masked as per script may so easily convey infection from one luckless infant to the other.

Lying-in institutions that still maintain the show window "nursery" for newborn infants, generally employ one means or another to prevent confusion of identities, as no great expense to the dumb customers, name bracelets, records of footprints, tatoo marks and whatnot.

In any event when the hospital authorities hand you a bundle from out there somewhere, don't be too sure it's yours. After all the chances are — well, if everybody has been attentive to his or her job the baby ß probably yours.

Your Bones Are Strong

(Milwaukee Journal)

Bones—206 of them, chief component of lime, phosphorus and water—are amazingly strong.

The one in your upper arm is as durable as oak, though not as thick in diameter, but you couldn't break it, as the boys do, over your knee. You'd have trouble snapping it with both hands. The other one from your hip to knee is even stronger. It will stand a big end end pressure of about 800 pounds.

Suspend such a bone by the ends in the middle and a 180 pound man can hang from each end of it without breaking it.

Bones are every shape; the 14 in your face, the 32 in your jaws; 33 short, hollow ones, like rings, and so on, each one of perfect the delicate spinal cord; more like flattened rods are those in the ribs, which protect lungs and heart in a bony basket.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

When we have nothing else to whistle or sing, we have hope; and throughout life, during every emergency, we can look to the Statue of Faith into the eyes of Hope! And the eyes of Hope are always looking back and forward.

O, Henry, the American short story writer, and W. P. Kinsella, the young Canadian humorist, once collaborated in the writing of a musical comedy called "Let's Steal an Egg." Henry's said to him: "Adams says he got the idea for the plot of the play from a cheque for advance royalties. When did you get the cheque for your share?" Replied O. Henry: "From the hope for a cheque for advance royalties."

Edmund Clerihew Wallace, noted English painter, did a famous thing in writing which he called "Hope." It was a woman clinging to a rock in the sea displaying all hope. Abraham Lincoln's many notable utterances this is one of the most outstanding: "Hope is the best hope of earth." And in the Bible is that famous statement: "Faith is the substance of things hoped for."

Hope, but this hope has many an aid and inspiration about it. Hope does not exist alone. Although it may express finality. There must be faith, anticipation, courage, and self-reliance. We are familiar with the line: "Hope lost, all is lost." But hope cannot be lost until everything else is lost. Even then it should be held tight through the heart.

One of our most definite resolves should be to forever hope on and on—never giving up if the objective is worth while. If I were a physician I would never give up on the last extremity of any of my patients. I once had a secretary who went through a very severe operation. She overheard a attendant say that she could not live throughout the night. She determined she would—and she did turning to her work, and "getting well" by saying to me day! Never surrender that hope of yours!

Plane Safer Than Auto

(St. Catharines Standard)

Apparently the safest place in the world today is in the air.

At least that is the conclusion we have reached after study of statistics referring to both air and motor travel.

This surprising fact came to light as we studied the statistical data included in commercial operations in Canada emerge with a remarkably clean slate.

During the year 1953 Canadian carriers flew more than 1,000,000 passenger miles domestic and international service with only one passenger fatality.

On the other hand the motor vehicle continued to slay and injure themselves and others at a remarkable rate.

Churchill Nearing 80th Birthday Restless, Impish, Unpredictable

By JAMES P. KING

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill approaches his 80th birthday next Tuesday restless, impish and unpredictable.

Age has dealt gently with The Old Man and although he has immediate intention of retiring as prime minister he has not confided it to his closest political associates.

He enjoys keeping them guessing along with everyone else.

Lady Churchill, his doctor and a few intimate cronies have tried to slow him down where the passing years have failed.

They have a difficult patient.

He shuffles when he walks—but then he always did; he slouches and growls a lot—but then he always has; he is stubborn—but he always, was.

KEEPS GETTING ON, TOO

Britons are chuckling over this story going the rounds:

A group of Conservative friends hinted diplomatically to The Old Man that perhaps he should take it easier and give Foreign Secretary Eden his chance now to succeed him as prime minister.

Churchill listened patiently and then grumbled with a twinkle in his eyes:

"Maybe you are right. After all Anthony and I live forever."

Eden is 57.

Churchill looks like an old man and he is an old man, but he doggedly refuses to accept any allowances on his status. He can still hold his own in the daily skirmishing in the House of Commons.

Britain has had only two older prime ministers—both in the 19th century. Lord Palmerston died in office at 81; William Ewart Gladstone formed his last government at 82.

ABLE TO RELAX

Mixed with Churchill's boundless energy is terrific recuperative powers—and a wonderful ability to relax.

Sir Winston likes comfort and good living in the Victorian style. Especially he prides himself as a connoisseur of good food and drink. Champagne is mixed with another brandy afterwards.

Churchill has said: "I have been brought up and trained to have the utmost contempt for people who get drunk." His own drinking capacity is legendary—and he jokes about it himself sometimes.

Only a month ago at the Conservative party conference he stopped in the middle of a long speech to take a sip of water and chuckled:

"It's not that I want a drink of water, it's just to show that I can still do it."

HAPPIEST AT CHARTWELL

While at work at his desk he often has a scotch and soda by his elbow. Churchill is happiest at Chartwell, his country home in Kent where he has had his bedroom arranged for use as an office. Normally a late riser, he usually does a couple of hours of paper work while in bed. A true son of the Victorian era, he still prefers a nightgown to pajamas.

A ritual is a nap after lunch.

"I have found," he explains, "I could add nearly two hours to my working day by going to bed for an hour after luncheon."

Around Chartwell at weekends, he potters in his garden and sits for hours watching the goldfish in an outdoor pool he helped build himself. He still holds a card in the bricklayers union. When in the mood, he gets out his brush and easel for painting in oils.

Churchill still enjoys small, intimate dinner parties with old friends with whom he can reminisce far into the night.

COLORFUL CAREER

He can think back on previous birthday anniversaries that tell a story of a career hard to equal:

1895—His 21st, as an unofficial adventurous observer in Cuba watching the fighting between the Spanish and the Cuban rebels . . .

1899—His 25th, as a prisoner of the Boers in South Africa plotting his escape, which later succeeded . . . .

1906—Campaigning in his first bid for Parliament—and winning . . . .

1915—His 41st, in the trenches in France as second-in-command of a Grenadier Guards unit . . . .

1940—As prime minister hearing the German radio boast "the Luftwaffe celebrated Churchill's birthday by a bombing attack on England."

1944—A family party at 10 Downing street with victory in sight . . . .

1945—A family party at Chartwell as leader of the Opposition . . . .

1953—A combination birthday and bon voyage party on the eve of flying to Bermuda for a conference with President Eisenhower and the French premier . . . .

MAY ACCEPT VILLA

Some time ago a friend offered Churchill a villa in the south of France for his retiring years. That offer still stands.

When the day comes that he retires from politics—if he ever does —the warm climate of the French Riviera is bound to be inviting—along with the scenic landscape appealing to his instincts as a painter. But Chartwell always will be "home."

Churchill is a comparatively wealthy man—money he earned himself largely through his writings rather than any inheritance—and the bulk of it has been accumulated since the war. His memoirs of the Second World War are estimated to have netted him close to $1,000,000.

Churches Groping For Ways to Use Great Strength

BOSTON (AP) — American churches were pictured today as standing at a peak of "tremendous strength"—but as "groping uncertainly for ways to make that power felt in a topsy-turvy age.

Enormous, swift changes in social patterns and "dangerous moral conditions" challenge the effectiveness of the churches, said a key report to the biennial assembly of the National Council of Churches.

Despite Christianity's gains "in institutional strength," there was a disturbing question whether churches are "more or less influential in American life" than they used to be.

The report was for presentation to 2,500 representatives of 30 Protestant and Orthodox denominations assembled here to seek new methods for reinforcing their fraternity of faith.

NEW PROBLEMS

The 6,500-word document on "the state of the church" was prepared by the council's general secretary, Dr. Roy G. Ross, and its associate general secretary, Dr. Roswell P. Barnes.

It generally set forth the new problems confronting Christianity in a modern era described as one of "unprecedented change" in the living habits of people.

The council, representing 35,500,000 Christians of varied traditions, headed into its first working sessions today after hearing a call to tighten ranks and to strengthen common convictions.

"A closer degree of co-operation is the demand of the hour," the council president, Methodist Bishop William C. Marden of Dallas, told an opening service Sunday night. "Nothing else will do."

MARMORA

Reeve I. McCoy And Council Are Acclaimed

MARMORA — Marmora and Lake township council received acclamation on Friday afternoon, at the nomination meeting held in Marmora Town Hall with Thomas J. Bateman, township clerk presiding. Thus Reeve Irwin McCoy goes in for his fifth successive term as reeve in addition to which he was previously councillor for some years. He has the same councillors to preside over in the persons of Arthur Sheridan, John Wilkes, Gordon Jones and George Fox.

Public School trustees elected for a two-year term are George Brown and Leland Richardson, the latter succeeding Louis Hutchman. At the close of the nominations, the ratepayers who were fairly well represented listened to speeches from the elected. Reeve McCoy having thanked his nominators, said he had endeavored to be fair and to see that the taxpayers' money was expended to the best interest of all concerned. He mentioned that the increase in the tax rate for 1953 might have been surprising to some but in this year, 1954, it was lowered too much and so they had to get over the less and not set the rate to cover all expenses. He also told of an agreement made whereby Dr. D. McKechnie, of Tamworth, had consented to financially assist the council in putting a road through his property at Crowe Lake in good shape. The council had been successful in getting the county council to fix the Hastings Road on the Cordova road.

Even briefer than the reeve were the councillors who thanked their proposers and seconders. John Wilkes did mention that the council at recent meetings had had discussions on the matter of fire fighting. A proposal to purchase some equipment to cope with fires in rural areas had not been thought feasible but the matter, was still under consideration. Gordon Jones thought that his five years of service should have been sufficient and that a change should have been made instead of re-electing.

Trustees Jim Brown and L. Richardson also spoke the latter mentioning his new duties would be new to him but he would discharge them to the best of his ability. The meeting now throws open for discussion, Wilbert Jones took the opportunity to touch upon the matter of using crushed rock on the roads. He thought an agreement should be made with the county council to get equipment so as to get worthwhile roads. In reply the reeve observed that different road surfaces to be found in the township called for varied requirements.

Reeve Richie Wells of Marmora village, congratulated the reeve and council on their re-election. He further stressed the need of the township council having good fire protection.

Of similiar opinion was Carl Heath, Marmora village councillor, who also suggested something should be done in the way of repair of the road leading from No. 7 Highway into Tiffin.

The final speaker was Wilbert Jones, chairman of the township school board.

Father of A-Bomb, Enrico Fermi, Dies of Cancer

CHICAGO (AP)—Enrico Fermi, Italian-born physicist whose controlled release of nuclear energy made atomic power a reality, died of cancer Sunday.

The 53-year-old Nobel prize winner first suggested the possibility of an atomic bomb to U.E. government officials. His first atomic pile, activated on the squash court under the west stands of Stagg Field in the University of Chicago in December, 1942, provided the key to manufacture of the A-bomb.

Although Fermi had been ill for some time, his death came as a shock to his physicist associates at Chicago's Institute of Nuclear Studies.

DISLIKED FASCISTS

Fermi, son of a railroad official, was born in Rome Sept. 29, 1901, and studied at the universities of Pisa, Leyden and Gottingen. He became professor of theoretical physics at the University of Rome in 1927.

With fellow scientists, Fermi began a series of experiments in 1934 which resulted in splitting of the uranium atom.

For his leadership in this work, Fermi was awarded the Nobel prize in 1938, and went to Sweden to receive it. The scientist, who had been at odds with Mussolini's Fascist movement, refused to wear a uniform or give the Fascist salute at the ceremony and was criticized in the Italian press. Shortly after that, he took his family, including two children, Nella and Giulio, to the United States where they remained.

PICTON — Mayor Harvey J. McFarland was tendered an acclamation for another term, as Picton's Chief Magistrate, and Councillor Sam Gentile received an acclamation as deputy reeve. Contesting the reeveship are the present Reeve Carmen Scott and Councillor Woodrow Blakely.

There are eight seeking councillors' seats: Brian Dodds, Randolph Clapp, Nesbitt McKibbon, Fred Shannon and Ern Ward, members of 1954 council; Lindley B. Calnan, a former member, William Henley, Jr., and Andrew Jarvis. Six are to be elected.

In Athol township, Reeve H. A. Collver was given an acclamation. Melvin McConnell, Jack Haggerty, Walter Stilmads, David Leavitt, Sam Armstrong, Bruce Jackson, John Whiteford seek the four council seats.

In Hallowell township, Reeve Clifford Wilson, Deputy Reeve Bruce Hyatt, councillors Gordon Parks, Jack May, Clarence Hicks were unopposed.

In North Marysburg Township was another acclamation, reeve, Calvin Hughes: councillors, Kenneth Hicks, Wilfred Kennington, Harry A. Hicks, Ivan K. Emorey, Vernon Striker. Councillors, by acclamation are: Donald Lee, Elmer Collier, Benton Goodman and Wrex Hicks.

Sophiasburg township has an acclamation with Reeve J. K. Welsh being returned along with councillors Leland Doxsee, Blake Richards, William Osborne and Morley Norton.

Natal Day Marked by Two Surprise Parties

Not often do two surprise parties occur on the occasion of one's birthday, but such was the case with Mrs. W. L. Sandercoot, 233 Coleman street, when approximately twenty friends surprised her on Saturday night in honor of her birthday, the following day.

The evening was spend in playing games and a social get-together, followed by the serving of refreshments including a delicious birthday cake.

On Sunday another party was held in her honor at the Royal Hotel Picton where a birthday dinner was served complete with birthday cake.

On both occasions Mrs. Vandervoort was the happy recipient of lovely and useful gifts; on the former occasion, a set of TV dishes, and on the latter, other gifts, for which she most graciously expressed her appreciation and thanks for the kindness shown her.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

COULD ANYONE REALLY APPROVE THIS SITUATION?

What I am About to say to a young woman may shock. I will quote will, I am fairly sure, bring me some fiery scoldings from some of my readers. For it seems that there are always people who fiercely disapprove of my ever having against a marriage between two people of widely different ages.

But can even these, I wonder, quarrel with me because I heartily disapprove the following:

"My mother, who is well over 50 years old, tells me she is going to marry a young man of 28 who has been visiting her out. I have tried to make her see that this can't possibly be a normal relationship, and that it would be impossible for them to have a normal married life together. But she gets angry and says I want to deny her happiness.

"My mother had a happy married life with my father until he died five years ago. She has four children, all of us now unmarried, and she has plenty of money to live on so that she would not be marrying to get someone to support her.

What do you think of this situation, and how can we persuade our mother that she would be making a big mistake if she married this man?"

Now could there really be anyone who would think it wise for a woman in her fifties to marry a young man of 28? Not me!

That's a difference of well over 20 years, and I'm quite certain there isn't the slightest chance in the world that the people of widely removed age groups could have a normal married life together—or any kind of life, for long. It wouldn't be many months before there would be unhappiness and dissatisfaction on one side or the other, if not on both sides, and for any number of reasons.

I rather expect that, since this daughter says her mother is well off, the young man may have an eye on her money. He may even anticipate being supported by her.

Of course, he may be fattered that a woman so much older would find him companionable—if the really does and isn't just flattering herself. But if he actually did become her husband, he would soon regret the whole thing.

I doubt if it will do any good at all for this woman's children to try and argue her out of this ill-advised idea. She, on her side, is probably flattered to be taken seriously—apparently—by a young man. Also, she is undoubtedly very lonely and longing for companionship.

All her children can do, I think, is to tell her quietly that while all of them want her to be happy, they are sure this marriage would not make her so; that, indeed, she would be far from happy in it. They might add that they have too much confidence in her judgment to believe that, once she has really thought it all over very carefully, she would herself consider it a wise step to take. Then they should say no more about it, but leave her to meditate on what they have said.

Finally, each one of them should make as much effort as he can with their mother as much as possible and try, also, to get her to take on some interesting activities outside her home that would fill her mind and her time so that she would not find the days dragging. The fully and happily occupied person is rarely in danger of making a desperately foolish mistake.

Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

THE TATTLE-TALE IS A BORE

Reserve is a quality of charm that should not be under estimated. It is something to be cultivated by the woman who bares her soul and tells her family troubles to anybody who will listen. The most effective personality is the married woman who is constantly talking about the shortcomings of her husband . . . he doesn't take her places . . . he is surly . . . he stays out with the boys. Those to whom she makes these statements feel embarrassed.

What can they say? And why should this woman fancy that these subjects are interesting to other people? Usually the listener feels sorry for the poor guy, married to a woman who hasn't enough self-respect to keep silent about such matters.

Every woman should have a certain degree of reserve, after all, is a by-product of culture, charm and refinement. This does not mean that she should be the touch-me-not type, trailing through life in a state of constant austerity. On the contrary, a cultured woman is always friendly. She is never a depressing influence, as is the one who is continually complaining about something or other.

The charming woman does not dwell on her troubles, her anxieties, her lost illusions. She does not talk about matters that will lower the spirits of those with whom she comes in contact—and that includes the members of her family.

The woman who criticises others may be inclined to criticise you, as well. So be on your guard against the gossiper. What you say in the most innocent manner may be distorted when it is passed along. Women of that type are no help to the peace of your immediate world, the world which can be so serene if you are contented and find existence restful.

Meat Patties

Common to all of us is our love of beef. That is quite a broad statement to make because how many other foods are there that we can say everyone loves. Our meat consumption figures show that Canadians eat a lot of beef and pork but not so much lamb and veal. Statistics also show other cuts, but the butcher has to sell all the cuts and he cannot just specialize in one. And so, the home economists of the Consumer Section want to tell you about a type of meat that many homemakers do not buy—they often, ground meat. In saying that it is a type of meat which is not bought very often we are not quite correct because after all every homemaker is very familiar with ground beef whether it is minced round steak or hamburger. But it is the less common ground meats such as ground pork, ground veal and ground lamb they want to describe to you.

Starting with ground pork — there are two types of ground pork available, sausage meat which is ground pork to which seasonings have been added and plain unseasoned ground pork. Both ground veal and lamb are usually sold unseasoned. There is a very good reason for mentioning the fact that they are unseasoned. All ground meats can be bought in bulk by the pound, but frequently the ground meat sold in butchers' shops has been shaped into patties and sold as meat patties with a dash of paprika on the top. These patties look very attractive and are a good buy, but Mrs. Homemaker should realize that she should add a little salt and pepper, and other seasoning before cooking. The home economists also suggest that these patties may be served with a spicy meat sauce or gravy.

As mentioned, ground meat can be bought in the pound and can be made up into patties. The following is an excellent basic meat patty recipe:

1½ pounds minced lamb, veal or pork
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
½ to ½ teaspoon seasoning
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce (optional)
½ cup finely chopped onion
1 egg
2 tablespoon water.

Mix meat and seasonings. Brown onions in a little fat if desired. Add slightly beaten egg and water. Shape into patties about ½ inch thick. Panfry or Broil.

Season lamb with thyme or basil.

Season veal with thyme, marjoram or savory.

Season pork with marjoram, sage or savory.

If desired patties may be dipped in dry bread crumbs then dipped in 1 egg slightly beaten with 2 tablespoon water, and dipped in additional crumbs.

Panfry — Brown 1 — 1½ min-

Happy Birthday Pie

By Mary Moore

Today is Marianne's twenty-second birthday. Quite likely by the time you get home in some time. Advance preparations went on like mad in our kitchen, while the chief cook sat at her typewriter and tapped away the time. A slick trick if you can work it.

Here's the story: Auntie Sarah is here for her yearly visit, and she being a "born cook" far be it from the professional cook to turn down offers of experienced help she extended. She made a practice blueberry-lemon chiffon pie (by expressed wish of Marianne). We will have fried chicken, winter succotash, "little cabbages" (Brussel sprouts to most) all by request. When birthday dinner time arrives I shall sashay grandly to the table and counter it like a duchess—minus the dainty appetite that goes with royalty, no doubt.

It is the Lemon-Blueberry Chiffon Pie that I am aiming to feature here today. It is our own creation strictly and I hope certain readers who wrote to me earlier in this year for recipe for glazed blueberry pie see this. If if another blueberry and lemon beauty. Guaranteed to help you gain weight, dearies.

LEMON-BLUEBERRY CHIFFON PIE

Quantities are for pie plate 10 1-2 x 1 1-2 inches.

Make individual pie shell using 1 1-4 cups sifted pastry flour, 1-4 teaspoon baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 4 tablespoons each butter and shortening, 2 1-2 tablespoons ice cold water. Roll out, fit on large pie plate making high fluted rim and bake at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 20 minutes. Cool.

CHIFFON FILLING:

In top of double boiler mix together 4 tablespoons cornstarch, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-8 teaspoon salt. Slowly stir in 3 egg yolks, and 1-4 cup cold water until smooth; by blended, then over hot water, stir in 1 1-4 cups boiling water and stir until thick. Cook covered for 5 minutes. Soak 1 1-2 teaspoons gelatin in 3 tablespoons cold water 5 minutes. To the hot mixture add 2 tablespoons butter, 1-3 cup lemon juice and grated rind of 2 lemons and cook covered 3 minutes longer. Remove from heat and stir in soaked gelatin. Cover and let stand while you make Meringue: Beat the 3 leftover egg whites until they will cling to bowl, then gradually add 1-4 cup sugar until mixture will stand in soft but distinct peaks. Pour the hot lemon mixture, a spoonful at a time, into the meringue, folding it in gradually until evenly mixed. Fold in 1 cup barely thawed frozen large blueberries. For fun we picked out 22 more blueberries and made a "cake" of them around the edge—instead of candles, as they would be a bit of a hindrance. This should stand about 5 minutes before pouring into baked and cooled pie shell. Let stand to cool to room temperature before putting into refrigerator to chill thoroughly before you attempt to cut it.

I'll wager that other fruits and with orange and lime juice for the chiffon part in the flavor future and let you know if it's worth talking about. The present one certainly is.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

WHEN GIFT IS SENT AFTER THE WEDDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A very dear friend of mine was married three months ago. At the time I was very ill in the hospital, not able even to plan to send her a wedding present. Now I am well, and my husband and I would like to send the wedding present. I know she very much wants a medium-size silver tray, and we are giving her one. I would also like to have it monogrammed. Should I order the initials I would have ordered before her marriage, or her married initials? (If the latter, please give me an example.)

Also my husband insists that the present sent now should be addressed to both the bride and the groom, but I think it should be addressed to the bride only, as I would have addressed it to the bride-to-be if we had sent the gift before the marriage. Please advise about this. — F.M.

You should use the bride's married initials for the monogram on this present to be given after the marriage has taken place. For example, say the bride's name was Dorothy Smith and she married James Brown; then the initials you would order are J. B. You might if you wish, give her the tray unmarked, and ask her about her preference as to the style of marking. She may prefer Script or a block letter, plain or shaded, or whatever style was used on her other silver. She may prefer only the initial of her married surname, And she may prefer only the initial of her married surname, B, or she may prefera D B, omitting the initial of her maiden surname.)

Your husband is right . . . the present should now (after the wedding) be addressed to the bride and the groom.

SHE SHOULD BUY THE FOUR TICKETS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In January my school (I'm a senior) is having its annual dance, and each senior is allowed to invite a guest. I have asked a boy from out-of-town, whom I know very well indeed, and I think that because I must ask him if he would like to have me invite a friend of his, whom I also know very well, and get a "date" for this friend. Of course I know that I must pay for the two tickets, for my date and myself. But if I do arrange for the double date, must I also buy the tickets for the other couple, who are his friends as well as mine? — Helen M.

By arranging this foursome, you will indicate that you are to be the hostess. Therefore, as hostess, it is your obligation to pay for all four tickets.

STOP stalling . . . keep going!

NEW ESSO EXTRA WINTER GASOLINE

prevents carburetor icing and gas line freezing

Does your car stall when idling? Research now proves a major cause of this is ice in the carburetor and gas line! Yes, ice! Even at above-freezing temperatures—in fact up to 55°F—ice forms. To overcome this, Imperial Oil developed NEW Esso Extra with special anti-icing qualities that prevent stalling. This new gasoline also prevents gas line freezing . . . you no longer need to add remedies to the gas tank.

If you stall, don't blame your engine until you try new ESSO EXTRA

NEW ESSO EXTRA PREVENTS STALLING DUE TO CARBURETOR ICING

As you start your car, air is sucked through the carburetor and gasoline enters the air stream. As the gasoline evaporates, it chills the carburetor. With other gasolines moisture in the air condenses on this chilled metal and freezes into ice, if the humidity is high and the temperature between 55° and 28°F. When idling, the ice forms a bridge between throttle plate and carburetor wall, the flow of the fuel mixture (see arrow, left) is stopped . . . the car stalls. New Esso Extra prevents the formation of ice from the moisture in the air. Provided your car has no mechanical defects that cause stalls, you get smooth, trouble-free performance.

Was Sheppard Badly Injured When Wife Killed?

By RELMAN MORIN

CLEVELAND (AP)—How badly was Samuel H. Sheppard injured in the—dark hours when his wife, Marilyn, was savagely beaten to death?

A physician who examined the osteopath some hours after the crime was called to testify today on this point, possibly of vital importance in Sheppard's trial on a charge of murder.

Dr. Richard E. Hexter, the examining physician, was scheduled as the first witness as the trial went into its seventh week.

NECK INJURED

The state charges Sheppard killed his wife because of his relations with other women.

Sheppard says a marauder bludgeoned her while she lay in bed some time after 12:30 the morning of July 4.

He says her cries wakened him, and that he grappled with a "bushy haired" man, who quickly struck him down. Regaining his senses, Sheppard said, he caught up with the killer outside the house, and was knocked unconscious a second time.

One of his brothers, also an osteopath, told police Sheppard's neck and face were injured in the struggle. During the early stages of the case, Sheppard wore a foil collar to support his neck.

REFLEX ABSENT

Hexter says he made tests to determine whether Sheppard's muscular reflexes had been affected. He testified that the left abdominal reflex was absent.

Steven Sheppard, who first attended his brother, said at one time he was afraid Sheppard's spine had been injured.

Body of Girl Found in Car Mired in Mud

SHELBURNE (CP)—The body of an asphyxiated girl and her unconscious escort were found Sunday in a car parked just off a sideroad three miles from here. The car was mired in mud.

The girl was Fern Hazel Baird, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norton Baird of Mulmur township. The man, Frank Edward Harrison, 24 of Shelburne, was still unconscious late Sunday night in hospital at Orangeville, 80 miles southeast of here.

They were discovered by David Harbison and William Foster, district farmers, who were walking in the district.

Police said Miss Baird and Henderson were with Jerry Allen, 17, of Maple Valley, when the car became mired in the mud. The three hitchhiked to Shelburne to get a tow truck.

Allen and Henderson returned with the garageman in the car, but the wrecker was unable to get the car out of the mud. Allen returned with the tow truck to Shelburne.

Meanwhile, Miss Baird hitched a ride back to the car. She and Harrison had closed the car windows and left the motor running, police said. Fumes from the old car's motor filtered in, causing the girl's death.

Veteran Halifax Newspaper Man, J. L. Hickey, Dies

HALIFAX (CP) — James L. Hickey, 84, the newspaper man who scored world beats on the Titanic disaster and the Halifax explosion, died in hospital here Sunday.

He was correspondent for the New York Times in 1912 when the liner Titanic struck an iceberg on her maiden voyage in the Atlantic. He got the first casualty list from an incoming ship and flashed it to his paper.

In the disastrous Halifax explosion of 1917 Mr. Hickey was among the first to get his reports to world news centres over patched-up telegraph facilities. He was news editor of the Halifax Chronicle during the explosion.

Mr. Hickey began his newspaper career in the business office of the old Morning Chronicle but soon switched to the editorial staff. The paper later became the Halifax Chronicle. He was a reporter for years and retired as news editor in the late 1920s.

He got the first casualty list and up to last year was a staff member of the Halifax Mail-Star.

He was a sports fan and followed harness racing especially.

Two daughters and two sons survive: Miss May at home and Sister Marie Therese of the Sisters of Charity; Parker T. and James of Halifax.

Easy-to-find clue to a man's character!

Among today's most private papers are certain documents that can tell you things about him which you might not otherwise learn for some time.

These documents are his life insurance policies. And they indicate, for instance, that the man who owns them probably is thrifty, foresighted and realistic.

Here too is quite reliable evidence that he is a good provider — one who is genuinely concerned about his family's future welfare. And this, in turn, suggests that he is considerate of others.

Chances are he is also a dependable worker. For his ownership of life insurance demonstrates readiness to assume responsibility — an attitude that helps a man in any job.

Moreover, if he is also using life insurance to build income for his later years, you can bet he's the self-reliant type. You won't find him depending on relatives or charity to do what he can do for himself!

All in all, he's probably like most life insurance policyholders in every community — a really solid citizen!

Grey Cup Finds 'Little Home In West' As Eskys Edge Larks In Big Upset

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

"THE BREAKS"

In the midst of the shouting and the tumult, the cheering and the pageantry that are part of pre-game Grey Cup exhilarations, the blokes who do the predicting forget one fellow. He is an intangible cuss who has the responsibilities for more upsets than an old-fashioned Hallowe'en Chic Sales raiding party.

He is "Mr Breaks," an ornery sidewinder, who can cuss you and your activities with one foul sweep, or a likeable, lovable chap who can lift you to the heights with a twirk of a finger.

While the boys in the back room, the statisticians and plain "homers" were laying reams of folding money to the extent of four to one on the Montreal Alouettes, this "breaks" kid sat in the shadows—and laughed. And laughed loud.

He placed an eye on Chuck Hunsinger, one of the best pigskin packagers in Canada, and a lot of the United States, gazzled a beaker of Eskimo Ice like and murmured, "this you're it." He flipped another glance at Jackie Parker, who was hobbling more or less with a chipped bone in his ankle, and hissed gently, "Stick around son, you're going places for these Eskys today." You know the rest.

This breaks so-and-so not only put the hex on Hunsinger, but severed horn medal atop his pineapple. For Hunsy must be judged the goat of the game as much as Parker the halo'd hero when he grabbed the Alouette star's fumble as the Larks were poised for the touchdown that would have put the final result beyond all doubt.

There are many who will say the Alouettes were the better team. We'll go along with that on a seasonal record performance, but there were a helluva lot of people who sold this fighting Eskimo team short. Right-up-to-the-minute experts were rudely and heavily jolted out of their opinions in the first five minutes of the game when the western club barged through, on the ground—for five first downs and a touchdown.

As Pete, the corner grocery man, was wont to say in the fall, "Howja like them apples?"

Some 54,000 eyebrows lifted in what could be called amazement, and in thousands of homes, that toe in the drink on the kitchen table was mulled through lack of attention in an opening five minutes that saw the underdog Eskys roar through on that mentioned touchdown.

Triumphant Eskimo supporters are chortling "That Little Grey Cup Has Come West," which perhaps is a good thing for the game. The western victory maintained the old pewterware tradition that one final in five is an upset, so next year the bookies can back the favorite with some degree of confidence.

It should be nice to read what a flock of American sports writers, some of whom never saw Canadian football and were tickled pelz of the powers-that-be, while we of the same ilk in Ontario either paid them through the intermediary source or sat the television fifty-yard line, write about the classic. Not that the "sticks sports editors and staffs" were snubbed. They were asked to send in their requirements—which were promptly pigeon-holed and forgotten. Mebbe we'll get one for next year's classic, if it is held in Regina, and they get around to it. We are not exactly the forgotten people. A well known distillery shoved around all kinds of handouts—on paper, that is—wanting publicity for their trophy generosity as far as football is concerned, so quite reams of publicity goes through the Ontario "sticks" prior to the game—and during the season. No, definitely we are not forgotten—except when the ducats are being handed out.

CLOSE ONE:

The injury-sickness riddled Memos bowed to the Cornwall Colts down east on Sunday when the senior "B" group went through one of its weakest week-ends. The Smithers nets dropped a 7-5 decision in a battle that approached a brawl, with tempers flaring, fists flying and twenty-two penalties handed out by officials. The Memos were short Peter Jones, Arnie Dyson and Keith MacDonald through injuries with Jake Wade and Hub Macy confined to sick beds.

The game was practically lost at the end of the first period when Cornwall slammed in three goals in 38 seconds. The Memos fought back hard and cut the margin to a pair before the final whistle ended. "Nabber" Day scored a pair and threw another into the net but an official claimed he blew a whistle for a penalty and the "Nab" was robbed.

The Memos trek to Kingston tonight and it is not likely any of the injured and sick will make the journey. The Goodyears and Whitby turned on something or other Saturday night, splitting 22 goals in an overtime 11-11 tie. Clinton Comets came through with a pair of week-end victories defeating Cornwall 7-4 and edging Whitby 6-5 in overtime on Sunday. The clubs are bunched closely with only five points separating the first and sixth teams.

Chuck Hunsinger's Bad Pass, Jackie Parker's 95-Yard Run Give Westerners Point Win

Edmonton Eskimos, pilied in public, humiliated in print, and underestimated all down the line, gave Western Canada its second Grey Cup in postwar years Saturday with an almost incredible 26-25 decision over Montreal's great Alouettes.

In what was the most exciting, most heart-throbbing, most contentious and fumblingest game of them all, the indomitable Eskimos amazed a Varsity Stadium audience of 27,341 fans and countless million TV watchers with a two-touchdown rally in the last eight minutes.

Jackie Parker, who runs so neatly as a Bonney bum dreams, created Canada's greatest post-war football upset after a 95-yard gallop with an Alouette "fumble" at the score at 25-25. Large Robert Dean, playing his convert alley for the extra point that won it.

Blitzing crisply from their confusing split-T alignment in the first quarter, Eskimos shocked the eastern football world with an early touchdown lead, lost it, picked it back up in the third and 18-14 at half time.

Then another pickup appeared—as confirmed when Joey Pal grabbed a 13-yard touchdown pass to Rollie Ala at 25-14 and halfway through the final quarter. But the Eskimos, who never gave up on themselves, summoned the strength from their underdog role drive to reduce the spread, and to set up Parker's winning score.

Earl Lindley, Montreal defensive force for Edmonton, Serhale Toppazzini, Red O'Quinn's backer, Chuck Hunsinger and Joey Pal were Eskimo TD cheers.

It was a game dedicated to fumbles. Each side lost control of the ball seven times, but whereas the Eskx recovered five of their errors, the unlucky Alouettes lost six of theirs.

Their alert ball-hawking undoubtedly contributed more to the Edmonton victory than anything they accomplished on the pass, pass and rush departments.

The hapless Alouettes, supreme rulers of Eastern football, suffered the agonies of their most jittery game of the season. Despite the awesome crunching of Edmonton's ground attack, Alouettes had a slight advantage in rushing, a tremendous edge in passing, and a comfortable edge in the punt, pass and rush departments.

The ugly Alouettes, supreme rulers of Eastern football, suffered the agonies of their most jittery game of the season. Despite the awesome crunching of Edmonton's ground attack, Alouettes had a slight advantage in rushing, a tremendous edge in passing, and a comfortable edge in the punt, pass and rush departments.

In short, the red-sweatered crew only needed to put the ball in the air to prove conclusively what everyone in the East said about them—that they were the greatest team in Canadian history.

Chuck Hunsinger, until the movies show differently, will have to wear the goat horns for 1954. It was his wild pass that Parker retrieved for his lengthy touchdown gallop.

The former Chicago Bear was called for a running play, on first down at the Edmonton 10, with less than three minutes to go. Trapped, he suddenly tried to pass to a teammate. His aim was poor. The ball went forward a few yards, fell to the ground, where Parker nailed it.

It may become the most debatable play of the years. Was it a fumble? Was it a screen pass? Officials ruled it wasn't the latter, otherwise play would have been dead when the ball hit the turf.

Hunsinger wasn't alone in the gut category. There was the time Larry Grigg grabbed a kick-off almost on the touchline when he could have let it roll out for a 15-yard deadline penalty; there was the touchdown pass Red O'Quinn dropped while on his knees in the end zone, and another fumble he made after receiving a pass on the Edmonton 37 from where Tex Coulter could have kicked the tying point.

Despite the late-game misfortunes, O'Quinn was the most tremendous athlete the Alouettes showed. Of the 21 passes Sam Etcheverry completed in 31 tries, O'Quinn hauled in 11 for 290 yards and two touchdowns.

In the first quarter, he made an overhead, one-handed catch of a short pass, then outran three Eskimo pursuers for a touchdown to complete the 90-yard play.

That tied the score at 6-6, Edmonton having rolled 77 yards from the opening kickoff, for a touchdown in 13 plays. Rollie Miles, who appeared to be well-trapped, finally got off a four-yard pass to Earl Lindley in the end zone after Bob Dean, in a bone-crushing peel-back block at Herb Trawick.

Edmonton moved from the second kickoff for another score, going 86 yards this time in 19 plays, with Faloney carrying over from the one-yard line.

Dean's field goal, kicked from an angle at the 37-yard line, made it 14-6 in the second quarter, but Etcheverry directed the Larks 101 yards in 13 plays, hitting O'Quinn just outside the goal line for Red's second TD.

Montreal's drive to move a front, carried 110 yards, starting with Bill Bewley's 30-yard return of a punt he took on his goalline. Eskimos plays later, Hunsinger, from the eight-yard line, ran wide to his right, where fine blocking by Tex Coulter, O'Quinn and Ray Poole gave him access to the corner goal area.

Alouettes might have locked it up beyond doubt deep in the third quarter when Oscar Kruger ran Poole's field attempt which was wide. Kruger was hit hard, fumbled, and Trawick recovered to run 10 yards for a touchdown. There was a quick whistle, however, and the play was wiped out.

Joey Pal made it 25-14 early in the final quarter when he made one of his patented catches on a play from the 15-yard line. Sam the Rifle hit him in full flight just outside the goalline.

It was from another Montreal threat that the Eskimos rebounded for Lippman's touchdown. Bruce Coulter intercepted a pass intended for Rollie Prather and ran it to the 18. Weekley crashed eight, Bewley ripped off 38, before the drive stalled on the Edmonton 30. A last-down pass in the end zone bounced off O'Quinn's chest.

Faloney took over on his 25. Lippman tore through for 22, Faloney for 10, McWhinney took a pass for 14, Parker ambleed 24 wide to his right and Lippman charged through a gap 15 yards for the score.

Montreal was hammering at the door again, on the Edmonton 10, when Hunsinger made his fatal toss.

The Als weren't finished, even with less than two minutes to go. The Rifle fired at his favorite target O'Quinn for 26 yards, then hit a talented redhead for 18 more. This time the Wake Forest luminary was hurt when tackled and he dropped the ball. That was on the Edmonton 16, a sure single distance for Coulter if a touchdown drive stalled. But it was Edmonton's ball, with less than two minutes to go. Faloney kicked as the minute flag went up. Save was still pitching as the game ended.

Varsity Edges Mustangs 9-8 To Annex College Grid Title

LONDON — The versatility of, halfback Steve Oneschuk, playing his final game of college football, carried University of Toronto Blues to their first senior championship since 1951 here Saturday.

Oneschuk booted a 40-yard field goal, scored a touchdown on a five-yard plunge and added the convert as Blues dethroned University of Western Ontario Mustangs, 9-8, before 8,000 in Little Memorial Stadium.

It was the first win for a Varsity team here since 1936, a span that had covered 13 games before yesterday's squeaker. It also brought the Yates Trophy back to Toronto for the third time since 1945 when the league resumed activity after the war interval.

Mustangs produced their customary late-game rally before relinquishing the title, but this time their luck ran out.

A pair of unsuccessful field goal attempts in the third quarter by college football's leading scorer, Gino Fracas, represented the difference in the teams on a damp, snowy afternoon. That, and a wild lateral thrown by Mustang fullback Ralph Simmons deep in Toronto territory in the final five minutes, helped preserve the Blues' precious margin.

The one point by which Blues prevailed, incidentally, was the only semblance of superiority shown by either team in three meetings this season. They had tied, 9-9, and 12-12, in their two games during the schedule.

Mustangs dominated along the ground Saturday, but they could not match Oneschuk's leading, if they had, they would have claimed their eighth championship in 10 years.

Oneschuk, top draft choice last year of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, gave Blues a 3-0 lead in the first quarter with a 40-yard three-pointer that was a beauty. He booted it from 15 yards in from the sideline and the ball angled through the posts.

Mustangs rolled 73 yards along the ground in the second quarter for a converted touchdown that put them in front at half time, 8-3.

Quarterback John Girvin carried one-yard around right end for the major, after Simmons, Don Getty, Fracas and Bill Briton had powered the drive, Fracas added the point-after.

Simmons, Toronto Parkdale grad, was a brilliant line-crasher in a Western offense that gained 241 yards in rushing, compared to 163 for Varsity. The 190-pound fullback smacked through the line for 120 yards on 20 carries and emerged as the outstanding performer for the Wild Hosers.

Remember When

Winnipeg Blue Bombers edged Ottawa Rough Riders 18-16 in the Grey Cup final at Toronto 13 years ago today, winning their third Canadian rugby football championship since 1933. Ches McCance supplied the victory margin in 1941 by kicking a 38-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Puts Franchise Up for Lease

GALT, Nov. 29. — The directors of the G&N Baseball Association are putting the local Intercounty Senior franchise up for lease. An advertisement to this effect will be published in newspapers throughout the province, secretary Ernie Reeves said yesterday.

The move was decided upon at a meeting this week after Mike Pontarelli and Jack Trowbridge of Chicago, operators of the franchise last season, failed to reply to letters and telegrams asking their plans for the 1955 season. Their silence is interpreted as a lack of interest by GBA officials, Reeves said.

US Tennis Hopes Buoyed by Wins

MELBOURNE, (AP) — United States' hopes of regaining the Davis Cup this year were buoyed Saturday as Vic Seixas, Tony Trabert and Hamilton Richardson all played brilliantly in reaching the quarter-finals of the Victorian tennis championships.

Seixas, the U.S. champion from Philadelphia, crushed Neale Fraser, Australian southpaw, 8-6, 6-1, 8-6. Trabert, former U.S. titleholder from Cincinnati, fought two set points in the third set to overcome Ashley Cooper, flashy Australian teen-ager, 6-4, 6-4, 10-8. Richardson, a southerner from Baton Rouge, La., disposed of Aussie George Worthington, 6-2, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3.

Injury-Riddled Memos In Third Place; Drop 7-5 Verdict To Cornwall

Three-Goals in 38 Seconds Put Game on 'Ice' for Colts; Memos Play Five Men Short

In a boisterous battle featured by two brawls and a minor blow-off the injury-riddled Memos bowed to the Cornwall Colts Saturday night by a 7-5 score.

The Memos were minus the services of Jake Wade and Hub Macy through sickness with Peter Jones, Keith MacDonald and Arnie Dugan sidelined with injuries.

Three goals in 38 seconds near the end of the first period practically wrapped up the game for the Colts although the Memos battled desperately over the rest of the route to outscore Cornwall 4-3. Two men were in durance vile when the Colts struck swiftly for their trio of markers.

ROUGH TILT

The game was rough and tough with 22 penalties handed out by Referees Ching MacDonald and G. Francne, the teams splitting the sentences. "Red" Doran drew a misconduct through arguing too strenuously over an official decision.

Connelly and Ed Duncan each drew majors for fighting while in another fistcuff exchange Ted DeGray and Bingley got the gate, the latter drawing a major. Doug Day and Gould also staged a private battle of their own, both getting the two-minute gate.

The Memos dressed only twelve men but they battled to the last ditch before a rabid home-town crowd. Both Devanney and Barclay in the respective nets came up with fine performances especially the Cornwall goalie in the last minute when the Memos went all-out to snatch a victory. Barclay stood out in the second period when the Memos outscored the homesters two to one.

Wobbey Day and Vern Goyer paced the Memos with two goals each with "Red" Doran clicking for the fifth. The Duncan twins each drew a pair of assists, with Davey Jones and Muckler also getting helpers.

TOPS FOR COLTS

Payette was top goal-getter for Cornwall with two while Belmore, Henri, Savard, Batten and Julien got the rest. Mario was credited with three assists.

Vern Goyer, Johnny Muckler and Bob Wilson, who double-dated on the Memos' defence, came through with outstanding efforts with Wilson and Muckler driving in for dangerous forays.

Belmore slung home the first goal of the game after 12 minutes of play in the first period, then Bethel and DeGray got penalties within seconds of each other with Connelly going along for the ride.

Then the Colts struck and Savard, Batten and Henri slammed the puck home within 38 seconds to give the Colts a four-goal lead. "Nobber" Day got one back on a play with Erwin Duncan just before the period ended.

The Memos flashed back in the second period after Payette had made it 5-1 after four minutes on a pass from Mario. Day scored his second marker in a drive with Edwin Duncan and five minutes later Goyer went through unassisted to make the count 5-3.

WHITTLES MARGIN

Julien scored after ten seconds of play in the third heat, then "Red" Doran teamed with Davey Jones and Johnny Muckler for the Memos' second goal. Payette got that one back a minute later on a three-way drive with Mario and Julien, and Vern Goyer whittled the margin to two goals with twelve seconds to go on assists from the Duncan twins.

The teams:

Belleville—Goal, Barclay; defence, Goyer, Wilson, Muckler; forwards, Ed. Duncan, Erwin Duncan, Day, Davey Jones, DeGray, Hull, Doran, Bethel.

Cornwall—Goal, Devanney; defence, Marshall, Bingley; centre, Savard; wings, Connelly, Batten; subs, Henri, Morris, Belmore, O'Brien, Mario, Payette, Durston, Gould, Julien.

Charge Giardello On Six Counts

PHILADELPHIA, (AP) — Joey Giardello, Philadelphia contender for the middleweight boxing title was arrested Saturday on six charges resulting from what police called a riotous assault at a gas station a month ago.

Specifically, Giardello was charged with inciting a riot, riot aggravated assault and battery larceny by trick, false pretence and conspiracy to commit unlawful acts.

Arrested with the boxer were Victor Mariani, 24, and Joseph Bonadies, 24.

Police said the three men smashed up a gas station operated by Frank Gallo in south Philadelphia.

Inspector John Driscoll said Giardello and his pals made two trips to the station on Oct. 29-30. On the first they allegedly punched and kicked the attendant, Oliver Short, who tossed a water bucket at one of the attackers.

STRATFORD (CP) — James Stewart, 40, of nearby St. Pauls was thrown 20 feet Friday when his tractor collided with a truck and overturned. He was brought to hospital with head injuries.

Garry Goyer netted one goal for the Hawks and set up another in their win while Don Moore, Ivo Regent and Gord Vaughan also scored and Colligan drew one helper. Hull and Asselline hit the hemp in defeat with Waite and Valcamp assisting.

John Morgan from Bob Langseer was the scoring play for Red Wings with Jim Potts taking a pass from Keller to give the Bruins the tie.

Don Dolan and Jerry Mahoney officiated.

Three Hoping To Start New Life in Canada

VANCOUVER (CP) — Three young Yugoslav seamen are hoping to start a new life in Canada after jumping their ship here.

Screcko Boric, a pink-cheeked 18-year-old, walked down the gangway of the Yugoslav ship Bosnia and leisurely strolled up Granville street, two years after he had told his family he might not see Jhsin again.

On the street he met shipmate Bacica Celestin, 19, farther from the ship than the crew were allowed.

"Have you left, too" cried Boric. And when Celestin nodded assent, the pair fled together.

FOREST REFUGE

Unknown to them a third crew member, Boro Andjelkovic, 22, was heading for New Westminster, 12 miles east of downtown Vancouver.

While they were still aboard the Bosnia a peppery expatriate Yugoslav, David Ristich, had gone aboard the ship out of curiosity. He had sized up the situation and whispered an offer of help.

All three had planned for more than two years to jump the ship at a favorable opportunity, but had kept their secret from one another.

After the ship had sailed Ristic telephoned Ristich at his deli/tavern in downtown Vancouver. Ristich promptly took the escapees in low, dressed them in Canadian-cut clothes and persuaded them to turn themselves in to immigration authorities.

The trio were later released on their own recognizance while the officials began pondering their fate —deportation or political asylum.

The Barons blanked the Flyers 7-0 while the Hornets racked up a 5-3 triumph over the Indians in N.E. Interdepartment hockey over the week-end.

Pucanik and Brant led the Barons' attack, the former netting two goals and one assist while Brant added a pair of helpers to his lone marker. Woodley, Kirkconnell, Weatherall and Hatfield completed the scoring with MacDonald getting two assists.

Philp and Souley each countered two goals in the Hornets' victory with James netting the odd one. Creegan, Smith and Locke had the assists each with Souley getting one. J. Semark with two and Little scored in defeat with helpers to Thrasher and Yorke.

From the lone shieling on the misty island
Mountains divide us, and the waste of seas.
Yet still the blood is strong, the heart is Highland,

Early 17th century muff mull made of ram's horn. Many Scottish settlers brought similar heirlooms to their new homes in Canada; to cherish as a link with the homeland.

Dow BREWERY LIMITED

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

An opening one-bidder has no business or reason to make a mess of his second bid. And the least excuse for it is when his suit has been assisted by his partner.

Culbertson divides the hand of an opening one-bidder into four zones: Minimum, intermediate, game, slam. Goren divides it into four ranges: minimum, good, very good, rock crusher.

The intermediate (or good) hand has slightly more than a minnie. The game zone (or very good) hand has enough for a probable game in combination with what a responding partner has shown.

With Culbertson, such a game zone hand has a revalued count of seven winners with its quota of honor tricks. With Goren it has a revalued count of 20 points or more, sometimes only 19.

If such a hand opens with a bid of one in a major suit, suppose partner responds with a single raise assist. The second bid by the opener is an immediate jump to game in that suit. All agree.

Accordin' to Gordon, an opening one bidder should save five tricks or more among other basic values. If partner responds with a single raise assist, opener simply counts his total number of tricks.

If opener has seven tricks and the agreed trump suit is a major, an immediate jump to game in that suit is called for in his second bid.

Open with one heart when you have this south hand:

♠ A J 3
♥ A Q J 9 5 2
♦ K 7

If your north partner responds with a single raise assist, your heart game second bid is as plain as you could ask for. Simply jump at once to the game call of four hearts.

My future series will give you detailed reasons for this. Maybe you already know why from my simple rules. But you may dig it out from the more amazing calculations used in other_systems.

If you know, I'll be dumfounded if it matters how you learned.

Theatre Diary for November

By Robert Tanner

(By ROBERT TANNER)

After two short years of existence, the Stratford Shakespearean Festival appears to have reached the point where it no longer needs to rely on famous actors to draw its audience, to judge by the recent announcement by Dr. Tyrone Guthrie of its plans for 1955. For next season's presentation of six Shakespeare's best known plays, Julius Caesar and the Merchant of Venice have been chosen, together with a few repeat performances of this year's startling production of Oedipus Rex. Only one non-Canadian actor has been invited for the 1955 season, Frederick Valk, a character actor better known in Britain and Europe than on this side of the Atlantic. Mr. Valk, who is Czech by birth, will play the part of Shylock, a part that has already won him much acclaim. Tyrone Guthrie's wife, Frances Hyland, whose Isabella in Measure for Measure was one of the features of Stratford 1954.

CANADIAN NEWCOMER

A Canadian newcomer to the Festival will be Lorne Green in the part of Brutus, with Lloyd Bochner playing Cassius and Douglas Campbell, Mark Anthony. Douglas Campbell, whose presentation of Saint Joan is still fascinating Ontario audiences, will play the parts of Caesa in Julius Caesar and the title role in Oedipus, taking over from James Mason who took the part this year. Kleaver Sicard, whose performances at earlier festivals have been such a delight will repeat her role of Jocasta in Oedipus, as well as appearing in one of the two female roles in Julius Caesar.

Along with such a popular and interesting dramatic program, the Festival authorities are promising at least one new production, entitled the Stratford Music Festival, will be under the direction of orchestra conductor and composer Louis Applebaum, and will feature the new Hart House Orchestra conducted by Boyd Neal, dean of the Royal Conservatory of Music. Other famous artists who will be heard include Elizabeth Swartzkopf, soprano and Isaac Stern, violinist. The concerts will probably take place in one of the Stratford movie theatres.

BIG PROFIT

Another recent announcement that the 1954 Festival came up with the tidy profit of $50,000, almost doubling the budget figure on which the authorities were planning. A total audience in excess of 123,000 people paid close to $400,000 for their tickets. At the end of the season a working capital of more than $150,000 is available to finance the next festival. Thus after only two annual campaigns to collect working funds, as well as to pay for the theatre and all the equipment and properties pertaining thereto, the Shakespearian Festival has set itself on a self-supporting basis, a fact which pays tribute both to the business acumen and artistic foresight of its organizers.

Massey-Harris Plant Resumes Operations

TORONTO (CP) — The huge Massey-Harris-Ferguson plant in Toronto's west end was scheduled to resume manufacturing today after 80 days of strike-enforced idleness.

About 300 workers were to be the first of 2,500 employees called back on the job. The remainder will be called in as production lines are set up.

The employees members of the United Auto Workers Union (CIO-CCL) voted Sunday to accept compromise proposals put forth Thursday to end the strike. They went on strike Sept. 10 to enforce demands for a 25-cent-an-hour wage increase.

The proposals, accepted by 81 per cent of the 2,100 who voted Sunday, will add $54,000 to the company's annual wage bill.

Included are a five-cent-an-hour increase for skilled workers and a ten-cent increase for laborers. Basic wage at the farm implement mart is $1.89 an hour. Only about 500 employees will get the increases.

HERE THE LINE

One union spokesman said, that while the settlement may not be significant in terms of basic increases, "it is a breakthrough in the company's hard-line policy."

Besides the pay increases, the company agreed to pay out about $68,000 in special benefits. These include increased health insurance premiums and vacation pay credits for the 11 weeks of the strike. Seniority and other privileges have also included.

The terms were similar to those the company offered after the strike started.

Two attempts at settlement were rejected during the strike. Employees turned down a company offer of the five-cent increase for clerks and drivers and another offer by the company to pay employees' share of health insurance for one month.

GROUP HIRED FIRM

The second rejection was decided by secret ballot, held after a group of strikers hired a private firm to poll members on the subject of a secret vote.

In leaving their jobs, the employees repudiated action of the union has been defeated—and their attempt to modify seniority and job security provisions has been defeated," said Paul Siren, one of the union's chief negotiators.

The settlement came after a meeting Thursday between union and company officials and Louis Fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer. He announced then that a tentative agreement had been signed but that it was subject to the vote, taken Sunday.

SUES JOAN BLONDELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Bobby Clark and actress Joan Blondell for $12,000, contending he lent that amount to her in 1948 and has not been repaid by her. The action came to light Friday when state Supreme Court justice Henry C. Leyser reserved decision on a motion by Clark to examine Miss Blondell under oath regarding the alleged loan. Miss Blondell entered a general denial.

Squire of 'People Are Funny' Is Millionaire in Own Right

By BO ETHOMAR

HOLLYWOOD — Here's a town with many neurotic, rich people, it's a pleasure to meet a happy millionaire.

Such a man is round - faced, piccadilly - linkleier, squire of NBC-TV's "People Are Funny." He is a millionaire and not at all ashamed of it.

It wasn't radio and TV that brought him the money, although it has earned big money.

"In the past 10 years, I have made over a million bucks in half in salary," he says. "But if I tried to live on that money alone, I would be just about breaking even. There's an outfit called the bureau of internal revenue that takes care of most of that. The only way a person can keep money is to invest in capital gains."

He found that out in 1940, when building that had 22 weekly shows on six radio stations in San Francisco and was earning $75,000 a year. He made his first big investment in an apartment house.

After that he came to Hollywood and struck it rich with radio's Jack Benny, whose top house party shows. He continued stocking his salary away in investment.

Now's he's a virtual tycoon.

He has money in everything from a bowling alley, department store, photo finishing firm and light merchandising to oil wells and railroads. His latest venture is in a syndicate that plans to plant 1,000,000 acres of Australian land in rice.

good characterizations by Florence Henderson, Emile Meyer, Pat Waltz, Chuck Connors and Regis Toomey. Gary Merrill's newspaper night club entertainer — and pastry for the underworld — is a hilarious impersonation of a hard-boiled dame. Her duties, which call for the start of antiseptic version of the old strip tease.

73TH BIRTHDAY

ROSSMORE. — Congratulations to Mr. Charles Reddick, who recently celebrated his 78th birthday. The occasion was marked by a family party, who spent an enjoyable evening playing cards. A turkey supper delighted all and brought the evening to a close. The guest of honor received many gifts and best wishes for health and more birthdays in the future.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Frank Belnap, who recently celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary. A dinner party was held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. D. Finkle in Belleville, where they enjoyed the company of the members of their family.

Mrs. Root entertained the weekly euchre at her home on Wednesday night. Four tables were at play. The lone ladies went to Mrs. Pollitt, and Mrs. C. Reddick. Men's prizes to F. Belnap and E. Anderson. Lone hands prize was won by J. Pollitt.

Mrs. D. Reddick entertained the afternoon euchre at her home on Tuesday afternoon. Three tables were at play and prizes awarded according to score.

Little Benny's Notebook

After school I put my books in the house and started to run out again, and Sandra said, I want you to stay around a little while, Benny. I'm expecting Mrs. Weakly, and she'll have little Sandra with her, she said.

Aw, that darn kid? I said, and ma said, Now never mind, Sandra may be slightly spoiled but a gentleman can always be a gentleman, even if a lady doesn't always quite seem to be a lady.

And pritty soon they came, and ma said, it's such a nice day, Benny, so while Mrs. Weakly and I are talking, why dont you and Sandra go out on the front steps?

Which we did, and I thought, Oh well, if she sits here quiet, maybe I wont even have to talk to her.

And pretty soon Sandra said, Do you know something? you're the funniest, craziest looking boy ever saw.

I'm a gentleman, I said.

Saying it polite, and she said, Do you know something else? You remind me of a squeezed tomato, she said, and I said, I'm a gentleman, and I'm proving it by not telling you that I'd rather be sliding down a board full of splinters than sitting here with you.

Just for that I hate you and I wont even talk to you or answer anything you say, Sandra said, and I said, I'm a gentleman, dont you think this is lovely weather?

Sandra just looking up at the sky with her mouth shut tite, and I kept on asking her polite questions and she kept on not answering, probably being the most panefful thing that could happen to her, and proving it's possible to be a gentle man and still have fun.

COMMITTED IN SLAYING

EDMUNDSTON, N. B. (CP)—Mrs. Lina Thibodeau, 26, was committed for trial Thursday on a charge of murdering her 35-year-old husband Nov. 5. Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Tuesday, Nov. 20, 1951.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Make haste slowly during this somewhat uncertain period. Avoid a tendency to argue things out just to save face. Give the other fellow a chance to voice his opinion.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus)—A mildly upward trend — but it's not very strong, so don't go off on tangents or take uncalculated risks. Keep your ears to the ground; be ready to act. You can handle things efficiently — and without being unethical.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Gains possible in routine matters and duties that have a bearing on the events of day. A possibility of benefits resulting from past endeavors. Follow good leads ably. Think!

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Look at things from the overall viewpoint. Early events could have a decisive effect on afternoon affairs. Have due respect for competitors; ll is good business sense, saves many headaches.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — An open day for energetic, quick-thinking Leo. But be sure you know what you are about before starting activities, signing contracts. Don't underestimate your own ability; just use common sense.

August 22 to September 23 (Virgo)—Match your better ideas with the best today. Chances are good for better-than-even results. The only drawback may be in overconfidence, placing too much trust in certain events. Be ready for changes.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Your specific talents under fine stimuli now. Knotty ailing ones, possible help or gifts from unexpected sources, friends. Romance, social, home affairs also favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — A suspicious day for properly attuned people and plans. Lunar activity favors financial and personal contacts and new matters. Work for harmony, the good of all.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — Be prudent in romance, home, family affairs. You may be less promising than it appears on surface. Definite action, sound ideas and a well-suited pace will produce best results. Don't give up at any time.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Remember we all need a helping hand, a lift at some time, so when you have the opportunity to grant favors, do so graciously. Make the most of everything that's good and enjoy true living.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — A touchy day in spots. Mark time where you should. Conserve energy, keep calm; prepare for strenuous hours later. What you do, do well, and listen to the suggestions of others.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Finish what you have started before taking on new matters unless they are urgent. Strive to improve the quality and efficiency of your work. Plan according to what you honestly know you can handle.

YOU BORN TODAY are bright and energetic; may be dictatorial at times but are honest, straightforward. Correct a tendency to belittle your own or others' judgment, suggestions. Helpful hints come our way when we listen well.

You possess the qualities of leadership, organizing ability; make outstanding actors, surgeons, business executives. Outdoor exercise is helpful to health, gives poise and helps to overcome restlessness. Fine cross ahead for worth-while endeavors.

Those Sir Winston Churchill, Prime Minister, Gr. Britain; Mark Twain, American author, humorist; Jonathan Swift, Irish satirist.

Utah Republican Has New Charge Against McCarthy

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new charge faced Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep., Wis.) today as he returned from the hospital for renewal of Senate debate on whether to censure him for his conduct.

Senator Wallace Bennett (Rep., Utah) said he would offer a third count, when the Senate reconvenes its special session on the censure issue at noon EST in the two-or-sure counts already recommended by a special bipartisan committee.

Bennett's charge is based on McCarthy's attacks on the special committee and its chairman, Senator Arthur Watkins (Rep. Utah), and on McCarthy's describing the special Senate session as, among other things, a "lynch party."

The Senate recessed abruptly called off 11 days ago after McCarthy went to hospital with Bethesda, Md., naval medical centre for treatment of an injured right shoulder.

McCarthy emerged from the hospital Sunday.

SEEMED NEAR VOTE

McCarthy and his supporters have denied right along any intentions, suggested by opponents, of delaying the things so there could be no vote before the present session automatically ends December 4. The Senate had seemed near the voting state when McCarthy went to the hospital.

Bennett made public the third count on which he will ask the Senate to condemn McCarthy's conduct.

It sets out that McCarthy accused the Watkins committee of acting as the Democratic handmaiden," "involuntary agent" and "attorneys-in-fact" in the Communist party and of imitating Communist methods in its report recommending the censure.

Bennett's resolution also declares that McCarthy described the special Senate session as a "lynch party" and a "lynch bee," accused the head of the censure committee members of "deliberate deception" and "guilt" and called Watkins "cowardly" and "stupid."

John D. Southam, Calgary Herald Publisher, Dies

CALGARY (CP) — John David Southam, 57, publisher of the Calgary Herald and a prominent sportsman and militia officer, died suddenly at his home here Sunday night.

As a member of the well-known Southam publishing family, he entered the newspaper field in 1920 when he joined the staff of the Ottawa Citizen. He joined the Calgary Herald in 1922 as a reporter and became business department, later becoming assistant business manager, and in 1935 business manager.

He served overseas during the Second World War with the Canadian Army. The Herald as business manager after the war. In December, 1946, he became vice-president and publisher.

NAMED DIRECTOR

He was a director of The Canadian Press in 1947 and 1948 and earlier this year was elected as director of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers' Association.

Mr. Southam's war service began with the outbreak of the conflict.

He was major commanding the 6th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, RCA, from 1941 to 1944 and was mentioned in dispatches for services in Sicily, Italy and Holland with the 3rd Anti-Tank Regiment. He assumed command of the 2nd Anti-Tank Regiment in Germany, with rank of lieutenant-colonel, in 1945. He was demobilized in December of that year.

New H-Bomb Striking Force Will Be 11 Wings

WASHINGTON (AP) — America's new H-bomb striking force will consist of 11 wings of high speed, long-range B-52 jet bombers—four more wings than previously announced.

This force, air force officials told today, will gradually replace the present fleet of heavy strategic bombers.

Cost of the program may be about $4,200,000,000.

A heavy bomber wing includes some 70 planes plus supporting elements.

Prime Minister Sends Birthday Salute to Winnie

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent on behalf of Canada Sunday night sent a birthday salute to Sir Winston Churchill who will be 80 next Tuesday.

In a statement Mr. St. Laurent said:

"In this country we recall with heartfelt fervor his gifts of gratitude the peerless leadership he gave to us all in the grim days of the war when the Commonwealth, unaided, was fighting the forces of evil. Sir Winston in those days had become far more than the prime minister of any one country; for all of us his voice was the voice of human freedom and he represented the symbol of unconquerable spirit of free men and women faced with terrible odds.

"Even with victory won, Sir Winston does not lie inland on his already matchless record but to continue to serve unstintingly his great talents of statesmanship to securing the peace.

"Canadians remember his immeasurable service in the cause of freedom in war and peace and they send affectionate greetings to Sir Winston Churchill on his birthday anniversary and wish him strength for the burdens which still lie ahead."

BUSINESS MAN DIES

STRATFORD (CP)—Emil Karl Kalbfleisch, 73, Stratford business man, died Friday. He began his business career by operating a bicycle shop in partnership with his brothers, George and Henry. Later the brothers set up an automobile sales and service firm and then took over the Stratford Planing Mill and Lumber business. At the time of his death, Mr. Kalbfleisch was manager of the mill and president of Kalbfleisch Brothers Ltd.

ISTANBUL FIRE COSTLY

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP)—Fire gutted Istanbul's famous covered bazaar today, destroying thousands of small shops. Damage was estimated at nearly $360,000,000. The big market, picturesque trading centre for everything from electrical appliances to antiques, was one of the city's chief tourist attractions. All the shops were burned out except those in sections where jewelry, carpets and second-hand clothing were sold.

Glued Kernels Disqualify Kings of Corn

CHICAGO (AP)—Judges at the International livestock exposition will try to pick a corn king for the second time today after a hassle in which the first choice was disqualified.

Two brothers, Arnold and Paul Karsk, of Pecatonica, Ill., held the corn crown briefly Sunday.

After their 10-ear sample of Dekalb 822 variety corn was chosen as the best among hundreds entered, a comic-opera situation of quick changes ensued. Two exhibitors complained that some kernels appeared to have been glued to each ear of corn.

At first, the five judges said their choice would be unchanged. Then they reversed themselves and decided the quality the Karsk brothers. For a short time it appeared the championship would be given to the reserve champion, Willard C. Kirk, 48, of Jeffersonville, Ohio, the 1951 corn king.

But officials again changed tack and decided to judge the entire corn show all over again.

KERNELS FELL OUT

The Karsk brothers, Paul, 67, and Arnold, 64, were not on hand when their exhibit was picked as the best. But reached by telephone, Arnold Karsk admitted he had glued several kernels into two ears of corn after they had fallen out.

"They were the original kernels and gluing them back in is no reason for disqualification," he said. "I bet you there are darn few samples on display that haven't a few kernels glued in."

Officials said the disqualification was made on a technical basis and emphasized there was no apparent dishonesty on the part of the Karsk brothers.

Two championships and a reserve title went to Canadians in other grain competitions decided Sunday. George Snow of Milk River, Alta., was named barley king while Tom Corlett of Claremont, Alta., won the oats title.

Murray W. Coverdale of Cayuga, Ont., was the reserve alfalfa champion behind Darrell Moore of Grandfield, Okla.

Cully, 38, was given a two-year suspended sentence. All three pleaded guilty.

Grandmother Gave Rat Poison To Four Husbands

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Affable grandmother Nannie Doss chilled veteran police officers by signing additional statements Sunday night that she used liquid rat poisoning to snuff out the lives of four of her five husbands.

She calmly smoked a cigaret as she described in detail how she administered the poison into the food and drink of spouses from four states.

County attorney J. Howard Edmondson said a murder charge will be filed today against the 46 year-old plumpish, jovial widow for the Oct. 6 death of Samuel Doss, St. of Tulsa.

Edmondson said the other poisoned husbands and the dates they died are:

Frank Harrelson, Jacksonville, Ala., 1945.

Harley Lanning, Lexington, N.C. 1952.

Richard L. Morton, 64, Emporia, Kan., May 19, 1953.

The prosecutor, with city officers and Kansas and Oklahoma agents, has questioned the woman since her arrest Friday night and said investigations into the deaths of four of Mrs. Doss' relatives probably will be undertaken.

CONSCIENCE CLEAR

He identified the relatives, whom he said succumbed under strange circumstances, as Mrs. Doss' mother, two sisters and a stepgrandson.

After making her confessions, Edmondson related, Mrs. Doss declared, "My conscience is clear." He said it was a comment she uttered after each formal statement.

She declared she had been jealous of Lanning because he was popular with the women. That was the same reason she gave for placing the rodent killer in Morton's coffee.

She claimed Harrelson beat her so she poured liquid poison into his jug of corn whisky.

Edmondson said she told him she poisoned Doss because "he was mean to me."

OIL ISLAND

Oil production is a leading industry in Trinidad in the British West Indies, reaching about 3,000,000 tons annually.

Heavy Rains In Britain Flood Roads and Fields

LONDON (AP) — Continuing heavy rains flooded roads and fields in 17 counties of England and Wales today, and in some areas farmers reported disastrous losses of crops and working time.

Coastal towns meanwhile went to work clearing away debris left by five days of gales which smashed beach huts and boats, knocked holes in sea walls, blew down hundreds of telephone poles and trees and caused at least 10 deaths at sea.

More than 2,400 phone lines were knocked down in Cornwall alone.

At Charmouth, in Dorsetshire, an entire electric transformer, the building it was housed in, and the cables and poles connecting it to the main power lines were washed out to sea.

At Waterfoot, Lancashire, Mrs. Mary Allen Cockerill, 54, was blown by a gale to her death in the swollen river Whitewell.

At Sheldon, Devonshire, a chunk of cliff 20 feet thick crashed down on a garage, burying eight automobiles.

In the still-rambunctious Irish sea, the tug Turmoil labored toward Belfast with the forward half of the split Greek tanker World Concord. Lifeboats rescued seven seamen from this half of the vessel and took the other 35 crewmen off the stern segment. They stood by to tow the stern half as soon as the sea permitted putting a salvage crew aboard.

Pick Republican To Succeed Malan In South Africa

Selection of J. G. Strijdom Will Bring Tough New Era

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

PRETORIA (AP) — The South African Nationalist caucus today elected staunch republican Johannes Gerhardus Strijdom as party leader in succession to retiring Prime Minister Daniel Malan.

The 61-year-old Strijdom will be called upon by Governor-General E. G. Jansen to form a new government as soon as Malan's resignation takes effect at midnight tonight.

The 121 senators and members of Parliament comprising the Nationalist parliamentary caucus met in the Parliament buildings to take the historic decision that probably spells the beginning of a tough, restless new era in South African politics.

The election of Strijdom, with his reputation for scorning compromises on most fateful issues facing this Commonwealth country, was expected to be followed almost immediately by the resignation of his most serious rival for the premiership—N. C. Havenga deputy prime minister and finance minister.

SECURITY PRECAUTIONS

The caucus met today amid tight security precautions. Armed police stood among a crowd of more than 1,000 outside the meeting place.

Havenga withdrew from the contest soon after the caucus session began, presumably because he felt he stood no chance.

Havenga had agreed the word before today's vote that he would quit the government if Strijdom elected. And it now is expected that others loyal to him and Malan, who had backed Havenga in his retirement announcement seven weeks ago, may follow their candidate out of party. The present party was formed in 1951 as a coalition of Havenga's Afrikaner party, both split up of descendants of the Dutch-born Boer settlers.

FIRST SPLIT

This would bring the first serious split in Nationalist unity, unbroken since Malan led his party to victory in the general election ago from the late Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts' United party.

The struggle between Strijdom and Havenga has been one of tactics and timing rather than other fundamental issues.

Strijdom is all for quickening the pace of the Nationalist march toward a "Christian National Republic" in South Africa. He is determined to limit the limited franchise, and political rights of the 10,000,000 non-whites.

Strijdom also wants quickly to deprive the independent courts of their power to declare government laws unconstitutional. The courts have been using this power to curb Malan-sponsored race legislation.

Strijdom also has long crusaded for republican status for South Africa inside or outside the Commonwealth. He had pledged, however, that a republic would be proclaimed only after a referendum for all white voters.

Ship in Distress Off Coast Of Newfoundland

HALIFAX (CP)—A ship identified only as the Julien sent out an urgent call for today and her skipper said he was ordering his crew to abandon ship in the threatened Atlantic off the east coast of Newfoundland.

RCAF search and rescue centre here said the SOS came at about 4 a.m. AST but the Julien did not further identify herself.

No ship of that name is listed in Lloyd's register of transport department listing of Canadian ships. Search and rescue said the position 280 milesa east of Newfoundland indicated she probably was a fishing craft.

The United States coast guard cutter Casco was sent dashing to the area and air force rescue units in the Maritimes were alerted although had weather made any immediate search flights impossible.

WEATHER

TORONTO, (CP) — Synopsis: Snowflurries are still prevailing over Ontario this morning and will continue in most regions today, although they will tend to die out by this evening as a high pressure area moves across the province. A new low pressure centre developed over Colorado early today and is centered towards the Great Lakes. With the approach of this storm, snow accompanied by strong easterly winds will spread into Ontario

FAR EAST POLICY LAID DOWN BY STATE SECRETARY

Dulles Bars Naval, Air Blockade of Red China

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States administration today sought measures short of "war action" to counter "provocative" acts by the Chinese Communists.

The policy line was laid down by State Secretary Dulles in a speech at Chicago Monday night. Dulles barred for the present any naval and air blockade of Red China.

At the same time he called for vigilance in dealings with Russia. He said Moscow "progressively" is currently proclaimed foreign policy line—is a "tricky word" in the absence of any renunciation of international communism's "effort to rule the world by methods of force, intimidation and fraud."

Dulles gave a far-ranging report on the U.S. foreign policy before a National Farm Club congress in Washington last night. Because of turning to the capital shortly afterward, he went to a studio to repeat his speech for a coast-to-coast TV-radio hookup.

EARLY DECISION

Dulles said President Eisenhower have up for early decision the question of whether the U.S. can effectively do next to obtain the release from Chinese Communist prisons of 13 Americans sentenced on what the U.S. has branded as false spy charges.

Insane Convicts Riot Two Hours In New Jersey

TRENTON, N. J. (AP)—Insane criminals staged a two-hour riot at the New Jersey State Hospital Monday, wrecking and setting fire to clothing causing injuries to several attendants.

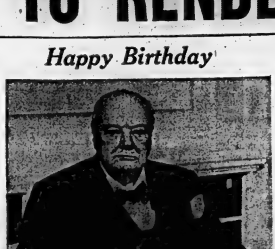
Twenty-three of the 371 patients in the institution took active or passive roles in the outbreak. Most of the passive participants was Howard Unruh, 33, who in 1949 shot and killed 13 persons in Camden, N. J., in a bloody street slaughter.

Unruh, suffering from deterioration of the brain cells, an incurable disease, was asked about the trouble by state investigating agencies, when asked if any action by the others aided the riot he said: "The law specifies you cannot punish an insane man; for you can't punish them, so how can we?"

REPORT ON DAMAGE

KATMANDU, Nepal, (AP)—Fall floods which ravaged sections of Nepal killed 261 persons, washed away more than 185,000 homes and destroyed 2,138 head of cattle, Prime Minister M. P. Koirala reported Monday.

West Will Never Win War With Present Organization—Monty



LOS ANGELES (AP) — Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery says the West "will never win the war in the air with the organization of the air command and control that we have at present."

Britain's hero of the Second World War added: "The present organization is unworthy of a group of free nations who have some knowledge of war."

Montgomery, who talked to California Institute of Technology scientists, Monitgomery prefaced his remarks on possible future world war by saying: "I want to make it clear that I should be on the supreme Headquarters Allied Powers, Europe, are basing all our operational planning on using atomic and thermonuclear weapons in our defence."

The reason was that "we cannot match the strength that could be brought against us unless we use nuclear weapons; and our political

Happy Birthday

Wire Fence Industry Accused Of Fixing Prices for 20 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament's anti-combines body today accused virtually the entire wire fence industry of having operated an illegal price-fixing combine for some 20 years.

The restrictive trade practices commission, in a report made public by Justice Minister Garson, named six companies — including two of Canada's top steel producers — as alleged parties to the combine.

It asked that a court injunction be obtained to crack price-fixing arrangements. Mr. Garson said he will announce later whether the government will launch court prosecutions.

Named in the commission's 116-page report are:

Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation Ltd. of Sydney, N.S., and Montreal; The Steel Company of Canada, Ltd., with plants at Hamilton and Montreal; Canadian Steel Corporation Ltd., of Ojibway, Ont., a Deaco subsidiary; Frost Steel and Wire Co. Ltd., of Hamilton, a Steico subsidiary; Lundy Fence Co. Ltd. of Toronto; and New Brunswick Wire Fence Co. Ltd., of Moncton.

The commission said these companies make all but a small part of the fencing sold in Canada, and charged that from 1933 to mid-1953 they operated under arrangements directed principally to maintaining common prices, sales arrangements and to the elimination export competition. Their production in 1952 was estimated at about $3,000,000.

3 Dead, 18 Men Missing As Ship Lost in Irish Sea

LONDON (AP) — Hurricane-force winds sank the 7,373-ton British freighter Tresillian in the Irish sea today, and hours later other ships reported plucking three dead men and 18 survivors from the water in perilous rescue operations. Eighteen men remained unaccounted for.

The rescuers of the three bodies raised to 25 the death toll of seamen in a five-day storm that has endangered ship from Ireland to the coast of Holland.

The Tresillian sank 44 miles off Cork, Ireland, and the crew of 40 went over the side into mountainous waves. There were no passengers on the ship, which was carrying grain from Canada.

RESCUER IN DISTRESS

The 1,044-ton Scottish ship Ardgien picked up three dead men and 15 survivors.

The 6,473-ton London tanker Lycaon, picked up 13 survivors, seven of them injured, and made for Cork, the coast guard reported.

While winds with gusts of up to 100 miles an hour whistled from Ireland to the Netherlands, two other ships were reported missing and feared to be in serious trouble.

Dikrsraget's Norwegian skipper of Rotterdam said nothing had been heard from the 1,600-ton freighter Tendre Berceuse or a small ship identified as the St. Govans, of unknown nationality. Lloyd's Register of Shipping lists no St. Govans, but shows a Saint Gobain with a tonnage of 6,018, out of Trelleborg, Sweden.

First World War Veteran Dies In Fire at Club

TORONTO (CP) — Edward J. Bullen, 72, First World War veteran, was burned to death early today during a fire at the Red Cross Soldiers Club, a residence for elderly veterans in west central Toronto.

Red Cross officials said the fire started in a basement room where Mr. Bullen often went to smoke. It was thought he might have set himself on fire or had a slight stroke while smoking. Damage was confined to the basement room.

Firemen said about 120 elderly residents vacated the four-storey building when fire was reported in the basement. Charles Chambers, 83, trapped in a basement room, was rescued and revived by inhalator treatment.

gerous gases feared to be locked up in her hold. The crew of 42 were rescued from the two parts of the ships the weekend.

Two ships reported in the Irish Sea Monday were the 1,600-ton Dutch freighter Tendre Berceuse, which broke in the lightship South Goodwins bit the treacherous Goodwin sandbar outside Dover harbor Saturday. Three others were killed in an explosion that ripped the 9,825-ton Norwegian tanker Olav Ringdal Jr. in harbor at Swansea, Wales. Twelve men were lost with the 494-ton Dutch vessel Carpo, believed to have gone down off the Cornish coast Friday night.

World Pays Homage to Old Warrior By Presenting Mountain of Gifts

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—The old warrior was 80 years young today, and the world paid him homage.

A mountain of gifts—something Churchillian in their number and variety—accumulated in honor of the man who was born six months prematurely, on St. Andrew's Day, 1874, to Jennie Jerome, a beautiful American girl, and Lord Randolph Churchill, ill-starred third son of the seventh Duke of Marlborough.

Characteristically Sir Winston Spencer Churchill already is a history-book figure, made it a birthday perhaps without precedent in the annals of British prime ministers.

With disdain for the years, he attended this morning the state opening of the fourth session of Britain's 40th Parliament and at noon went to Westminster Hall, filled before a television audience, from the Parliament he has served for more than half a century.

There were a birthday autograph book, signed by nearly all the 625 members of Parliament, and a huge portrait of himself painted by Graham Sutherland, reproductions of the painting, showing a fat-jawed, bald-domed Churchill seated in a chair, were published today on the front pages of most British newspapers.

There were reports that a plane would fly over London bearing the words "Cheers, Winston" and there were messages to and from Commonwealth prime ministers.

Prime Minister Sir Laurent of Canada said that in the Second World War Sir Winston "represented the symbol of the unconquerable spirit of free men and women faced with terrible odds."

Britain's national newspapers, with the exception of the Communist Daily Worker—hail the birthday as a great event. The Manchester Guardian says editorially:

"We can now already that Sir Winston Churchill will stand out as a great figure in British history. What is not already public fact."

"Today our toast is you, sir!" is the editorial comment in the pro-Conservative Daily Mail's front page.

"His day!" is the bannered tribute of the tabloid pro-Labor Daily Mirror, which has been predicting Churchill's retirement from the prime ministry on the grounds of old age.

ONE DISSENTER

The Worker published a crudely drawn "Birthday Card" with the text:

"A birthday message to Sir Winston—Happy Days! Many!

"Resign! Along with your Tory government

"Let electors prove by their vote they are against Germany being rearmed!

"Otherwise, political differences were adjourned for Winnie's day. His supporters and those who have voted against him in many elections joined in the international chorus to the man who spoke and stood so courageously in Britain's darkest hours.

Queen Says That Western Unity Best Basis for Accord With USSR

LONDON (CP)—The Queen opened a new session of Parliament today with traditional pomp and ceremony, reading a speech from the throne that called for Western unity as the best basis for seeking "an understanding with the Soviet Union."

Skies that had been overcast through the morning brightened as the Queen's procession left the golden state coach through central London to the Houses of Parliament. Cheers of the crowds boomed over the cheers of the crowds who lined the procession route.

The Queen delivered the throne speech in the red and gold splendor of the House of Lords. She spoke the words prepared for her in accordance with Parliamentary tradition by Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill, who today celebrated his 80th birthday.

Robed peers crowding the benches and members of the House of Commons ranged along the walls heard the Queen say:

"My government attach the highest importance to maintaining and strengthening close and friendly relations with the United States of America. It is upon this intimate relation that world security largely depends."

The speech declared that in the Middle East, where a short meeting Dec. 23 — the government "will continue to work for the promotion of the well being of my people and the peace of the world."

My government are convinced a strong and united Commonwealth can take a leading part in the councils of nations."

The throne speech represents the basic Churchill's Conservative government will follow, including the next few days it will be analyzed and debated in Parliament.

Lion's Heart Was Nation's, I Gave Roar —Churchill

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Amid a swelling paean of praise the Empire and Parliament today joined in birthday greetings to their most celebrated member, Sir Winston Churchill.

Sir Winston called the ceremony —witnessed by millions of Britons on television—"a most memorable occasion" of his crowded and turbulent political life.

"I have never accepted what many people have kindly said, namely that in the war I inspired the nation. The people's will was the result of enormous measures of it proved unconquerable. It fell to me to express it, and if I found the right word you must remember that I have always carried my living by the pen and by the tongue.

"It was the nation and the race dwelling all around the globe that had the lion's heart. I had the luck to be called upon to give the roar."

Ontario Crop Value Down $10,000,000

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's field crop value for 1954 is estimated at $10,000,000 less than last year, the provincial department of agriculture said today.

Preliminary estimates of the value of field crops in the province this year are $175,000,000 compared with $185,000,000 in 1953.

Lower prices for most crops and a reduction in the acreage of some crops are the reasons for the decrease, the department said.

Blast in Firebox Of Boiler Causes Heavy Damage

A combustion explosion in the firebox of a boiler at the new geological laboratory on Dundas street, caused extensive damage in the boiler and started residents in the area about five o'clock Monday afternoon.

Fortunately no one was injured as result of the explosion although three employees of the Hughes Construction Company were working in the building now. The explosion was heard throughout the entomological building and also by nearby residents.

City firemen were called but the explosion did not set fire to the building.

Cause of the trouble was not immediately determined although the explosion apparently resulted from oil from the boiler burner used to heat the boiler. Damage to the burner and oil burner had been in operation for about a week.

This morning firemen were called to Hillside street where they helped clean up the kitchen stove flared up. No damage was reported.

Quinte Players Plan to Double Presentations

The Quinte Players, who made their debut in Belleville last winter, plan to double the number of their presentations during their second season.

Plans for an ambitious schedule of four full length productions are laid over the week-end, at a meeting of 25 members of the company from Belleville and Trenton.

Last season the players produced Emlyn Williams' "Night Must Fall," contrasting it with the legally comedy, "Angel." The plays for next season will be equally varied in the color and popular appeal. All phases of stagecraft, including lighting, casting and producing are being fully developed by the organization at present.

The players are working under the leadership of the following: President, Jack Thomas; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. "Bud" Chips and director, Mrs. Ken Hawkins.

The plays again will be staged at Tobe's County Gardens.

Drama Festival To Be Held Here

The Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival will be held in Belleville from Feb. 15-16-18-19.

The festival, one of three to be held in Belleville during spring, will bring to Belleville the outstanding theatrical presentations of the past season, in the area bounded on the east by the Ontario-Quebec border and on the west by Cobourg and Peterborough.

Entrants in the regional festival will include the prize winning plays from qualifying festivals in Cornwall, Ottawa, Brockville, Kingston and Peterborough.

An different, full-length prize winning production will be presented each evening during the festival and a Saturday matinee will feature three outstanding one-act plays which will not be in competition.

The plays adjudged best at the Belleville festival will be eligible to compete in the Dominion Drama Festival at Hamilton in the spring of 1955 for the Calvert Trophy and a prize of $1,000.

The Eastern Ontario Drama League will hold its annual meeting here during the festival.

Speaker Outlines Background And Operations of Authority

Conservation again was the topic at the weekly meeting of the Belleville Rotary club yesterday when Col. Ramsay Vandervet, DSO, spoke on the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Secretary-treasurer of the Authority, Col. Vandervaet outlined the background and operation of his organization following the club's luncheon in the Hotel Quinte.

He traced the necessity for preservation of resources back to the early days of settlement in Canada when timber, looked upon as a resource, was unreasonably destroyed by the pioneers. In 1946 the Conservation Authority Act was passed by the province. It is under that act that the Moira River and 17 other watersheds in the province are being organized into conservancies under their own separate authorities. The Authorities know no municipal bounds, the Moira River conservation alone being spread over 11 rural municipalities.

Some 2,700 acres owned by the authority, most of it in Hungerford township has been planted under its reforestation schemes.

Speaking on the construction of dams and flood control Col Vandervaet mentioned that construction of the Belleville, now under consideration. The cost of the construction will be shared 37 1-2 per cent by the Dept. of Public Works and 25 per cent by the city while it is hoped to receive the remaining 37 1-2 per cent from Ottawa.

"We are receiving every encouragement from Ottawa so they will come forward with the other 37 1-2 per cent," he said, adding that it (the dam) will become a reality."

The speaker was introduced by R. Macklem and thanked by Mack Robertson, President Fred Adsett chaired the meeting.

Plans for Memorial Arena Improvements Outlined By Chairman of Commission

Pending the approval of the people, the initial step in alterations to the Memorial Arena here, may be taken next summer.

Approval, or disapproval, of the $100,000 scheme of the arena commission, to overhaul the city recreation centre, will depend on the outcome of a referendum on municipal election day, Dec. 6, when city property owners will vote on the raising of the money through a debenture issue.

A detailed account of the commission's plans for improvements to the arena was given by the commission chairman, Alderman Gerald Hyde, in the weekly meeting of the Belleville Rotary club yesterday. Text of the alderman's address, although he did not use it during his speech was released to the press beforehand.

Taken from the text, the precise plotting of the commission's scheme calls for a start on the renovations next summer. First objective will be the removal of the interior posts — called a pet peeve — and the heating of the arena. Then, by the end of the expiration of the $8,000, plus interest, being paid on the present debenture issue, work will commence on seating renovations.

STATISTICS GIVEN

Some statistics given by Ald. Hyde included:

(1) Removal of the posts alone will cost $27,500 and the balance from the debenture providing for heating the arena.

(2) A further $25,000 is presently allocated as an approved capital estimate for seating alterations.

(3) Over 1,000 seats, not now "really saleable" during league games because of vision blocked by the posts would become available and added to season-ticket subscribers. This is expected to more than pay for the cost of the $8,000 annually from the hockey season. Some 25 seats are completely cut of use because of the posts, also would become available.

WOULD ELIMINATE WINDOWS

Ald. Hyde also noted methods suggested by the engineers for structural improvements in the building. The steel supporting the main roof would be reinforced and extended to the outside walls and fastened to them. "I" beams to be erected against the east and west walls to support the roof of the building. This would eliminate the double row of windows in the building and the lower roof over the runways. The posts would be removed at this time, work proceeding from one end of the arena to the other, starting at the west end.

The work would be done through the winter months and would not interfere with wrestling bouts because ring would be located at the end opposite to the removal work. He told the club it was estimated a lot of removing the posts will take about four months.

USE UNIT HEATERS

Heating to be installed will be eight unit heaters, four on each side to "partially heat the building."

In 1958 it is hoped to start work on overhauling the seating accommodation. Reason for the delay stems from the fact that the commission now is paying $8,000 plus interest on its present debenture, which expires in 1957. Realization of the debenture in 1957 would free this sum for these improvements.

The average profit of the arena since its purchase by the city in 1947 is $8,582.13 annually Against this is an expenditure of over $30,000 since its purchase (paid up in 1957).

With the posts out of the way and 1,000 extra seats usable by season ticket-holders for 24 home games in the hockey season, an extra revenue of $12,000 would be earned.

COULD USE SURPLUS

Ald. Hyde suggests that $10,000 from a surplus of $10,-311.34 presently held by the commission should be used as the first payment on the $100,000 cost, leaving $90,000 to be debentured.

In his text he notes that over a 20-year period at an interest rate of 3 per cent, interest would amount to about $81,000, bringing together with the debenture sum would total $171,000 to be paid over a period of 20 years. This would be annual payments of $8,550. But, the alderman pointed out, there would be earning a minimum revenue of $12,000 from hockey alone.

He touched on suggestions to sell the building and said he did not believe that it could be sold. He noted the city's zoning by-laws would prevent the purchaser of the property to buy a great deal of land in the area surrounding the building.

Also, his text noted that in his estimation the commission centre for the city would cost about $500,000 to construct and that such community projects are negligible, he claimed.

Concluding, he told the club, "I think it is impractical to talk of selling that building. No one would buy it, and what would they do with it?"

SPEAKER'S USE QUESTION

Will the hockey public buy the extra seats made available? The president of the present league will last for many years and he personally believed that the seats could be sold the same as in other communities.

"But no one wants to sit in a seat where he can't see," he said.

He estimated it will take about 2,500 supporters to carry the debenture issue.

In order to make sure as much ground as possible in bringing the issue before a representative section of the city, he is addressing various service clubs throughout the city this week.

Concluding yesterday he said: "If I can see it as I do I would appreciate your support on Monday next."

No questions were put to him at the conclusion of his address.

Window Blows Out of Plane At 25,000 Feet

LONDON (AP)—A window blew out of a BOAC airliner 25,000 feet over the Atlantic ocean Monday. Veteran pilot Reginald Prowse quickly brought the Stratocruiser down to 11,000 feet as the 25 passengers fought to breathe at the high altitude.

One woman required oxygen treatment. Sleeping passengers awoke suddenly, gasping for breath and shivering. The window blew out 200 miles off the Irish coast on a flight from New York to Hud. Bay M. and S. 36 1-4

Cheese Displays At Dairy Show Attract Comment

Commercial cheese displays and booths advertising products associated with the dairy business presently are attractive adjuncts feature at the British Empire Dairy Show now being held at the city skating rink here.

Possibly one of the most attractive booths is that of the Black Diamond Cheese Ltd., where attractively packaged cheese in small sizes is on display.

A second cheese company display is that of Cook's cheese, where five pound blocks and smaller sizes of cheese are shown.

The E. S. and A. Robinson Co. also have an attractive display featuring the preservative cheese wrappers which they supply to cheese factories and other dairy firms. The Diversey booth and that of Hansen's show materials used in the manufacture of cheese and other dairy products. The latter booth itself is a credit to the Central Ontario Cheese Co. in Belleville, for which it is sponsored. Some of the best cheese manufactured in the province is on display. Com play with grades this year being particularly strong. Colors of rare cheese are on a par with other years; there is a good distribution of white cheese in the show of stiltons is the biggest in the history of the exhibition.

The general public is cordially invited to visit the show this afternoon and evening and also the judges' competitions and the prizes of cheese and butter are being offered with three different draws being made.

Shortened Week Is Recommended In Board Report

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal conciliation board has recommended a shortened week with no loss of take-home pay for extra gang employees of major Canadian railways.

Extra gang employees are temporary workers, engaged largely in maintenance work. The number employed at any time fluctuates seasonally up to about 9,000.

A majority of the board recommended a work week of a maximum 50 hours, compared with the present 54-hour week. Compensating hourly pay increases would be given for the 48 to 50 hours and for 47 cents from 90 cents, in different categories.

The board was turned down a request for a general wage increase.

The findings in the report on the dispute between the railways and the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees (AFL-TLC).

Grey Cup Champs Hobble Off Plane To Warm Welcome

By DON HANRIGHT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP)—Two thousand pennant-waving fans hollering a raucous get-down welcome today as the Grey Cup champion Edmonton Eskimos hobbled off their plane from Toronto.

The team's special Trans-Canada Air Lines North Star was surrounded even before its engines stopped by wildly-cheering fans who knocked a heavy wire gate 20 feet away from its hinges to penetrate a police cordon and crowd the plane ramp.

The plane arrived about 7:15 a.m. MST, nearly an hour before dawn and an hour late. Some fans —most of them school kids—had been waiting at the in-city municipal terminal more than three hours.

The players, each in natty polo coats and big western hats, responded drowsily to the individual cheers of high school cheerleaders who set up a chorus of specially-written victory songs.

Biggest ovations went to Jackie Parker, Mississippi State back who coached the winning touchdown with an 85-yard gallop; Hollis Miles, Negro scatback who played two quarters with injured Ron Stibe; and Eagle Keys, burly centre who snapped for three quarters despite a bad leg.

Keys probably got the biggest welcome as he grasped his crutches in one hand and hopped down the ramp on his one good leg.

Wing Tank of Jet Trainer Crashes Onto Rail Siding But Fuel Does Not Catch Fire

TRENTON (Special) — The wing tank of a T-33 Silver Star jet trainer loaded with 150 gallons of jet fuel crashed onto a railway siding in Trenton Tuesday morning after falling about 5,000 feet over the area's factory and warehouse district.

Jet fuel splattered over nearby buildings but did not catch fire. There were no injuries, although some 60 persons were working in the area in which the tank crashed.

The tank crashed about 9.30 a.m. on the railway siding between Little's Cold Storage and the Continental Can Company warehouse on South Dufferin St. Fuel sprayed over the roof of the cold storage building and against the warehouse.

Jack Keicheson, a warehouseman for Continental Can, heard "a dull explosion but didn't think anything of it until I saw a lot of men running outside the warehouse."

Keicheson called Trenton police, who sealed off the area until Trenton firefighters could wash the fuel into sewers.

Hal Murphy, a hotel waiter, who was walking on Queen St., about half a mile from the crash site, saw the tank come away from the plane. He thought it was the plane's engine.

He watched the tank as it fell in a great arc across the Canadian Dental and Morton Parker Ltd. Silverware plants before it disappeared.

The tank was smashed to pieces by the impact. An RCAF crew from Trenton recovered the pieces before news photographers could take pictures.

RCAF officials did not release the name of the pilot and made no comment as to whether the pilot was a student or an experienced jet flier.

It was not learned whether the tank fell because of pilot error or mechanical failure.

German Immigrant to Receive Canadian Humane Society Medal

A 42-year-old German immigrant who, in 1943, the next years saved a British Spitfire pilot from a fiery death is to receive recognition from the Royal Canadian Humane Society for saving the life of a fellow man, it was announced this week by Fred White of Tweed, who was pulled from the burning wreck of his truck after it crashed into a tree on Highway 7 east of Madoc and caught fire.

Neumeyer ran from a nearby farm-house in his pyjamas and pulled White to safety. The man's leg and arm had already been burned by the flames.

WAS HAULING ACID

White was engaged in hauling acid from Deloro Smelting with on a tank truck and trailer when his front tire blew throwing the truck out of control. The vehicle slammed into a tree, caught fire and exploded the acid in the tank on the trailer. Neumeyer braved the flames and hauled White from the blazing cab just before the explosion.

During the war Neumeyer served a British pilot from death as his Spitfire crashed during a raid over Germany. Gerhard Neumeyer, pilot from the plane which caught fire as it crashed.

Only one-and-a-half years in Canada, Neumeyer brought his wife and family to Canada to be safe from future wars. He first worked on a farm in the Madoc area and is now working nights at the Madoc talc mill. He lives with his wife Gerhard Neumeyer, and a son Raymond, 18 months, on a farm near Madoc.

Only recently Neumeyer owned a small fleet of trucks but felt there was better opportunity in Canada for his family.

Car Involved In Sideswipe Found Abandoned

Officers of the law, both city and provincial, had a quiet night Monday with little more than routine matters being attended. There were no accidents resulting in personal injury.

Alex Beaudry of Greenview, reported his car had been struck by a hit-and-run driver on the Foxboro Road. Police are still checking for the missing driver, although the car involved in the mishap was found abandoned in the ditch near the coal chutes.

Govt. Concerned

WINDSOR (CP)—Federal Health Minister Martin says the government is "increasingly concerned" about the plight of totally disabled persons without means of supporting themselves.

"The problems which beset the disabled, the aged, the infirm and the blind of this country day by day are acknowledged and appreciated by the Canadian government," he said Sunday night.

He was addressing a meeting of the local branch of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

FLU WARNING

LONDON (CP) — Dr. Christopher Andrewes warns doctors to watch for an influenza outbreak in Britain about mid-January. "The epidemics tend to occur in Britain every other winter," he wrote in a medical journal.

Crash Follows 90-MPH Chase, Youth Killed

TORONTO (CP)—James Laurie, 18, was killed early today and his three escaped companions injured when an allegedly-stolen car crashed into a hydro pole in suburban York township.

The crash followed a 90-mile-an-hour chase by police who fired three shots at the fleeing car.

William Taylor, 18, suffered a Ronald Everett, 19, and Donald Hill, 21, the driver, suffered facial injuries and head injuries. Hill was charged with manslaughter.

Police said the car was stolen during the night from a Brampton garage and recovered before the owner knew it was gone.

Observers said the blast, when the car struck the pole, could be seen for 10 miles. Homes and factories in the area were blacked out for several hours.

Police chased the car when it suddenly sped away while they were making a routine check.

FAR EAST POLICY

A protest note delivered through the British Government demanding freedom for the 13—11 airmen and two army-employed civilians captured during the Korean War—was rejected by Red China Sunday.

In Geneva, U.S. consul-general Franklin C. Gowan disclosed today that he had met Red China's consul-general Chen Ping for an hour Monday. Gowan had delivered orally another protest couched in "strong language" to which, Gowan said the Chinese took down his protest word by word, then said they would not accept it.

Dulles did not specify in his speech what next moves the state department has in mind in its campaign for free the 11, although he ruled out the naval blockade of the China coast proposed by the Senate majority leader, William F. Knowland of California.

MAY ASK RUSSIANS

State department informants indicated the possibility that the U.S. might ask the Russians to intervene with Communist China on behalf of the prisoners. But the main American reliance is expected to be on efforts to mobilize world opinion against the Peiping regime.

Dulles apparently was referring to the 13 in his speech, and to Red China's charges that American officials have talked and acted with increasing frankness.

"Our nation," he declared, "will not, and must not, abandon its duty to protection of our citizens, but without allowing ourselves to be provoked into action which would be a violation of our international obligations and which would involve the alliance of the free nations." Dulles departed from his prepared text to deliver that phrase about protecting U.S. citizens.

COMMITTED BY UN

"We believe that the greatest contribution we can make to peace is to be ready to fight, if need be, in the United Nations and with the allies to assure that an aggressor would surely be defeated."

"That does not mean being truculent or provocative or militaristic. It does mean seeking peace not only with the heart, but also with the mind."

WIRE FENCE

The combines investigation was launched formally by director T.J.S. MacDonald, in Ottawa, 1952, after a year of preliminary inquiries. These dealt with complaints by farm civic bodies that they were receiving identical tenders for the supply and installation of protective fences.

Farmers are the main users of wire fencing, though substantial quantities of chain link fence are sold to municipalities, school boards and industrial plants. Smaller amounts are bought by householders as lawn fencing.

The commission's evidence was that in the period 1937-47, the companies belonged to an association, known as the Steel Wire Fence Association, with two divisions, one dealing with chain link.

ALLEGEDLY MET

These divisions allegedly met to draw up agreed price schedules among the companies, terms and conditions of sale, agreed prices to jobbers, railways and governments and list customers to receive special price treatment.

The chain link division allegedly fixed erection and other charges, and the association scrutinized tenders to maintain prices among the companies. The commission said Dodge took the initiative in 1947 to end the formal association, but added:

"It is learned from correspondence about this time that there was a general effort to destroy the joint arrangements existing among fence companies."

The commission said the principal change was to end the system of registering tenders with the association secretary but meetings among the companies to draw up common price schedules also continued.

To make the arrangements less obvious, said the commission, records of meetings were kept by a Belleville employee and were circulated among the companies with the last date of meetings deliberately be paraphrased and original sheets returned.

Each of the companies also took pains to give price lists different dates in a way the appearance of collusion, the report added. The new methods allegedly continued until June, 1953, when Dodge and Sielco announced their decision to end all further arrangements.

Hotel Washroom Used to Carry Out $14,900 Robbery

CORDEN, Ont. (CP)—An unidentified man used a hotel washroom Monday to carry out a slick $14,900 robbery in this village 85 miles west of Ottawa.

He walked into the hotel about noon, told the desk clerk he was to meet another man and asked directions to the second-floor bathroom. Soon after he disappeared taking the money which had been in a jewel box in the possession of the hotel owners, Mrs. Gertrude Jackson and her daughter Amy.

Mrs. Jackson found the broken jewel box in the toilet bowl.

Police set up roadblocks on Highway 17 between Ottawa and Pembroke.

Begin Voting On McCarthy Wednesday

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The end is in sight for the United States Senate debate on the McCarthy censure issue with a unanimous consent agreement to begin voting Wednesday afternoon.

Senator McCarthy won approval Monday night of a proposal to "proceed to vote" at 3 p. m. EST tomorrow—the first actual vote to take place about an hour later.

The resolution asks that the Wisconsin Republican be officially rebuked for (1) alleged contempt-of-court treatment of a Senate elections sub-committee which investigated his finances in 1951-52, and (2) for alleged abuse of Brig.-Gen Ralph W. Zwicker, a witness before McCarthy's investigations subcommittee.

But McCarthy, expressing hope that the Senate will "get this thing over with," said he thinks his critics "stand up with only "15, 20 or 25" additional counts.

He said he still has no doubt that he can win re-election when "when all gets around to it."

With his arm still bandaged and in a sling, the Wisconsin Senator declared he would endeavor any "discourteous and offensive" language. But in "facts and opinions which I held, I am unchanged."

A Dear Kiss

TORONTO (CP) — A motorist, who kissed his girl friend while he was driving, Monday paid $40 and lost his driver's license for three months.

Police said the motorist also was driving at high speed and on the curb side of the street. They stopped a red light at 50 m.p.h., veered to the wrong side of the street, and ignored the blaring horn of a police cruiser. Robert Blair, 25, pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving.

CNR Revenue Reflects Fall In Rail Traffic

MONTREAL—The income and expense statement of the Canadian National Railways for the month of October reflects the continued falling off in traffic being carried by the railway this year.

Gross revenues last month amounted to $53,507,000, a decrease of $5,796,000 compared with the corresponding period of 1953. For the ten months of this year gross revenues were $38,028,000 below the level of 1953 earnings which totalled $368,835,000.

Improved operating methods have been achieved and the decline in the volume of traffic has also enabled the company to reduce expenses. However, despite these savings the reduction in expenses did not offset the drop in revenues. Expenses were reduced $1,920,000 in October, and $37,455,000 for the ten months of this year, yet operating revenues for the period ending October 31st amounting to $9,496,000 in 1954, a decrease of $20,571,000 compared with last year.

DR. EINSTEIN'S PLEASANT FICTION

Dr. Albert Einstein wrote recently that if he had his career to fashion over again, "I would not try to become a scientist or scholar or teacher." He would try to be a painter, or failing that, a peddler in the hope of finding that modest degree of independence still available under present circumstances."

The letter containing these remarks was written in response to a request from "The Reporter" for Dr. Einstein's comments on a recent series, "U.S. Science; The Troubled Quest." The series said that centres of intellectual life were troubled by recent federal actions concerning scientists. Dr. Einstein has been an outspoken critic of these actions and has written, "The systematic, widespread attempt to destroy mutual trust and confidence amongst citizens, scholars and research society."

Dr. Einstein can hardly mean, literally, that he would rather be a plumber or a peddler than a scientist, scholar or teacher. His whole life has been a contradiction of that statement. His remarks might better be construed as dramatic presentation of his beliefs concerning freedom of scientists to pursue scientific work unhindered and free from investigation by non-scientists.

The right to work unhindered and unquestioned is everyone's dream. It is, however, a pleasant fiction that cannot be indulged indefinitely.

Scientists, scholars and teachers," as the foremost challengers of the orthodox and the status quo, should most readily appreciate challenges hurled in their direction and systematic probing, not only of their activities but of their motives as well. Investigation and analyses, after all, are their chief tools in the quest for truth.

Dr. Einstein, given physical freedom and the opportunity for independent intellectual activity in the United States when both were precarious in his homeland, should be the last to bemoan the role which he assumed and pursued voluntarily in his adopted country. His opinion of investigation of fellow scientists should not be considered as a type of intellectual schizophrenia, but merely as an expression of sympathy for friends whose motives he trusts implicitly.

Investigation of seemingly innocent activity and disinterested scientific research has proven, however, that clear thinkers in many fields have a serious stigmatism when looking beyond their special fields to the higher plane of national welfare and security.

The interchange of information, so essential to scientific progress and so desirable in peacetime, becomes an avenue of treason in wartime and in the present world tension known as "the cold war."

Vigorous investigation of the unknown, with which Einstein's name has become almost synonymous in his own generation, has been and always will be an intellectual terrain fraught with uncertainty and peopled by investigators of ingenuity and daring.

Their scientific ability, however, is not necessarily a measure of their aptuteness at assessing the importance of their work in relation to national security. Proper evaluation of scientists' efforts in fields related to the waging of war and the waging of peace in the climate of a cold war, and continuing vigilance in investigating their security status, will continue to be a thankless but vital task for investigators of scientists and framers of national strength.

REPORTER A FROG-MAN?

A reporter is rarely expected to divulge the sources of his information and if ever pressed to do so by strangers will just shrug off the query with a "somebody-told-me," expression.

Any reader who came across a recent Reuters news agency report on a four-day war between rival tribes of frogs near Batang Kali, Malaya, must surely have looked twice at the story's last paragraph and marvelled at the wide sources of information retained by one of the agency's reporters. The paragraph read: "The battle apparently began when the king of the brown frogs was molested by black frogs when he ventured into their pond."

How the reporter gathered the information for that paragraph probably never will be known. It seems to us, that more than all the facts behind the patient probings of front-page expose writers, the terse wording of that particular paragraph is an unheralded gem of journalistic resourcefulness.

THIS SHOULD DAMPEN ENTHUSIASM

Atomic power will enable man to water the Sahara and to bring a miniature artificial sun to the Arctic and Antarctic.

The Royal Bank of Canada is authority for that statement, which appears in its monthly letter. Although we understand that the bank has not yet invested any funds in either of these projects, there is no reason to doubt the accuracy of this statement by its expert financial analysts.

We would, however, like to add one word of caution. The projects will have to be undertaken in the order named, first an irrigated Sahara, then tropical poles.

If we start out by hanging a pair of suns where the Dipper and the Southern Cross now shine, the resultant raising of the level of the seven seas when the polar ice melts will make it imperative that we retain those few dry spots which are left to us.

TROUBLE UNLIMITED

Suppose this world were trouble free
And every barrier were destroyed,
And nothing now were every free
No need courageous here to be
And all allowed to drift along?

Suppose each generation new
Were born without a goal to
No duty difficult to do;
All done, and nothing to attain?

Ease and comfort were secure
There would be nothing to endure
And nothing long to be enjoyed.
So, youth to come, 'tis well that we Must leave this troubled world to you
That you courageous, too, can be
And have some worth while task to do.

OFF THE RECORD

By Ed. Reed

LOOKING BACKWARDS

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BYGONE YEARS

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 30, 1924.

If all the people in Belleville who are able to vote at the civic elections to be held on Monday, Dec. 3rd, would exercise their franchise, a total of some 7,000 ballots would be cast.

Mr. E. Brown, well known resident of Picton, has been appointed Fish and Game Inspector for Prince Edward County.

Chief Inspector, G. F. Rogers of Toronto made his annual inspection of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School on Thursday.

Mr. Mackenzie Robertson and Mr. Fred S. Deacon of this city have each been made a justice of the peace for Hastings County, by the Attorney General's department of the Ontario Government. Others in the County of Hastings who have been appointed to the same office are the following: C. H. Byers, Marmora; H. W. Sabine, Marmora; A. W. Gordon, Tamworth; J. Wall, Stirling; Adam McKenzie, Deseronto; William Hall, Maynooth; Geo. E. Clarke, Tweed. In Prince Edward County, E. J. Sherman, Picton, and Frank Harris, Wellington, have been appointed to the office of justice of the peace.

Mrs. J. D. Ponton of Fast Creek, did the honors at the opening of Mrs. F. J. M. Anderson at her apartment on George Street.

Mr. Peter Doyle has returned home after spending several months in New York City.

30 YEARS AGO

NOV. 30, 1924.

Eggs are selling at 60 cents per dozen on the local market and butter is fetching 50 cents to 60 cents per pound.

Mr. R. Eggleton and Mrs. Eggleton of Madoc were in the city today.

For the month of November, the Canadian Pacific Railway Co. totalled 9,851,372 proof gallons, valued at £28,110,783, the highest amount for any month, and more than for the whole of 1950."

A small matter of arithmetic shows that this Scotch whisky was sold in the United Kingdom for export at something less than £3 per gallon—not per bottle but per gallon.

The bulk of Britain's whisky exports come to Canada and the United States where the British pound is worth less than 3, That is the price in Canadian money paid in the UK for Scotland's whisky was about $8 a gallon.

This whisky is sold in Canada at about $5 a standard bottle-and up, and there are six such bottles to a gallon. That is to say, whisky that cost $8 retails in Ontario (in Ottawa it is $20 and up). If Importation costs a dollar a gallon there is still a nice profit on $8 a gallon for the split before federal and provincial tax collectors.

If a private corporation dared to charge a profit of some 200 per cent on every article there would be strong words in parliament and probably an inquiry under the Combines Act. Is greed less greedy when it goes to government aid by the selling price after assuming a tight monopoly of the commodity?

And one wonders about the extra water said to be some 30 per cent—put in, the Scotch destined for consumption in Canada to bring it down to the official specifications set for this country by your own government!

Scotch Whisky Taxes High

(Ottawa Journal)

We clip this from the weekly edition of the London Times:

"Exports of Scotch whisky for the first nine months of the year were /at the rate of no less than £/3m. a month. The Scotch Whisky Association announced last week.

STRENGTH FOR THE DAY

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

THE WILL TO WIN

Among the students registering this fall at one state university was a boy who did not have to stand his navy blue, flat hat in front, instead, for he was in a wheelchair. Crippled from the waist down, he is nevertheless going from classroom to library to laboratory with his fellow students, and holding his own with them.

But there is another part to this story—an earlier one. This student is not just entering; he is reentering. A year ago he came as a normal freshman, with no wheelchair. Like many other freshmen, he found the freedom of college life too much for him. One thing led to another; drinking, parties, failing grades, and finally a dreadful automobile accident which nearly cost him his life.

This boy might still be lying in his bed feeling sorry for himself, but he does not even feel sorry for himself than someone who has brought about misfortune. He might have been bitter, or sulky, or despairing. But instead, he is courageous. He is going back, as a cripple—back to where people know his story. Good his weak ways and his terrible downfall—back to where two strikes already against him. Only this time he is going to make good.

There's not much of a man can't face, if he has the courage.

Letter to the Editor

No Butter Surplus If Oleo Not Produced

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

As we look at page four, of your issue of Tuesday, the 30th inst., we note at the very top where you give subscription prices for both, you say Belleville, Ontario, Canada.

You didn't like all of our Canadian banks do on their cheque books. Ont. is that not terrible!

But the purpose of this letter is to make some comment on the editorial on the same page, your issue of November twenty-sixth, headed

"Butter Problem"

Some things we would like to comment on.

First, this editorial, Canada's 100,000,000 pounds of butter. If stocks held across Canada in private hands were added, it would be more than 100,000,000 pounds.

In the second paragraph, your editorial says: "Butter producers are convinced that giving butter away to foreign countries is the answer."

Referring to the above quotation, is your writer really referring to butter producers or is he referring to the Government of Canada?

If your editorial writer would refer to the Dairy Farmers of Canada Building, Ottawa, the Council that represents all branches of the dairy industry, we think he would be told that butter manufacturers are not in favor of giving butter away to foreign markets but rather that the home consumer should get the benefit of lower prices. Perhaps the cream producers are the ones who favor giving away to foreign countries because lower selling prices would increase the demand for butterfat produced in winter months when costs of production are high.

Now, as a manufacturer, we are in a position where we might be misunderstood. We certainly feel that cream producers should get better prices. Labor costs for labor, machinery and everything that enters into and into the production of high quality cream have gone up, and as a result of these increases producers they are producing high quality, they dairy men receive for their butterfat; but in our experience, from long years in business, some of the butterfat is not much or anything on hand and it is to these sensible things we like to do to reduce the price and encourage, in this case, consumption;

The article is a good one, but it does not get to the real source of the trouble; we have a surplus of butter, yes, and a surplus of cheese, and a surplus of some other dairy products, yes. What is causing this surplus of margarine, and similar products

Do you know, ladies and gentlemen, that the people who lowered the manufacture and sale of oleo margarine, and similar products, we would have no surplus stock of butter on hand, and further, that the dairy farmers would be drawing on some of the milk that is now going into the cheese factories, to supply the home market with butter. Yes, the people who helped cut cheese; we think it would, but that would mean that there would be a ready home market for all our cheese at a good price. Why not? Look at the enormous sale of these other cheaper spreads? Do you know? Do you think?

Does it seem sensible to you that the consume dairy products or to you who produce the raw material, milk or cream, that these cheaper products are manufactured, - - does it seem sensible to you that we should be sending millions and millions of dollars to the United States and elsewhere, when to that not more than a dozen great big multi-millionaires, corporations could bring in cheap oils and fats out of which are manufactured these products, and save our home market for butter, cheese and other dairy products, the home market taken away, and butter then piles up in warehouses from the Atlantic to the Pacific?

Many people believe in patronizing the home industry but they only believe in that when they have something to sell; when they have something to buy, they think they should be privileged to buy in the cheapest market and to heck with the home market.

As our age, it doesn't matter whether they introduce rat poison or not, but what is happening to the dairy industry is being pilloried into a great big bomb that is going to explode some day and then those who have their eyes open, they will be saying with us, say, "Why didn't they tell us?" "well we are telling you now, believe it or not."

Ever-Normal Wardrobe Plan

(Wall Street Journal)

We see that the CIO Textile Workers Union, ever alert to new ways of spending your money, has come up with a program all set up an ever-normal wardrobe.

The union wants President Eisenhower to establish a public clothing program under which the government would buy up the excess production of the textile industry.

The clothing scheme would bolster the prices of clothes, provide a reserve for defense, aid our allies, keep textile workers busy and offer a free pair of pants for taxpayers reduced to wearing a barrel. It is thus designed to make everybody happy.

The program has a certain amount of consistency. The country lived so long under the philosophy that it's up to Washington to provide all of all our basic needs—shelter by public housing and food by public subsidies—that the notion that any greater foolishness in a public apparel program is hardly to be feared.

The political arguments already. To encourage the country to buy more clothing factory, high prices must be set. Only conservative, unfashionable garments ought to be flexible. This will revivify New England's textile industry, the Southern mills can expand as never before, Australian wool ranges and Alabama's cotton plantations will obtain markets unlimited. California's garment industry will no longer pose perils for New York's; the dizzy styles of Paris and stockpilers will take anything nobody's ever seen.

Shoes, of course, would have to be included so as not to disturb Brazil and the tanners of Texas hides. Hatters mad at the Eisenhower golf hat administration would be pacified if the government bought up all the old hats. Thanks, I say to him, and may he send me letters offers!

Black Tulip Long Sought

(Oshawa Times-Gazette)

Not long ago we noticed the arrival in Ireland of a car that long-sought blossom, a blue rose with purple edges but to date we have seen it, was really of a lavender shade.

A few years ago another long-sought novelty, a yellow aster was introduced which actually turned out to be a predominantly white blossom with a mere hint of yellow in the centre of the petals.

Actually, the nearest approach to the black tulip, a flower of real color.

Now it is announced that, to encourage the development of a black tulip, a prize of $100,000 plus royalties for its discoverer—should such a thing ever be developed.

After the tulip was first imported from Holland, where conditions were exceptionally favorable for the growing of commercial tulip bloom which rivaled the late Dutch flower available in its prenatal speculation.

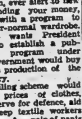
Prices running into thousands of dollars for their weight in gold guilders were paid for rare new tulips, and later tragically lost, in such speculations.

In the era of le Grand Monarque, Louis XIV, growers in Scandinavia and elsewhere began early sought to develop a black tulip.

An echo of the tulip mania of that period is a novel by Alexander Dumas, entitled "The Black Tulip."

In our own time a Dyrwin tulip, the Zulu, that is almost black has been placed on the market; but on close inspection it is found to be merely an exceedingly dark maroon.

Nature, which provides flowers in so many different colors and shades, has not yet—and it is doubtful if it ever will—produced a black flower of any kind.



Why, with such glorious tulips as the huge new Red Emperor, the old dependable red-and-yellow Kaiserkroon and the pink and white Cottage Maid, people should want a tulip in discouraging and unrelieved black, is beyond the comprehension of many interesterlers.

For black is the hue of mourning, and the tulip is, and should always remain the symbol of cheer.

SOME ARE HOT AND SOME ARE COLD

Dr. Brady

Now the melancholy days are in offices, stores, schools, rooms, restaurants, public conveyances, churches, theatres and living rooms. Why is it so? Why is it that some are hot and some are cold? I have been asked this question by a number of persons during the past few weeks. Let us see if we can find the answer.

The human body is a wonderful machine. It has a good deal to do with life or her sense of comfort, chilliness or excessive warmth. As we grow slow, low, minus metabolism may feel chilly in an atmosphere which quite normal metabolism finds comfortable. And most persons have normal or nearly normal metabolism—oxidation or combustion rate that is the most exceptional one with low metabolism often insists on having the room temperature as high as nearly every one else in the room pose their wishes on the benign and the meek.

Canvass almost any group of three or more persons and you will find differences of opinion or preference in respect to the heating and ventilation of the room.

The individual's metabolism has a good deal to do with life or her sense of comfort, chilliness or excessive warmth. As we grow slow, low, minus metabolism may feel chilly in an atmosphere which quite normal metabolism finds comfortable. And most persons have normal or nearly normal metabolism—oxidation or combustion rate that is the most exceptional one with low metabolism often insists on having the room temperature as high as nearly every one else in the room must endure discomfort.

The best way to regulate room temperature is with a thermostat and the majority vote of occupants of the room should determine at what point to set the thermostat.

Nanny-pampy persons, while they may harbor "brain" workers, business and professional persons who ride up from office or store instead of taking advantage of the opportunity to get a few miles of oxygen in the hoof and a daily lodin ration to restore their metabolism to normal. Too often these unhappy creatures, whose personality or disposition has changed from cheerful to glum, are persuaded by the doctor that it is the "change of life." That's for the birds—you know, the ninnyhammers.

And don't forget that you must walk three or four miles every day if you want to maintain good metabolism.

Britons Honor Sir Winston Churchill On 80th Birthday

Emotion in United Kingdom Matches That of Coronation

The pubs rang with "Happy birthday." A special three-room office in Charing Cross road was swamped with presents and bags full of letters, many of them with cheques and coins for Churchill's 80th birthday presentation fund.

ADDING THEM UP

A staff of 60, mostly volunteers from London banks, batted at adding machines far into Monday night in an effort to keep even with the contributions.

As a first instalment of the fund, Churchill was to be presented later today with a "six-figure cheque"—something approaching the equivalent of $500,000.

"It is a personal gift to Sir Winston and he may do with it what he wishes," said Lord Moynihan, the fund's treasurer. But it is generally presumed that the prime minister will devote it to some public - spirited enterprise close to his heart.

It was all glorious fun for the 80-year-old object of all the honors. He was pleased as a small boy by the great mounds of telegrams and letters, in fine form and good health.

UP TO EYEBROWS

He was also up to his eyebrows in the business of state for a few hours.

By coincidence, his birthday happened to be opening day for the new Parliament, and Queen Elizabeth rode to the House of Lords in a procession of imperial pomp to read her traditional speech from the throne.

But the rest of the day was the Old Man's.

From the House of Lords he had to take only a short walk to the 900-year-old Hall of Westminster, where his colleagues of Parliament arranged two special gifts as their own token of affection.

The House of Commons had for Churchill a commemorative album, you some day."

WELLINGTON

Commencement, Nominations Charivaries Hold Spotlight

WELLINGTON. — Wellington was a busy place on Friday night, with the W.C.S. commencement exercises, two charivaries and nomination, it certainly was far from being quiet and restful.

The old cutter was brought out out to take the newlyweds for a ride, Mr. and Mrs. Mac Greer who just recently returned from their honeymoon and they paraded through the streets in a cutter drawn by a tractor and with cars galore tooting and ringing bells.

After the parade they stopped at Mr. and Mrs. Percy Elliott's, (parents of the bride), where they were all given a treat. After that the gang spied a little house down the street and picked up Mr. and Mrs. Murray Wiltse, a recent bride and groom, and they also had a ride around town in the cutter with all the bells and horns a-ringing, after which they were all treated once more at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur King.

Nomination was really quiet. All the councillors and reeve were put back in by acclamation.

The Wellington Continuation School annual commencement exercises were held in the auditorium of the school on both Thursday and Friday nights, were well attended, the hall being filled each night.

The program was excellent and opened by Miss Carley Cleeve giving 15 minutes of delightful piano music. Introductory remarks by Ronald Snider, president of the Students' Council, who was master of ceremonies for both nights. Mr. Joseph Scott, principal of W.C.S., was the speaker for Thursday night and Mr. James Dick, chairman of the school board, was the speaker on Friday night.

The following program was given on both nights: a double trio by Beverly Alyea, Wanda Down, Kathyrn Ferguson, Carol Marvin, Keitha Trumpour and Patricia Ward.

On Friday night the "Valedictory" address was given by Miss Helen Foster, a clever student.

A musical pageant was put on by the students. It depicted the coming of the many different nationalities, who comprise this country and it was well rendered. Mrs. J. McNeil was the musical director and deserves a lot of credit for such a fine display.

As each nation was represented the choir behind sang suitable songs for that nation.

Several boys put on a grand gymnastic display.

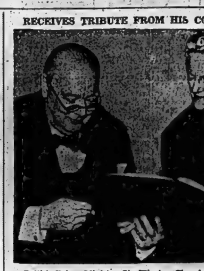
The last on the program, a play, "The Quiet Home Wedding." It tells was a quiet wedding, what would a noisy one be like! Every one of the cast did an excellent job and they had the audience laughing from start to finish.

CAST

The cast of this play were: Lanny Huff as Sonny; Ron Snider as pape of the bride; Wanda Down, a little sister and what a sister; Rhoda Marshall, the poor bewildered mother of the bride; Shirley Cunningham, the lovely bride; Sally Ann East, the neighbor, who liked to take exercises; Shirley Reed, another neighbor, who liked to gossip; Burt Garretsee, the neighbor's son, who got into more mischief with the little sister; Joyce Dick, the snoopy lady reporter; Bill Pettingell, the banged up bridegroom and Barbara Dick, who got so excited she couldn't stop giggling.

It was a fine play with excellent acting by all.

KNIGHTHOOD



When Prime Minister Churchill was raised to knighthood he received one of the highest honors Britain can bestow. This picture shows Sir Winston, who was 80 today, walking in the garter procession to St. George's chapel where he was made a Knight of the Garter, the first commoner to be so honored since 1925. (CP from UK Information.)

AS A BOY

As a young boy Sir Winston Churchill has a fondness for sailor suits in common with most boys raised in the Victorian era. Today, celebrating his 80th birthday, he still is vigorous and unpredictable and if he has any immediate intention of retiring as prime minister of Great Britain he has not confided it to his closest political associates.

RECEIVES TRIBUTE FROM HIS COUNTRYMEN

British Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and Lady Churchill admire an illuminated address book bound in blue and gold which was presented to Sir Winston by the British Legion to commemorate the prime minister's 80th birthday. Britons planned one of their biggest displays of affection for their leading statesman. The two houses of parliament will join in a session of tribute, and there will be gifts, including a cheque for a million pounds, to be spent on a public work selected by the prime minister. (Central Press Canadian.)

WAS HUSSAR

Sir Winston Churchill reached his 80th birthday today. This picture shows him as a young soldier, wearing the uniform of the 4th Hussars. He joined the regiment in 1895. During the following four years he saw active service in many parts of the world. He distinguished himself as a cavalry subaltern on India's Northwest Frontier and in the great charge of Omdurman in the Sudan in 1898. (CP from UK Information).

ACTIVE SPORTSMAN

Even at the age of 74, when this photo was taken, Sir Winston Churchill went bustling with Old World courtesy to greet and met at Chartwell Farm, near his Westerham home. Sir Winston was 80 today. (CP from UK Information).

Churchill Will Be Presented With Painting

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Club of Toronto Monday night marked Sir Winston Churchill's 80th birthday with presentation of a painting which will be sent overseas to the British prime minister.

Dr. Sidney Smith, president of the University of Toronto, said in making the presentation that the canvas will recall to Sir Winston his Quebec conference of 1943 with the late president Roosevelt and the late prime minister Mackenzie King.

Th painting is by Robert Pilot of Montreal, a member of the impressionist school with which Sir Winston's own paintings are classed. It depicts the St. Lawrence river on a winter evening, looking across at the ancient Citadel of Quebec to Levis.

Sir Archibald Nye, United Kingdom high commissioner to Canada, received the painting on behalf of Sir Winston.

A record of Sir Winston's voice, made in Britain recently in which he replied to the presentation, was played at the meeting. It said in part:

"This is a great honor. I much look forward to receiving the painting of the St. Lawrence river whose majestic glory I shall never forget. Moreover, the commanding Citadel arouses fondest memories of our wartime conference."

'Happy Gang Sewers' Discuss 'Clothes'

The third meeting of the "Happy Gang Sewers" sponsored by the Quinte Women's Institute, was held at the home of Mrs. Jack Parrott, on Wednesday evening.

Each member answered the roll call by showing her completed home assignment of two pictures of garments she thought would suit her, and explained why.

After the club name was decided on, Mrs. Reid read a letter from the home economist, thanking the leaders for their time and efforts in teaching the girls and expressed her hopes that they would be an inspiration to them.

The topics under discussion were: "Clothes to Suit the Occasion," "Harmony in Costume," and "Wardrobe Planning." The girls learned what type of clothing, color, style and fabric should be worn on different occasions in order to dress smartly as well as economically.

After the closing of the meeting, refreshments were enjoyed by all. Many thanks were expressed to Mrs. Parrott for opening her home for the meetings.

Dear Friends:

The 1954 Belleville and District Community Chest Campaign is now drawing to a close. The Year Round Board and Campaign Committee wish me to express their grateful thanks to the 490 volunteer canvassers and team captains who have worked in this Campaign.

To date, donations have totalled $24,500, against the objective of $30,000. This is $2,500 below the final sum received last year. When the objective is not reached, the service rendered by the six participating agencies must be reduced accordingly during 1955. Undoubtedly many individuals and business organizations have been missed during the canvass. To them we make a special appeal to contribute now to this worthy community effort.

Please forward contributions to the Treasurer of the Community Chest, Mr. Arnold Wolfenden, Dominion Bank, Bridge and Front Streets, Belleville, Ontario.

At this time I would like to personally thank all those who have contributed. I can assure them that their donations are sincerely appreciated and will be used with the utmost care by the Red Feather Agencies represented in this campaign.

J. C. B. FUNCHARD,
Campaign Chairman.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

SHE'S HAD GREAT UNHAPPINESS ALREADY—IS HEADED FOR MORE

When Mrs. X was 13 years old her parents married her to a man of 25. Why, she does not say. By the time she was 15, she had three children, her husband had left her and she was divorced.

Now, at 21, she is involved in a situation which can bring her nothing but further unhappiness, and she is either unable, or . unwilling, to see this.

She has fallen in love with a man two years older than herself, who insists that he loves her, too. But because his family disapproves their marriage, their reason being that he would have three children of another man to support, he is too weak to marry her. Instead, he has persuaded her into an affair with him, and she is shortly to have his child.

"I've tried to send him away because he won't marry me," she writes, "I have even put his clothes in his car and he has gone off. But he only drives around the block and then he comes back and says he loves me and give him time. This has happened four times, and he won't leave for good.

"He tells me he loves me, and that he always will, but he says he doesn't know what to do. You see, his folks told him that if he married me he could never come home again, and that he would be unhappy not seeing them. He says if he leaves me he will get hurt, and if he marries me against his folks wishes, he'll still get hurt.

"He's in the army, and I told him today that I was going to see a lawyer, who would call the army base and tell him to marry me. He got mad at first, and then he said again to give him time.

"Is it right to force him? I want him to ask me to marry him, not make him do it."

Whether she believes it or not, this tragic young woman will get no happiness out of marrying this man, either through force or persuasion. It is perfectly true that he is in a very difficult position. No young person of the right sort wants to break with his family. At the same time, the fact that he is willing to sacrifice her by leading her into an affair instead of marrying her, when she is to bear his child, makes him seem quite the opposite of the right sort.

I rather doubt that he really meant, from the beginning to love her. What she says does make me feel that if there were no family antagonisms, he would marry her. But the best that can be said about him is that he is a weak character, and no weak character ever made a good husband. Moreover, if she allows him to hang around her indefinitely on the chance that some day his parents may relent and he will then agree to marriage, the intervening period is likely to be such an unhappy one, so full of arguments and quarrels and repeated departures and returns on his part, that if they ever should marry, whatever love there now is between them may already have died.

I hardly expect this young woman will do what I suggest, but the wisest thing, I think, would be to force the man to make a decision. And the only way she can do this is to refuse to have anything more to do with him until he does make it. She could do this best, of course, by moving far enough away from him so that it would be difficult for him to get to her. But if she has to stay where she is, then she should neither see him, talk to him on the telephone nor answer any letters he might write her. It would take a lot of will power and determination to do this, but, if she ever wants peace of mind, she will have to put an end to the present impossible situation in the hope that to do so might bring about a more satisfactory one.

If she does this, and his love for her is really sincere, he will decide in favor of marrying her and taking his chances that eventually his parents will accept the fact. If he is too weak to do this, she is better off without him.

Bridge St. W.A., Coronation Club Holds Meeting

The combined meetings of Bridge Street United Church Woman's Association and the Coronation club were held in the church school.

Mrs. R. Fairman, president of the W.A., opened the meeting with a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Davis, the new minister and his wife, the Coronation club, members and visitors.

The W.A. held its business meeting with reports of the various conveners indicating a most successful bazaar.

The Coronation club held a short business meeting. Mrs. J. Kuntze, president, thanked the W.A. and said how glad the Coronation club was to have an opportunity to meet with them.

CHRISTMAS PARTY

Mrs. Fairman spoke of the Christmas party to be held next month and invited the ladies and organization of the Woman's Association of the United Church of Canada across the Dominion, was conducted by Mrs. Eb Gyde, Mrs. H. Griffin, Mrs. S. Kowalsuck, and Mrs. E. MacPhail.

Mrs. F. K. Capstick delighted the members with four selections on the piano. Especially enjoyed were, "Si (I Guess I'll Have to Be Were a Bird), by Henslet, and Gavotte in A by Brahms and Gluck. She was thanked by Mrs. H. Griffin.

The evening closed with refreshments provided by the Coronation club with Mrs. E. Edwards, Mrs. O. Summers, Mrs. J. Bond, Mrs. H. Frazer, Mrs. H. Farrow, Mrs. M. R. Linscott, Mrs. T. Colden, Mrs. J. Dickens, Mrs. E. Sutton and Mrs. A. Revill, acting as hostesses.

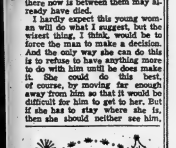
Beauty

By HELEN JAMIESON

DUMB GIRLS ARE NOT BEAUTIFUL

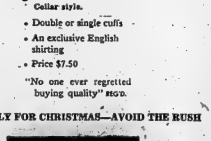


We still hear that old bromide "beautiful but dumb" now and then. But the idea is a fallacy. A girl can have an attractive figure and a pretty face but if she isn't intelligent, responsive and charming she is not beautiful in the true sense of the word. It takes something more than external perfections to make the grade. They are only the background if the picture of loveliness is to be flawless.

When we apply the word beauty to a flower or a rainbow it means that there is an assembly of elements that are pleasing to the eye. But when the word is applied to a woman it must include an appeal to the mind and the heart, as well as the eye. There must be emotional appeal also.

Some of our dump Dulcies have a well developed dress sense. Their sartorial draperies are selected with good judgment. They have chic and flair. But that does not make them beautiful. That is their "line."

Clothes are their one special interest and favorite topic of conversation.



The woman whose brain clicks has a capacity for vision. Her mind has a seeing eye. She knows that one of the most important phases of life is to get along happily with her fellow creatures, and that dumb Dulcie, if self-centered and vain, doesn't know anything about that is only the beginning. It is what we are, what we say, how we live, in other words, our personality—that counts.

Ever See a Saw-Tooth Grain Beetle?

By Mary Moore

Some strange requests—and enclosures—pass across this desk. Sorry looking samples of soggy fallen cakes are common.

But the enclosure that made my eyes pop was a bug—a dead one. It's true, and secured by a tight piece of Scotch tape, but nonetheless startling. It has taken me one month to get the dilly of a beetle identified which is what our reader requested, as you will see by her letter:

"This is a strange request I know, but by an chance could you identify the insect specimen above. I'm very weary of finding these in oatmeal, cornmeal, etc. This morning I cooked some oatmeal from a small package opened last week and found 2 or 3 of these insects floating round. It makes quite a waste to have to throw this all out because we cook it with 3 cups skim milk instead of water.

"My cupboards are cleaned out and washed regularly and there is no flour or cereal spilled on the shelves . . . I don't want to have to put everything in jars if I can help it . . . once I found dozens of them when I opened a package of . . . pie crust mix . . . they are anything to do besides throwing away all my fibers that are cleaned and cleaning the shelves again?—Carol W."

By coincidence two weeks later I read another letter on the same subject from another reader.

". . . I'm constantly finding "livestock" in my flour which I keep in a container. I have thrown out flour countless times, and cleaning and drying it thoroughly and started all over again with a small bag of flour from a busy store—only to have the same experience . . . the same thing has happened with pancake mix and even baking powder. . . . I suppose these little crawlers which leer happily at me and seem to enjoy my hospitality so much, are weevils . . . if you have any ideas on how I can cope with this problem I shall be eternally grateful— E.C.H."

I passed on the letter from Carol W. with insect attached, to the manager of the local branch of the Maple Leaf Milling Co., and he passed it on to their head office where Miss Whitbeck, director of consumer relations and home economist identified it.

Here is her letter with recommendations, which I hope will rid both readers of their unwelcome guests:

"Dear Mrs. Moore: . . . our entomologist has identified this insect as the saw-tooth grain beetle which is, on occasion, found in cereals, flour, etc. Mrs. W. seems to be having quite a time, and our only suggestion is that in spite of the fact that she says her cupboards have been cleaned and washed regularly, it would be wise for her to remove everything from the cupboard and get into all the cracks and crevices with a fairly strong solution of Javex or a similar product. Sometimes in a cupboard, breeding of insects continues because there is the odd crack which has been overlooked in although the shelves look perfectly clean.

"I would also suggest that every open package be examined and if any infestation is evident, the product immediately burned. It might also be wise to store in Mrs. W.'s attention that this infestation can feed on macaroni, rice, prepared puddings and in fact, anything which originated with a grain product.—Ethel M. Whitbeck."

Oh, for a pair of Gold Dust twins to supply the elbow grease!

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

SELECTING SPECIAL CHRISTMAS GIFT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Thank you so very much for answering my questions concerning wedding etiquette. Now I need your help in selecting a certain Christmas gift. My husband's brother and his wife have selected as their crystal pattern a very expensive pattern. Because this particular pattern is so expensive they have very few pieces, and we would like to add to this at their Christmas present. Do you think it would be at all proper for us to give them by selecting a certain kind of glasses as a "joint" Christmas gift, or should we just give "her" a goblet or other glass, and give "him" something else?. Our finances do not permit us to give more than this. Since the cost factor is so obvious, would it perhaps be even better to forget about adding to their crystal and give them something more personal? — Sallie F.

You have the perfect idea, I think: to give them a joint Christmas present of any two items you can afford to give them in their crystal pattern, the ones you think they would welcome most now. Or, if two pieces are not conveniently within your budget, give them a "joint" present of one piece. I am quite sure they would be particularly delighted to have one additional piece of their treasured crystal pattern.

Grand Falls on Labrador's Hamilton River Potentially One of World's Power Sources

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Three hundred Canadian engineers and surveyors in the mist of majestic Grand falls on Labrador's Hamilton river, potentially one of the world's greatest power sources.

Other survey groups comb the rough terrain of Newfoundland and Labrador searching for workable minerals or additional sources of hydro. The exploratory costs are high; the possibilities are limitless.

The Grand falls party, spending some $1,000,000 in a year-long survey for the British-Newfoundland Corporation, is the biggest of several dozen groups, from nine companies, seeking out the mineral and power wealth of this province.

HIGH POTENTIAL

Estimates of the potential from the falls run as high as 4,000,000 horsepower—almost twice that of the St. Lawrence seaway—and the possibility of running a 7,500-mile transmission line to industrial Ontario has been discussed.

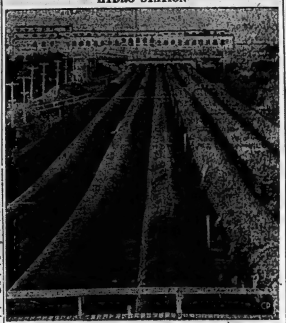
Since the provincial government started an exploration rush three years ago by forming the crown-controlled Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation, hundreds of surveyors have gone into concession areas.

NALCO has 14 exploration parties in the field and dozens of others probe the wilds for private companies, the provincial government and the British-Newfoundland Corporation, formed last year by a group of British banking houses headed by the house of Rothschild.

The province's four operating mines—Bell Island iron, Buchans lead-zinc-copper, and two fluorspar mines at St. Lawrence—are well under way before this post-war exploration boom. So were one gypsum and two limestone quarries.

The recent mineral investigations resulted in formation of the Iron Ore Company of Canada and the completion of a $250,000,000 development at Knob Lake, Labrador, from where iron ore is hauled to Sept-Iles, Que.

ASBESTOS DEVELOPMENT



An asbestos mine will go into production later this year near Corner Brook as a result of development started by a private company in 1947 under a $250,000 government loan.

Canadian Javelin Ltd., with extensive iron and titanium ore holdings in southern Labrador, has discovered what Premier Joseph Smallwood says "may be the greatest single deposit of iron ore."

"The government of Newfoundland's geologist reports to us that this astonishing deposit contains at least 1,000,000,000 tons of iron ore," Mr. Smallwood said in New York last week.

NALCO has turned up a major deposit of titaniferous magnatite, a type of iron ore used in making steel, in the Mealey mountains of

HYDRO STATION

Canadian engineers and surveyors are combing the rough terrain of Newfoundland and Labrador searching for workable minerals or additional sources of hydro. Exploratory costs are high but the possibilities are limitless. This is Newfoundland's Bowater hydro electric station at Deer Lake, 23 miles from Corner-brook. (CP Photo).

Labrador, only five miles from a potential shipping harbor. Another deposit, in central Newfoundland, also is being studied.

CONTROLS BIG AREA

NALCO has mineral control of two-year development leases with an option on 99-year mining leases. Falconbridge Nickel Is studying a central Newfoundland copper vein which officials think will be economical to mine. Four copper mines once operated in the province and one at Tilt Cove produced 2,000,000 tons between 1864 and 1918. All were abandoned when the market slumped and before cheaper processing was evolved.

Alberta Farmer Crowned Barley King Third Time

LETHBRIDGE (CP) — George Snow, the Alberta farmer who has been crowned the world's barley king for the third successive year at Chicago's International Livestock Exposition, says he didn't expect to get the title again this year.

"I was lucky, I guess," said the 25-year-old Milk River, Alta., farmer.

Mr. Snow won the title with his entry of Campana barley. He said that dry weather and a wet harvest season nearly prevented him from entering a sample. He also won the barley championship for the second time at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto this fall with the same entry.

"I managed to get a little of my barley cut and threshed before the excessive rain," he said.

Esks Get Riotous Reception, Gloom Shrouds Montreal Party

TORONTO (CP)—Edmonton Eskimos, who stunned 37,322 football fans with their Grey Cup victory Saturday, left for a riotous homecoming early today with the fanwell handshakes of only 10 persons —and they were relatives.

Eskimos took off in a chartered Trans-Canada Air Lines plane at nearby Malton airport at 12:03 a.m. EST.

The sendoff was nothing like the welcome Eskimos got when they landed at Malton last Tuesday. About 150 fans, newspaper men and photographers were on hand for their arrival.

Engine service repairs delayed the departure for an hour. Players spent the time listening to dance records at the Toronto Flying Club, not far from Malton.

Quarterback Bernie Faloney, who guided the underdog Eskimos to a 26-25 win over Montreal Alouettes in Canada's greatest sports spectacle, was not with the team today. He left for Baltimore Monday with his wife, Jan, to resume studies at the University of Maryland.

ON CRUTCHES

Several players were limping as they walked towards the plane. Centre Eagle Keys, who broke his left leg above the knee in the game, was on crutches. Halfback Ray Willsey had his left arm in a sling. He broke it in the contest.

The wives of two players were also on the aircraft. They were Mrs. Mary Ann Miles, wife of half Rollie Miles, and coach Frank Ivy's wife, Inez.

Miles, who re-injured his ribs on the first play of Saturday's game and was on the bench in the last half, made a few observations on the now-famous Chuck Hunsinger incident that resulted in the game-winning touchdown for Eskimos.

THOUGHT FUMBLED

Miles said he thought the Montreal halfback fumbled the ball around the Als' 20-yard line because "he had both hands on it and dropped it when tackled hard." He added:

"Hunsinger was carrying the ball with both hands all during the game. If he had intended passing a forward on that play he would have it in his right hand and ready for the throw."

The fact that there was no rousing farewell party didn't fizz on the Esks. They were obviously overjoyed at taking back Edmonton's first Grey Cup since the West entered the classic in 1921.

MONTREAL (CP) — The city tried to dispel the Montreal Alouettes' gloom over both the Grey Cup game with a parade and reception Monday but wasn't entirely successful.

The weather and memories of a pair of controversial plays that cost Montreal a 26-25 decision to Edmonton Eskimos Saturday in Toronto gave the celebration more of an air of mourning than of festivity.

The parade started out in high spirits, with some 1,000 fans braving an icy rain at the Westmount Athletic Grounds to watch 20 players and the band climb into open convertibles and a truck to begin the trek through downtown streets.

SUBDUED APPLAUSE

By the time the procession reached city hall, however, the talk had turned again to Saturday's game and the plays that gave Edmonton the Grey Cup. Even a spirited can-can by the seven lovely Montreal cheerleaders in the flower-decked hall brought only subdued applause from guests.

A number of Montreal import stars passed up the reception to get an early start toward home. Among those missing was Chuck Hunsinger, whose fumble late in the fourth quarter resulted in the winning Edmonton touchdown. Others were Tex Coulter, Jim Staton, Larry Grigg and Hal Patterson.

End Doug McNichol limped into the reception hall on an injured ankle. Coach Doug Walker made a brief appearance.

The players clustered in little groups, signing autographs and talking to guests who approached them.

Herb Trawick, big Negro guard who had a touchdown play called back in the third quarter Saturday when officials ruled play had stopped before he recovered a fumble by Oscar Kruger, puffed on a huge cigar as the parade got underway. The cigar was a gift from Bruce Coulter, the Als' second-string quarterback, whose wife gave birth to a baby girl Sunday night.

Trawick, who says this is his last year of football thought he was the victim of a fast whistle on the play the officials called back.

"The pictures show the ball carrier was hit and the ball bounced out of his hand," he said. "I think the whistle was fast."

The touchdown would have been Trawick's second in Canadian football—both in Grey Cup games. He scored his only major in 1948, when Montreal defeated Calgary for the cup.

Powell Leads

MONTREAL (CP)—Ray Powell, centre star of the Quebec Aces, has taken a four-point lead in the race for individual scoring honors in the Quebec Hockey League.

Powell picked up three goals and four assists during last week's play to boost his total for the year to 37. He has 18 goals and 11 assists.

ANCIENT NAMES

The old Roman names for the days of the week were Sol, Luna, Mars, Mercurius, Jupiter, Venus and Saturnus.

SUSPEND GIARDELLO

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Joey Giardello was suspended Monday by the Pennsylvania state athletic commission "until he clears himself" of charges in connection with a brawl in a south Philadelphia gas station.

Giardello is free on $1,000 bail pending court action. The 24-year-old middleweight title contender, and two friends are accused of assaulting a service station attendant and wrecking the place Oct. 29.

ANOTHER "ONER"

The Memos lost their fifth game last night by a one goal margin, if you take into consideration the fact that Kingston Goodyears tricked the fifth goal of their 5-3 win into the net after Coach Frank Boucher removed Parisi from the ice with 45 seconds to go. Besides that they have played two ties. The Memos were without the services of Hub Macy, who took a knockout punch from "Kid Fix" last Saturday, but the rest of the help was on hand. They apparently felt the effects of the layoff and some of them, it seemed, have not fully recovered from sickness or injury. In any event the Memos battled their arch-rivals from the Limestone City to the last ditch and Goalie Johnson came up with a fine effort to rob them more than once.

The senior "B" loop soup gets thicker. Soon the whole shebang will be leading the league with the Petes in second place. Last night the lowly Petes battled desperately for their second victory, held the powerful Clinton Comets to a four-all standoff. This vaulted the New York club into first place tie with the Cornwall Colts, each having 18 points. Kingston, by virtue of their victory over the Memos, are in second slot with 15 with the Memos still in third, if you can call it that, with 14. Whitby is breathing down their necks with 13 points, while close behind are the Brockville Magedomas with 11. The Petes gained a point, giving them five.

"MEET 'MOE', THE THUMB"

"There is no such thing as a cheap penalty. If hockey players stuck to clean hockey there would not be penalties of any kind."

That, kiddies, came from the well-known sorrel-top, Maurice "Moe" Walsh, in this corner's opinion one of the best sweater-and-whistle men in Fai Patterson's OHA officiating menage.

Okay, you show me one better, or a half dozen nearly as good.

The red-headed whistle-tooter from Ajax, as fearless an arbiter as ever came, said he did not believe in rough play. In fact, he added, he detested it. "Too many players," he went on, "think other players are to be used as battering rams against the boards. It's time to clamp down on such tactics—and believe me, brother, I'm doing it."

"Moe" has been accused of having a self-blowing whistle. The thing is trained to warble whenever it detects an evil thought flitting around the brain-pan of a player. Walsh thought flitting around the brain-pan of a player. Walsh denies this. But he speaks with a sort of whistling effect on account of his lips having developed a permanent pucker through too frequent association with the official pieces.

The Clinton, New York, fans have dubbed him "Woolworth Walsh." They say he has nothing under "five and ten."

With "Moe" there is no half-way measures. He says it is a penalty or not. And there are times when the guy actually feels sorry for a player after handing out a penalty tense. But you would never know it from the determined look on that Irish face. His middle name is "Mike".

He has officiated before crowds from Sidney, Nova Scotia, to prairie cities of the wild and wooly west.

This whistle-blowing oinadhann has been on the playing end of hockey, too. When a toddler he played amateur hockey in Toronto, later graduating to Junior "B" ranks with the De La Salle team. He was born in Lindsay, the son of a rugged fraiber, one Michael S. Walsh, who was rated highly as a baseball catcher in the Scugog town. Mr. Walsh, Sr., has been associated with the CNR for the past 40 years.

"Moe" stopped a terrific bodycheck during his junior "B" days, and decided, after a lengthy recovery from the injury, to quit hockey and become a referee.

He looted his first whistle in the Catholic Youth Organization, officiating for a year. He joined the artillery in 1939 and served for four years. He maintained his whistle-blowing while in the service, officiating at army games.

After the war bugles blew the "cease-fire," "Moe" again donned the official sweater, one that bore the insignia of the Toronto Hockey League. He stayed there for two years, then joined the official staff of the OHA. He is well known in Junior "A", senior "B" and senior "A" circles.

"Moe" spent the season of 1948-49 in the Cape Breton Senior Hockey League, where he acted as referee-in-chief. During the summer months he was umpire-in-chief of the Maritimes Colliery baseball leagues—a good Class "D" loop.

In 1949-50 he was named referee-in-chief of the Maritimes Big Four, just about as tough a league as there is in Canada. Those blue-noses took their hockey seriously as "Moe" well knows.

The next season saw him on the western provinces, working out of Saskatoon. He officiated at the western senior finals, the Allen Cup finals and the western Junior "A" finals between the Winnipeg Monarchs and the Regina Pats.

In 1951-52 he made the "big time" in the National Hockey League, officiating at some 48 games. He "worked" 13 games for the American Hockey League while on loan for a month.

During his sojourn in the Maritimes "Moe" acted as chief instructor for the Maritimes' Hockey School, sponsored by the New Brunswick government and the University of New Brunswick.

Maurice has a charming wife, Helen, and, of course, there are the five young redheads which constitute the rest of the Walsh family.

Officials Ruled It a Fumble, But What Actually Happened Only Larks' Backfielder Knows

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

What really happened on the fantastic Chuck Hunsinger game-losing play in Saturday's Grey Cup thriller probably will remain a secret with the Montreal Alouettes backfielder.

The CBC television film doesn't throw too much light on the play that set up Edmonton Eskimos for their game-winning touchdown run by Jackie Parker. The film was run off in slow motion three times for this reporter on Monday.

It showed the Montreal player holding the ball in front of him with both hands as two Edmonton Eskimos charged in. The ball flew out of his hands and in front of him as he was hit but whether this was caused by the jolt he received or whether he deliberately grounded the ball or tried a screen pass may never be known.

Officials ruled it a fumble—thereby a free ball—and allowed the touchdown that gave Eskimos a spine-tingling 26-25 decision in the last 3½ minutes for their first Grey Cup.

An incomplete screen pass ruling would have made it a dead ball, returning it to the line of scrimmage on the Edmonton 30. Deliberate grounding also would make it a dead ball but Montreal would start possession at the point it was thrown—about the Edmonton 20.

Football writers agreed it was the greatest stunner in Grey Cup history but they were as baffled as anyone else about what happened on the Hunsinger play. Here are a few comments they made in their newspapers:

Ted Reeve, veteran player, coach and columnist with the Toronto Telegram:

Eskimos "were fortunate more than somewhat when the ball squirted crazily to the birds on that last and almost-sure-to-be-winning march by Montreal that the last able legged, fast-runnin' fellow on their side . . . Mr. Parker by name . . . was the gent It bounded at.

"And we still don't think that Hunsinger, . . . booted on that last slippery night, had played himself into the floorboards with a remarkably sound all-round display up and he certainly saw stars. . . .

of runnin' football. And we are somewhat ashamed as a supposedly-to-be reporter that we could not, at the match, or on TV Sunday, catch the number of that . . . Eskimoman on the right side of their defence who came through on that head-on smash across the shin-bones of the ball carrier and shook it right out of his mittens. . . whoosh. . . that was the play of the contest. . . ."

Ivan (Hamilton Spectator) Miller: "The one big argument concerning the Hunsinger episode may never be satisfactorily answered and the former Chicago Bears' star must go down in history as the 'goat' of the game. . . . If it was a shovel pass, Hunsinger had no business throwing it in such close quarters. If it was a fumble, he was just plain unlucky. If he deliberately tried to ground the ball, knowing Alouettes would retain possession, he had every right to make such a decision. . . ."

Milt (Toronto Star) Dunnell: The officials in charge of the game probably realize they were on the hook as soon as they got time to consider their predicament. If they had overruled Hunsinger threw it, then they pulled an even bigger roof job because did when they permitted ambling Jackie Parker to scoop up the lateral and gallop 80 yards for a touchdown. . . .

"So they called it a fumble. If that was a fumble, there will be hundreds of thousands of folks who will figure they're in the right class. They distinctly saw Hunsinger throw the ball. The only question that remains was it intentional?"

Maurice (Winnipeg Free Press) Smith: "Why the experienced Hunsinger . . . threw a lateral pass out into nowhere to cost Montreal the game will probably never be known. It has been suggested that perhaps he had a mental breakdown . . . but, whatever the reason, it was a foolish play under the particular circumstances."

Scotty (Regina Leader-Post) Melville: "To put it bluntly Eskimos won on guts." Melville suggested that the hard tackle on Hunsinger "just knocked the ball away may have been responsible. . . . Hunsinger was shaken up and he certainly saw stars. . . .

Ohio State Named 1954 Grid Champions

NEW YORK (AP)—Rose Bowl-bound Ohio State Monday was named as the 1954 national collegiate football champion and winner of the O'Donnell Memorial Trophy.

In the final Associated Press ranking poll of the season, U.S. sports writers and broadcasters, casting a record-breaking ballot, named Ohio's Buckeyes by a slim margin over UCLA's Bruins.

The two unbeaten teams had made it a race all through the closing weeks of the season, with Ohio State slipping ahead two weeks ago and holding on to the finish.

Oklahoma, the only other major team to finish the season unbeaten and untied, finished a close third, the position it had held since mid-season.

Johnny Bower May Have Permanent Job

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Bower, acrobatic New York Ranger goalie who reached hockey's top bracket at the age of 29 only to lose out in "summer" training, may have acquired a job to stay with it a chance to prove he's in a class with the best.

"It's Bower's job until further notice," said Ranger coach Muzz Patrick Monday.

Patrick's statement came on the heels of Bower's sparkling performance against the league-leading Montreal Canadiens Sunday night. The New York native—Johnny turned aside 29 shots and thrilled 13,254 Madison Square Garden spectators with a dozen split-second saves.

In four games since his recall from Vancouver of the Western League, Bower has filled in ex-goalie for injured Lorne Worsley. He has given up only seven goals and his record has a 2-1-1 record during that span.

HALIFAX (CP) — Annual export of Christmas trees from Nova Scotia started early this month and continued until early in December. About 3,000,000 trees are shipped each year, mostly to the United States.

'Boom-Boom' Will Set Record If He Maintains Present Pace; Harry Lumley Is Top Goalie

MONTREAL (CP) — If hard-shooting Bernie Geoffrion of Montreal Canadiens keeps up his early season scoring pace he will wind up the National Hockey League season with a record 50 goals.

The right-wing star, nicknamed Boom Boom because of the echo his shot makes when it hits the backboards, has scored 18 goals in the 24 games Montreal has played. If he keeps producing at the same rate for the rest of the 70-game season, he will have 52 goals—two more than the record set in the 1944-45 season by teammate Maurice Richard over a 50-game schedule.

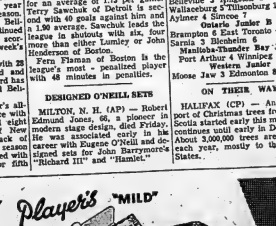
Geoffrion's best season to date was in 1951-52 when he scored 30 goals and won the Calder Memorial Trophy as the league's top rookie. He scored 22 goals the next year and added 29 more last season.

Geoffrion, Richard, Jean Beliveau and Dickie Moore continued Montreal's domination of the scoring race during the last week's play.

Geoffrion heads the pack with 28 points, followed by Richard and Beliveau with 26 each. Richard has 12 goals and 14 assists and Beliveau 10 and 16.

Veteran Moosehi, last year's all-star centre, is in fourth place with 20 points on 12 goals and eight assists. Danny Lewicki of New York, making the comeback of the year after a three-season layoff with Toronto last year, is tied with teammate Don Raleigh for fifth place with 18 points. Lewicki has 14 goals and four assists and Raleigh three goals and 15 assists.

Nick Mickoski, traded by New York to Chicago last week is the league's top playmaker with 16 assists. He is down to seventh place in the standings with 17 points.



Alex Delvecchio is next with 16 points on three goals and 13 assists. Tied for ninth place are Fern Flaman of Boston and Calum Mackay of Montreal, with 15 points. Laboine made the most sensational advance of the week, moving from 33rd to ninth place.

Goalie Harry Lumley of Toronto leads the Vezina Trophy race with 38 goals against in eight games for an average of 1.72 per game. Terry Sawchuk of Detroit is second with 40 goals against him and a 1.90 average. Sawchuk leads the league in shutouts with four, more than either Lumley or John Henderson of Boston.

Fern Flaman of Boston is the league's most - penalized player with 48 minutes in penalties.

DESIGNED O'NEILL SETS

MILTON, N. H. (AP) — Robert Edmund O'Neill, 58, pioneer in modern stage design, died Friday. He was associated early in his career with Eugene O'Neill and designed sets for John Barrymore's "Richard III" and "Hamlet."

Resurrect Old Curling Cup

WINDSOR (CP)—A curling trophy that went out of circulation in 1916 will be back on the scene this season.

The Record Trophy was first presented in 1903 by the late Jack McKay, publisher and editor of the old Windsor Record. It was presented annually to the best curler in the Windsor club. Then, in 1916, it was retired when the late Joseph L. Hume won it three years in a row. When he died, he left the trophy to be awarded again under the same conditions when a new curling club was started here.

This year, the Windsor Curling Club will resume its activities after a 15-year break.

Schmidt Out For Two Games

BOSTON (AP) — Milt Schmidt, veteran team captain of the Boston Bruins, probably will miss the club's next two National League games because of an injury to his left knee.

Schmidt's knee was swollen Monday and he was unable to participate in a rugged practice session after Sunday night's 6-2 triumph over Stanley Cup defending Detroit Red Wings.

Schmidt was bumped heavily Sunday night by the Wings' Benny Woit and had to leave for repairs. He tried to skate again in the second period but was jammed into the boards and had to leave for good.

There are presently only fourteen 19-year players in the National Hockey League—and, considering the high speed and fine conditioning of hockey, it's a heavy list that many have survived 10 or more years of ice warfare.

And it's even more surprising that in the present season, the most amazing player campaign of today is getting closer to the day when he can say he broke into major hockey 20 years ago.

For it's almost 20 years since the name of Milton Conrad Schmidt of Kitchener's Dutch line-up. It was late in 1938 or early 1937 that he was signed by Conn Smythe's Boston Bruins, and played enough games to bag a couple of Bruin situation, and played enough games to bag a couple of goals.

Schmidt weighs around 180 today, but he was a skinny 18-year-old when he first played for Bruins. He grew fast and he learned fast. Three seasons of absence from the major league learned fast. Kingston Goodyears Edge Memos 5-3; Take Over Second Position In Loop

Trickle Home Insurance Goal When Six-Man Strategy Fails; Meet Clinton Comets Friday

KINGSTON (Special) — Kingston Goodyears climbed one rung in the tense Ontario Hockey Association senior "B" group race and Belleville went down a step when the locals beat the bustling Memos by 5 to 3 last night in the community memorial centre. Competition was keen, penalties were equally divided and the result wavered in the balance until Clint Tinkess fired the final counter into a vacated net 31 seconds before the finish.

Notwithstanding unseasonal weather more than 2,700 spectators saw those old rivals in spirited and entertaining action. Goodyears did no trailing but the Belles hung on with such tenacity that it wasn't until 6.06 in the final period that Don Murray notched the winning tally and raised his point total to three; highest for the night.

FAIRLY GOOD

There were no dull moments and no stalling, the while fast skating puckcarriers poured rubber at the net. Goodyears commanded most of the territorial play and would have registered a much more decisive victory if goalkeeper "Percy" Parisi hadn't turned in one of the most brilliant displays seen here this season. Parisi, who played in a league in Italy last year, had never been seen to better advantage on Kingston ice. During one sustained bombardment he made six saves with the snipers firing from just outside the crease.

Ted Toppazzini, Don Murray and George MacGregor, working on the same line, set a blistering scoring pace with four goals and two assists. Murray was the only attacker on either team to score more than one. Toppazzini assisted a goal and an assist while will-o-the-wisp George MacGregor tallied once.

Belleville's points were distributed one apiece among nine players, the scorers being Daryl Jones, Edwin Duncan and Arnie Dugan. Big Vernon Goyer, who had to settle for an assist, manufactured several chances but his marksmanship was wide of the target.

Play was fast from the outset with the visitors launching the first dangerous assault. Dugan got past the defence at 2.30 but Jon Johnson made a sensational save. Two minutes later "Ted" DeGray weaved in to close quarters but Johnson balked him. Jones was penalized at 3.31 and during his absence Parisi's citadel was besieged.

Toppazzini opened the tallying at 10.28 after Kingston Goodyears recovered the attack. Jones got that one back in less than a minute with Keith MacDonald and Doug Hull participating in the swift assault. Dugan drew a minor sentence at 12.47 but Parisi was sensational in making half a dozen quick saves. The teams came back at full strength Murray, attacking in conjunction with Toppazzini and Tommy Goodfellow scored at 15.30. Goodfellow drew a minor sentence at 16.50 but the Belles were unable to capitalize on the break.

HEAVY PRESSURE

The Memos exerted heavy pressure during the early minutes of the middle session but strong defensive measures kept them in scoring subjection until Erwin Duncan, aided by Edwin Duncan and Bob Wilson, hit the webbed at 7.33. Penalties to Jack Irvine, John Muckler and Goodfellow followed and it was while the last named was away that MacGregore scored after having taken a pass from Murray. Near the close of the session Ted Nicholson accidentally hit referee Jim Crombie with the puck and the applause was deafening.

Duplicating their tactics of the previous periods the Belles rushed to the attack early in the final session and were rather unfortunate in their failure to get the tying marker. A penalty to Muckler halted them at the 3.53 mark, the while they resorted to airtight defensive measures. Following Muckler's return the visitors resumed assaulting tactics and when Ted DeGray was unable to backcheck after he had failed to score from close quarters Don Murray, aided by Goodfellow racked up the winning marker.

Arnie Dugan cut the lead at 11.16 with "Red" Doran and Goyer assisting and during the next five minutes the teams alternated in missing close scoring chances with slightly more than a minute to go Parisi was replaced by a forward and the Belles threw caution to the winds in seeking the tying counter. During one of those forays Irvine gained possession and passed to Clint Tinkess who skated unopposed to the net crease before shoving the puck over the line. The line was 19.29 and whom—Irvine was penalized ten seconds later for elbowing the Memos last faint hopes were crushed.

The teams:

Belleville — goal, Parisi; defence, Wade and Muckler; centre, Doran; wings, DeGray and Dugan; alternates, Wilson, Goyer, Ed Duncan, Erwin Duncan, Jones, MacDonald, Hall, Bettiol.

A MESSAGE FROM MAYOR BOTH...

November 29, 1954

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN:

In again appealing to you for your support for Mayor for '55, I do so with the same determination to protect your invested values as I have endeavored to do in 1954. I was successful in having your annual budget re-checked, departmental estimated expenditures revised to keep our tax rate down which I maintain has been done. The program of revision, checking, explanations of departmental expenditures, has been met by organized resistance by a number of our aldermen, some considering the practice developed was a personal attack on their department. This was not the intention by any stretch of imagination, but was done to halt if possible an increasing tax rate, which many of our citizens agree is becoming a handicap to progressive expansion. This I shall endeavor to do as long as the citizens of Belleville elect me as mayor of our city. The management of business, personal, industrial or city expenditures should be properly examined before levying a tax rate on public invested value, in any department of city administration.

The expansion, the changing conditions of all municipalities that are taking place today, must be given careful consideration, and not passed along without knowing if the program is in the interest of those who must meet the cost of such a program, therefore, examination, study, and thought must be given to all branches of our spending departments.

I do not want the citizens to be misled in the translation of my policy, that I am handicapping or dissipating any progressive expansion, or reasonable endeavors to advance our resources or advantages to encourage development, as this is the life stream of any community and can be attained and considered by prospective business firms, by careful administration of our city affairs.

Business activities at the present time are experiencing a hesitation which may only be of a temporary nature, and while our national resources and opportunities available for expansion and development are the finest of any country in the world, it appears to be good common sense to approach this situation, with cautious apprehension in the consideration of personal, industrial or municipal obligations, and your council are the board of directors of your invested interest. It presents a period for very careful consideration of our expenditures, this feature I shall, if elected your mayor for 1955, continue to impress on your selected representatives to council, with every contact for development being followed with keen thought for betterment of our city.

I believe that in setting the mill rate for 1954, I have proven that my business responsibility and administrative training have shown that I have the ability to carefully examine or point out for consideration to a governing body our service to all citizens.

Thank You,
MAYOR JACK BOTH.

AT THE BELLE — The suspense film reaches its absolute pinnacle in "Carnival Story", romantic adventure drama, in color by Technicolor, co-starring Anne Baxter, Steve Cochran and Lyle Bettger and George Nader. "Carnival Story" is showing today and Wednesday at the Belleville Theatre, with a funny Walt Disney Goofy cartoon.

Wild Bill Hickok May Cause Young Fry to Shed Few Tears

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—The small fry may cry in their milk flakes when they learn this, but Wild Bill Hickok is breaking a heart of which he helps raid a gambling house and does some torrid smoodching with a blonde.

As say juvenile within range of a TV set knows, Wild Bill is young Guy Madison. He is currently starring in a movie called "Five Against the House." It's a modern story about five college students who rob Harold's Club in Reno.

When I heard about the plot, I mussied over to Columbia Studios to demand an accounting. I found Madison looking almost naked without his boots, chaps and sixgun. He wore slacks and a fancy-dude shirt.

He hastily explained that he plays an unwilling accomplice in the five rustling, being forced to go through with it at the point of a gun. It seems that his brother, a veteran of Korea, is off his trolley and makes Guy and two others accompany him.

GUNS LEFT OUT

"I don't think the effect will be too bad," he opined. "A gun is shown only once, and then sketchily. The job is pulled off by psychology of fear. It is very well planned—so much so that Harold's Club is one of the handiest of handling money in order to forestall such a job.

"In the end, I give the money back to the cops and it's all square between them and me."

But the smooching may raise some eyebrows. It used to be that a movie cowpoke could kiss his horse but didn't dare dally with the heroine except in his TV work. Madison is never allowed any romance.

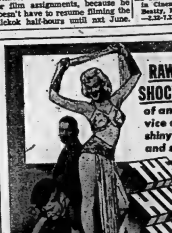
"I don't think there are any sexual and fast rules against it anymore," he remarked. "TV has done away with that."

For his sake, I hope he's right. Because it looked him do a sizzling scene with Kim Novak that even made the camera man shake. Anyway, one of the lights attached to it overheated and burned the gaffer's fliver.

PLANTS 12 KISSES

Miss Novak, dressed in a low-cut gown and tight slacked into his college dormitory and announced she would accept his offer of marriage. Whereupon he slipped off her coat and planted 13—I counted 'em —kisses on her neck and face.

Wild Bill was never like this!



Madison, who is a heroic fellow, seemed uneasy about the whole thing. But he said he hoped his fans would differentiate between Guy Madison the actor and Wild Bill Hickok, the TV idol.

Apparently he will be having more opportunities to branch out from the TV flame. He is reported to play Clark Gable's younger brother in "The Tall Texan" and also has a film deal cooking in Mexico. He'll have plenty of time for film assignments, because he doesn't have to resume filming the Hickok half-hours until next June.

World-Famous Circus Acts Featured In Warner Bros. "Ring of Fear"

In "Ring of Fear," now at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre, movie fans will have the opportunity to see some of the world's most famous circus acts, according to advance reports on the Cinema-Scope circus thriller. Filmed by Clyde Beatty-Cullen Bros., the Warner Bros. "Ring of Fear" was made in Phoenix, Arizona, at the winter headquarters of Clyde Beatty's circus. Beatty, who stars in the film with Mickey Spillane and Pat O'Brien, gathered some of the greatest names in circusdom under the big top.

The Wallendas, who have been in the circus business for five generations, are the only group to cross a wire from one person's pyramid on the high wire. Their specialty is said to be a highlight of the circus-action scenes.

The Flying Zacchinis, a family of high-flying daredevils, are also seen in the centre ring as they float through the air with the greatest of ease, precariously astride the flying trapeze.

Captain John Cline with his Liberty horses, Tiny Gallagher and others are also seen, but as it is in all three-ring circuses, the star of the show is always the man who walks into a cage full of wild beasts. In "Ring of Fear" it is Clyde Beatty, playing a true-to-life role, who carries the whip and the chair. Fans are promised a never-than-ever view of Beatty in action as the two production cameras were reportedly operated from within the steel bars of the big cat's cage by newly-perfected remote control system.

Mickey Spillane, whose fame was found in another field, also appears in "Ring of Fear" in the role of a hard-hitting mystery novelist, himself. But he steps out of character for one brief scene in which he performs with a troupe of acrobats on the high trapezoline.

"Ring of Fear" was directed by Gordon Douglas. Grant and produced by Robert M. Fellows.

MELBOURNE (AP)—Russia is keeping quiet on the size of her 1956 Olympic team at Melbourne. Gen. William Bridgeford, chief executive officer of the games, said Monday "we have heard from almost of the other countries but the Russians say they haven't decided." He added he is sure the Russians will send a larger team than any other country.

Baseball's Trade Winds Are Blowing, Big Deals Expected Before the Calm

By JOE REICHLER

HOUSTON (AP)—The fuss and confusion created today by the American Association's drafting of the Western League's Denver club means all ties will be blotted out the existence of the major league managers at the baseball 32nd annual convention.

But while weary and sometimes bewildered executives were frantically seeking a solution to the many problems looming ahead because of the imminent wholesale realignment of teams, the league presidents were quietly plotting player trades.

One due to be announced at any moment now is the second half of the tremendous Baltimore - New York Yankee transaction of two week go. The second instalment probably will send Oriole pitchers Lou Kretlow and Mike Blyzka, outfielder Jim Pridley, catcher Darrell Johnson, first baseman Dick Kryhoski and an unnamed farmhand to the Yankees for pitcher Bill Miller and infielders Kal Segrist and Don Leppert.

MORE TRADE WINDS

That would make an 11-player deal of the one which began with the shifting of shortstop Billy Hunter and pitchers Bob Turley and Don Larsen to the Yankees for pitchers Harry Byrd and Jim McDonald, outfielder Gene Woodling, shortstop Willie Miranda and catchers Gus Triandos and Hal Smith.

There is no doubt more trade winds are blowing behind closed doors and private nooks in the lobbies of the hotel headquarters of the Phillies, Braves and Philadelphia.

General manager Roy Hamey of the Phillies, openly admitting he is seeking hitting help, reported he has made bids for Jackie Robinson, Carl Furillo and Junior Gilliam. The Dodgers have asked for southpaw Curt Simmons and either of the Phillies' catchers, Smokey Burgess and Stan Lopata, but not for the trio coveted by Hamey.

Robinson also is on the "wanted" list of the Cincinnati Reds, who have made a definite offer for the great outfielder.

LANE WANTS YOST

Chuck Dressen, newly appointed manager of Washington, is shopping for a righthanded hitting outfielder. He talked to general manager Frank Lane of the White Sox, who wants third baseman Eddie Yost. The White Sox also have been dickering with Kansas City. Chicago manager Marty Marion admitted he made a proposition which Lou Boudreau, the Athletics' new manager, is milling over."

A financial stalemate resulted in the American Association's drafting of Denver. Unable to agree with the Western League over a settlement for encroaching on its territory, the AA axed minor league presidents Tom Trautman and to appoint a five-man board of arbitration to settle the dispute.

The-Western League has asked for $150,000 damages for the loss of the Denver club. The American Association has offered $50,000, the same it received from Arnold Johnson for its loss of Kansas City to the American League.

GIVEN APPOINTMENT

OTTAWA (CP)—George A. Scott, 39, has been appointed director of economic policy for the transport department, it was announced Monday. The position carries the rank of assistant deputy minister.

Robinson Gets Light Workout In Exhibition

HAMILTON (CP) — Sugar Ray Robinson, former welterweight, middleweight and middleweight boxing champion, sharpened his timing and tested his ability in an exhibition fight here Monday night.

Robinson, considering a comeback in the ring since his retirement in June, 1952, toyed with former Hamilton boxer Joe Shade for six rounds in a no-decision match.

He nearly floored Burton in the second round when he caught him with a right hook. Robinson held up Burton, they smiled at each other and the fight continued.

Many fans at Barton Street Arena left before the match ended. Robinson said later that he doesn't go into an exhibition with the intention of hurting his opponent or having himself injured. Both fighters were heavy training gloves that were dressed to lessen the risk of injury.

Robinson displayed footwork and jabbing but made no attempt to knock out Burton, who couldn't solve the former champion's style.

Sugar Ray retired when he lost to Joey Maxim and the heat in Yankee Stadium in a bid for the light-heavyweight crown.

Sugar Ray, who suffered only three defeats in a brilliant career of 137 pro fights, said he felt an exhibition such as the one Monday night did more for him than six months at a training camp.

"I am quite satisfied with the way I felt tonight," the 34-year-old Robinson commented. "My left jab was a little off but I think I could punch well with it if I have to."

Whether this was an indication that Robinson would continue on his comeback was not certain. He said his plans for future fights are unsettled.

To play bridge, Elva Tyne thinks all she needs is the ruses of a symphony, the book of rules, and a deck of cards. But all she knows is that a deck contains 52 cards; and she is not sure of that.

If she opens the bidding it gives her a headache just to think of what her second bid should be. The only reason they let her join the Wednesday bridge club is because she whips up a good salad.

If partner responds to your opening one bid with a no-trump, a second bid by you is what it depends on your additional values; the amount and nature of the additional.

Colbertson says an opening game bid may jump rebid to three in his own major suit; or jump to a game of four in his own major suit; or jump takeout to a new suit; or jump agreement.

Goren says an opener with very good range hand should jump to three no-trump with a reasonably balanced hand; with an unbalanced hand, jump rebid or jump takeout. It promises 20 points.

Accordin' to Gordon an opening bid bidder promises a hand with five or more tricks among other basic values. If partner responds with a no-trump it shows three no-trump tricks (high cards).

An opener may raise once for each trick in excess of the five he promised, and may jump when he sees pair tricks enough for a game. His bids follow Four-A-N; takeout first, assist next, no-trump last.

Open one heart with the south hand shown here:

♥ A Q J 8 3
♦ A Q 10 9 4
♣ A 7

If your north partner responds with one spade, you have added values are enough to promise a value in the game. Jump in southern your partner has enough for game in the pair.

If he responds with another suit, jump takeout to three diamonds and tell partner not to stop short of game. Honor tricks or points or tricks tell you this. Use the language you can understand.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars, for Wednesday, December 1, 1954.

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — A day for using quiet strength in making decisions. Unusual tact should work well on the whole. An irritable manner and loud talk sidetracking top results.

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Not a wholly responsive or encouraging day although you're study, daily activities should prosper. Unusual ideas or ideas projected interestingly could capture the attention of superiors.

May 21 to June 21 (Gemini) — Dignity and humility are great assets in any walk of life, sid both social and business ventures. Truly progressive people usually possess these qualities. Think!

June 22 to July 22 (Cancer) — Moon and Mercury aspects stress a need for greater patience and understanding than usual; both will pay dividends. Your efficiency and know-how, emphasized now, could lead to gains, advancement.

July 21 to August 22 (Leo) — Your Sun is neither stimulating nor hindering now, but there are influences favorable to brilliant ideas, creative pursuits, dealing in fine materials, equipment. Show your best attributes.

August 23 to September 23 (Virgo) — Keep within a sensible pace so as not to overdo or, on the other hand, do anything important. If you plan your day's program quickly but carefully, you will get the right perspective —and surer returns.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) — Read Taurus. Your influences similar. Clever methods of presenting yourself and your ideas will add to your achievement. Be careful but progressive and acquisitive. Good work always pays.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — If you contain your activities within day's demands and don't overdo or fret about big returns you can achieve satisfactorily. Avoid worry, irritability; co-operate where you should.

November 23 to December 22 (Sagittarius) — There are restrictions which should be wisely accepted. Avoid domineering, impatience, needless fretting. Substitute graciousness, helpfulness and eagerness to advance.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Moon, depends upon your astute judgment and management of affairs generally. No one is more efficient than you. Capricornians when working at your best and forgetting personalities.

January 22 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Your Uranus and Neptune are the only planets in favorable aspects today. Make the best of available opportunities, new equipment, methods, tools — and your intelligence — if you would achieve.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Your talents and work for which you are trained or especially equipped are stimulated by fine Neptune rays. If not overzealous, but thoughtful, you should get through the day well.

YOU BORN TODAY have an engaging, bright and striking personality; are usually capable, often brilliant; can hold a position of importance with dignity, efficiency. You may have to curb a tendency to be too sure of your own judgment and generally too much importance upon material gain and values. Always keep your spiritual side nurtured. Big Fine Imposed

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A Peruvian navy court Monday imposed a $1,000,000 fine, payable in five days, on five whaling ships of the Greek fleet owner Aristotle Onassis.

The four whale catchers and a big factory ship were herded into the North Peruvian port of Paita Nov. 15 by Peru's warships and planes. Peru charged that the whalers were operating within a 200-mile belt of the Pacific, which Peru claims as part of its territorial waters. Lawyers for Onassis have contended three of the ships were outside the 200-mile zone.

It was not announced what steps would be taken in case the fine is not paid within the five days.

Churches Critical Of Broadcasting Grey Cup Game

REGINA (CP) — Regina's only television station, CKCK-TV, came in for heavy criticism Monday by churches for televising Sunday a film of the Grey Cup game.

The station televised the game at noon. Most churches reported it as a little competition through pastors of some suggested that icy streets also were to blame.

Severest criticism came from Rev. Dr. Ernest Marshall, minister of Westminster United church.

"If TV wants to declare war on churches, let it do so," he said. "We are ready for it."

The Rev. Norman D. Kennedy, minister of First Presbyterian church, said it was unfortunate that the program conflicted with church and Sunday school services.

"Hereafter we will not have a Grey Cup game every day and so long as this is not a precedent I do not think we should make it an occasion for unfriendly criticism."

Wins Wheat Crown On 'Yorkwin'

CHICAGO (AP)—Elson Baur of Unionville, Mich., Monday was named wheat king of North America at the International Livestock Exposition. His reserve wheat champion is Fred Elmquist of Potter, Neb.

Baur won the wheat crown on Yorkwin, a soft white winter variety of grain weighing 61.2 pounds to the bushel.

Willard C. Kirk, 48, of Jeffersonville, Ohio, was named corn king after the judges had taken the crown from Arnold and Paul Karsk of Pecatonica, Ill., for an alleged show rule violation. It was disclosed that some kernels on their 10-ear sample had been glued on at least one ear.

Also taken from the 1954 soybean champion. He is Ben T. Gildersleeve of Hudson, Ill., who was soybean champion in 1951 and 1952.

CANADIAN NAMED

This reserve soybean champion is Clifford Dale of Glanworth, Ont., who showed a Harosoy type. Gildersleeve's entry was a Clark variety which weighed 60.4 pounds to the bushel.

Lloyd Goltz of Falkenburg, Ont., won both the championship and the reserve championship in the field peas section.

Draft of 1,300 Canadian Soldiers Leaves for Home

OTTAWA (CP)—A draft of 1,300 Canadian soldiers, the largest yet in the withdrawal of 6,000 parts of Canada's brigade in Korea, left here Saturday for Korea, army headquarters announced Monday.

Next month 500 more soldiers will be flown home on Operation Santa Claus.

The 1,300-man draft includes members of the 3rd Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery; 3rd Company, Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, less one platoon; detachments of the 2nd and 3rd Field Squadron, Royal Canadian Engineers; 25th Brigade Signals, and a number of miscellaneous personnel and detachments.

Remaining in Korea are the 2nd Battalion, Queen's Own Rifles of Canada and one field ambulance with the necessary administrative support for their units. Officials have expressed hope that the remaining troops may be withdrawn next spring.

SUGGESTS LEGISLATION

OTTAWA (CP)—British Columbia Monday urged a royal commission to recommend federal legislation to grant Canadian railways greater freedom to enter into rate agreements with shippers. The recommendation was made by Hon. Wesley Black, minister of the province, in a brief to the commission which is studying the agreed charge method of setting freight rates.

Seaway Valley Residents Want Replacement Value

MORRISBURG, Ont. (CP)—Residents of Seaway valley, the area to be flooded by St. Lawrence seaway power project, plan to appeal to Premier Frost to seek assurances that they will get adequate compensation for their homes.

Nearly 1,000 residents Monday night endorsed the selection of a six-man committee which will urge the premier to ensure that if existing legislation does not provide fair compensation for their homes then it will be amended.

Ontario Hydro announced earlier it will pay a fair market value for each home plus 15 per cent for forcible taking. The residents of Seaway valley want the replacement value.

Reeve George Beavers of Morrisburg said values have been unofficially fixed at an average of $4,000 for the work the Hydro does here. The contractuality will not work for the people," he said. "We will not work at a loss. Why should we take a loss?"

District property owners' associations and civic and business groups were represented at the meeting. Also attending were district municipal officials and George H. Challies, Ottawa vice-chairman and Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Dundas.

Mr. Challies was heckled during his address and at the end received a minute of applause and a boo.

When he suggested those not satisfied with what Hydro offered might go to the courts for settlement, he provoked several cries: "Why should we be forced to the expense of going to court?"

Many of the speakers said they were satisfied with the arrangements Hydro has made with the municipalities but criticized the scheme for individual compensation.

Charles Dewhirst of the Citizens Committee of Osnabruck said: "Honestly you don't hear the figures that have been offered by the Hydro for properties, I'm just disgusted."

Some 6,300 families will be displaced by the flooding of the area on the banks of the St. Lawrence between Iroquois and Cornwall.

On the executive named Monday night are: Reeve Lloyd Davis of Iroquois; Reeve Allen Farlinger of Matilda township, Reeve Beavers; Reeve Berdine Foster of Williamsburg township, Reeve Thorold Lane of Osnabruck and Dr. Elmo Emard, reeve of Cornwall.

Army Sergeant Chauffeur For Important People

OTTAWA (CP)—They roll out the red carpet here for people Rene Dedjardins drives around.

The 52-year-old army sergeant is the chauffeur of the big black limousine convertible used by kings, queens, prime ministers and top generals when they visit Ottawa.

He drove Queen Mother Elizabeth and her two young daughters at behind the wheel for Queen Elizabeth, in 1951, then a princess, and for the Duke of Edinburgh last summer.

WORRIED MOMENTS

In the last nine years, Desjardins has driven dozens of VIPs, but was nervous last once.

That was (when Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill and British Secretary Anthony Eden, who were then still not friends, sat on the top of the convertible with nothing to support them.

"I admit I was scared," the veteran of the Second World War said. "But I drove very slowly and everything turned out all right."

The first class mechanic, Desjardins has never had an accident.

DISCREET DRIVER

Conversations carried on in the back seat are secret.

"Of course I hear things, but that is left in the car," he said.

After his visit ended this year Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, supreme military commander of NATO, handed Desjardins a parcel package as he was about to leave. It was a carton of cigarettes and a note of appreciation from the driver.

Notables he has driven include President Vincent Auriol of France, Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia, Field Marshal Montgomery, President Truman and Governor Dewhirst of the United States, Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands and almost every leading statesman who visited Ottawa.

Gasoline Instead Of Fuel Oil Put In Furnace Tanks

DANVILLE, Va. (AP)—The 40 guests at Hotel Danville slept soundly Saturday night. But by early nights, unaware that the 150-room structure was sitting squarely atop a powder keg that could have blown them sky high.

By accident, 4,850 gallons of gasoline, carrying an explosive potential of 40,000 pounds of dynamite, had been fed into the furnace tanks of the hotel Saturday afternoon.

Nothing happened, thanks to sheer luck.

In the tanks were 2,700 gallons of fuel oil, about enough to tide the hotel over for three days. So when the gasoline—intended for delivery to a service station—was fed into the bank, it settled on top of the fuel oil, a heavier element.

Gradually the gasoline sank near and nearer the pipeline that feeds the furnace. But it never quite got there.

By coincidence, a hotel bellhop decided the building was warm enough that he turned off the furnaces for the remainder of the night. The gasoline was almost down to the danger line.

Then the telephone rang and it was the Pennsylvania, N.C. trucking firm that had delivered the gasoline. There had been a mixup of invoices.

Loose Wheel Cause

STRATFORD (CP)—A coroner's jury Monday night decided a loose front wheel on an automobile helped cause the deaths of two men killed in a traffic accident last month.

Edward Telleman of Kitchener was killed when his car went out of control and crashed into a tree Dec. 11. Norman Gulik of nearby Shakespeare, a passenger, died in hospital a week later.

Mrs. Clayton Curtis and Mrs. Jack Ferguson motored to Frankford on Tuesday to see one of the W. A. members, Mrs. G. C. Stickle, who has been very sick at her daughter's, Mrs. H. Terry. All are glad to say Mrs. Stickle is much better.

SCIENTIFIC GROUP

Canada's national research council developed from the council for scientific and industrial research set up in 1916.

EVEN BEFORE the turn of the century, polar and other explorers found that boxes of light, precious first-aid equipment were protection from rough usage and rough weather.

Manufacturers took the tip. Today, especially in factories where industrial processes create humid or corrosive conditions, aluminum boxes are used to keep first-aid kits in good shape.

In fact, aluminum is now popular for boxes to hold everything from tools to trout flies. And for countless other containers that must stay clean, bright, free from rust. Aluminum Company of Canada, Ltd. (Alcan).
